This is one of the best propositions ever placed before the Canadian investor. The Company owns 600 acres in the celebrated Black Hills District, South Dakota, comprising 33 claims. The tract is unquestionably on the great Homestake belt, being located directly between the wonderful Homestake mine and the Clover Leaf mine. Two shafts have already been sunk, the main one being down 150 feet, with capacity of going 1000 feet. The Company has also installed an Ingersoll-Sargeant air compressor and drills, 125 horse power boiler, steam pumps, and in fact everything needed for actual operation, with the exception of its stamp mills; which will be installed at once. The value of [illegible] company's property is very rich. [illegible] per ton.

The Company has a capital of 1,500,000 shares, divided into 750,000 preferred and 750,000 common, par value [illegible] share, fully paid up and non-assessable. The [illegible] preferred stock to the amount of [illegible] dividends [illegible] preferred stock before holders of [illegible] of the profits. After the 25 cents has been paid to the [illegible] of preferred stock, then all share alike in the dividends. [illegible] nothing less than that the [illegible] will have all their money returned to them before any dividends are declared to the stock [illegible].

A limited amount of Stock has been [illegible] for the Canadian market. Full particulars and copy of [illegible] may be obtained from MR. R. J. KIDD, or the undersigned Agent for Peterborough city

NEURALGIA

THIS DISTRESSING COMPLAINT IS DUE TO IMPOVERISHED BLOOD

When the blood becomes thin and watery, as a matter of course, you become weak, vitality gets down low, and there is but little power in the system to ward off disease and pain.

Neuralgia beats on a weak spot, and makes a home there, so people that it is [illegible] proper remedies it can be driven from the system, never to return. To obtain immediate relief, first apply to the painful parts, a good quantity of Polson's Nerviline, and then bind on a hot flannel cloth.

This local treatment will be found very efficacious, but must be followed by a course of Ferrozone treatment. Ferrozone is a blood food, and a blood purifier, and quickly strengthens the system so that further attacks may never be feared. It makes the rich red kind of blood, that gives strength and vigor to weak constitutions and puts them in good shape to resist neuralgic attacks.

This combined treatment of Nerviline and Ferrozone in Neuralgia, Sciatica, and Rheumatism, is marvelously effective and cures after all else has failed. Because of the unique success of these remedies we have no hesitancy in endorsing their use to our readers. All druggists sell them.

To Learn Printing

We require a steady boy to learn press work. This is a good opportunity for a good boy or young man. Apply at Times Bookstore.

Inspected the Bridges

The members of the County Council yesterday inspected the new bridge at Gannon's Narrows and the Buckhorn bridge. A full report will appear in tomorrow's Times.

A Unique Present

Two very handsome carved and burned sticks which were brought from Mexico were presented to Mr. Pete Simons, sr., and Mr. Pete Simons, jr., by Mr William Fleming, who has been absent from town for some years and is now paying Peterborough a visit.

Peterborough to New York

Take the direct route, Grand Trunk and Lehigh Valley. Five fast express trains daily, including "Black Diamond Express." No extra fare on this train. For tickets and Pullmans call on WM. BUNTON, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, G. T. Ry.

A Successful Entertainment

A very successful entertainment was held last night in St. John's Sunday school room under the auspices of the Girls' Guild of that church. A number of the members of both Guilds appeared in costume of ye olden time. A very unique programme was presented which was thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

Hunting Season

The Grand Trunk Railway have issued a very handsome and illustrated pamphlet, entitled, "Haunts of Fish and Game," giving information regarding seasons for shooting Deer, Moose, Caribou, etc., in the "Highlands of Ontario" and at other points along the line of the Grand Trunk. Copies of same will be furnished on application at Grand Trunk ticket offices or to J. D. McDonald, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

Lost His Eye

A little boy, aged 11 years, named Osborne Montgomery, who lives at Hall's Bridge, was opening a lemon sour bottle on Monday last when the cork flew out and struck him in the eye with terrific force, causing a painful [illegible].

The boy was brought to Nicholls hospital as soon as possible and yesterday afternoon his eye was removed by Dr. McCullough.

Much sympathy is felt for the unfortunate boy, who bore the pain most heroically.

Ready for More

A Yorkshireman undertook for a wager made in a tavern to eat a whole turkey and three pounds of sausages.

The turkey was cooked and set before him. Slowly but relentlessly, he got through it. Then the sausages, and here the excitement began.

Surely he would break down at the second pound. Surely, surely—but no; gallantly, solidly, on he went, bite, bite, bite—the audience holding their breath—till the platter was clean.

He received his money, took a glass of beer, and then, accompanied by a friend, set out for home. There was a strained silence between the two, till they were within sight of the victor's home, and then he opened his lips and spake.

"Say, Tom, doan't tha say owt to ma missus about t' turkey."

"For why, Jack?"

"Happen she won't gi'e me me supper."

—Yesterday morning a small blaze in the residence of Mr. George Stevens, Ashburnham, gave the fire brigade a run.

DEATH OF MISS O'BRIEN

After a Lingering Illness Succumb to Consumption

On Wednesday evening a very sad death occurred at 160 Downie street, the residence of Mr. John O'Brien, when his eldest daughter, Minnie, died after a lingering illness from consumption. Deceased was but 23 years of age, and had been ailing for about a year. Great sympathy is felt for the sorrowing relatives.

The funeral will take place on Saturday morning, at nine o'clock, from the family residence, and proceed to St. Peter's Cathedral, thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

A PHILADELPHIA WEDDING

Nuptials of Dr. Arthur V. Jolliffe and Miss Mabel Randolph Webb

On Wednesday evening a very pretty wedding was solemnized at 1804 North st., Philadelphia, Pa., the residence of Mrs. I. C. Webb, when her only daughter, Miss Mabel Randolph, was united in marriage to Dr. Arthur Vyvyan Jolliffe son of Rev. W. J. Jolliffe, B.C.L., of Peterborough.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. P. Sims, D.D., assisted by Rev. W. J. Jolliffe. The maids of honor were Misses Anna Braisford and Vida Register, while the groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Ernest H. Jolliffe, B. A. The bride was attired in white satin and wore a pearl and diamond brooch, the gift of the groom.

Dr. and Mrs. Jolliffe will reside in Philadelphia.

PERSONAL MENTION

—Mr. Geo. Edmison, K.C., was in Lindsay yesterday morning on business.

—Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Devine have returned from Dakota where they spent a month, at Mr. Devine's home.

—W. F. Clark, ex-Reeve of Grimsby and ex-Warden of the County of Lincoln, is visiting his brother-in-law, Mr. Kempt, Park street.

—Mr. James Lewis has returned from a very pleasant trip to Toronto, Niagara Falls and Rochester, N.Y. Mr. Lewis was accompanied by Mrs. Lewis and their little boy.

—A letter has been received from Miss Alice Scott, saying that she had arrived at Gleichen, Alta., in safety and was very much pleased with her surroundings.

TORONTO WEDDING

Mr. T. D. MacGregor, of Peterborough on Wednesday

Toronto Telegram:—The marriage of Miss Margaret Reid, only daughter of Mr. Hugh Reid, to Mr. Thomas Duncan MacGregor, general manager of the Equipment Company, of Peterborough, was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, 88 Summerhill avenue. Only their immediate relatives and friends witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. D. C. Hossack, pastor of the Deer Park Presbyterian church. The home was beautifully decorated with flowers and palms.

The bride's dress was of navy blue velvet, handsomely ornamented with cut steel buttons and white Panne velvet, and a castor velvet picture hat, with two large white plumes.

Among the rich and varied wedding gifts that of the groom to the bride was a handsome cluster diamond ring. The father gave his daughter a substantial cheque, and the mother a long mink stole and muff.

Mr. and Mrs. MacGregor left on the afternoon train for a trip to eastern cities. They will reside in Peterborough.

The bride is popular in musical circles and a well known Toronto vocalist. Of a recent appearance at a meeting of the Simcoe Old Boys—and girls, much younger—at the King Edward Hotel, a music critic wrote of her singing on that occasion: "Miss Reid's high notes are equal to many of our American prima-donnas. Toronto should be proud of such a voice." Musical Toronto will miss her.

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

—Chief Rossel has a bunch of keys for which he wants an owner.

—Bowmanville is having a new post-office erected, the cost to be $18,000. Mr. Wm. Stuart, Ottawa, has the contract.

—The Convent de Notre Dame is being fitted up with furnaces, pipes and radiators for heating by Mr. J. A. Darcanna, the Hunter street plumber.

—A letter was received by Chief Rossel yesterday morning from Mr. Wm. Rutherford, South Monaghan, stating that he had found his missing horse.

—Revs. Dr. Henderson and Scott, of Toronto, will conduct missionary anniversary services on Sunday in connection with George and Charlotte streets Methodist churches.

—A scow load of wood and lumber for Mr. R. Hicks and the Peter Hamilton Co., was brought into port on Wednesday by the steamer Rainbow. The water in the river is said by Capt. Cuppernolle to be unusually low.

—Service was held in All Saints' church last evening. Next Tuesday a social evening for men will be held, when Rev. W. L. Armitage will give an account of the Toronto Convention.

—The Committee of Management of the P. P. Home gratefully acknowledge the sum of $12.50 from the Treasurer of the George Street Methodist church being half the collection received at the Thanksgiving service.

Court of Revision

A sitting of the Court of Revision of the Town of Peterborough will be held in the Town Council Chamber, in the said Town, on the evening of THURSDAY, the 5th DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1903, at 7.30 o'clock, to hear appeals with respect of the Assessment of the said Town made in 1903 for 1904.

Humor of the Hour.

Mrs. Long (who recommended a servant)—Yes, she was an excellent girl in every way, except she would imitate me in dress, and things like that.

Miss Short—Ah, yes. I noticed she began doing it when she came to me; but she's given it up now.

Mrs. Long—I am glad to hear it. I expect she saw she was making herself ridiculous.—Punch.

The two newsboys had quarrelled over the possession of six cents, of which the smaller boy insisted he had been defrauded.

They proceeded to fisticuffs and the smaller boy was whipped.

"You licked me all right," he said, wiping his bloody nose on his ragged shirt sleeve, "but I'll fight ye agin if ye don't fork over two cents o' dat money."

"What fur?" demanded the other boy.

"I got a right to claim de loser's end o' de purse, hain't I?"—Chicago Tribune.

"And you say you have an especial, patented attraction on your farm?" asked the prospective boarder.

"That's what we hev," replied Mr. Plowfurrow, "every daisy we raise hez ezzactly the number of leaves to make it come out 'He loves me' when the girls try their fortins with 'em. We're up to date, we air."—Cincinnati Tribune.

"Were you ever stage-struck?" asked the romantic maid.

"No," replied the practical youth, "but I was run over by an automobile once."—Chicago News.

Mistress (finding visitor in kitchen)—Who is this, Mary?

Mary (confused)—My brother, m'm.

Mistress (suspiciously)—You're not much alike.

Mary (stammering apologetically)—We were, m'm, but he's just had his beard shaved off, and that makes him look different, m'm.—Tit-Bits.

"I am afraid she isn't cut out for a society woman?"

"Why not?"

"Well, she seems to have no idea of the pleasures of extravagance."—Detroit Free Press.

The Frenchman did not know all about the English language.

"I vould like to come see you ver' much. In fact, I vould have came, only I thought you vere ver' busy. I do not like to cockroach upon your time."

"Not 'cockroach,' that's not right. You should say 'encroach, encroach.'"

"Aha, that is it, 'hencroach, hencroach.' I see. I have got de gender of de verb wrong."—C. Stratton, in Lippincott's Magazine.

Jack—How are you going to spend the summer?

Tom—I am going to spend it travelling from one seaside place to another until I find a girl worth a million or two who wants to be loved and married for herself alone.—Tit-Bits.

Rimer—Your friend, the editor, wouldn't accept my poem. He said he was really sorry, but——

Harkins—Yes, he told me he felt for you.

Rimer—So he did, but I was too quick for him.—Philadelphia Ledger.

"It 'pears dat de opportunities of dis life," said Uncle Eben, "is a heap like fish. It's allus de bigges' ones dat gits away."—Washington Star.

"Ha, ha!" laughs the reader of plays as he glances over the manuscript submitted to him by the aspiring author.

"I am glad you like my little effort," blushes the author, making a vain attempt to conceal his rapture.

"Oh, I haven't read the thing yet," is the chilling reply. "I was merely laughing at the absurdity of the idea of calling this a monologue."

"And why?"

"Well, for one thing, it has a cast of characters calling for two people. Now, a monologue is something that is spoken by one person only. The word 'monologue' is derived——"

"It's your mistake," interrupts the aspiring author with much dignity. "Will you kindly notice that the title of the manuscript is 'Married Life'?"—Judge.

Caller—You have changed to homeopathy, I see?

Fair Invalid—Yes; the homeopathic doctors give their medicines in little pellets, while the allopath doctors nearly always order their dose by the spoonful—and spoons are dreadfully out of fashion.—New York Weekly.

Newwed—I say, old chap, you ought to see the nine-pound addition to our family that arrived last night. He's a peach.

Oldwed (the father of twins)—Well, you ought to be thankful he isn't a pair.—St. Louis Star.

Father—Well, how did you come out in the bean guessing contest?

Dull Boy—I guessed there was one hundred and fifty beans in the jar and there was nine thousand two hundred.

Father (sadly)—I'm afraid you'll never be fit for anything but a weather bureau chief.—Youth.

Mrs. Illington—Herbert, you are breaking my heart! Only think of their finding you at three this morning hugging a lamp-post!

Illington—My dear, it surely isn't possible that you are jealous of a lamp-post!—New Yorker.

"Say," whispered the stranger in church, "what's this collection for?"

"This offering," replied the man with the collection plate, "is for foreign missions."

"That's all right, then," said the stranger, producing a dollar. "I was goin' to say if it's fur the choir it ain't worth it."—Philadelphia Press.

She—Do you remember before we were married, dear?

He—Why, it's among my happiest recollections.—Yonkers' Statesman.

Stella—Who made the finest catch on that fishing trip last week?

Ruth—That Clipper girl. The man we were all after proposed to her.—Baltimore American.

AT HALF MAST.

Sometimes we are greeted in the morning by flags at half-mast for some prominent official who yesterday was apparently in perfect health. When we inquire the ailment by which he was stricken it is not uncommon to be told "acute indigestion" or "stomach trouble."

It is time people learned that indigestion or any form of "stomach trouble" is not a thing to trifle with. The result may not be fatal, but there can be no condition of diseased stomach which does not carry with it physical loss and weakness.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures indigestion and other forms of disease affecting the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food.

"Thanks to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Mr. Charles H. German, of Lehighton, Pa. "It is the only medicine that has done me any good. I tried everything I could think of to cure indigestion, and found I was only throwing away money. Then I heard of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and tried a bottle of it, and to my joy found it was doing me good. I used six bottles of it, and am now cured. It is the best medicine on earth."

This grand remedy does its work in a thorough manner; it gives the health that is all health; the strength that is solid, substantial and lasting; not flabby fat, not false stimulus, but genuine, complete, renewed vitality and life force.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood and lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation and its consequences.

The Leading Specialists of America. 25 Years in Detroit. Bank Security.

Nine out of every ten men have been guilty of transgression against nature in their youth. Nature never excuses, no matter how young, thoughtless or ignorant he may be. The punishment and suffering corresponds with the crime. The only escape from its ruinous results is proper scientific treatment to counteract its effects. The DRAINS, either by nightly losses, or secretly through the urine, must be stopped—the nerves must be built up and invigorated, the blood must be purified, the SEXUAL ORGANS must be vitalized and developed, the BRAIN must be nourished. Our New Method Treatment provides all these requirements. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers disappear; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and sexual systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. The various organs become natural and manly. We invite all the afflicted to call and consult us confidentially and free of charge. Cures Guaranteed or no Pay. We treat and cure: Varicocele, Blood Diseases, Stricture, Gleet, Emissions, Urinary Drains, Spermatorrhoea, Unnatural Discharges, Kidney and Bladder Diseases.

MR. HAYS OUTLINES HIS PLANS FOR CONSTRUCTION OF ROAD TO PACIFIC

Will Take Five Years to Construct Line

Number of Branch Lines to be Added

eports from Many Surveying Parties

ontreal, October 24.—Mr. C. M. Hays, neral Manager and Second Vice-President of the Grand Trunk Railway, has de the following statement regarding company's plans for completing the and Trunk Pacific:

The Grand Trunk Pacific Incorporan Act having been passed by the Sen- and the amendments offered therein curred in by the House, the bill is only awaiting the Royal assent place the matter in a position where- the company can be organized and definite form to inaugurate the neary action preparatory to undertak- the obligations entered into by the pany with the Government.

The reconnaissance survey is proceed- vigorously and, in fact, has been, since early last spring. We have ween fifteen and twenty parties in field, some of whom have about comed the work of their division; oth- will keep on all through the winter. at care has been taken with a view obtaining a line with a minimum de, not exceeding 4 per cent., or nty feet to the mile, about the same the maximum grade between Toronand Montreal, and with no greater n two or three degree curves.

On some portions of the route where contry is comparatively unknown, instance, in the Lake Nepigon dist, owing to the lack of transporta- facilities, supplies are difficult to ain, and progress is not as great otherwise would be the case.

PLANS FOR CONSTRUCTION.

"Plans for construction at the point which a beginning will be made are endent o nthe completion of surveys, have now the territory pretty well ered. The first parties we sent out, ich were started before the Govern- policy as to the Eastern Division developed were located between nnipeg and North Bay, the theory be- that that was the section of the ntry that was most in need of addinal facilities, and while it is undoubty true that, for some years to come, arge proportion of the grain crop of North-West will move out by water ring the season of navigation, there today a very considerable quantity ving by rail north of Lake Superior this quantity will be increased in constantly growing volume as rail ilities for the economical and exitious movement of the traffic are vided. The new line with its 4 per t. grade, will have great advantages this respect.

THE SURVEYING PARTIES.

Our surveying parties are also well tributed across the territory from nnipeg west and construction on that tion of the line will be pushed as n as the results of our surveys are own, as also the construction of the nches from a port on Lake Superior hich port is not yet determined) to a ction with the Eastern Division, and line from North Bay, north also to nnect the Eastern Division.

"As to plans and intentions in conction with the work on the Eastern vision, I shall have to refer you to Government, that portion of the untaking being, as you are aware, un- their control.

"While it is dependent on conditions nerally, the result of surveys, the uation as regards labor, movement supplies, material, etc., it is not like- that the road will be completed short five years."

Hunting Season.

The Grand Trunk Railway have issued very handsome and illustrated pamph-, entitled, "Haunts of Fish and me," giving information regarding ason for shooting Deer, Moose, Carin, etc., in the "Highlands of Ontario" at other points along the line of the and Trunk. Copies of same will be rnished on application at Grand unk ticket offices or to J. D. McDon-, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

JAPANESE TOO QUICK FOR THE RUSSIANS

How Their Fleet Occupied Masampho Before Russians Got There

WAR FEVER IS STRONG

The Correspondent of a Russian Paper Discusses Army of the Japs

Victoria, B.C., October 24.—The steamer Tosa Maru, which arrived last night from Yokohama, brought news of how the Japanese euchred the Russians and prevented the practical occupation of Masampho by the Russian squadron. It was learned in Japan that the Russian squadron had sailed from Vladivostock for Masampho, a movement which was considered by the Japanese to portend the occupation of the strategical port of Korea. The Japanese squadron, which was at Sasebo, was at once ordered to Masampho, and steamed there at full speed. The Japanese arrived a day in advance of the Russians, and anchored at Masampho. On the arrival of the Russian squadron, on the night of the 29th of September, finding the Japanese fleet anchored there, the Russians returned to Port Arthur.

Japanese papers received by the steamer are full of reports of warlike movements, of the gathering of transports, and the massing of troops.

London, Oct. 21—The Pall Mall Gazette concludes a short sketch of the career of Sir Louis Jette with these remarks: "The Dominion case could not be in more competent hands, and if he failed to score a win it is pretty certain that nobody else could have been more successful."

The Canadian Club of Toronto will tender a banquet to Mr. Aylesworth, on his return from London. Early in the week an invitation to accept was cabled to Mr. Aylesworth and last night Mr. Hustis, the secretary, received the reply that he would be happy to do so. The exact date has not been decided upon, but it will be during the first week in November.

OMINOUS EVENTS ARE CLOSE AT HAND

That is View Japanese Take of the Far East Situation

JAPAN MAKES WAR PLANS

There is a Strong Hope, However That Trouble May Be Averted

Seoule, October 24.—Japan is fearful lest the influence of M. Pavlov, Russian Minister at the Corean Court, cause a crisis. Japanese papers are pointing out that according to treaties with Japan Russia has no right to meddle in Corean affairs. This state of things offers a constant temptation to Pavlov to play a bold, diplomatic game in behalf of Russia.

It is alleged that Pavlov, who is remarkable able and ambitious, is seeking in every direction for some means of betting the position of the Czar in Corea. It is feared his energy may finally provoke a conflict. Admiral Alexieff, Russian Viceroy in the Far East also causes Japan much uneasiness. They think his sailor instincts may lead him to risk too much in the hope of bringing Corea under the Russian flag and thereby gaining command of the Corean straits. In this way he would unite the Russian navy in the Far East now split in two by the Corean peninsula and waterway dominated by the Japanese armaments. Russian naval men here are vexed by a situation so similar to that in Europe where their warships are divided between the Baltic and the Black Sea, with the outlet of the Black Sea controlled by another power.

Tokio, October 24.—Negotiations are virtually at a standstill. There is an ominous sound of active military preparation throughout the land. Japan is determined to be ready for any emergency. A crisis is probably within a few days. Russia, it is true, is displaying a less elusive and irritating disposition towards Japan's representations on the Manchurian and Corean questions, but it cannot be stated that the situation is improved. The ultimate source of difficulty is Russia's apparent determination to invade Japan's sphere of vital interests. As long as that is the case any day may bring forth war. Certain Japanese hope and believe that Russia, in view of the international attitude in the Far East, which is almost if not altogether anti-Russian, will stop short of actual hostilities. Nevertheless this feeling is not sufficiently strong to prevent a sense of apprehension, amounting in many minds to a conviction, that ominous events are close at hand.

THE CAVAN BLAZERS

Short History of an Organization whose Name is Well Known

When the mind reverts to Cavan township one naturally thinks by the law of association of the Cavan Blazers. They have been styled a great secret organization, and men of the ninth line appear to have been the nucleus of the band. In the heart of a swamp they had a retreat which was known only to the initiated. Here they assembled at night, and truly the welkin rang with their merriment. The most jovial and genial belonged to the band, and they went in for an all round good time. In the middle of the night it was their custom to partake of a repast that might be styled a banquet, for which the choicest poultry in the township was brought into requisition.

The Cavan Blazers who were at the zenith of their glory about 1850, were extremely antagonistic to Roman Catholics, and did all in their power to prevent men of that faith from settling in the township. About 1862 the Cavan Blazers attended a seventeenth of March demonstration in Peterborough with avowed purpose of breaking up the procession. By means of ropes a number of them drew a cannon from Mount Pleasant to Peterborough. They loaded the cannon and directed it toward a hotel where a number of Roman Catholics had assembled, and threatened to demolish the place it the Catholics did not disperse.

Among the Cavan Blazers nicknames were prevalent and always used on their night parades in order to conceal identity. Of course some men who never belonged to the band were given nicknames. The following are some of the noms de guerre known among the Cavan Blazers: The Dane, Robert Swain; Bartholomew, John Swain; The Wren, Richard Swain; Muggins, W. Fallis; Cat, Robt. Montgomery; Mousey, John Swain; Judas, Robt. Grandy; Podgins, Henry Grandy; Old Gilley, John Grandy, the name being given to him owing to his partially for singing the hymn the refrain of which is "Balmo f Gilead"; and Sugar Son, Mr. Staples.

The Cavan Blazers were big powerful men and were magnificent types of Canadian manhood.

About 1830 it was the custom of the early settlers of Cavan township to walk to Port Hope and Cobourg with a bag of wheat and return with a bag of flour, the distance being about 25 to 30 miles.

EXPENDITURE GROWS

Finance Ministers of Various German States Discuss Problem

Berlin, October 24.—How to meet increasing expenditure with a decreasing revenue is the problem confronting the Finance Ministers of the various German States now assembled in Berlin, under the presidency of Chancellor Von Bulow. The Imperial Treasury has never hitherto faced so critical a situation. The army and navy are clamoring for heavier budgets. The army wants 150,000 new cavalry and infantry, a fresh outfit of artillery and a complete new rifle equipment costing 100,000,000 marks ($25,000,000). The navy is desirous of forcing to completion within the next five years the Kaiser's warship Programme, scheduled to be finished by 1916. In the meantime, owing to the industrial depression, the Government's chief sources of revenue, railway and ceipts and income tax, have steadily fallen. Baron Von Thielmann, the Imperial Minister of Finance, was dismissed last August, because his devices for raising money were limited to issuing loans. His successor, Baron Von Stengel, will be compelled to invent other means of satisfying the departments. How to do it without burdening the already overtaxed Germans demands ingenuity of a high order. Important changes in the currency system are likely.

London, Oct. 22—The West of Ireland is greatly excited over the rumor that the Admiralty Board has fixed on Galway as a naval base, for Galway's greatest dream has been to become a terminus. The chief opposition to the fast Canadian line comes from the Great Western Railway, who wants Milford Haven, and is bringing powerful influence to bear on Canada to secure the contract.

London, Oct. 22—The Daily Graphic points out that the supporters of preferential trade with the colonies owe to Mr. Ritchie a debt of gratitude since his determination to resign produced Chamberlain's campaign. It anticipates an endorsement of Chamberlain, which will sweep away ordinary party lines.

London, Oct. 22—A report was in circulation on the Stock Exchange today that the negotiations between Russia and Japan had been broken off, but the Foreign Office officials here said they had not heard anything confirmatory of the rumor. This statement was made subsequent to the visit paid by Baron Hayashi to Foreign Minister Lansdowne this afternoon. The officials at the Foreign Office added that the report was contrary to the general trend of its information.

Christiania, Norway, Oct. 21—The cabinet presided over by Otto Blehr has resigned, in consequence of a parliamentary committee's decision in favor of the opposition, in a disputed election in Nedenaes district whereby the opposition gained four seats. A coalition cabinet made up of Conservatives and Moderate Liberals will be formed.

London, Oct. 23—The Canadian Emigration Commissioner here has received over 150 favorable replies to the following questions from the delegation to the Montreal Chambers of Commerce, Congress and other prominent Englishmen who have visited Canada. The questions were: 1, What opinion have you regarding Canada as a field for the investment of British capital; 2, What do you think of Canada as a permanent home suitable for the British emigrant; 3, What impression have you of the progress of the development of Canada?

The vice-president of the South of Scotland Chamber of Commerce urges that changes be made in the law so as to secure greater protection for investors and also in the bankruptcy laws.

Hon. T. A. Brassey says that until the Canadian taxpayers contribute to the defence of the Empire he prefers that British capital be invested in Great Britain.

The vice-president of the Bedford Chamber of Commerce says that Canada offers a splendid field for investment.

A member of the Chamber of Commerce of Dublin thinks Canada offers a pre-eminently encouraging field for investment.

London, Oct. 23—It is stated that the minimum rate agreement for the shipping of grain has come to an end owing to the rate operating unequally between Canadian and United States ports, with an advantage to the former. Difference in railway rates is stated to have been the cause of the inequality.

THE DOMINION OF CANADA'S PART IN DEFENCE OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE

Sir Frederick Borden Says We Will Not Contribute to the War Office.

Lack of Canadian Militia is in Trained Officers to Command

Montreal, Oct. 23—Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia, in reply to the toast "Our Guest," at a banquet given here last night at the Windsor Hotel by officers of the local garrison, made a statement bearing on the question of colonial contribution to imperial defence. What he had to say seems all the more important, in view of its contrast with the stand taken by members of the Toronto branch of the British Empire League on the Alaska boundary award.

Sir Frederick led up to the subject by saying that as for himself he did not wish for war, nor did he believe that the brave and skilled officers who sat around him wished for war, but if it should come there would be no lack of Canadians to go to the front and fight for the Empire. In the time of the enrolling for service in South Africa the difficulty had been that there were too many men eager to take up arms. Canadians felt that they owed a duty to the Mother Country. "We have discharged that duty in the past," said Sir Frederick, "by being prepared to take care of our own territory.

Expenditure of Money.

"I insist upon this, at any rate, and I have no hesitation in saying it, that if the people of this country should see fit to expend money on military purposes or for purposes of defence, they shall have control of the money themselves, and shall not hand that money over to anybody, whether it be the War Office or the First Lord of the Admiralty to spend for them. That is a principle which I lay down as a Canadian and I believe that it is a sound principle. If we are able to defend our own country, we contribute better than in any other way to the safety, maintenance and integrity of the Empire."

The Minister of Militia announced that the Government had the money in hand and proposed to expend it to establish next year in Montreal a teaching depot for young military officers. It seemed to him that great centers of population were the places where they should have facilities for military education, and he reiterated in this connection his views expressed the other day in the House of Commons. The lack of the militia of Canada was trained officers, and the policy of the present administration was to a end money in order to develop the brain power of men offering themselves for military service.

The teaching depot at Montreal, he said, would accommodate perhaps 200 men, partly infantry. The country was to be congratulated in having in command of the militia a man of the ability possessed by Lord Dundonald, an officer who understood the importance of such training schools.

CANADA IS URGED TO FOLLOW UNCLE SAM.

And Appoint Politicians Like Messrs. Lodge Root, and Turner, But the Government Declined

Ottawa, Oct. 23—The Alaska boundary correspondence was brought down yesterday. While not the complete record of the negotiations, the documents produced make it clear that strong pressure was brought to bear upon the Canadian Government to consent to a tribunal of three commissioners on each side. Canada's strongest objection was that the proposed commission did not provide for a thoroughly judicial trial of the issue.

Regarding Secretary Root and Senators Lodge and Turner, Canada was most emphatic, and the Colonial Office did admit that the three were not "eminent jurists of repute." In this connection, it was suggested that Canada emulate the States, and appoint politicians. The Ottawa Government declined to take such a course, declaring that Canada would select jurists, even if the American representatives were politicians.

The Colonial Office intimated that the United States would not ratify the treaty unless Messrs. Lodge and Turner were commissioners.

Looks Like Coercion.

Then, too, the United States Government insisted on haste, and British diplomacy forced Canada into arbitration, with the Dominion emphatically reluctant.

On February 21st Lord Minto notified the Colonial Office of Canada's objection to the American politicians, when jurists were wanted.

On February 21, Lord Onslow sent the Governor-General the following despatch: "With reference to your telegrams, dated the 18th and 21st of February, the selection of the American members of the tribunal has been the source of as much surprise to his Majesty's Government as to your Ministers. Situation is full of difficulty, and his Majesty's Government earnestly desire to have concurrence of your Ministers in dealing with it.

"It seems certain to his Majesty's Government that it would be useless to press the United States Government to withdraw names put forward, and arguments relative to the fitness of the American representatives, however convincing, can have no practical results.

"His Majesty's Government have, therefore, to choose between breaking off negotiations altogether or accepting nominations and appointing as their colleagues representatives who will meet the altered circumstances of the case."

Jurists For Canada.

Canada made a final protest, as follows:

"My Ministers do not agree with the suggestion that the altered circumstances justify a departure on the British side, from the disposition previously manifested respecting the composition of the tribunal. If members of the tribunal are to be appointed by his Majesty's Government, my Ministers are of opinion that only judges of the higher courts, who, in the best sence of the word, would be impartial jurists of repute, should be chosen."

The ratifications of the treaty of arbitration were exchanged on March 3.

Ballots Missing

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 21—The re-count in the Fernie election court, which was to have been held before Judge Forrin, had to be postponed for one week, owing to one of the ballot boxes being missing. The box is said to have been sent to Victoria by mistake.

OUT AGAIN

What Powerful Food Can Do

It is evidently a scientific and powerful food that can take confirmed invalids out of bed and make them well again.

"After doctoring two years for terrible stomach trouble I concluded that it was incurable," says a young woman of Filmore, Ill. "I was confined to my rooms all the time and expected to be an invalid the rest of my life, having given up all hope of ever being well again, and I recovered entirely and quickly by eating a few spoonfuls of Grape-Nuts food every meal in place of the improper food that had ruined my stomach.

"An aunt recommended this food to me so highly I finally decided that to be honest to myself I should give it a fair trial and the result has certainly been marvelous. At the time I began eating Grape-Nuts I weighed 108 pounds but now I weigh 159, a gain of 51 pounds. My strength and activity are wonderful and I have truly found the way to get well and keep well.

"As a strength giver for both mind and body the action of the delicious food Grape-Nuts is so quick and certain that it seems a miracle." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There is no miracle about it.

There's a reason.

ENGLAND IS WAITING FOR AN EXPLICIT REPLY.

Why Did Not Lord Alverstone Make an Answer At time of Canadian Statement

London, Oct. 23—The Outlook tomorrow will say: "There is no ambiguity about the allegation made against Lord Alverstone by Sir Louis Jette and Mr. Aylesworth, who expressly declare that Lord Alverstone joined them in the view that the Canadian contention regarding Portland Channel was 'absolutely unanswerable, yet, in the face of this alleged prior agreement of views, Lord Alverstone at the last moment appears to have abandoned his British colleagues on this vital point. It is lamentable that occasion has ever been given for such an allegation at a moment of goodwill and confidence. The colonies have become of great consequence to us, and the Empire, and that Lord Alverstone allowed the memoranda of the Canadian Commissioners to go before the world without an explicit answer of such a charge is most disconcerting; but an answer there must be."

LORD ALVERSTONE SPEAKS.

London, Oct. 23—Lord Chief Justice Alverstone, when questioned regarding the Alaskan award, said he declined to be drawn into any controversy on the subject, or to make any statement beyond saying he did not believe the allegation that Mr. Sifton, one of the Canadian commissioners, had averred that the decision was diplomatic instead of judicial. Any such suggestion, Lord Alverstone added, was unwarranted, unjustifiable, and, in his opinion, unfounded, solely upon legal considerations.

It is understood that Lord Alverstone is preparing a reply to the one issued by Mr. Aylesworth, one of the Canadian Commissioners, and that it will be given to the newspapers.

Larger Self-Government.

Upon leaving Liverpool yesterday Mr. A. B. Aylesworth, K.C., one of the Canadian Commissioners to the Alaska boundary tribunal, said in justification of his refusal to sign the award:

"It was more of a compromise than a judicial decision. Its effect will be that Dominion goods traversing the disputed territory must pay high tariff duties to the United States. The Canadians feel so keenly on this subject that although there will be no cry of separation, they probably will demand a larger power of self-government in order to prevent in the future a repetition of such decisions."

London in general holds the belief that Canada, in view of the Alaska adverse decision, can now ask the British Government for all she wants. The suggestion is being widely made that the United States concede the two islands she obtained in the Portland Canal in return for a concession by Canada.

Another suggestion is that Canada receive nearly the whole territory arbitrated in return for a British sacrifice in another part of the world.

The cost of the recent arbitration is estimated at close on $400,000. Canada spent nearly $200,000 preparing the case and in fees to British lawyers. The United States expenditure was about $100,000.

Offers Candy Stick.

Mr. Douglas Sladen suggests that England give Canada the Bahama Islands, the Mecca of America, in exchange for the territory desired in Alaska. Englishmen, he advises, had better leave the bargaining to Canadians, who have a local knowledge the English have not.

Mr. James Roddan, British Chief of the Foreign Office, and an expert in the Venezuelan arbitration, declares that after a most careful study of the discussion on the Alaska boundary he is of the opinion that Canada should not give way on the question nor accept the compromise decision.

The Paris Temps, noting the angry opinion in Canada, says that Canadians are Imperialists, and what angers them is the Jingo Cabinet which Mr. Chamberlain formed apart. He deliberately set a trap and baited it with an Anglo-Saxon entente, which consists for the United Kingdom of obeying to the latter the most arrogant demands of Americanism.

RUSSIAN PERFIDY

In the event of a conflict in the Far East, the sympathies of the United States according to the New York Times will be determined by two relevant facts which will not be forgotten. The first is that Japan, as the fruit of victory over China eight years ago, obtained by treaty control of Manchuria, as stipulated, for the common commercial benefit. Every trading nation was welcomed, and it was thought the "open door" was secured. Yet Russia prevailed upon France and Germany to acquiesce in the setting aside of this treaty with China, being apparently used as catspaws for Russia's benefit. Russia has proven that her occupation of Manchuria was exclusive. The second relevant fact is that Russia's whole course in the Far East has been accompanied by false pretenses. Tired of vague assurances of evacuation the Washington State Department last summer obtained a treaty with China, with the assent of Russia, opening two new Manchurian ports to American trade, and obtained also a confirmation of Russia's previous promise to evacuate Niu-Chwang and Mukden on the 8th of October. No sooner had Russia confirmed this promise to China and to the world than she began to make new and impossible conditions as precedent to the evacuation, and subsequent to her agreement to evacuate without conditions. The 8th of October has come and gone. "There she is; there she remains." And, by way of adding insult to injury, she chooses the very day on which she was to evacuate Niu-Chwang for a parade of the Russian garrison through its streets by way of emphasizing Russia's determination not to keep her word. It is an impudent cynicism of perfidity which even Russia had not before attained. She advertises that she has not a shred of national honor and that whoever hereafter accepts a Russian official assurance will be a fool for his pains.

DISCRETION AND MONROE DOCTRINE

The return of two officers of the army of the United States from a secret mission to Venezuela and the Isthmus of Panama revives the rumors of war between creditor European nations and delinquent Latin American states which either will not or cannot pay their debts, says the Chicago Chronicle. Especially is fear aroused in relation to Venezuela, whose incompetent or corrupt ruling faction may be brought to face more than a pacific blockade in a renewal of international contentions. Indications are multiplying that the arbitration court at The Hague is more spectacular than conclusive in its transactions.

It is improbable that any European government will take summary action to collect a bad debt on this continent but if the bad debtor shall resolve to make the government of the United States a buffer between him and the exacting creditor the Monroe doctrine will be subjected to a test unforeseen by its architects.

The Latin American communities have shown a disposition to let the United States take the honor of being the "predominant partner" in the western hemispheric political firm. Some of them have shown much more distinctly a disposition to let the people of the United States assume the incalculable financial responsibility which may be inserted in the possession of that honor. Should Venezuela drive France, Germany, Spain, Italy and Great Britain into resort to force and seizure of territory to satisfy their respective claims it will not be fortunate for the people of the United States to be dependent on impetuosity and inexperience in the white house.

DOWIE IN NEW YORK

The New York papers are not taking John Alexander Dowie, the restorationist, as seriously as that shrewd mortal would like. While the news columns devote considerable space to the invasion of the Zionites, the editorial comments are decidedly scarce. In fact, Dowie is treated with about the same consideration that is shown any schemer who starts out for the purpose of making money by playing upon human credulity.

Dowie seems to realize that the members of the press of the metropolis are a different sort of people from the molders of public opinion in Chicago. In the latter city, he was able to assume the role of a martyr, partly due to the fact that he was assailed by the press, and partly to the public manifesting intolerance. The New York papers know that Dowie is seeking the free advertising which promoted his schemes in the past, and with this knowledge in mind, the shrewd editors are giving most of their attention to the discussion of important news topics. If John Alexander Dowie's crusade turns into a fizzle it will be due to his inability to impress the newspapers with the conviction that he is other than a mountebank.

THE FISH POACHERS

If we cannot get all we want in respect of boundary lines of doubtful location, we should insist more strictly on the observance of boundary lines that are settled beyond question. The cutter Petrel has taken up some miles of fish nets set by American poachers near the Canadian shore of Lake Erie. Capt. Dunn reports that there are many more miles of such fish traps which his vessel could not deal with, on his last trip, but which will be looked after later on. It was said Napoleon's cavalry capered on the sward in front of the British pavilions "as if they owned the land." These Yankee interlopers come into Canadian waters with their steam tugs, and set their nets with as much audacity as if they owned the premises. When a fast tug like the Silver Spray gets clear, with his booty, there is boasting of the smartness displayed, without reckoning the roguery and sneakishness of the transaction. Now comes on Lake Erie the new revenue cutter Tuscarora, which has been ordered to Cleveland to report and receive orders "in regard to the settlement of the international dispute between the United States and Canada over the fisheries of Lake Erie," to quote the despatch conveying this news. If the Tuscarora comes to assist the Petrel in policing the lake, and teaching the poachers from Ohio and Pennsylvania, the difference of meum et tuum, it will be a good service done, but if to over-awe the Canadian commander in the performance of his duties, then look out for squalls. If the Laurier Government is anxious to do a stunt of real and tangible heroism, it has the chance to distinguish itself. The fish caught on the Canadian side of Lake Erie and the fish caught on the American side go alike mainly to the Buffalo company, but that is not the point. If Americans want to fish in Ontario waters they must do it honestly, on business principles, by taking out a license, and complying with our laws.

Anecdotal.

A Western Congressman was asked if he did not think President Roosevelt certain to be re-elected, barring any "big mistake" the candidate might make. "Yes," was the reply, "but let me tell you that the biggest mistake he possibly could make would be to allow the crops to fail next year."

A friend of Edward MacDowell attended a recital given by a mediocre teacher's pupils, and when he met the American composer he remarked: "I heard one of the pupils, a little girl of eight, play your 'To a Wild Rose.'" The composer sighed dejectedly. "I suppose," MacDowell remarked, "that she pulled it up by the roots."

During the protracted sessions of the Parnell commission, Justice Day habitually sat with closed eyes. It was commonly supposed that his lordship was sleeping, and the late Sir Frank Lockwood, observing that the learned judge was very much awakened by a little tiff between the president and Sir Charles Russell, exclaimed, quite audibly: "This is the dawn of Day!"

Chauncey M. Depew declares that when King Edward, as Prince of Wales, visited the United States, the old Duke of Newcastle used to scan the accounts of expenditure. At the end of one hotel bill he one day found a charge which he couldn't make out. "What's that charge for?" asked the Duke of the hotel proprietor. "For making such a damned fuss," was the immediate reply.

General Nelson A. Miles says that during the Civil War there was one conscription fakir who made thousands of dollars before the authorities restrained him. This rascal would send letters broadcast, wherein he said he would communicate for two dollars a sure means of escaping the conscription. Letters, enclosing two-dollar notes, poured in on him, and in reply to each letter he would send a printed slip reading: "Join the nearest volunteer regiment."

An old negro living in Carrollton was taken ill recently, and called in a physician of his race to prescribe for him. But the old man did not seem to be getting any better, and finally a white physician was called. Soon after arriving, Dr. S.—— felt the darkey's pulse for a moment, and then examined his tongue. "Did your other doctor take your temperature?" he asked. "I don't know, sah," he answered, feebly; "I hain't missed anything but my watch as yit, boss."

One of Pere Ollivier's flock, a very beautiful and handsomely dressed woman, coming very late to church one Sunday morning, caused some disturbance and stir among the worshippers by her entrance, and interrupted the flow of eloquence of the worthy father, who, very irritable and easily put out, said: "Madame perhaps waited to take her chocolate before coming to church?" To this, madame, by no means abashed, graciously replied: "Yes, mon pere; and two rolls with it."

It is related that the American commissioner of fine arts at a Paris exposition once wrote to several artists—to Whistler among them—saying that he would be in Paris shortly, and mentioning the time at which, and the place where he would like them to call upon him. Whistler was asked to call at four-thirty precisely. He wrote: "Dear Sir — I have received your letter announcing that you will be in Paris on the —th. I congratulate you. I have never been able and never shall be able to be anywhere at 'four-thirty precisely.' Yours most faithfully, J. McN. Whistler."

By his tact and amiability Sir Thomas Lipton has made thousands of friends during his visit in New York City. One day recently on the "Erin" he was watching the "Shamrock" from the bridge, and his guests, among whom were some pretty girls, were on the deck below, screened from the sun by awnings. Sir Thomas went down to chat with them for a few minutes, and then said: "I think I'll have the awning taken down." "Don't, Sir Thomas," the women all exclaimed in chorus, "we'll roast here." "But," tactfully replied the baronet, "I'm lonely on the bridge, and I miss your pretty faces." No one objected to the awning coming in after that.

Here is one of Lew Dockstader's latest stories: Two brothers had more or less trouble with the boy next door, and hadn't always come out victors. In fact, the boy next door was so much bigger that he seemed to have the best of it invariably. So it wasn't an unusual thing when one of the boys came into the house with a badly bruised eye. Moreover, he was crying when his aunt stopped him in the hall. "Hush, Willie," she said; "you mustn't make any noise." "What — what's the ma-matter?" he asked, between his sobs. "You may disturb your new brother," said his aunt, soothingly. He dried his eyes in a minute. "Have I got a new brother?" he asked. His aunt nodded. "One besides Jim?" She nodded again. "Bully!" he exclaimed. "You're glad of it?" she asked. "You bet!" Willie fairly shouted; "if Jim and me and the new one can't lick that feller next door, we'd better move."

A pretty story, illustrative of the change of feeling which has come over the Irish peasant toward King Edward since the recent royal visit, appears in the English press. Two London journalists, on their way from Dublin to Cork, accosted a shaggy, farmer-looking native at a Queen's County station with the words: "Well, Pat, what do you think of the King of England now?" "King of England, is it?" replied the Irishman, and there stole over his face an inimitable expression of drollery as he went on in a stage whisper: "Sure, avic, ye'll want a viceroy over there, I'm thinkin'. Himself an' herself are not goin' back to yez at all!" An old dame in Galway who had spoken with the King was questioned as to what she thought of his Majesty. She delivered herself of a long and enthusiastic eulogy, to the effect that "Edward the First of Ireland" was "a grand man entirely," closing with the remark that she had "only wan thrifling fault to find with him," and that was that "they keep the poor man so long in the Phaynix Park beyant that they have him talkin' with a strong Dublin accent."

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house or sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located midway between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to-day.

A limited amount of the Stock is now offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

Purchase the Treasury Stock of The Drake Mining Drainage and Tunnel Transportation Co.
OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$60,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk to a depth of 200 to 800 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,300 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to [illegible] furnish underground transportation for the [illegible] the Sub-Tunnel and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early date, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at [illegible] per share, reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent. annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividend whatever. After such dividends have been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be divided pro rata among the common and preferred stock. [illegible] All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

Active and experienced agents wanted to sell said Preferred Treasury Stock on commission.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

"I am sorry," she said, speaking with a sort of calm despair. "I did not know I could work you harm. I thought, if fortune failed you, I should be your solace, that trouble would draw us closer together. Had I foreseen this, I would sooner have died than have become your wife—though I love you better than my life—though I shall go on loving you to the end of my days."

He was silent—conflicting passions held him mute.

He felt how pitiful and cowardly his words had been.

Yet, he could not retract a syllable, so bitterly did he bewail his lost inheritance.

"There is a way by which you may still hope to gain your father's fortune," she said, trying to pierce the darkness, to read the expression of his eyes. "Nobody in England knows of our marriage; you have kept your freedom, and I pass as a nursing sister, my past a mystery. It is not a pleasant position to be in, but I can bear it for your sake. Our secret can remain a secret forever. You shall live rich, prosperous and honored. I will drag out an existence under a false name, with all hope dead in my heart. I could not consent to this if I did not love you so well, Frank. I love you too dearly to drag you down to poverty—to bear the reproaches you would heap upon me. Let our marriage remain a secret. Nobody need know you have a wife; and the fortune—the fortune without which you cannot be happy—can be yours."

He understood what her broken sentences implied.

Let his marriage remain a secret—obtain the wealth by silence—by fraud!

Such a thought had not occurred to him until this moment.

The scheme soon took root in his mind, and he seemed to see a way by which he could gain his lost inheritance.

Cold drops of perspiration gathered on his brow.

A new and desperate hope sprang up in his breast.

He laid his hand heavily on Gretchen's shoulder.

"Could I trust you?" he said, hoarsely. "Dare I take this step?"

"It is your one chance," she answered, her calm tones contrasting strangely with the suppressed excitement in his voice. "Nobody will suspect the secret you are keeping back—and nothing should torture the truth from me."

"You mean this?" he said, a sudden rush of relief overcoming the anger he had felt a few moments ago. "It means so much to me, Gretchen; it is as though my life hung on your silence."

"I should not break my word to you," she replied, her voice very low. "I have given you the promise, Frank. You no longer have an 'encumbrance' between you and your expectations."

He caught her in his arms and covered her face with kisses.

"This secret will save me from ruin!" he exclaimed, scarcely heeding the sacrifice she was making for his sake. "You could not have shown a greater proof of your love than by freeing me from this entanglement."

"Entanglement!" she echoed, her voice trembling now that he had accepted her sacrifice; "our marriage, [illegible] My love! my love! you will not leave me altogether? You will let me see you sometimes, and when these years of secrecy are over, when it will be no loss to take a wife to your home, you will go through the marriage ceremony with me again?"

He strained her in his arms, his lips hot against her soft cheek.

"It will be easy to deceive them a second time," he said, feeling like a man who had been rescued from the brink of some horrible abyss. "I shall marry my own wife, my true-hearted Gretchen—my first and only love!"

He could speak now of love, and feel every word he uttered.

She no longer stood in his way, the stumbling-block to his fortune.

She had pointed out the path by which he could escape from his difficulty, and his resentful passions were tempered by gratitude and love.

Love? Was it not sacrilege to call such a shameful sentiment as he possessed by that sacred name?

Gretchen did not put this question, even to herself.

The words of love he breathed in her ear brought joy to her heart.

Once more he was the Frank she had loved so dearly—the husband for whose sake she would have laid down her life.

"If you will only love me, and be true to me, I will keep silent forever," she said, clasping her arms round his neck, and letting her head rest on his breast. "Call me 'wife' again, sweetheart, and say you will be true to me. It is all I ask, my love, my husband!"

"True till death," he murmured, sealing the words with passionate kisses. "You have made me happier than I can tell, Gretchen; I feel as if I could lay all my life down in gratitude at your feet."

She smiled, content. Yet was he not still worshipping "the Golden Idol."

Was not this outburst of tenderness born of the thought that, in a measure, she had set him free?

The depth of her own love blinded her to his failings.

She had consented to relinquish her claim upon him as his wife, to stand aloof, while he usurped the fortune that could never legally be his.

And this was the man with whom she had cast her lot, for whom she was ready to bear any torture, save the loss of his love.

Frank walked back to the house with her, her hand held in his clasp, a tender word every now and then falling from his lips.

He had promised to meet her again at the end of ten days, and Gretchen was already looking forward with hope to the appointed time.

"I would meet you every day, if I dared," he said, his voice lowered to a whisper, so that no sound should penetrate to the windows; "but now, the risk would be greater than it was before, and all our future depends on secrecy."

"You will think of me, Frank? It is the only happiness I have—to know you love me."

"My darling! I do love you, and dearly. I cannot bear to leave you like this. You must have a wretched time with that man. This house reminds me of a tomb."

"It has often seemed like one to me," she answered, glancing up at the dark outline of the walls; "but it is a convenient hiding place, and, were it twenty times as dull, I should not mind."

"I thought it would only be for months," he said, struck with a pang of remorse, as he pictured her self-imposed exile. "Must it be for years, my poor Gretchen! How harshly fate has dealt with us! At every step we have been crossed—and now there is this last terrible ordeal."

"Not terrible, so long as we can go on loving each other," she murmured, lifting her face for his parting kiss. "Good-night, Frank, darling, good-night, my love!"

He drew her against his heart, and kissed her lips.

WALK 600 MILES STARVING

Hudson Bay Trading Expedition Is Wrecked and Men Suffer Horribly

Ottawa, October 23.—After suffering terrible hardships in a 600-mile march through the wilds of northern Canada, Captain Ferry and forty-seven members of the crew of the steamer El Dorado of Liverpool, passed through this city today en route for Montreal.

The El Dorado, a ship of [illegible] tons burden, struck an uncharted rock at the entrance of Hudson Bay, near Fort George, and sank. All the crew succeeded in getting ashore, but were completely destitute of provisions and saved only the clothing that was upon their backs.

The ship and crew comprised an exploration and trading expedition sent out by a stock company. They carried a large stock of goods suitable for barter with the Indians in exchange for furs and it was proposed to operate along the lines of the Hudson Bay Company. Nothing was saved from the wreck and the men began their long march southward almost destitute of provisions and supplies of any kind that could be exchanged for food. They marched through the wilderness for forty-two days, covering nearly 600 miles. Their suffering was intense, but not a single man succumbed.

JAPS AND RUSSIA

Japan Sanguine of Her Ability to Defeat Russia

Tokio, October 23.—Japan's ability to cope with Russia in war is regarded as beyond reasonable doubt by the most eminent authorities in the country. The Empire has taken the advice of practically every great soldier and sailor wearing his uniform and has weighed the Japanese question of chances with care. He is said to view the possibility of a conflict with comparative equanimity. In consonance with the opinion of his advisers, however, the Emperor has determined to resort to war only when Russia attempts to convert Corea into a second Manchuria. This does not mean that Japan purposes abandoning its diplomatic struggle to check Russia's efforts to monopolize Manchuria. The popular demand for war is seconded by the leading financial and industrial and commercial men who hold that a collision is inevitable and might better be chanced now than later.

Ballots Missing

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 21—The re-count in the Fernie election court, which was to have been held before Judge Forrin, had to be postponed for one week, owing to one of the ballot boxes being missing. The box is said to have been sent to Victoria by mistake.

Chronic Biliousness

IN ITS TRIAL FOLLOW HORRIBLE DREAMS, DESPONDENCY MELANCHOLY AND GENERAL WEAKNESS.

The proper elements needed to promote good digestion, regularity of the bowels, correct action of the kidneys and liver, must be supplied when a bilious condition of the system is once established.

Ferrozone can't help but do this. It gives the stomach perfect rest, and allows you to partake of and enjoy the variety of food that is necessary for maintaining health. One Ferrozone tablet taken after each meal will separate the nutritious portions of the food from the waste, which is carried off, thus preventing and curing constipation and its attendant evil, piles.

Being a potent blood purifier, Ferrozone cleanses the crimson flood of all bile and impurities, and as a result the complexion is restored to a rosy, healthy hue, and the dark circles under the eyes and the deathly pallor of the cheeks, go away never to return.

Taken for disorders of the stomach, commencing with biliousness and ending with derangements of the liver and kidneys, Ferrozone achieves marvelous results. It is at the same time a tonic and stimulant, and a regulator of all bodily functions, and chronic sufferers should not fail to give it a fair trial. It will do them good without doubt, and if the malady is curable it will yield to Ferrozone.

With the use of Ferrozone appetite will be better, the blood made rich and pure, sleep will be dreamless and restful. Your muddy complexion will be cleared and beautified, your eyes will acquire a new brightness, and as your spirits rise and good health returns, you will bless the day you learned the secret of Ferrozone's power.

If you think you need Ferrozone go to the nearest drug store and procure a supply. Refuse a substitute and insist on having the genuine Ferrozone, which costs 50 cts. per box, or 6 boxes for $2.50. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY
FOR BOTH LARGE AND SMALL INVESTORS

Owing to valuable Patents having been granted this Company, we are desirous of extending our business to the Dominion of Canada. Owing to the Customs duties, the extra cost in transportation and the numerous expenses attached, and the delays in deliveries in shipping goods from one country to another, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a factory in the Dominion, that we may be in a position to meet the immediate wants of the business

The articles that we make from our Patent Fabric are too numerous to mention, and it is not necessary that we go into the details of the merits of our goods, as they are already in use to a large extent and have no equal. Our goods are covered by several patents, and the profit on the goods is large, averaging from 25 to 100 per cent, thus affording the company large revenue to meet all its obligations

In order to secure funds to equip a plant in the Dominion of Canada we will offer to the people of Canada $100,000 of our Bonds paying ten per cent. interest per annum.

Experience has shown that stocks based upon sound industrial enterprises have never been equalled from the standpoint of legitimate profit. For instance, a few hundred dollars invested in the Bell Telephone Company's stock in the beginning of the enterprise now commands thousands of dollars, after having yielded large dividends annually. Of course opportunities for such profitable investments do not present themselves every day, and it is also very true that a vast amount of capital has been misdirected in the endeavor to exploit inventions and enterprises which shrewd and far seeing investors should have recognized as impractical. But as regards this enterprise even the most conservative must admit it has possibilities of development which are almost incalculable and which have already been demonstrated in a practical manner. We have no speculative elements—this is a sound business proposition, and the patents which we own are worth several million dollars, as there can only be one fabric of this kind and that is ours.

All the above facts are simple statements of the truth and can be fully substantiated to the satisfaction of all investors.

The business is no experiment, the incorporators of this Company have made it their business for a great many months past and understand all the details, the prospects are therefore bright, and brighter than those of many other opportunities.

This Company is not a promotors company, every dollar goes to enhance the value of the property and business and increase the capacity. There is nothing speculative in this proposition, the enterprises are undertaken for industrial purposes only to make profits by the operation and development of the business.

Considering that the enterprise is already upon an established basis with a certainty of profitable future expansion, we feel warranted in the assertion that this is an attractive proposition to investors whether large or small.

The price of these Bonds are one dollar each, and will be issued in any number wanted. With every purchaser of each five Bonds we will give as a bonus, one share of stock of the Company, the par value of which is five dollars per share, thus assuring interest on the investment, and with the stock which is bound to increase you will have for nothing. These Bonds will be issued for five years. Persons desiring to avail themselves of this opportunity want to send their remittance at once.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January, [illegible]

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 11 years. I have tried several doctors and they done my no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 415 Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes: "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McFadyen, Riverdale, P.E.I., writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure, it has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. 50c per box or 3 boxes for $1.25.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

A Proposition of Special Merit to be Offered Canadian Investors

STONY PASS MINING CO.
SILVERTON, COLO.

has appointed a local Canadian Fiscal Agent, in the person of Messrs. Thomas Patterson & Son, brokers, who will make an announcement in a day or two that will interest the investors of Canada. It is proposed to send a representative from Canada to visit the mines and property of the company, and report thereon so as to prove beyond doubt its splendid worth. The proposition is one that will bear the closest investigation. The company is splendidly officered by men of honor and business integrity, known throughout the country for their high character and business ability.

A meeting will be arranged to take place at an early date, when those who propose to invest in the Company's stock will have the privilege of selecting one of the number to visit the mines.

Waneda.

By Flora MacDonald.

WAS she an Indian girl, with a trace of Italian or Spanish blood, or was she the daughter of an East Indian pundit, who had come to this country to teach Christians a better philosophy and had fallen in love with some squaw?

No matter. Waneda had the soul stuff of centuries behind those wonderful black eyes, and all the gloss and brilliancy and heat and cold of sunbeams and moon glints in the bundles of wavy black hair.

Where had she picked up the band of jingly coins which she wore on her head? No one ever saw Waneda without her coins.

Then the short skirt, with that broad band of Mexican embroidery in Persian colorings. What a mixture of designs and shades, put together with a bold recklessness, and yet never an inharmonious note in her whole costume!

Beautiful, wonderful, inspiring Waneda—dreaming dreams or building castles or—remembering—for, after all, are the dreams of our imagination only memories, or perhaps prophecies?

And what shall we say of him, of the first and only man who had ever quickened the pulse or dyed the dusky cheek of Waneda?

He was from a far-off city, had bid a wife and daughter an affectionate good-bye but a week before. He was civilized and scholarly, cold and calculating.

Even the laurel wreath which had rested lightly on his brow for almost a score of years had only convinced him that he was endowed with an intellect and wise enough to make use of it. He possibly knew that it was an advantage to be over six feet high, of magnificent physique and handsome face, but a student clever enough to see so much beyond that what he had accomplished did not appear much to him or make him conscious of his greatness.

He had wandered some five or six miles from the small Mexican town, and sat down on a fallen palmetto tree at the edge of a grove.

What difference where Waneda came from or who she was?

"Why, my beautiful princess, have the gods sent you to break the monotony of the dullest day of all my life?"

The lips smiled, the bright eyes flashed.

"Yes, I have come and you have come. A better seat is just inside the grove."

Without a word, he followed her and when they were seated:

"Tell me," she said, "why you came."

"I came to see you." And it did not sound like a lie.

"Tell me what I shall call you."

He laughed, and thought of Shakespeare's rose. Then he thought of his own important name, that looked so well in print, and then he told another lie that sounded like the truth.

"My name, dear girl, is Bill. Just call me Bill. And what shall I call you?"

"I am Waneda, and I do wish you had a nicer name than Bill. It sounds so hard, and one has it quick."

"Quite true, Waneda. Yours is a name one can linger over, and, having finished saying it, repeat it over to listen again to its music—Waneda."

"If you are rested, we will walk."

"Just as you wish, little princess. Now tell me where you got your name, Waneda."

"I never got it; it was always mine. It grew up with me, and you were always mine, but you have been such a long time coming."

She placed her little, dark hand in his and silently they walked for many minutes.

What had he found? Was it possible that a little, dark, weird thing, however beautiful, could actually affect him?

Why, he was wise, and had such keen analytical ability. He had reasoned out this thing called love long ago. Yes, of course he loved his wife and daughter, but after all it was just one of the phases that went to make up the drama of life. Now—now as he walked he seemed to be intensely alive—fear—wonder—but sublime ecstasy.

"Do you know, Waneda, that you have intoxicated me? Let us go back and sit down, that I may look into your beautiful eyes. And so you have been waiting for me, dear one. Now that I have come are you glad?"

Tears came into the wondrous dark eyes. She cuddled up close to his arm and leaned against him. A tired sigh blended with the words "So glad." He put his arm about the little crouching figure.

The sun had almost faded from the sky, and far above it the thin little new crescent could be seen in silvery paleness.

Her wavy black hair scintillated in the dying light. With his free hand he brushed it back from her forehead and lovingly stroked stray bunches of it. The only sound to break the stillness was when one coin jingled its metallic edge against another.

He wished that time had stopped and this could be the eternal now of life. This must be what sages thought of when they spoke of heaven.

Quick as lightning's flash, Waneda leaped from his arms, jumped upon the fallen tree and threw her arms about his neck.

"Now I must go, but you will come again to-morrow. Yes, each to-morrow you will come, and each night you will stay later, for the moon will grow. Then when it is round and full and all the stars are twinkling and laughing, then we will be married, you and I."

A little brown hand was on each side of the handsome, intellectual face. A moment she looked in his eyes. Her lips met his. He was about to clasp her in his arms, but she made a dart and disappeared among the tall palmettos.

"Well, I'll be blowed!" came the unromantic remark. He called himself a few fools, took off his hat, and started back to the clearance. Having crossed a railroad track on his way with Waneda, he decided to follow it back to town.

A train passed him when part way there. He was never more grateful for any happening in his life. The fiery headlight, the rumble and roar of the engine, all suited his mood. He could have yelled with delight, sworn with madness, cursed with disappointment, and when the sound of the train had died away in the distance he was beginning to analyze.

Back to himself!

How delightful it had all been, but what did it mean? How foolish! Simply a pleasant adventure with a mighty pretty girl—true, a queer, wondrous little thing—and different.

When he reached his hotel, being thirsty after his long tramp, he drank a glass of ale and retired.

No—not to sleep. Waneda had in one short hour become part of his very life. Of course he'd never see her again—madness to dream of it. And was he such a fool as to fall in love even with a weird, wondrous creature who talked so wildly about having waited for him?

Morning came, and he wandered aimlessly about the town. Would the afternoon never come?

Long before the sun began to fade, "Bill" (and, of course, his name was not Bill) was on his way to the grove.

He wandered about for some time and then, not seeing Waneda, drifted in to their seat on the fallen palmetto tree.

The moon became visible. He was becoming impatient, anxious, almost fearful, when a light step and the jingle of coins told him he had not waited in vain. He sprang to his feet, and, like something wild, she leaped into his arms. He kissed her passionately and then, putting her at arms' length, said: "Waneda, who are you, and what has thrown you across my path? I fear for what will come of it."

"Who am I? Just Waneda. You see me—what I am. Now, you are hard and cold. Surely you love me?"

"Yes, 'tis easy enough to love you, but——"

He said no more.

She was looking at him with those wondrous eyes, that seemed to know and live worlds of thought and reason.

He sat down and took the brown little thing in his arms.

She chatted away about birds and flowers, daylight and dawn-time and black nights, when so much more could be seen. Occasionally a little brown arm would slide about his neck. He thought of a diamond ring belonging to his daughter, that she had given him to have cleaned. He had neglected giving it back to her, and now took the tiny leather case from his pocket, opened it and handed it to Waneda.

The fading light reflected back the rainbow glints from the precious gem.

Waneda gave a cry of delight. "I will place it on your finger, small, wild girl."

She was about to allow him when suddenly she objected.

"No, loved one; not to-night. The moon must be full, and we must say the words."

"You are talking of the marriage, dear, but this is not a wedding-ring. This is just to show you that I love you."

He slipped it on her finger and with pardonable pride watched her admire the seven-hued lights that caught the pretty stone.

She laughed a happy laugh. "This is the ring I have dreamed about."

She jumped upon the log, put her arms about his neck, kissed him quickly, violently, and disappeared as on the night before.

This time he said, "The devil!" But never in all his calm, reasonable life had such a cyclone of emotions surged through his being.

This night he slept, but only to dream of Waneda.

Night after night he was by the fallen palmetto, and as the moon grew larger he was allowed to stay later.

She seemed so at his mercy, but her very confidence in him was her guardian angel. He had given up reasoning. He simply lived—satisfied to hold her hand if so she willed. Sometimes she would climb up and sit on his broad shoulder and he would make a footstool of his hands for her dainty little feet.

"Soon, dear heart, the moon will be full, and then we will be married."

"Who will marry us, Waneda?"

"Why, we will say the words and the Great God will hear, and the moon and the stars will be witnesses. Thus it will be written with our thoughts on the face of the heavens, man and wife."

"Then, Waneda, what will we do?"

"It will be nearly midnight, and we will walk up the track to the little station and you will take me away on the twelve o'clock train with you, and we will always be together."

As the night of the full moon approached he began again to analyze. Yes, he would marry her. If only the Great God were a witness, he could not be arrested for bigamy. He had a month's more holidays, and then he could explain how he would have to leave her for a time, but would come again. Yes, it was worth the risk—a month of love with her.

The night before the wedding came.

What a night! The great, full moon flooding the earth with her soft mellow light!

How brilliant and beautiful Waneda looked! How delightfully entertaining she was! And how he adored her!

Willingly would he have sacrificed all he owned, or all the world owed him of honor or of fame for her.

As she kissed him good-night she whispered:

"I will come early to-morrow night, dear heart. And you can tell me all you would have me be to be worthy of the Words you will say. I will have to give up my coins and wear different frocks. But on moonlight nights I will put on my short dress and my jingling coins, and we'll live over again these glorious nights."

"Yes, Waneda, we'll live over again these wonderful nights."

He took her in his arms.

"Good God! 'tis hard to part!"

"But just till to-morrow night. Then we will part no more." And she went.

Long he sat, with his head in his hands. What had he reasoned out? He took out his watch. Just a half hour to midnight. He was ghastly pale, as with clenched fists he flew towards the track, but did not go toward the town. Hurriedly he rushed in the opposite direction to the little flag-station, explained that the midnight train must be stopped, telegraphed where to have his baggage sent, bought a ticket, boarded the midnight train—and, as he thought, saved Waneda.

The moon was full. Silver lights gleamed and glinted, reflected from leaf or bush or log. Myriad stars, dimmed slightly by the brilliant moonlight, twinkled and sparkled in "that inverted bowl we call the sky."

Waneda was first at the palmetto log. "He is late to-night, but I have been impatient."

Minutes passed—long anxious minutes.

The night so beautiful, but waiting so weary.

Not a sound. What could have kept him?

An hour dragged slowly along. Was this a longer night than ever night had been before?

Ten o'clock and hope had changed to doubts and fears. Had all the universe stopped still?

The eager face so bright, so full of hope and faithful trust, was now so pale and pained.

Eleven o'clock! Hope gone; wild, fearful eyes, and then the thought, the knowledge—he will not come!

The small hands clenched, the teeth set firm. Agony and despair! And nearly twelve o'clock!

A faint sound of the whistle of the midnight train leaving the town.

Waneda walked towards the track. On, on—swifter, ever swifter the roaring engine came. The head-light looked like the eye of some evil monster. Dashing, crashing, rumbling, the midnight train passed on—on to where he had gone.

Waneda had said the words to the Great God and the full moon and the stars were the silent witnesses.

Have a Laugh.

I know I'm bald, but, after all,
That isn't bad, when all is said;
I do not have to muss my hair
To let the breezes hit my head.

COPETE MINING CO.

27 William Street, New York

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tulloch, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Erwin D Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 166 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

New York, October 23.—There was a rather indifferent tendency to the stock market Friday. The main feature was A. C. P.. Thousands of shares of this stock changed hands. It was intimated that certain insiders were operating in the stock and consequently there was a lot of talk of manipulation considering the amount of stock offered. The certificates were well taken. There was a lot of war talk in the far east, and the London stock was weak and lower. Foreigners sold a few stocks. There was some talk that the bank statement Saturday will be unfavorable. Commission houses sold stocks, indicating that outsiders were doing the bulk of the business son the short side. Money was plentiful and it was freely offered at reasonable rates. There were periods of quietness during the day, and the latter part of the session was rather mixed, but there was a good undertone in evidence at times and conservative interests were disposed to express confidence in the current value of the better classes of securities. Bonds continued to show evidences of a fair demand.

Chicago, October 23.—Corn and oats pulled away from wheat yesterday and displayed considerable strength on buying for the account of commission house interests. Wheat was sold on bearish news from Argentine. The cash situation is less bullish, and the premium over the December prices have been cut down considerable. The crop news continues bearish and northwestern receipts are expected to increase. The corn market is rather uncertain at the moment. The buying is well scattered though the professionals element is working on both sides of the account if the pit operations are read correctly. The export business is slow, only 30 loads bee nreported at New York last night. The country movement shows an increasing tendency, but the offerings are less urgent than they were a few days ago.

True Love.

An American lady has risen to defend the national dignity by asserting that her countrywomen do not marry European noblemen for their titles alone. It seems that the European is more skilled in the art of making love, and the titles become only one of the many attractions that endear him to the wealthy heiress. There is probably a good deal to be said in favor of this point. In a land where a man's social status is almost entirely governed by his bank account, the universal grab for dollars occupies all the available leisure of the average Yankee, and he hasn't the time to waste on a mere girl who may refuse him after two or three months' courting, and a sacrifice of precious moments that might have been used in beating a brother man out of a quarter's salary.

Can it Be?

The two Russian belles are discussing their mutual friends.

"And there is Rosiekoff Dimitriskewatchiskeboollskevitch," says the first girl. "I think she is such a sweet thing! And don't you think her name is beautiful?"

"Oh, yes," concedes the second. "But I have heard—now don't you whisper this to a soul—I have heard that her name isn't all her own."

"Mercy! What do you mean?"

"It is hinted that she wears an artificial skevitch."

Kind fates preserve us! If the ladies in other parts of the world begin amplifying their names as they do their hair, we never shall know whether a lady is really possessed of the aristocratic cognomen engraved upon her cards, or is simply a plain Smith, Jones or Brown.

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non assessable, the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Mastea, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100 foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Co. is to make some money. "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure-house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third; No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock. 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock. 50 000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

A limited number of shares of this really first class proposition may be obtained on application to PETERBOROUGH BROKERAGE CO, Fiscal Agents, Peterborough, or J. J. BRANDON, Fenelon Falls; W. GALLON, Apsley; G. B. HILLIARD, Lakefield, or GEO. H. BROWN, Chemong

First Class Mining Proposition.

The Anaconda Gold Mining Co.

Home Office: 412 Merchants Loan and Trust Bldg.
135 Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.

This is one of the best propositions ever placed before the Canadian investor. The Company owns 600 acres in the celebrated Black Hills District, South Dakota, comprising 36 claims. The track is unquestionably on the great Homestake belt, being located directly between the wonderful Homestake mine and the Clover Leaf mine. Two shafts have already been sunk, the main one being down 154 feet, with capacity of going 1000 feet. The Company has also installed an Ingersoll-Sargeant air compressor and drills, 125 horse power boiler, steam pumps and in fact everything needed for actual operation, with the exception of its stamp mills; which will be installed at once. The vein of gold-bearing quartz traversing the Company's property is very rich. Assays have run from $8 to $64.80 per ton.

The Company has a capital of 1,500,000 shares, divided into 750,000 preferred and 750,000 common, par value $1 per share, fully paid up and non-assessable. The treasury stock has been made preferred stock to the amount of 25 cents a share. Out of the first dividends 25 cents per share will be paid to the owners of this preferred stock before holders of common stock receive any share of the profits. After the 25 cents has been paid to the shareholders of preferred stock, then all alike share in the dividends. (This means nothing less than that the first investors in the enterprise will have all their money returned to them before any dividends are declared to the rank and file of investors.

A limited amount of Stock has been placed on the Canadian market. Full particulars and copy of prospectus may be obtained from MR. R. J. KIDD, or the undersigned Agent for Peterborough city

Cold in the Head

What's the sense in sneezing and sniffling, dosing with purgatives or bothering with atomizers?

Catarrhozone

A convenient inhaler treatment is the proper remedy to cure quickly and pleasantly

Sensible people long ago abandoned the idea of "working off" a cold by means of laxatives and purgatives for the simple reason that the cure is as bad as the disease itself.

To cure a cold in about ten minutes' time use Catarrhozone. It is aromatic delightful to inhale, clean and very simple to use.

Catarrhozone is a vegetable antiseptic, and perfectly safe and harmless. Even children and infants can use it. The vapor is inhaled at the mouth, and after passing through the respiratory organs is exhaled slowly through the nostrils.

Catarrhozone never disappoints. It stops sneezing, coughing and running at the eyes, by a few inhalations. Inflammation, congestion and all irritation disappear under the influence of Catarrhozone more quickly than can be told.

C. B. College, of Clarence Street, London, says: "I had a continuous cold in the head for years, and never used anything with such quick results as I derived from five minutes' use of Catarrhozone. I am delighted to find a remedy that cures colds in a few minutes. Catarrhozone cures every time."

To carry a Catarrhozone Inhaler in the pocket means you won't have colds, catarrh or any lung trouble. It keeps these diseases away and is warranted to protect you against all the ills of winter. Complete outfit, with Hard Rubber Pocket Inhaler costs $1.00. Small size, 25 cents. Druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A SAD AND PAINFUL ACCIDENT

Mr. Andrew Kerr Has Limb Crushed in a Thresher

While threshing yesterday morning about eight miles north of Pontypool, Mr. Andrew Kerr met with a very painful and sad accident, which resulted in the amputation of his left leg. Mr. Kerr had his left foot caught in the revolving cylinder of the machine about 10 o'clock with the result that his foot was badly crushed and mangled. Dr. Young, of Peterborough, was summoned and had the injured man driven to Pontypool and from there he was brought to Peterborough via the C.P.R. at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and conveyed to the Nicholls Hospital, where Dr. Young, assisted by Dr. Carmichael, amputated the limb.

Mr. Kerr is doing as well as can be expected, but is very weak from the loss of blood. He is a married man and much sympathy is felt for him and the other members of the family.

VETERANS OF '66-70

Land Grants Asked for from Ottawa Government

It will be pleasing news to the veterans of 1866 and 1870—the Fenian raid and Riel rebellion—to learn that a land grant will probably be made next year, entitling all who took up arms in defence of their country to a farm in the Northwest.

When the matter was presented to Sir Wilfrid the other day, he said that no action could be taken this year. He recognized that each veteran was entitled to a grant of good, arable land. He conveyed the idea that at the next session of Parliament the veterans would get their reward.

A SPLENDID PROPOSITION

The Bret Harte Gold Mining Company

We call the attention of investors to the above splendid proposition, the prospectus of which appears on our financial page. It is seldom that we have been called on to present so good a thing to our readers, as we believe the Bret Harte Company to be.

The Company is splendidly officered and ably managed. We are sending to investors a large number of extra copies of the paper containing the prospectus and would ask them to favorably consider the same. The local agents of the company will call on those to whom marked copies have been mailed during the next two or three months.

PERSONAL MENTION

Movements of the People—What They are Doing and Saying.

—Warden Crowe, of Dummer, was a guest at the Munro House yesterday.

—Mr. J. M. Might, Toronto, is in town for a few days.

—Mrs. John Homes, of Lakefield, who returned from summering at Burleigh, states that the raspberry bushes around Burleigh are loaded with a second crop, the berries being large and of fine flavor.

—Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Ruddy returned from their wedding tour on Tuesday night, and have taken up their residence in the Weller property lately occupied by Mr. A. B. Scott, which Mr. Ruddy has purchased. A number of their friends were present at the house to welcome them home.

GANNON'S NARROWS BRIDGE

MEMBERS OF THE COUNTY COUNCIL INSPECT THE BRIDGE

The New Bridge Completed and is a Splendid Piece of Work—Another Bridge Required at Buckhorn

On Thursday the members of the County Council and several prominent citizens visited the new bridge at Gannon's Narrows. The party left town at 9 o'clock, driving to Bridgenorth, where they embarked on Mr. W. B. Kelly's trim little steamer the "Lady of the Lake" to Gannon's Narrows and Buckhorn. The following gentlemen made up the party: Warden Richard Crowe, County Councillors D. Maloney, G. W. Fitzgerald, T. M. Hunter, E. A. Peck, Curtis, Buck, and Messrs. R. Watt, County Clerk; J. J. Lundy, Geo. E. Elliott, Ed. Elliott, R. B. Rogers, W. Higgins, R. J. Munro, W. B. Kelly, T. E. Bradburn, Paul Costello, (Ennismore), and representatives of the press. Mr. J. E. Belcher, County Engineer, who is suffering from lumbago, was unable to be present, much to the regret of the members of the council and party. After a delightful sail through Chemong and Buckhorn lakes, the party arrived at the Narrows, where they were met by Mr. Robert Shaw, member of the County Council from Harvey division and where the party were invited to partake of a sumptuous dinner provided by the ladies of Harvey, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fulton, who live near the Narrows in Harvey. The party were most hospitably entertained, a number of charming young ladies attending the tables and adding greatly to the pleasure of the party. At the conclusion of the feast the thanks of the party were tendered to the ladies for their superb hospitality.

The members of the Council expressed themselves as immensely pleased with the bridge, which appears to be a splendid piece of work. The structure is similar to the floating bridge over Chemong Lake—and in fact considerable of the material of the old Mud Lake bridge is used in it. The bridge is 1276 feet in length, connecting Harvey with Ennismore. Two guide piers for navigation, and another as an anchor for the bridge, have been constructed. The floating swing, eighty feet in length, works like a charm. It is operated by a winch, one man being easily able to open the swing in a few minutes.

The bridge was engineered by Mr. Wm. O'Leary, of Bridgenorth, to whom much credit is due. The plans were prepared by Mr. J. E. Belcher, County Engineer while Mr. Geo. W. Fitzgerald, chairman of the Road and Bridge Committee, which comprises the entire Council looked after the financial end of the work. To Mr. Robert Shaw, the popular representative of the district in the Council is due the success of the undertaking. At all times, in season and out of season, Mr. Shaw urged upon the Council the necessity for a bridge at Gannon's Narrows. It was through his persistency that the work was finally undertaken.

The bridge serves fully 75 farmers in Harvey and shortens the distance to Peterborough from 36 to about 15 miles.

The cost of the bridge will be about $6,000. To this the Dominion and Ontario Governments each contributed $1,000, and the Township of Harvey $300.

Amongst those who were present was Mr. Wm. Trennum, a gentleman who over a quarter of a century ago assisted in the construction of the Mud Lake bridge. Mr. W. T. Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, with a party from that village, came down in Mr. Boyd's handsome steam yacht and assisted in the official opening.

To the ladies of Harvey the party are deeply grateful. They prepared a banquet fit for a King. First on the list were Mr. and Mrs. Fulton, who so hospitably opened the doors of their residence to the visitors; Mrs. Robt. Shaw, Mrs. Jas. Coons, Mrs. J. Edmison, Mrs. Archibald Wilson, Miss Ethel Coons, Miss Annie Smith, Miss Maggie Smith, Miss L. Wilson, Miss A. Smith, Miss Aggie Wilson, Miss Belle Wilson, Miss Flo. Winters, Miss Shearer, Miss Foote, Miss Jennie Shaw, Miss Isabel Stephenson, Miss Maggie Weir, and Miss Lizzie Smith.

After the business of inspection was concluded, the party embarked again and proceeded to Buckhorn, not however, before three hearty cheers for the ladies of Harvey, who had come down to see them off.

The object of the visit to Buckhorn was to inspect the bridge at this point, which is badly in need of repair. In fact the Council are considering the advisability of building a new steel bridge. The matter will be decided at a special meeting to be held in November.

After an hour's stay in Buckhorn the party started on their return, arriving at Bridgenorth at six o'clock and home at seven.

Sleeplessness

Is akin to insanity. Many a woman realizes this as she lies awake hour by hour, peopling the darkness with phantoms, starting at the creaking of the bed or the rustle of the curtains.

Such symptoms in general point to disease of the delicate womanly organs, and a constant drain of the vital and nervous forces. This condition cannot be overcome by sleeping powders. The diseased condition must be cured before the consequences of disease are removed.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the womanly diseases which cause nervousness and sleeplessness. It is the best of tonics and invigorants, nourishing the nerves, encouraging the appetite and inducing refreshing sleep.

$500 Reward for Women Who Cannot be Cured.

Proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb, which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

Japan Does Not Want Peace at Any Price

HER RESERVES ARE BEING CALLED OUT

The Little Empire will Fight for Rights

London, Oct. 26.—The latest advices from the east are not reassuring. Japan has called out her army reserves, and the little empire is just now bristling with bayonets. The Post's correspondent says the war feeling in Japan is intense and is growing daily.

Tokio, Oct. 26.—The diplomatic situation is not changed, and the negotiations at Tokio are progressing, while baseless rumors are current of the despatch of Japanese troops to Corea. A leading Japanese journal interprets the sentiment of the nation thus "Regarding Manchuria nothing is asked beyond Russia's discharge of the treaty promise of military evacuation and the open door. Japan does not object to Russia's retention of Port Arthur and Dalny, and the guarding of the railways which are welcome factors in material progress. Concerning Corea, Japan will not suffer any nation to lay a finger upon that country since her special position there is generally recognized. The country sincerely desires peace, but not peace at any price." The paper reminds Russia that Japan is the mouthpiece of many nations in this matter.

DISQUIETING FEATURES.

London, Oct. 26.—A Russian correspondent of the Times says that one of the most disquieting features of the Far Eastern situation in the eyes of responsible statesmen at St. Petersburg is the continued interest displayed by the United States in the integrity and independence of China. The Novoe Vremya reflects this anxiety in a leading article regarding the entrance of the United States into the arena of old-world politics in various parts of the world, from the Mediterranean to the Red and Yellow seas. This event is termed one of the most important political phenomena of the twentieth century, the Novoe Vremya apparently forgetting that the United States began to play an important role in the opening of the Far East at least half a century ago. The article concludes "American statesmen realize the approaching danger of collisions with trans-oceanic powers, and therefore they insist upon the rapid enlargement of their navy. At present their navy, although considerable, is not large enough to attain the objects that may be desired, and the powers of the old world are not compelled to reckon very seriously with the United States, as their real force is not very great. Only when they possess a navy that will command the oceans separating the old and the new worlds will Americans be able not merely to proclaim their rights, but also to demand their recognition. This will not be soon, and in the meantime American demands and threats need not particularly alarm either Europe or Asia."

Belgium Seeks Alliance

London, Oct. 26.—The Brussels correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says that the following explanation is current here of the recent visit of King Leopold of Belgium to United States Ambassador Storer in Vienna. The King's purpose was to place the Belgium concessions in China, Japan and Corea under the protection of the United States and in return to grant America certain important trade privileges.

New York Sun Sees Victory For Canada

New York, Oct. 26.—The New York Sun says in reference to the Alaska award: "It is in every way probable that the Alaskan incident will be more costly to relations between Canada and England than to relations between Canada and the United States. One outcome is virtually a certainty. That will lie in the stronger establishment of the Canadian spirit of self-dependence, a sentiment, which has shown persistent and clearly marked increase since the establishment of the Dominion in 1867. Another outcome is almost equally a certainty. Canada will not sit down and bemoan her misfortune. She will try to find, and will find a way to snatch victory out of seeming defeat. A branch line from the new transcontinental railway, sent northwestward into the Klondike, would open a region known to be rich in agricultural resources, and lying in the direct course of that belt of gold, silver and copper which extends from Alaska to Mexico.

Between the known gold area of Cariboo, on the south, and the known gold area of the Klondike, at the northern end, there is a stretch of some hundreds of miles in which gold is known to be and where it may lie in quantities which would even dwarf the output of the Klondike. That great valley at the foot of the western slope of the Rockies contains immeasureable possibilities, and is far more readily accessible by an all rail route than it is by sea. Should Canada, baffled in her earlier aims, turn with characteristic pluck to an independent railroad to open up the possibilities of that section and find therein all that many have asserted to lie there, the Alaskan award might prove a blessing in disguise."

SIR WILFRID LAURIER CHARGED WITH DISLOYALTY

The London Globe Says That Sir Wilfrid in Asking for the Canadian Treaty-Making Right Shows Himself to be Unpatriotic

London Oct. 24.—The St. James' Gazette says: "Sir Wilfrid Laurier must surely see that his demand that a greater measure of independence should be sought from the British Parliament is at present somewhat unwarrantable. It is impossible. So long as Canada is dependent on the Mother Country for external defence she cannot reasonably make such demands. If we pay the reckoning we must have the predominant voice in the settling of the program."

"BETRAYAL OF CANADA."

The Saturday Review, in an article on the "Betrayal of Canada," says the decision imposes upon the loyalty of the premier colony the severest strain to which she has ever been exposed. The Foreign Office enjoys another triumph in registering the removal of another difference with America by the familiar process of abandoning all for which we contended. Seeing that the process of our diplomacy throughout has been to bring pressure upon Canada to give up her rights in the hope of again clasping that ever delusive phantom, American friendship, they have deliberately thrown away the future of a great Canadian territory and played havoc with the fortune of our client. Those who have been criminally careless as the trustees of the nation's assets will have to pay thing asked, and there's equally little doubt but that the Foreign Office deliberately prepared the surrender of anything asked, and there's equally little doubt that as far as Canada is concerned we made the last surrender in her behalf. What wonder will it be if some day she should say 'Canada fara da se.'"

The Saturday Review, speaking on the taxing of wheat, thinks that if Great Britain refuses Canada's terms her next step must be to check reciprocity with the States at any cost.

The Spectator, in strongly defending Lord Alverstone, says that "nothing but physical force would have compelled the Americans to evacuate the disputed territory, had Lord Alverstone pronounced in favor of Canada.

The Spectator thinks this country should be proud of Lord Alverstone.

The Manchester Mercury, referring to the Alaska boundary decision, says 'had the negotiations been carried on entirely over the head of Canada, the British Government would have given less offence, but by consulting the Canadian Government she began by acknowledging a right which she proceeded to disregard.'

OFFENDED OLD GLORY.

The London Evening Globe says - "It is most unfortunate that Sir Wilfrid Laurier should have again used language certainly not compatible with the perfect loyalty to the Mother Country which it is right to expect from all Colonial Prime Ministers. If his present indiscretion, to call it no worse, had stood alone, it might charitably be attributed to a momentary gust or an unpatriotic impulse, but on previous occasions he has similarly appeared somewhat doubtful in his devotion to the British Crown.'

London, Oct. 26.—The opinion is freely expressed that the Canadian Government must take official notice of the plain charge of breach of faith which Sir Louis Jette and Mr. Aylesworth bring against Lord Alverstone in the memorandum published above their signatures. He is explicitly charged with deliberately surrendering to the United States the islands in the Portland Canal, which he and the Canadian commissioners had previously agreed belonged of right to Canada. Such a grave allegation levelled against the Lord Chief Justice of England seems to Englishmen incredible and should, it is urged, be substantiated and an explanation demanded through the British Government, or withdrawn.

It is this suspicion of broken faith that most incenses Canada's friends here, doubt being thrown in well-informed circles upon the strategic importance of these two islands granted to the United States. Some allege that it really matters little to whom they belong, even should Port Simpson become the terminus of the new Transcontinental Railway.

Douglas Sladen's suggestion that Sir Wilfrid Laurier be given the Bahama Islands by the British Government to exchange for the territory Canada desires in Alaska only serves to provoke smiles.

QUADRUPLETS BORN IN OHIO

Four Baby Girls are All Hearty and Mother is Doing Well

Zanesville, O., Oct. 26.—Mrs. William Tate, aged 2? years, gave birth to four baby girls this morning. To-night the mother and quadruplets are alive and apparently hearty. This is the first time in the history of this city that four children were born at one birth and the event has caused much interest. Mr. Tate, the father, is 31 years old and the couple have three other children. However, this is the first multiple birth in the families of either of the parents as far back as they can trace.

WILL BUILD CITY IN WILDS

British Capital to Erect All State Buildings Free in Wyoming

Cheyenne, Wyo., Oct. 26.—A picturesque scheme of eastern and London capitalists was unfolded here to-day, the consummation of which entails the building of a city in what is now the wilds of Wyoming with no railroad within seventy-five miles of the site.

The syndicate having the matter in charge has secured possession of thousands of acres of lands in the central part of the state and proposes to build a city which will be the capital of the state. A statehouse, university, penitentiary, insane asylum and other state buildings will be built and donated to the state in return for the location of the state capital at the point.

The laws of the state require that the state capital be located next year by popular vote. A campaign will be entered upon at once by the syndicate to insure the vote in favor of the project.

NOT ALL GONE

United States Lost One-Sixth of Her Claim

Washington, D. C., Oct. 26.—The United States apparently loses about one-sixth of territory it claimed in the disputed region of the Alaskan boundary. This line is figured out from the cabled award is approximately 5?0 miles long. It is to be fixed for all time by the erection of monuments. These monuments will be placed at distances varying from one mile to five miles apart, according to the nature of the territory. They will be of iron, if the policy adopted with reference to the North-West Territory is followed. The survey and erection of these monuments will be accomplished under the direction of a joint scientific commission, of which the American members will be selected from the coast and geodetic survey, and undoubtedly headed by O. H. Tittman, chief of that service. This work will begin under the terms of the treaty, "at once," but is likely to last several years.

IRELAND'S INDEPENDENCE

United League Says Land Bill is But Step to Higher Things

New York, Oct. 26.—A meeting of the national committee of the United Irish League of America was held Saturday. President John Finerty of Chicago presided and delegates were present from Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, the District of Columbia, Missouri, Maryland and other states.

The meeting took active steps toward furthering the work of organization in support of the United Irish League throughout the United States during the next few months and laid down a definite plan of action for the organization now that the recent Irish purchase act has become law.

The national committee, while expressing profound pleasure at the great victory which the Irish leaders and people have achieved in the land purchase bill, declared emphatically that the fight for national independence for the people of Ireland would be carried on even more strenuously in the future.

WANTS TRADE WITH CANADA,

Detroit Board of Commerce Calls for New Reciprocity Treaty

Detroit, Mich., October 26.—The Detroit Board of Commerce at a general meeting tonight adopted a resolution favoring Canadian reciprocity and urging the immediate reconvening of the joint high commission for the purpose of negotiating a new reciprocity treaty with Canada. The resolution points out the geographical and racial reasons which, it is declared, make it clear that the most intimate trade relations would be mutually advantageous.

"The disappointment of the Canadian people at the failure of the British government to grant reciprocal advantages corresponding with their own preferential tariff," the resolution says, "and the purpose of the Canadian government to take the initiative in reconvening the joint high commission, combine to make this an opportune time for entering anew upon negotiations looking to reciprocal trade agreements, while the growing independence of Canadian industries, the possible adoption of a system of preferential tariffs applicable to all British colonies and dependencies, and the movement for raising the Dominion tariffs, especially upon our manufactured goods, in case a reciprocity treaty is not negotiated, all give warning of the danger of delay."

The Trouble in Morocco

Tangier, Oct. 26.—The Government troops were repulsed by the rebels on October 12. Though the Sultan was present, some of the tribal contingents refused to fight, necessitating a retreat to camp. The troops suffered serious losses. A plot was discovered to carry off the Belgian minister and an Englishman during the trip to Aspot, a few hours from Tangier, where the tribesmen had collected to celebrate a wedding. The plot failed owing to tribal dissensions.

A Port Hope Ruffian

Port Hope, Ont., October 23 A ruffian, described as being tall and big, and wearing a muffler around his head, has been terrorizing the women of this town since Saturday night, when he first made his appearance. Mrs. Laureson and Mrs. Pitcher have been chased by him. He has been seen by two men, but Chief Douglas has not caught sight of him yet.

Speech From the Throne.

Ottawa, Oct. 24.—The speech from the throne at the closing of Parliament today was as follows;

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate;
Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

In relieving you from further attendance after an unusually long and laborious session of Parliament, I desire to convey to you my best thanks for the assiduity you have shown in the discharge of your onerous duties. The session now closing will long be remembered not only for its great length but also for the many useful and important measures that have been enacted, all tending to advance the prosperity of the country.

The unprecedented number of private and public bills that have been passed during the past session may be taken as an evidence of the great industrial development that is going on throughout the Dominion.

DEBT REDUCTION.

A steadily expanding revenue has enabled my Government not only to materially reduce the debt of the Dominion, but also to submit for your approval numerous grants for useful public works in addition to liberal subsidies for the extension of our railway system, which contribute so largely to the development of our country.

THE NEW RAILWAY.

In view of the flow of immigrants now seeking homes in Manitoba and the North-West Territories, and the rapid increase of products requiring facilities to reach the markets of Europe via Canadian ports, and in order to promote the settlement of the great areas of agricultural, mineral, and forest lands still untouched in the older Provinces, my Ministers considered it essential to obtain authority from Parliament for the construction of a second trans-continental railway, the eastern division of which should serve as a common railway highway from Winnipeg to the Maritime ports of Canada. It will be the duty of my Ministers to proceed immediately with the necessary surveys so that the work of construction of that portion of the line which extends from Moncton to Winnipeg may be prosecuted with all possible speed.

The Act authorizing the transfer of the powers heretofore exercised by the Railway Committee of the Privy Council to a permanent board of commissioners who will have supreme control over the administration of the railways of Canada will, I have no doubt, be hailed with much satisfaction.

THE REDISTRIBUTION.

The difficult task of readjusting the representation of the people in the House of Commons in accordance with the British North America Act on a basis open to fair criticism has been accomplished in a manner that I trust will prove satisfactory to the electorate.

The subsidy granted by Parliament for the establishment of a line of steamers affording direct connection with France will, I have every reason to believe, result in a largely increased trade with that country.

The amendments to the law relating to the naturalization of aliens will have the effect of removing the disadvantages under which Canadians desirous of returning to their native land have hitherto labored, and will also materially facilitate the naturalization of the many settlers seeking homes in Manitoba and the Territories.

REWARD IN REFLECTION.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:
I thank you for the liberal provision you have made for the public service.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate:
Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

In taking leave of you, may I express the hope that the sacrifices you have been called upon to make by an attendance on this protracted session may be rewarded by the reflection that your labors have been productive of great benefit to the Dominion.

CANADA WANTS POWER OF MAKING TREATIES

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Says the Dominion Must Have Wider Automony--Forced by Britain to Accept Tribunal

Ottawa, Oct. 24.—The House of Commons spent its last working day in a discussion of the Alaskan boundary question. Mr. Bourassa opened with an argument which showed that Canada had never had a case in Alaska since 1825. His remarks merely glanced at the British diplomacy which sacrificed fifty-six years before Canada, by Confederation, became a political entity. If Mr. Bourassa, with his well known dislike of that particular thing known as British diplomacy, can admit that the British diplomacy of 1825 took nothing from Canada which she had possessed before, it follows, in most minds, that Canada had no claim to start with. Mr. Bourassa was the best man that could have chosen to make such an argument. His customary attitude of Imperial matters makes this exceptional view of his all the stronger.

SIR WILFRID LIVELY.

The Premier spoke for half an hour in his liveliest manner. It was remarked in the press gallery that when he was finished there wasn't much left to be said. The speech was strong and direct and the Premier did not seek polite circumlocutions to avoid speaking his mind. He said, substantially, that he would suspend judgment on Lord Alverstone until he had the full information at hand. He expressed his regret in unequivocal language that the fate of Canada a small but growing colony, but still a colony, was to lie alongside such a powerful and grasping nation as the United States. He declared that what Canada needed was the treaty-making power. He stated that the Canadian people must begin immediately to think of the construction of a railway to the Yukon.

The Premier got under the joints of Mr. Borden's argument when he said that he was not yet convinced that he had made a mistake in intrusting the interests of Canada in the hands of the Lord Chief Justice of England in a matter involving a purely judicial decision. He admitted, however, that, at present, he could not comprehend the course of the line around the islands at the mouth of Portland Channel. On the other hand, he was unwilling to admit that the Canadian case was as weak as the member for Labelle or as strong as the Opposition said it was. Roughly speaking, his opinion was that Canada had the best of the argument. On the Portland Channel particularly, he had thought that Canada's case was beyond doubt, not a shred of argument for the other side. It was, therefore, with wonder and astonishment that he had heard the decision awarding Canada only two islands, mere rocks at that, while the two American islands, would always, from their position, be a great blow to Canadian interests.

POSSESSION OF TERRITORY.

The Premier then went on to explain the position the Government had taken in the composition of the Commission. Mr. Borden, he said, had failed to show the difference between this treaty and the one concerning the Venezuelan arbitration. The British wanted to have a reference on the lines of the Venezuela Treaty. But this treaty involved a possible surrender of territory. It was agreed between Venezuela and Great Britain that if the territory of one was found in the possession of the other the territory would be given to the party in whose possession it was, under terms of compensation. It was agreed, for instance, that the possession for fifty years was to constitute a title. Under such circumstances there was to be a compensation for the territory that had been taken possession of.

"We wished," said the Premier, "to have a similar provision in this treaty, and to provide that if the territory of one country was found to be in the possession of the other, the arbitrators would be at liberty to leave that territory in the hands that held it, subject to such compensation as might be considered equitable.' The Premier explained that if this provision had been adopted the town of Skagway, which is now in the possession of the Americans, could, on being found to be British territory, be left with the Americans on Canada being paid for it.

THOSE ISLANDS.

"Under the award that has been given," continued Sir Wilfrid, "Canada is to obtain two islands which have been in the possession of the United States against our protest. Under the Venezuela Treaty, had these islands been taken, it would have been in the power of the Commissioners to allow these islands to remain in the possession of the Americans under such conditions as they would deem equitable." The present treaty, the Premier explained, prevented any surrender of territory on either side. Under such circumstances, since it did not involve loss of territory, and the Commission's duty was simply to interpret the terms of a treaty, there was no necessity to refer it to Parliament. The court was created to determine judicially what was the boundary of Alaska by the Treaty of 1825.

FORCED UPON CANADA.

Sir Wilfrid expressed his regret that Canada was cheek by jowl with a powerful grasping neighbor like the United States, and, as a corollary, he deplored our lack of the treaty-making power which would enable us to manage our own affairs.

"This matter,' he said, "was forced upon us. I am sorry to say that the whole correspondence of this question since 1898 has not yet been placed before Parliament. I am sorry that we are not in such an independent position that it is in my power to place before the Canadian Parliament the whole of the correspondence as it passed between the Canadian Government and the British Government. But this correspondence will be placed before Parliament next session—the whole of it, no matter what protests may arise from abroad, so that the country may know what share of responsibility should rest upon each of the parties concerned in this matter. But, having no such power, our hands are tied, owing to the fact of our connection—which is our benefit, but which has also its disadvantages—with the Mother Country, which makes us not free agents, but obliged to deal with questions affecting ourselves through the instrumentality of the British Ambassador."

The Premier pointed out that unless the frontier was to be a bone of contention forever, the problem had to be faced, and that after long negotiations Canada was permitted to accept a treaty which implied a judicial interpretation of the treaty of 1825, the result of which could give nothing to the United States, or take nothing away from Canada, but would simply determine what Canada's rights were under the treaty.

"We wanted the treaty interpreted," said Sir Wilfrid, "We wanted simply what belonged to us. We accepted the proposition."

After the proposition had been accepted, the Premier stated that they had found that the American Commissioners could hardly qualify as "three impartial jurists." They had protested against their appointment. They had asked the British Government to make representation to President Roosevelt that gentlemen who had expressed opinions on this question in Congress could not come within the term "impartial" mentioned in the treaty.

BRITAIN TOO HASTY.

"But before our protest had been taken into consideration," said the Premier, "the treaty was ratified by the British authorities."

The Premier asked the Opposition what they would have done under the circumstances. What would have been the consequences if Canada had declined to give her consent? The American authorities would probably have planted the American flag upon the disputed territory, and Canada would either have retreat in disgrace, or go to war to preserve her rights.

"True, explained the Premier, "we did our best. We confided our rights to men who, we believed, could defend them before the tribunal. All the time we supposed they would be jurists of repute. The British Government undertook to appoint the Lord Chief Justice of England to represent the British side. I thought that in the hands of a gentleman of that distinction our interests would be secure. The leader of the Opposition suggests that Canadian interests would have been more secure in the hands of three Canadians. This means, if it means anything, that the Lord Chief Justice of England did not judiciously interpret the treaty, but allowed himself to be biased by influences which it is a shame to mention or suppose."

In reply to a question by Mr. Borden, the Premier stated that he had declared in so far as relations between Canada and the Empire with regard to Imperial federation or similar matters were concerned, our relations were perfectly satisfactory, but he had never intimated that our powers should not be augmented by the treaty-making power. Going back to the present treaty, the Premier pointed out that Canada hadn't lost everything, nor had the United States gained everything. For instance the Americans did not get what they wanted in the Lynn Canal. If they had, the boundary would have been extended to Lake Bennett. On the Portland Canal, the Canadians had gained two islands.

"It isn't as bad as some people believe," continued Sir Wilfrid, "but it is bad enough to cause us to look into the future, and see what we can do to remedy this state of things."

THINKS PEARY WILL WIN OUT THIS TIME

Prof. Brewer Expects Him to Reach Pole

The Great Difficulties of Travelling

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 26.—"If Commander Peary were 10 years younger I would not hesitate to prophesy that he would be successful in reaching the north pole on this trip," said Prof. William H. Brewer, of the Sheffield Scientific school.

Prof. Brewer is president of the Arctic Club of America. He has himself made several journeys into the Arctic regions, and has known personally nearly all the men who in the last 50 years have made trips into the far north for exploration.

"As it is, I feel very confident that Commander Peary will be successful," continued Prof. Brewer. "The north pole is bound to be reached some time soon. Of that I feel absolutely sure; and certainly Mr. Peary seems to be more qualified by experience and nature to undertake the feat and accomplish it than any one who has as yet started in search of it.

"His latest plan of procedure is the most feasible of any he has laid out, and would almost seem certain of success. Peary knows by experience what to do and how to do it. And of personal courage he certainly is not lacking.

"It is upon the question of endurance only that I based my statement that if he were ten years younger I would be sure of his success. Whether the strains of the last ten years have told on his strength and endurance without his knowing it no one can positively tell.

"Of one thing I feel pretty confident, that no man over 50 ought to undertake Arctic exploration."

"In speaking of Peary's plans for the next three years, Prof. Brewer had this to say:

"Certainly it seems that in deciding to go to the most northern point of land and establish his winter quarters and work from there over the Arctic sea to the pole, Peary has shown a better knowledge of the situation than has ever been demonstrated before. In previous trips he has made his way in a northwesterly direction over Green-

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

YOU PAY ONLY IF CURED.

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write for It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has fourteen certificates and diplomas from colleges and medical boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own home, and so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has both the method and

DR. S. GOLDBERG.
The possessor of fourteen diplomas and certificates, who wants no money that he does not earn the ability to do as he says, Dr. S. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, vital weakness, varicocele, lost vigor, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and if you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interest of every man who suffers in this way, to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the fourteen diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Avenue, Room [illegible], Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 26 1903

TIME TO STRIKE BACK

Canada has been used too long as a football by the tariff makers of the United States and the arbitrators of the Mother Country. The time is opportune for a return blow, aimed at the nation responsible for the sacrifices Canada and Canadians have made in the interests of "Anglo-Saxon good will and civilization." The United States is that country. It is now in high glee over its victory in the Alaska Boundary arbitration, and it has since 1897 been in a happy mood over its triumphal invasion of our market.

It is time to strike back.

Canada has the weapon to do it most effectually. That weapon is the tariff. With our neighbors in possession of a slice of territory which Canadians innocently belonged to the Dominion, we should set to work at once to drive their manufacturers and their finished products out of the country. Trade and territorial aggrandizement is their chief hobby and statesmen and business men combine to extract sacrifices from Canada.

Why should we tolerate the situation one day longer than is necessary? We have been the too-pliant friend of the aggressive, powerful and grasping nation up to the point of cowardice. Let Canada take a new tack; let it assume a position more in harmony with national self-respect. Circumstances invite this country to look only to its own interests, regardless of the effects of its fiscal legislation upon nations with which it trades.

We can dispossess Americans of a great slice of their export trade and we should proceed to do it at once by means of a high schedule of tariff duties. This country can exclude American products from the Yukon district. It can substitute all over the land the Canadian finished article for the imported product that has crossed the boundary line. It can give our friends to the south such a dose of Dingleyism as will make them regard Canadians with some degree of respect. As it is, they look upon this country as a land of inferior people, of inferior institutions, and of putty-like aspirations. They need a lesson delivered from Ottawa and they will get it unless Canadians are anxious to turn the other cheek and put on additional shackles binding them to the Yankee financier, politician and manufacturer.

A CHIEF JUSTICE'S DISHONOR

Hamilton Herald: Lord Alverstone weakly and shamefully yielded to the American commissioners, agreeing to cede to the United States important territory which he had asserted to be rightfully belonging to Canada. As to the mountain line, it is not so clear that he wilfully betrayed Canadian interests; possibly he acted in accordance with his judgment in this matter. But if he was capable of acting dishonorably in one detail he was capable of dishonorable conduct in another.

The full effect of this decision now stands revealed. Canada loses everything for which she has been for years strenuously contending. Even the sop thrown to her in the form of a recognition to her claim to complete possession of the southern entrance to the Portland canal has been rendered valueless. And this immense sacrifice is suffered because of the dishonorable weakness of the lord chief justice of England, acting nominally as a British commissioner, but in reality as an ally of the three American commissioners.

COMMERCIAL WAR IN PROSPECT

There is much ground for the assertion made by statesmen and those students who have made a specialty of government finance that the next few years will witness a great commercial war. By which is meant that nation will fight against nation, not with military and marine forces, but with money and by means of the various enactments and ordinances which will enable each to deflect the flow of gold from the treasuries and banks of other nations into their own. In a word, the old and forgotten game of "Beggar My Neighbor" is to be revived and played again with the world as a board, governments as players, and the lives and happiness of hundreds of millions of human beings as the stake, in this struggle of giants.

THE ALASKAN BOUNDARY

A fond anticipation by one United States newspaper is that the Alaska boundary award may pave the way towards the union of Canada and the United States, says the Ottawa Journal. That would be the easiest way for Canada to get access to the Pacific Ocean from the Yukon country, of course. And other United States newspapers imagine that Canadian resentment against the British sacrifice of the Canadian case may drive Canada in the direction of annexation to the States or of closer commercial relations.

Any of our neighbors to the south who harbor such delusions will be disillusioned in good time. This country may feel less regard for Great Britain in consequence of Lord Alverstone's offence, and conceivable the idea of complete Canadian independence of and separation from the Empire has received powerful promotion. But while there may be Canadian anger over Canadian loss due to the British frame of mind which Lord Alverstone represents, there is more than proportionate Canadian contempt for the course and success of the United States in the matter, and a resentment of which the United States will duly experience the effect. In the appointment of three active politicians as commissioners, instead of "eminent jurists" as had been agreed upon, the United States opened the game with stacked cards, and in the greed which succeeded in stealing from Lord Alverstone's weakness rights which he had himself admitted to belong to Canada, a further meanness of spirit was shown which Canada will not forget.

Whatever may be the case between Canada and Great Britain, the case between Canada and the United States will not alter to the benefit of the latter. On the contrary, we are much mistaken if the United States will not soon discern in the Canadian tariff a suggestion that the Alaska boundary award was a bull in the United States china shop.

Messrs. Jette and Aylesworth: Dear Sirs—You are the stuff.

A railway to the Yukon! That is the slogan and the inevitable result of the Alaskan award. The people of the Yukon must have an independent and rapid means of communication with the coast and continental lines.

Some Alaska Epigrams.

A lady reader of the Toronto Saturday Night sends the following "Alaska epigrams":

The Lord gave and Lord Alverstone hath taken away; blessed be the name of Lord Alverstone.

The Eagle may be expected to get the Lion's share, but it has taken the Beaver's also.

If Uncle Sam would possess our land let him have our waterways likewise; if he compel us to give him a mile, let us bestow upon him our Pacific coast in the bargain.

The quality of arbitration is twice blessed; it blesseth England that gives and Uncle Sam that takes.

God save the King! But who will save Canada?

Faithful are the wounds of a Boer; but the kisses of a Commission are deceitful.

Lord Alverstone maketh a cheerful giver.

"Thou shalt not arbitrate," is the last and safest commandment of all.

England expects every Commissioner to do his Canadian.

And now abideth these three: Ashburton, Alverstone and Aylesworth; and the greatest of these is Aylesworth.

HAMILTON HAS TROUBLE

Says the Free Traders were Unfairly Treated

Mr. Ritchie Promises to Make a Complete Answer to Mr. Chamberlain

London, Oct. 24—In an address to his constituents in Ealing, Lord George Hamilton, late Secretary of State for India, has given for the first time his version of the recent Cabinet resignations. He said that at the Cabinet meeting on the last day of the Parliamentary session on September 14 Premier Balfour produced a program, which included preferential tariffs and the taxation of food. Lord Balfour, then Secretary for Scotland; C. T. Ritchie, then Chancellor of the Exchequer, and he, agreed to place their resignations in the hands of the Duke of Devonshire, then Lord President of the Council, who would present them with his own. It was not until September 16 that Lord George Hamilton learned of Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's resignation, and that the Duke of Devonshire had retained his office.

He declared that Premier Balfour had treated the members of the Cabinet, other than the Duke of Devonshire, unfairly.

With regard to the general fiscal policy, Lord George Hamilton declared himself a free trader, with limitations.

He also said that he believed thoroughly in retaliation that would give the country a better chance for the negotiating of reciprocity treaties. He thought no member of the Cabinet would have resigned on such a proposition. He said the present propaganda was protection pure and simple.

SUCCESS TO SUCCESS.

London, Oct. 24—The Daily Mail, referring to Lord George Hamilton's speech, says he ignored the immense progress which other countries have made under protection, and that British agriculture being moribund has brought physical deterioration. Free trade has been the utter ruin of Ireland, and German penalization of Canada is giving an advantage.

The Scotsman says Mr. Chamberlain moves from success to success. The most remarkable feature of the situation is that, outside of party politicians, no one has any real hostility to his scheme. Nowhere is there the shadow of a sign that the workingmen of this country are opposed to the new fiscal policy. Mr. Chamberlain hints that the general election will not come as soon as the prophets predicts, and he promises an interval to educate the country.

A Cheap Argument.

The Times calls Sir Campbell Bannerman's assigning British trade stagnation to the need of more technical skill a cheap argument. British labor, it says, despite its weaknesses, is more effective than that of any Continental country.

The Staffordshire potteries, at a largely attended meeting, pledged themselves yesterday to further the fiscal proposals of Mr. Chamberlain.

Mr. Ritchie says that on December 12, at Croydon, he will make a complete answer to Mr. Chamberlain.

Change of Life

A TIME OF INTEREST AND GREAT IMPORTANCE TO ALL WOMEN.

Wrecked health is produced by neglect during this trying period, and small wonder that women look forward with dread to its coming, for if not properly passed, is but the beginning of an endless chain of troubles.

As soon as the unmistakable signs known to all women make their first appearance, Ferrozone should be used regularly, and if persistently taken will be a guarantee of happy, healthy old age.

Nothing can bring more pleasure than to know that the days of sickness and suffering are over. This can best be accomplished by building up the system with Ferrozone, which produces blood, muscle, tissue, and strength to resist and ward off disease.

Ferrozone increases the appetite strengthens and improves nerve tone and digestive processes, thereby strengthening and invigorating the whole system. It gives tone to the heart, regulates its action, removes distressing palpitations, and it lays the solid foundation of perfect health.

Ferrozone is a sensible and efficient tonic; it brings back strength very quickly, and few people are so strong and healthy, that they would not be benefited by using it.

If I Die Shall I Live Again?

"No, and I Don't Want To," answers Frederic Harrison.

Aroused by Mr. Myer's remarkable book on the survival of human personality after death, the Positivists or freethinkers of England are giving vent to their ridicule and contempt, and the chief of them, the eminent critic, Frederic Harrison, in the "Nineteenth Century" gives a brilliant description of his dream of the future life. He tells how he dreamed, and having cast aside his mortal body, passed into the Infinite, where, in his dream, he seemed to revel in the tornadoes of astral volcanoes, and to find rest in icy regions where the very ether had frozen into a liquid:—

"One seemed? who seemed? who felt? who saw? who passed? What, or who, was I? Individuality, personality, subjectivity, had slipped off as easily as the dried husk they were now laying out for burial. How childish, how brutish, how selfish did it seem now to conceive of any me! There was an end of Me, with its outlook of blind kitten or wriggling earth-worm. Should it be rather We—was I now a Gas, a Force, an Emanation? Should it be rather They?—was I an indefinite unit of a limitless Power extended in Space, and contemporaneous with all Time? The pettiness, the feebleness, the squalor of the sense of being Me was too evident. A more glorious We took the place of Me: and We in turn became They; and They in a flash became All.

"What a miserable insect should I have been in this immeasurable Universe if, by miracle hardly conceivable of Omnipotence, the individual Me had survived! Personality was all very well in the muddy speck men call Earth; dust to dust, ashes to ashes. But in the blaze of an Infinite Universe, scintillating in its every atom with unquenchable light, throbbing not with momentary sensations, but with ideas, ideas intercommunicable from one point in the boundless All to every other point, without need of language, and without effort, act, or delay—to drag up into this Immensity the soiled rags of 'human personality'—'twould be better to be the parasite of the anopheles gnat, spreading death and disease in its passion for blood. When the entire Universe is continuously and eternally apparent as a whole; when all its infinite and interminable ideas are simultaneously cognizable throughout its limitless field; when Motion is extinct, by reason that everything is everywhere, and Sound is swallowed up in one endless circumambient Harmony, then, assuredly, there is no place left for Sight, Hearing, Speech or Thought. The wretched makeshifts of human sensation are as meaningless and sterile as the eyes of a mole. In this new world the craving for Personality is seen to be a sordid lust of the flesh.

"The transition from the dusty cribbed and fetid prison of the Body to the radiant immensity of the Universe, wherein all the uses of bodily sense, and all the notions of terrestrial mind are meaningless and void, was a change so sudden and tremendous that it could not become familiar at first. Remnants of ideas and instincts belonging to the old world of sense still lingered in the new world of transcendence. On earth one had played with conundrums of a geometry of four dimensions. The new world presented dimensions at once infinite in number, at once infinite and infinitesimal in quantity; rather it had no dimensions at all; for everything was everything else; and also was nothing. And so, too, in the world numeration was infinite—all numbers were at once infinity and zero. Two plus two now added up x millions raised to the nth power, and instantaneously flashed back into minus 0. Had shame been possible in the world of the Absolute, it would have been fit to mark this absurd attempt to count—this survival of gross materialism from the world of Relation and Matter.

"The dregs of consciousness, of some flickering sensation of an individual Me would now and then break out, like a forgotten weed in a well-tended garden. I tried to think of myself as Me. . . . Such petty egoisms belong only to a world of limitations, of parts, of relations, of organisms. They drop off like dead leaves in winter in a world of infinites, of absolutes, a world which knows neither structures, nor parts, nor limits, nor substances, nor organs.

"Once, whilst the sound of human voices had hardly faded from my memory, I essayed to communicate some vague idea to the world around me. The stupidity of such a wish, its wild absurdity and gross animalism, was beamed forth in the myriad flashes of a circumambient Lightning. Millions after millions of electric welkins pulsated across the Heaven, amidst the joyous peal of infinite Thunder claps. They had recognized my wish before it had been expressed; nay, before it had been formed. They were Me; I was They; We were It. The All now absorbed the Many; it had engulfed all individual entities, so that personality had ceased to have existence or meaning."

The Automobile and The Cart Horse.

A swift Automobile once swept proudly past a Tired Cart Horse.

"Hello, Old Stick-in-the-Mud!" it called, tauntingly. "Back to the Boneyard, you Dead One!" So saying, it disappeared in a Cloud of Steam.

A little farther down the Pike, the Tired Cart Horse came upon the Swift Automobile, now Busted.

"Aha!" said the Steed, with a Horse Laugh, "who is Stick-in-the-Mud now? You are indeed far from your Happy Home."

While the Cart Horse was thinking up other Biting Sarcasms of this Nature, they hitched him up to the Damaged Vehicle, and he was compelled to yank it laboriously to the stable, fourteen miles away on an Up Grade.

This fable teaches us that it is Wrong to gloat over the Downfall of our Enemies, until we are sure they can no longer injure us.—Ex.

The Unweaker Vessel.

"You are accused of mashing women," said the stranger.

"I know it," replied the street car conductor. "But 'tain't the women that gits mashed, so much as 'tis the small kids and old men, I s'pose on account of the women mostly wearin' corsets."

"Was his marriage a success?" "I should say it was. He has tried to secure a divorce in South Dakota, New York, Oklahoma, and England, and his marriage still holds."—Brooklyn "Life."

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 500 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house of sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

THE DESIRE OF ALL NATIONS.

SAMUEL FALLOWS, Bishop of the Reformed Episcopal Church, Chicago.

And the desire of all nations shall come. —Haggai, ii, 7.

The wants met by Christianity are deeper than those provided for by civilization. The new gospel which is being preached—first civilize and then Christianize—is putting the tender before the locomotive.

Herbert Spencer has maintained with great force in his treatise on education that the moral nature is the first in time and importance to be cultivated. But the moral nature of a man is bound up inseparably with his religious nature.

All true morality has its basis in religion. Hence it is that the most permanent, persistent, far-reaching principles and sentiments of man have sprung from the central core of his worshipful being. If, then, we would begin fundamentally to train him aright we must lay hold firmly and correctly upon his devout tendencies; if we would develop him in manward breadth and in Godward height we must first clarify his spiritual vision.

Christianity alone of all the world's religions has the elements of perfectness, universality and adaptability in it. None other possesses the power of assimilating and transforming into its own nature whatever may be found of value either among the barbaric or existent civilized nations with which it comes in contact. Very often, however, the friends of Christianity have assumed a false position in maintaining that it teaches the opposite of all that man ever desired or thought before its light illuminated his understanding or its grace renewed his heart.

On the contrary, as we look to Him who was "the desire of all nations," the distinctive power and glory of Christianity are clearly manifested in this unique fact, that it, and it alone, meets the wants of the spiritual nature of mankind, uttered in all religions, and reveals the glorious realities which they but dimly shadowed forth. "Whatever of righteousness Judaism held, whatever of good the Greek philosophy taught, whatever of beauty the Greek mythology embodied, whatever of sublimity the Eastern mysticism dreamed, whatever of majesty the Roman law contained is taken up in Christianity and set forth in all its glorious substantiality."

Christ Jesus was not the simple outgrowth of His age, as many unfriendly critics of the supernatural in His life have tried so hard to prove. It would be a miracle far transcending all the miracles which the New Testament records if such a character were to blossom out of the thoughts, the ideas, the tendencies or the deeds of the time in which He lived. His own people "expected" a more victorious Joshua, a more magnificent Herod, a wider ruling Caesar, a wiser Moses, a holier Abraham. Their expectation was fulfilled, as many of our prayers are answered, not in the manner desired or looked for, but in the way Divine Providence wisely and truly ordains.

They could not see that in the form of this wayfaring man, manger born and Nazareth bred, there was One more powerful than him of old by whom the waters of Jordan were parted as he entered at the head of the wandering tribes into the promised land. They could not see in Him the One who should hush the stormy winds and calm the roaring seas, and at last lead over the Jordan of death in glorious triumph the believing, wandering tribes of earth, into the Canaan of everlasting rest. They could not see as He stood before Herod, clad in the old purple robe—the mock insignia of royalty—with not a single supporter, that He was clothed with panoply divine, and behind Him and about Him were the myriad legions of the skies.

They did not see, as He stood bare and bleeding before Pilate's bar, that when this representative of the wide-ruling Caesar lifted from that lacerated back the insulting emblems of imperial rule, trying to melt their stony hearts to pity, the government was upon His shoulders and of the increase of His kingdom there should be no end. They did not see that in Him were all the hidden treasures of wisdom and knowledge, and that an infinitely wiser teacher and leader than Moses was among them. They did not grasp the truth He had previously uttered, "Before Abraham was I am," the self-existent, the Holy One from all eternity. These things were hidden from them through their prejudices, their stubbornness, their conceit, their unbelief.

He was, therefore, not the mere human embodiment of a great national trend of conception or sweep of movement. He was not the mere expression of what was best and highest in the uttered or unexpressed beliefs of His contemporaries, nor even in the imagination of the noblest thinkers of all the previous centuries. He was God's actualized conception of all that was perfect in man, the ideal of humanity. "He was the consummate flower of the human race." That grand sentence of the Roman Terence which brought the vast multitude in the theatre, with thunders of applause, to their feet when it first fell upon their ears, "I am a man, and there is nothing pertaining to humanity which is foreign to me," was, therefore, true only of Him in whom "the fulness of the Godhead dwelleth bodily." None but He can satisfy the imperious needs of universal man and as the all-powerful divine magnet draws all men unto Him. He alone can say with the authority of a God, and yet with the persuasiveness of a perfect sympathizing heart: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

"We women," she was saying again, "suffer in silence."

"I can readily believe that you do suffer in silence," the man replied. "You take so much pleasure in talk." —Philadelphia Press.

She—Is it really true that the blind can determine color by the sense of touch?

He—Sure. I once knew a blind man who could tell a red hot stove by merely putting his finger on it.—Chicago Daily News.

Misdirected Zeal.

A clergyman somewhere by the sea has expressed his displeasure because some of the women who come to his church have fallen into a summer habit of coming without their hats. He has cited St. Paul as his authority for declaring from his pulpit that women ought to keep their heads covered in church. They certainly look very nice with their heads covered as our church-going sisters are wont to cover them, but it seems reasonably doubtful whether St. Paul, if he had been managing a seaside church in the United States in this year of grace, would have thought it expedient to raise this question of millinery. In the matter of women's headgear the times have changed very much, and in nineteen hundred years both the cost and the distractiveness of women's hats have momentously increased. It was the fashion in Oriental Galilee in St. Paul's time for women to keep their heads covered in public places. So is it the fashion here now, but circumstances alter cases. That our women have recently consented to take off their hats in the theaters has been hailed as a merciful concession, but the theaters are as public as the churches, and no reason suggests itself why what is good form in the one place shouldn't be good form in the other.

Moreover, in summer some of our grown girls are just now disposed to go about bareheaded. One sees them so in automobiles in town, and in the streets of the country villages. Why object, if they like it and think their complexions will stand it? It is in the interest of economy, and some people think it is good for the health, too. It is a passing quip, and bound soon to yield to freckles and tan, and when it does so yield the practice of dropping into church without a hat will go with it. St. Paul himself could well distinguish between essentials and inessentials, for after setting forth his views about covered heads for women and for men, does he not say, "But if any man seem to be contentious we have no such custom, neither the churches of God." Which was saying in effect that, after all, the question wasn't worth disputing over.

A kindred question has come up—so the papers say—in Vermont, where a young woman who expects soon to be married objects to promising to obey her future husband, and has been looking for a clergyman who will leave "obey" out of the marriage service which is to make her a wife. She has found one, but not in her own church. All the same, it will make little practical difference whether she promises to obey or not. If she marries a man worth obeying she will obey at a pinch, and be glad of the chance. The husband still ranks as the head of the family, and though cases are common where he is not really in command, the happiest families are those in which he is equal to his job. It is not any word of Scripture, or law, or a promise in the marriage service that makes the husband the senior and ruling partner, but nature and the force of circumstances.

Moreover, the fear which some young women have of having to obey a husband is just a bugaboo. As things turn out there is division of responsibility, and therefore of authority. The wife has her realm and rules in it. The husband takes her orders in matters under her control, and she his in some other matters, and over other matters still they consult and agree upon a course. Of course a bossy husband is objectionable, but a bossy husband is apt to be a good deal of an ass, and no young woman ought to marry a man who is a good deal of an ass unless the exigency is pressing and she can positively do no better.—"Harper's Weekly."

A Noble Renunciation.

She turned from him with a great sob, her convulsed frame shaken by irrepressible emotion.

"It—it is terrible, terrible, Frederick," she faltered. "My father, who but yesterday was a multi-millionaire, is to-day a broken, a penniless, a dishonored bankrupt!"

"As bad as that?" he whispered, half incredulously.

She lifted her tear-stained eyes to his and mutely bowed her head.

"Surely there may be—there must be," he went on in strained, hoarse accents, "there will be something saved from the wreck?"

"Nothing!" she repeated in a dull, hopeless monotone. "He is irretrievably ruined. All, all is lost."

For a few moments blank silence reigned.

"Gertrude," he at length said, and as he spoke the look of indecision gradually faded from his brow, while a fuller volume of sound inflated his trembling voice, "do not say all is lost. Has he not you, his only child, left to him? Yes, my precious, my only love! Your duty is clear and unmistakable. Your whole life must be devoted, aye, sacrificed if necessary to the author of your being: the father who in the time of his wealth and power denied you nothing, who surrounded you with every luxury money could purchase and made your life a gem-bespangled dream of flowers. Yes, Gertrude, we must part, and for ever! I give you back your freedom now—at once! Heart-broken, crushed and wretched as it leaves me, I yet consent to carry this great grief with me to the grave; for what are my petty claims compared to his lifelong ones? Nay!"—seeing she was about to speak—"do not unman me; do not praise me for my nobility of soul; think of me simply as part of your sacrifice at the holy shrine of filial duty! Farewell!"

And ere her blurred vision grew clear he was out in the street—running rapidly over in his mind the names of other heiresses he knew, and the likelihood of any one of them consenting to heal his seared and broken heart with the golden salve of matrimony.—"Ally Sloper's Half-Holiday."

The Way of the World.

First Tramp—Weary Willie stole an auto an' run over a man an' killed him!

Second Tramp—Wot did day do to Weary?

Second Tramp—Wot did dey do to for killin' de man an' giv him ten years fer stealin' de auto.

First Farmer—Blessed if I think the agricultural department is any good at all.

Second Farmer—What's the trouble?

First Farmer—Well, I wrote to 'em to find out how high wheat was goin' up to, an' I couldn't git no satisfaction at all. —"Tit-Bits."

No Blondes Desired.

"It's too bad," said she, thoughtfully, "you have brown eyes and I have brown eyes, you're dark-haired and I'm dark-haired, we both have round chins and we both have dark complexions—I must say that the outlook for our children is a terribly monotonous one."

"Never mind," he said, hastily; "let them be monotonous. I'd rather have them so."—Ex.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is new offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

Purchase the Treasury Stock of The Drake Mining Drainage and Tunnel Transportation Co.
OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$90,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 150 to 600 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,300 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale 200,000 shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at 25 cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

Then gently releasing her he let her go from him into the unlighted house.

"It is hard for me to have to give her up like this," he thought; "not to see her, for years, except by stealth. But it is for the best. The time will come when I shall be able to acknowledge her as my wife—when I shall be able to share wealth with her——"

He broke off in his meditations.

For the first time the knowledge of how he could gain that wealth brought to him a sense of misgiving.

What if his scheme should be discovered?

What if shame and dishonor should be his reward?

He thrust the thought from him.

"Gretchen has courage to live down the secret—why should I hesitate? The money must be mine. I can trust her; she would suffer death rather than betray me—if only I keep true to her!"

CHAPTER VIII.

The next day Marc commenced the two pictures of Gretchen—the one to please Sir Felix, the other to be presented by the original to Frank Stanford.

Marc found his model silent and thoughtful; her features hardened for the portrait ordered by Sir Felix, a soft smile sometimes coming to her face as she sat for the one with the bridal veil and orange blossom.

"You look tired," Marc said, as he saw the light fade from her eyes and her head droop wearily. I am sure you find Sir Felix a troublesome patient. I think you are hardly strong enough to undertake so great a responsibility."

She raised her eyes, with a swift fear, to his.

"Indeed, I am strong enough," she replied, clasping her hands under the white veil; "I hope you will not try to set Felix against me—so much depends on my remaining here."

"Of course, I shall say nothing," Marc answered, going on quietly with his painting. "I was only thinking of you, and wishing to make your task lighter. If there is any way in which I can help you, I hope you will not hesitate to command my services."

"You are very kind; but I get on so well with Sir Felix. I seem to understand him so much better than anybody else."

"All the same, it must be a dull sort of life for you. I have been here only a short time, and yet I have experienced long hours of loneliness."

"That is because you have left all your friends in London.' "

"I have no friends."

"You must have some."

"Not necessarily. I have a landlady."

Gretchen smiled.

"Is she all that her calling implies?"

"She is the best creature in the world. She 'does' for me so comfortably that I quite forgive her rustling starched gown, with its wall-paper pattern—and she doesn't wear creaking boots."

"A most interesting person. What other charm has she about her?"

"A rose."

"A flower? Only one?"

"Only one—there could not be such another."

"I suppose it is a straggling, wild thing, growing on a stem by itself—a flower nobody would care to gather."

Marc did not reply.

The picture upon which he was engaged seemed to occupy his whole attention—and yet, was it of Gretchen he was thinking?

It was scarcely possible he could have been unconscious of her presence, so beautiful she was, with those fathomless eyes that seemed great with their own secret.

Gretchen puzzled him.

The life to which she was tied he considered anything but a pleasant one; but once or twice he had seen on her face a look that drove away the thought of her unhappiness, and, whatever the mystery surrounding her, he knew she was content to rest beneath Sir Felix Errol's roof.

"I wish I could have brought little Rosy with me," he thought as he strolled through the grounds in the afternoon, while a few gleams of sunshine struggled through the autumn haze. "Poor little girl! I wonder how she is getting on? I shall work harder at those pictures so as to get back to town in a few weeks. How glad she will be when I return!"

He was thinking of Rosalie—but thinking of her only as a child.

What more was she?

Was it not a child who had thrown her arms about his neck, and wept and kissed him at parting?

When he went back to the house he saw Gretchen watching him from the terrace.

He noticed a shade of anxiety on her face and thought that, perhaps, she had undergone another of those painful scenes with Sir Felix.

Marc made his way to her side and looked questioningly into her eyes.

"You have not had any fresh trouble with Sir Felix, I hope?" he said, unable to reconcile himself to the intense loneliness of her life.

Her hand was resting on the rail of the terrace.

Moved by a feeling of kindly protection towards her, he laid his own lightly on her slender fingers.

She snatched her hand away, and an angry flash came into her eyes.

"I beg your pardon," he said, surprised and hurt that she should have placed a false construction on his action. "I did not mean to offend you."

"But you had no right to touch my hand," she replied, looking down at her fingers, as though the contact had left some blemish on their whiteness. "I must ask you to remember I am only here as Sir Felix Errol's nurse."

Marc bowed, a little stiffly.

He felt he had offended her, and yet the inborn pride of his nature resented the slight received from her, and the sympathy he had felt towards her was, for the time, repulsed.

Not that Gretchen was in need of his condolence.

Frank filled her thoughts, day and night.

While she possessed his love, she desired nothing more on earth, and any attention from Marc she looked upon as an insult to her absent husband.

She would rather Marc had not been at Dayton Court.

There was always a fear in her mind as to whether he would not make any discovery concerning Frank.

By not displaying a habit of strolling out in the grounds late at night, Marc relieved her mind of a load, and she was able to steal out in the darkness to meet Frank without having her footsteps dogged.

So far, the nights had been damp and misty, and there had been nothing to tempt Marc out after the rest of the household had retired—all save Gretchen, who, in the solitude of the long nights, would make her way to the trysting-place where Frank was waiting.

Marc had been at Drayton Court about a month when a change came over Gretchen.

The day had been unusually dismal, the rain pouring in heavy torrents, and not enough light for Marc to attempt to get on with his pictures.

He had received some papers by the morning post, and, after scanning the columns, had sent them up to Sir Felix, thinking the week's news might interest him.

Sir Felix refused to look at them and Gretchen took them down to the library, deeming it best not to irritate him by leaving the papers in his room.

Marc was in the room he had converted into a studio, and Gretchen had the library to herself.

Drawing a chair near the fire, she

THE CAVAN BLAZERS

ort History Of an Organization whose Name is Well Known

When the mind reverts to Cavan township onenaturally thinks by the law of association of the Cavan Blazers. They have been styled a great secret organization, and men of the ninth line appear to have been the nucleus of the band. In the heart of a swamp they had a retreat which was known only to the initiated. Here they assembled at night, and truly the welkin rang with their merriment. The most jovial and genial belonged to the band, and they went in for an all round good time. In the middle of the night it was their custom to partake of a repast that might be styled a banquet, for which the choicest poultry in the township was brought into requisition.

The Cavan Blazers who were at the zenith of their glory about 1850, were extremely antagonistic to Roman Catholics, and did all in their power to prevent men of that faith from settling in the township. About 1862 the Cavan Blazers attended a seventeenth of March demonstration in Peterborough with avowed purpose of breaking up the procession. By means of ropes a number of them drew a cannon from Mount Pleasant to Peterborough. They loaded the cannon and directed it toward a hotel where a number of Roman Catholics had assembled, and threatened to demolish the place it the Catholics did not disperse.

Among the Cavan Blazers nicknames were prevalent and always used on their night parades in order to conceal identity. Of course some men who never belonged to the band were given nicknames. The following are some of the noms de guerre known among the Cavan Blazers: The Dane, Robert Swain; Bartholomew, John Swain; The Wren, Richard Swain; Muggins, W. Fallis; Cat, Robt. Montgomery; Mousey, John Swain; Judas, Robt. Grandy; Podgins, Henry Grandy; Old Gilley, John Grandy, the name being given to him owing to his partiality for singing the hymn the refrain of which is "Balmo f Gilead"; and Sugar Son, Mr. Staples.

The Cavan Blazers were big powerful men and were magnificent types of Canadian manhood.

About 1830 it was the custom of the early settlers of Cavan township to walk to Port Hope and Cobourg with a bag of wheat and return with a bag of flour, the distance being about 25 to 30 miles.

EXPENDITURE GROWS

Finance Ministers of Various German Discusses Problem

Berlin, October 24.—How to meet increasing expenditure with a decreasing revenue is the problem confronting the Finance Ministers of the various German States now assembled in Berlin, under the presidency of Chancellor Von Bulow. The Imperial Treasury has never hitherto faced so critical a situation. The army and navy are clamoring for heavier budgets. The army wants 150,000 new cavalry and infantry, a fresh outfit of artillery and a complete new rifle equipment costing 100,000,000 marks ($23,800,000). The navy is desirous of forcing to completion within the next five years the Kaiser's warship Programme, scheduled to be finished by 1916. In the meantime, owing to the industrial depression, the Government's chief sources of revenue, railway and receipts and income tax, have steadily fallen. Baron Von Thielmann, the Imperial Minister of Finance, was dismissed last August, because his devices for raising money were limited to issuing loans. His successor, Baron Von Stengel, will be compelled to invent other means of satisfying the departments. How to do it without burdening the already overtaxed Germans demands ingenuity of a high order. Important changes in the currency system are likely.

Ballots Missing

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 21—The re-count in the Fernie election court, which was to have been held before Judge Forrin, had to be postponed for one week, owing to one of the ballot boxes being missing. The box is said to have been sent to Victoria by mistake.

London, Oct. 23—The West of Ireland is greatly excited over the rumor that the Admiralty Board has fixed on Galway as a naval base, for Galway's greatest dream has been to become a terminus. The chief opposition to the fast Canadian line comes from the Great Western Railway, who wants Milford Haven, and is bringing powerful influence to bear on Canada to secure the contract.

AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY
FOR BOTH LARGE AND SMALL INVESTORS

Owing to valuable Patents having been granted this Company, we are desirous of extending our business to the Dominion of Canada. Owing to the Customs duties, the extra cost in transportation and the numerous expenses attached, and the delays in deliveries in shipping goods from one country to another, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a factory in the Dominion, that we may be in a position to meet the immediate wants of the business.

The articles that we make from our Patent Fabric are too numerous to mention, and it is not necessary that we go into the details of the merits of our goods, as they are already in use to a large extent and have no equal. Our goods are covered by several patents, and the profit on the goods is large, averaging from 25 to 100 per cent, thus affording the company large revenue to meet all its obligations

In order to secure funds to equip a plant in the Dominion of Canada we will offer to the people of Canada $100,000 of our Bonds paying ten per cent. interest per annum.

Experience has shown that stocks based upon sound Industrial enterprises have never been equalled from the standpoint of legitimate profit. For instance, a few hundred dollars invested in the Bell Telephone Company's stock in the beginning of the enterprise now commands thousands of dollars, after having yielded large dividends annually. Of course opportunities for such profitable investments do not present themselves every day, and it is also very true that a vast amount of capital has been misdirected in the endeavor to exploit inventions and enterprises which shrewd and far seeing investors should have recognized as impractical. But as regards this enterprise even the most conservative must admit it has possibilities of development which are almost incalculable and which have already been demonstrated in a practical manner. We have no speculative elements—this is a sound business proposition, and the patents which we own are worth several million dollars, as there can only be one fabric of this kind and that is ours.

All the above facts are simple statements of the truth and can be fully substantiated to the satisfaction of all investors.

The business is no experiment, the incorporators of this Company have made it their business for a great many months past and understand all the details, the prospects are therefore bright, and brighter than those of many other opportunities.

This Company is not a promotors company, every dollar goes to enhance the value of the property and business and increase the capacity. There is nothing speculative in this proposition, the enterprises are undertaken for industrial purposes only to make profits by the operation and development of the business.

Considering that the enterprise is already upon an established basis with a certainty of profitable future expansion, we feel warranted in the assertion that this is an attractive proposition to investors whether large or small.

The price of these Bonds are one dollar each, and will be issued in any number wanted. With every purchaser of each five Bonds we will give as a bonus, one share of stock of the Company, the par value of which is five dollars per share, thus assuring interest on the investment, and with the stock which is bound to increase you will have for nothing. These Bonds will be issued for five years. Persons desiring to avail themselves of this opportunity want to send their remittance at once.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January, 25th, 1903.

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 11 years. I have tried several doctors and they done my no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 411 Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes: "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McFadyen, Riverdale, P.E.I., writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure, it has done grand work for me, I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. 50c per box or 6 boxes for $2.50.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $100 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

brought in on Monday the 20th of July one of the biggest gushers in Sour Lake. It is situated in the Wirt-Davis tract and has been producing oil continuously since it came in, the Spindletop Power Com- [illegible] taking the entire output from the well. Besides owning this [illegible] the Company owns two other valuable pieces of Oil Land at [illegible] Lake, where they have just let a contract for drilling a second [illegible] the gusher district. The Company has acquired a twelfth interest in 87 acres of land near Saratoga and a well will soon be drilled on this land, the indications are that fine gushers will be developed in this territory. The Company also owns property in Beaumont, Texas where there are two wells.

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tulloch, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Erwin D Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 106 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

New York, Oct. 24.—Indications of an unfavorable bank statement, some moderate selling by London and insistent rumors of financial trouble to develop at St. Louis are expected to result in somewhat lower prices to-day, and the professional element has taken a somewhat more bearish stand on the market, Amalgamated copper will continue the feature of interest and although it may be held up for a time, we expect it to sell considerably lower, and consider it a good sale on every little rally. We hear some rather bearish talk on Pennsylvania, New York Central and several of the industrial stocks, and any efforts to bring about improvement in the market will be utilized to sell stocks on. This morning news regarding the Eastern situation has developed no new feature and the alarmist reports are discredited. The best that can be expected for a time is a trader's market, in which stocks should be sold on any rallies of a point or more and bought on moderate decline. London market for American stocks was heavy and slightly lower, but without special feature.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—War talks keeps shorts in wheat rather nervous and on all little declines there is heavy buying. The winter wheat crop news is quite favorable. The arena is expected to show an increase. The country movement continues fair and the cash and export business continues of fair proportions. The market for corn is a professional affair. The pit interests are in control of the general situation in that they are working on both sides of the account and the general interest is pretty well divided. There is a better export inquiry, while the cash demand continues fair. The country, however, seems willing to sell at these prices, and naturally there is some talk that the crop in process of maturity will turn out much better than generally expected.

Liverpool — Close — Wheat dull, 1-8 higher. Corn dull, 1-4 lower.

Are Getting Frightened

London, Oct. 24—Heretofore the underwriters at Lloyds have taken an optimistic view of the situation in the Far East. Since yesterday, however, the insurance rates to the Far East covering all risks if war is declared within three months, have been doubled.

Crisis Delayed

London, Oct. 24— The Russian Viceroy of the Far East, Admiral Alexieff, is expected to go to St. Petersburg early in November, which may delay the expected crisis.

Conference Postponed

Yokohama, Oct. 24 —The conference between Baron De Rosen, Russian Minister, and Foreign Minister Komura has been postponed until after the conference of the elder statesmen of Japan, which is to take place tomorrow.

WANT STRIKE BREAKERS

Interborough Street Car Co Recruiting Motormen

New York, Oct. 23—As a precautionary measure, anticipating a possible strike by the motormen on the entire elevated and surface street car lines here, the management of the Interborough Street Railway Company, which controls all the lines here, have opened recruiting offices to secretly secure motormen in Toronto and all the principal cities of the country in which there are important street railway centers. Grand Chief Warren Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, with which organization the "L" motormen have affiliated, cannot take personal charge of the threatened strike, being in Kansas City, Kan. Mr. Ingraham, first assistant grand chief, is here this afternoon to take personal charge and direct the movements.

An inside carful of travellers was toiling up one of the long hills in County Wicklow, says Tit-Bits.

The driver leaped down from his seat in front and walked by the side of the horse. The poor beast toiled slowly and wearily, but the six inside were too busily engaged in conversation to notice how slowly the car progressed.

Presently the driver opened the door at the rear of the car and slammed it to again. The passengers started, but thought the driver was only assuring himself that the door was securely closed. Again the fellow opened the door and slammed it to again. The travellers turned around angrily, and asked why he disturbed them in that manner.

"Whist," whispered the fellow; "don't spake so loud—she'll overhear us."

"Who is she?"

"The mare. Spake low," he continued, putting his hand over his nose and mouth. "Shure, I'm desavin' the crayture? Every time she hears the door slammin' that way she thinks one of ye is gettin' down to walk up the hill, and that rises her sperrits"

The insiders took the hint.

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non assessable, the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 45 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore, There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100 foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Co. is to make some money. "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure-house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

A limited number of shares of this really first class proposition may be obtained on application to PETERBOROUGH BROKERAGE CO, Fiscal Agents, Peterborough, or J. J. BRANDON, Fenelon Falls; W. GALLON, Apsley; G. B. HILLIARD, Lakefield, or GEO. H. BROWN, Chemong

First Class Mining Proposition.

The Anaconda Gold Mining Co.

Home Office: 412 Merchants Loan and Trust Bldg.
135 Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.

This is one of the best propositions ever placed before the Canadian investor. The Company owns 660 acres in the celebrated Black Hills District, South Dakota, comprising 33 claims. The track is unquestionably on the great Homestake belt, being located directly between the wonderful Homestake mine and the Clover Leaf mine. Two shafts have already been sunk, the main one being down 154 feet, with capacity of going 1000 feet. The Company has also installed an Ingersoll-Sargeant air compressor and drills, 125 horse power boiler, steam pumps, and in fact everything needed for actual operation, with the exception of its stamp mills; which will be installed at once. The vein of gold-bearing quartz traversing the Company's property is very rich. Assays have run from $6 to $64.80 per ton.

The Company has a capital of 1,500,000 shares, divided into 750,000 preferred and 750,000 common, par value $1 per share, fully paid up and non-assessable. The treasury stock has been made preferred stock to the amount of 25 cents a share. Out of the first dividends 25 cents per share will be paid to the owners of this preferred stock before holders of common stock receive any share of the profits. After the 25 cents has been paid to the shareholders of preferred stock, then all alike share in the dividends. (This means nothing less than that the first investors in the enterprise will have all their money returned to them before any dividends are declared to the rank and file of investors.

A limited amount of Stock has been placed on the Canadian market. Full particulars and copy of prospectus may be obtained from MR. R. J. KIDD, or the undersigned Agent for Peterborough city

Graveyard Coughs and Colds

Cured Quickly by Catarrhozone

A cough or cold this season of the year paves the way for pneumonia or consumption. The best remedy is "Catarrhozone." It eases a cough in five minutes and colds cannot exist but a few hours where it is used. Mrs. H. L. Cammowith, residing at Glendive, Montana, was worried by a "graveyard" cough. In the following letter she tells how Catarrhozone cured her in one week;

"I had a bad cough for several months last fall that settled on my lungs. I was worried very much to think that nothing I used could shake it off, but reading in the Halifax "Presbyterian Witness" of the wonderful cures Catarrhozone was effecting, I decided to try it. The irritability and soreness was taken out of my throat in a few days, and in less than one week it entirely cured my cough.

"It is with great gratitude and pleasure that I recommend Catarrhozone. I am sure it will benefit and cure all who use it."

(Signed) Mrs. H. L. Cammowith.

The reason Catarrhozone always cures is that it goes right to the sore spot, which it heals and makes well quickly. It is antiseptic and destroys disease germs in every part of the system. For Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis, nothing compares with Catarrhozone. It is very simple to use, contains no injurious drugs, and is warranted perfectly safe to use. Catarrhozone Inhaler is suitable to use in a street car, theatre, church any place at any time. Complete outfit costs but $1.00 and is guaranteed to cure or your money back. Trial size, 25c., sold by druggists, or by mail, from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

They did not plead and their case will come up again tomorrow.

Laplante, Bert Hartley, Jos. Scully, a younger brother of the above mentioned Scully, William Collins, and Fred Collins and the above mentioned six. The two Collins and J. Scully were allowed to go upon promise of returning to court next Tuesday morning.

Two lads named Sidney Brewer and Thomas Menzies pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing candies and were allowed to go until Tuesday upon promise of returning to court on that day.

THE LATE DALTON ULLYOT

Passed Away on Saturday at the Age of 80 Years

The late Mr. Dalton Ullyot, who passed away on Saturday morning last, at his late residence, Brock street, was one of Peterborough's most esteemed citizens. He had been ailing for several years, and death was, therefore, not unexpected. He was 80 years of age.

Mr. Ullyot was born in Yorkshire in 1823, and came to Canada when a youth of 18 years. He resided for a time in Montreal, going from there to Port Hope, where he engaged in the milling business for some time. He afterwards moved to Fenelon Falls, where he carried on a general lumbering and saw mill business. He subsequently purchased the A. H. Campbell saw mill at Harwood. He removed to Peterborough, where he resided until his dath. While here he sold his business at Fenelon Falls to Messrs. J. D. Smith & Co., and engaged in extensive lumbering operations in the Georgian Bay district. The deceased was for some years a director of the Ontario Bank.

Mr. Ullyott was twice married, and is survived by a wife and five daughters, Mrs. J. W. Fitzgerald, Mrs. G. Gladman, of Parry Sound; Mrs. D. J. Lundy, Mrs. Geo. Rubidge, of town, and Mrs. H. Stapleton, of Toronto.

The funeral will take place from his late place of residence tomorrow at two o'clock, and proceed to Little Lake cemetery. It is requested that there be no flowers.

DOCTOR KNEW

Had Tried It Himself

The doctor who has tried Postum Food Coffee knows that it is an easy, certain, and pleasant way out of the coffee habit and all of the ills following and he prescribes it for his patients as did a physician of Prospertown, N. J., one of his patients says: "During the summer just past, I suffered terribly with a heavy feeling at the pit of my stomach and dizzy feelings in my head and then a blindness would come over my eyes so I would have to sit down. I would get so nervous I could hardly control my feelings.

"Finally I spoke to our family physician about it and he asked if I drank much coffee and mother told him that I did. He told me to immediately stop drinking coffee and drink Postum Food Coffee in its place as he and his family had used Postum and found it a powerful rebuilder and delicious food drink.

"I hesitated for a time, disliking the idea of having to give up my coffee but finally I got a package and found it to be all the Dr. said. Since drinking the Postum in place of coffee my dizziness, blindness and nervousness are all gone, my bowels are regular and I am again well and strong. That is a short statement of what Postum has done for me." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Look in each package for a copy of the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

OBITUARY

Very Sad Death of Miss Edith Hartley Russell

It is with the deepest sorrow we record the death of Miss Edith H. Russell, which sad event occurred on Friday evening, after an illness of about three weeks. The death of so bright and so promising a young lady, and one who was so well known and so generally beloved, has cast a gloom over the whole community. There are many tear-stained faces, especially among her playmates and school companions, who will sincerely mourn her demise. The deceased was sixteen years of age, and had spent the most of her life in Peterborough, living with her grandmother, Mrs. J. A. Hartley, 52 Murray street. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Russell, of Quebec.

Death at all times is sad, but where a young and promising life is cut short, it is particularly so. The deceased was a general favorite, her bright and ever pleasing manner won the hearts of all with whom she came in contact. It is needless to say the deepest sympathy is felt for the mother, father, grandmother and relatives.

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon, and was largely attended.

PETERBORO'S GREAT FUTURE

"The Man on the Street Interviews Mr. J. A. Culverwell

"The Man on the Street" called on Mr. J. Alex. Culverwell at his Toronto branch office this week, and the following statement was elicited. Mr. Culverwell said:

"Following up the lines of your kindly remarks in your last Saturday's talk in the Times, as to my efforts in advancing Peterborough's interest as a great manufacturing centre, I may say that I am not singular in my opinion, in regard to Peterborough becoming the 'Manchester of Canada.' There are many other Peterborough men who have its general interests equally at heart, and are making efforts especially towards attracting manufacturers to 'The Water-power City.'

"I particularly refer to our worthy mayor, Mr. Geo. M. Roger—one of the best and most creditable mayors Peterborough ever possessed, and whose name we hope will be handed down to posterity as the first mayor of the new 'City of Peterborough,' and not merely of the 'Largest town in Canada.'

"His efforts in co-operation with the broad-guaged Reeve of Ashburnham, towards the union of the two sister towns, must surely be appreciated by all progressive citizens.

"My idea of the best means of attracting new industries to Peterborough, is by telling the world of the great advantages we possess, and the way to do that is not by 'hiding our light under a bushel,' but by spending money in advertising broadcast our grand shipping facilities, cheap power and good geographical location.

"This work my company is doing, and doing alone and on a large and costly too—as is well known—and following up that work closely by correspondence and personal negotiations. Of course 'Rome was not built in a day.' I am determined to create a market for our water power.

"It goes without saying that we all appreciate the good work done by the press of Peterborough, and that we all encroach upon their philanthropic kindness.

"Other towns and cities have spent large sums of money advertising their advantages and reap great rewards. But what is Peterborough doing? If nothing, what is her excuse? Why should not all the taxpayers pay for and do their share in advancing its general interest? All taxpayers reap in some way or another.

"Let us hope the council will take up the matter seriously, and act quickly while the 'growing time is on.'

"Trade journals and Toronto newspapers have approached the council again and again, but have been repulsed until they actually speak of Peterborough's closeness.

"This surely should not be."

It looks as if a man's back is the center of strength when he is straining to lift or haul a heavy weight. But the center of strength is not the back, but the stomach. There's no strength in the back of a giant if he's starving. All strength is made from food, and food can only be converted into strength when it is perfectly digested and assimilated. When the stomach is diseased, the nutrition of food is lost and physical weakness follows.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It makes men strong and muscular, by enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of the food eaten.

"I suffered from a very short [illegible] sleep nor work. A [illegible] recommended your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I have taken three bottles and it has accomplished a permanent cure."

Thinks Peary will Reach the Pole

land, instead of heading directly for the pole over the sea.

"Where he will establish his station will be in a direct line only 300 miles from the pole. Sir Charles Nares wintered there in 1876 and made an attempt to cross the sea, but he was up against a bad season, as the ice mountains were high and treacherous and it was almost impossible to travel. Only a mile a day was possible and the plan was abandoned.

"It seems certain that if Peary has the luck to find the conditions as favorable as Nansen found them he will reach the pole without doubt, but if it is a season such as Nares found he will not go far.

"The success of the expedition really depends on two things, one of which Peary can control; the other he can't. The preparation, equipment and provision for the trip he can regulate, but the luck that is bound to enter into an undertaking of this nature is beyond his control.

"Some years the ice in the Arctic ocean is much worse to travel over than others. Contrary to the common notion, the ice is not very thick there, and it is liable to crack and leave tremendous fissures, or to come together in insurmountable mountains of ice.

"The tide in the Arctic ocean is strong and all those things have to be reckoned with in an ice trip over the sea. Allowing the ice to be twelve feet thick, this tremendous ice hay, as it were, is drifted hither and thither with the tide, and in the pushing and driving big cracks are made.

"The only way to imagine the traveling under these conditions is to study the ice bridge at Niagara and then fancy conditions a hundred times more hazardous. It is like imagining a town without any streets, in which the only way to get about is to climb over the tops of houses. Only in this case the houses are snow.

If Mr. Peary is fortunate enough to strike a year when the conditions are not too unfavorable, he ought to get to the pole, and he has the advantage of planning to stay over another year if the first summer is not a propitious one."

VARICOCELE NERVOUS DEBILITY CURED.

If you have transgressed against the laws of nature, you must suffer. Self abuse, later excesses and private diseases have wrecked thousands of promising lives. Treat with scientific physicians and be cured. Avoid quacks. E. A. Sidney, of Toledo, says: "At the age of 14, I learned a bad habit and at 19 contracted a serious disease. I treated with a dozen doctors, who all promised to cure me. They got my money and I still had the disease. I had given up hope when a friend advised me to consult Drs. K. & K., who had cured him. Without any confidence I called on them, and Dr. Kennedy agreed to cure me or no pay. After taking the New Method Treatment for six weeks I felt like a new man. The drains ceased, wormy veins disappeared, nerves grew stronger, hair stopped falling out, urine became clear and my sexual organs vitalized. I was entirely cured by Dr. Kennedy and recommend him from the bottom of my heart."

RUSSIA MAKES READY FOR WAR; TROOPS AND SUPPLIES FOR EAST

Outlines for an Aggressive Plan of Campaign

Says Japan Could Not Attack Russian Colossus

Moscow, Oct. 26.—The Russian apparently are satisfied with the frequent drafts of men and munitions from the home Governments for the far east. Russian financial and business circles, which are really interested, display apprehension, and are not sharing the optimism of the leading organs of the contingent. No one can shut his eyes and ignore the significance of Russia's feverish energy, the stream of reinforcements, trainloads of military stores, large additions to the staffs of the personnel of the Russian Pacific squadron, and the solemn adjurations of the commanding officers and church dignitaries to the troops about to embark for "service" in the far east, to "serve the Emperor at the first call with all their might, as worthy successors to the warriors who have freely poured out their life's blood for the 'Little Father' and his sublime heritage." Russia's present peace footing of infantry alone is, roughly, 1,100,000 men, of whom about 200,000 are either at present there or en route for the far east.

A BELLICOSE ARTICLE.

Berlin, Oct. 26.—The Cologne Gazette reproduces the following scarcely veiled menace, published by the Novykral, the bellicose organ of the Viceroy Alexieff: "Without effective support from a considerable number of British or American land troops Japanese could hardly attack the Russian colossus with any prospect of success. Russia was never so well prepared as now. If the pacific Czar were not adverse to all dramatic plans, it would not be a matter of impossibility at the present juncture to fight Japan with almost a certainty of success, and at the same time conduct a victorious campaign against India, while Germany and Austria would cover us in the west and against Turkey. The attitude of these powers is far more important than the attitude of France in the event of a war between Britain and Russia."

TURKISH MISRULE.

Paris, Oct. 26.—Speaking this afternoon at a meeting to protest against Turkish misrule in Armenia and Macedonia, Canon MacColl produced considerable effect by stating that the periodic massacres which had occurred during the last ten years were organized at Constantinople. His remark that Germany was the great author of the mischief in Turkey, and that Emperor William was nursing the Sultan for future purposes, like a cannibal fattening his victim for the spit, was greeted with loud cheers.

FAR EAST WAS CLOUDY.

To-day's news from the Far East is regarded as ominous in many quarters here. Russia may not intend to declare war against Japan, but as the news is presented to Englishmen, it seems that her agents are going to such lengths as will drive Japan to a challenge. In that case how would Great Britain stand? The Anglo-Japanese alliance, so far as the terms have been published, contemplates British intervention only when a third power is involved, but Russian agents may so far defy international pledges as to make British neutrality extremely difficult.

The Admirals of the British squadron in the Pacific, Chinese and Australian waters have been in conference under the direction of the Admiralty to devise plans of joint action in the far east in the event of necessity. The fact that Australia assented to her squadron leaving Australian waters to share in what ever operations shall be afoot, is significant. Australia's interest in the British policy in the far east marks her further commitment to imperialism.

Give Uncle Sam Bermuda

Hope for Canada

In this age of keen contention amongst nations for territory there is yet hope for Canada in the Alaskan boundary award. The Times would suggest that the matter may be arranged on a mutually satisfactory basis, by the exchange of the island of Bermuda, which lies 600 miles off Cape Hatteras, for a slice of territory on the western coast including the disputed district. It is true that Bermuda is only some 24 miles long, by twelve in width, and is not of much account commercially. But strategically it is worth untold gold. Were the island to fall into the hands of Germany, for instance, it would be a most serious matter for our neighbors across the border. The Times, therefore, suggests that a rearrangement of our Alaskan border be made with Bermuda as an offset for concessions to us in the Pacific.

A WARNING TO STATESMEN OF GREAT BRITAIN

Should Not Mistake the Attitude of Canadians --A Diplomatic Majuba.

London, Oct. 25.—A barrister, writing to The Sunday Special, says the strength of the American case before the Alaska Tribunal rested upon the negotiations, and the Canadians' upon the words of the treaty expressing the mind of the negotiators in 1825. A glance at the map shows greater plausibility for the British case, though something can be said for the other side. Lord Alverstone and his American colleagues hit upon a third course, for which the map gives little justification. One can hardly be surprised at Mr. Aylesworth's strong language.

WARNING TO STATESMEN.

A Canadian, writing to The Express, says: "Let not English statesmen deceive themselves regarding the attitude of the Canadian people as represented by the tone of the Canadian papers. The Alaska case is an infinitely better test of Canada's attitude towards the Mother-Land than her sentiment at the time of the South African war. The Anglo-Saxon over-seas has not lost the fighting blood of his ancestry, which Canadians would not hesitate to sacrifice to uphold their own on the continent of British North America." After declaring that American social claims, social prestige, immense wealth and adroit manipulation of men affected the verdict, and referring to Canada's demand for more power regarding treaty-making, the writer adds:—"The machinery binding the self-governing colonies to the Mother Land is antiquated, insufficient and absurd as a handloom compared to a new machine driven by electric power."

A DIPLOMATIC MAJUBA.

Edgar Wallace, The London Daily Mail's special correspondent in Canada wires from Winnipeg regarding the Alaska verdict that it is impossible to predict the result. The award puts the question of preferential tariffs in a new light. Britain must take a decided step to wipe out this unfortunate incident.

London, Oct. 27—There is no denying the widespread feeling of uneasiness provoked by the official and unofficial Canadian outburst of anger over the Alaska Boundary award. To-day's papers flame forth with headlines after this manner: "Injustice to Canada," "Forced to Accept a Packed Tribunal," and Englishmen of late years have had so many revelations of Ministerial ineptitude that in the absence of official denials they are half prepared to believe that Canada has been most badly treated both at Washington and in Downing Street.

Even such mild-mannered Imperial peace makers as the venerable Lord Strathcona are taking the same strain. Moreover, Mr. Chamberlain's friends are anxious to remind one that the Commission was formed when the Colonial Office was in the hands of that estimable country gentleman, Lord Onslow, Mr. Chamberlain being in South Africa, while the award came after Mr. Chamberlain had quitted the office.

You cannot, of course, get any Englishman to admit that the Lord Chief Justice is anything else than what the Spectator describes him to-day, namely "a man of honor and a conscientious jurist," but there stands the formal statement of the Canadian commissioners above their own signatures, in the Times, that Lord Alverstone first agreed with him that the Canadian contention regarding the Portland Canal must prevail and that Canada would be given the four islands named, that he also joined them in a memorandum to the same effect, read to the whole commisfour islands over to the United States, mission, and then, at the last moment, for no stated reason, handed two of the and, in the words of the Canadian commissioners, "wholely destroyed the strategic value to Canada of the remaining islands.

A CLEAR CHARGE.

Whether the islands are of such value or not, this is a clear charge of breach of faith, which the friends of Canada here advise is a justification, if proved, for a refusal to accept the award, leaving the British Ministers to explain as best they can.

Lord Alverstone has told an interviewer that he would not stop to refute such an allegation, but, as one reviewer says, "The circumstances are so grave and so full of possibilities of trouble that it is his bounden duty to refute it."

At the moment the affair has an ugly look and the new Colonial Secretary is a half sick man away elecof Canada's attitude towards the Mother-tioneering at Leamington, and the Cabinet is head over ears in the fiscal wranglings among themselves and their supporters.

Pekin, Oct. 27—Although the rumor that Russia has ordered the Japanese workmen at Port Arthur to evacuate has been ridiculed here, reports received from that place confirm it, and say that all preparations have been made for the despatch of a special train. Admiral Alexieff, the Russian Viceroy of the Far East, has arranged to go to St. Petersburg for the purpose of opposing all of the concessions demanded by Japan in the pending negotiations. While there is no signal tension, it is the generally accepted belief that war is unavoidable.

Private advices from high sources in Japan, which have just been received, state that all the army and navy war precautions of Japan have been finished. The occupation of Masampho, Corea, has been accomplished nominally by the presence of one or more warships. The practical occupation, which is expected to precipitate a national contest for the control of the seas, which is deemed of the first importance, has been planned for the winter. The Chinese Government regards the situation as being out of its hands. Prince Ching, head of the Foreign Office has not had even official cognizance of the abrogation between Russia and the powers. Several prominent Chinese officials do not conceal that they desire war between Japan and Russia, hoping that such a struggle would result in the downfall of Japan. Prince Ching called upon Minister Conger at the United States Legation yesterday to discuss the terms of the American-Chinese commercial treaty.

Paris, Oct. 26—The Matin says that the military authorities at Algeria have received proof that the Moroccan brigands who had such fierce encounters with the French troops acted under the direct inspiration of the Sultan of Morocco, and were on these two occasions commanded by the Sultan's own cousin.

The Government has decided to ask the Sultan of Morocco for explanations.

St. Louis, Oct. 27—"A new sun spot of totally different from the one that caused so much comment several days ago, has made its appearance on the face of the sun. Professor Irl. R. Hicks of this city declared today "It appeared on the east limb of the sun five days ago, just as the great sun spot was carried off the west. The tremendous glow, like an aurora borealis seen in the west and northwest horizon last night, was due to the continued perturbations of the sun. The sun is surcharged with electricity. If you watch the horizon for several nights you will discover a beautiful halo of northern lights that will continue until long after sunset."

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 27—F. M. Wolf who lives near Ridgeville and has been dumb for more than two years, is now able to carry on a conversation as a result of chewing tobacco for several hours.

Two years ago last June Wolf was struck by lightning while sitting in the door of his farmhouse. From that time until last Sunday he had not been able to utter a sound. Some of the best specialists in the state are said to have been consulted and to have expressed the opinion that Wolf was afflicted with permanent paralysis of the vocal organs.

Wolf reports that he dreamed last Tuesday night that if he took a chew of tobacco he would be able to speak again. A few hours after he had taken the tobacco Sunday he was able to make slight vocal sounds. He continued chewing and he was soon able to talk.

PROTECTION WILL RUIN

Free Food Leagues Issue Manifesto to Mr. Chamberlain

Wyndham Declares He is Prepared to Fight for Free Trade

London, Oct. 26.—At a meeting, held last night in Westminster, of the Parliamentary Committee of the Unionist Free Food Leagues, the Duke of Devonshire was unanimously elected president of the league, and Lord Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer in the second administration of Lord Salisbury; Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, who occupied the same office from 1895 to 1902; and C. T. Ritchie, who resigned as Chancellor of the Exchequer this fall, were elected vice-presidents.

The meeting approved the issue of a manifesto, setting forth the views of the league. Briefly, this manifesto expresses the willingness of the league to consider in a friendly and loyal spirit any definite plan the Premier may submit to Parliament. It criticizes adversely Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's proposals and declares they would impose all the disadvantages of the Imperial Zollverein with none of its gains, and tend to promote the disintegration rather than the union of the Empire, while leading inevitably to a policy of protection.

DID NOT LIKE IDEA.

Victor Cavendish, heir to the Duke of Devonshire, who recently was appointed Financial Secretary to the Treasury, speaking at Derby last night, made some interesting revelations. He said he also had written a letter resigning his post as treasurer of King Edward's household, but he "did not mail it." He explained that he did not like the idea of retaliation, but now he believed it was necessary to defend British trade.

Chief Irish Secretary Wyndham, whose declaration on the fiscal question has been awaited with considerable interest, which has not been diminished by his successful Land bill fight, spoke at Dover last night. He announced himself as thoroughly in accord with Premier Balfour and Mr. Jos. Chamberlain in fiscal matters, and he paid a tribute to the former Colonial Secretary as "the man who has seen the lack of wisdom of the nation entering the commercial lists without arms and without armor."

STILL OF THE PARTY.

The meeting was enthusiastic, although the mention of Mr. Chamberlain provoked some interruption.

Replying to the disturbers, Mr. Wyndham declared that Mr. Chamberlain was still of the party, if not of the Government; that he had gone ahead to reconnoitre the path for the Unionist army, and that he had resigned in order not to commit the Unionists to follow him unless they were convinced of the wisdom of his course.

Mr. Wyndham said that American tariff of 1890 was the greatest protectionist tariff ever introduced in the history of the world, and that its results refuted the declaration that protection killed the industry and the energy of a country. This has also been proved, he continued, by recent history in France and Germany. In conclusion, Mr. Wyndham said he was not a protectionist, but a champion of free trade; he was willing to fight for it, but he declared that to discard the armor of retaliation was to enter the contest in a nightgown.

In London, England, where large works are in progress for the installation of electricity, under the management of Americans, there is a good deal of friction between them and the British workmen, who are often union-ridden. We hear of one case in point. The union rate of pay for bricklayers is 21 cents an hour, with a working day of nine hours. The managers of the Westinghouse Company, at Neasden, paid the bricklayers 22 cents an hour but stipulated that the men should start work immediately when the whistle blew. The representative of the union insisted that the men must remain at the bottom of the ladder until the whistle blew, and that when it had finished blowing they should ascend the ladder to where the work was to be done. It was a matter of three minutes, but as the first rule of the managers to get the work done promptly, they refused to change the rule.

The union's representative, however, insisted on the old way, and now the men have returned to work under the old conditions, getting a cent less an hour, and killing time at the bottom of the ladder until the signal is sounded. The unions are also incensed at the system of bonuses to men doing especially good work. A pretty pass, indeed, for the unions to arrive at—the unions, whose very raison d'etre was to "protect" labor.

ELECTRICITY ON THE FARM

There are Great Possibilities in Its Use

The end man at the minstrel show who informed Mr. Johnsing that farmer Brown had bought a dynamo which he was going to use to shock his corn, really made a practical suggestion. The farmer, it is true, can't use electricity to shock his corn, but may find it useful in many other ways. According to a writer in the Engineering Magazine, the possibilities in the use of electricity in farming are very great. He says in part:

"It has been clearly shown, for example, that electricity, far from injuring vegetation, as had been alleged, actually aids its development and under certain conditions exerts upon it an influence analogous to that of electro-therapy upon the human system. Beyond this, there are many applications of electricity to be made on the farm. It will be enough for the present to cite, as the as the most important: First, the lighting of the fields for night work, and the lighting of the farm house and its outbuildings. Second, telegraphic and telephonic communication between farms minimizing the disastrous effects of isolation in sparsely settled districts like certain parts of South America, the Congo, etc. Third, the supply of a motive power highly adapted to agriculture—that is to say, economical, devisible into small units, easy of transmission, and demanding little oversight. Trolley lines to the markets would relieve the the overworked horse."

WAR CLOUDS IN EAST

Conflict Between Russia and Japan is Certain

Pekin Oct. 26.—Although the rumor that Russia has ordered the Japanese workmen of Port Arthur to evacuate has been ridiculed here, reports received from that place confirm the statement and say that all preparations have been made for the despatch of a special train.

Admiral Alexieff, the Russian Viceroy of the Far East, has arranged to go to St. Petersburg for the purpose of opposing all of the concessions demanded by Japan in the pending negotiations. While there is no signal tension, it is the generally accepted belief that war is unavoidable. Private advices from high sources in Japan, which have just been received, state that all the army and navy war preparations of Japan have been finished.

WARSHIPS PRESENT.

The occupation of Masampho, Corea, has been accomplished nominally by the presence of one or more warships. The practical occupation, which is expected to precipitate a naval contest for the control of the seas, which is deemed of the first importance, has been planned for the winter. The Chinese Government regards the situation as being out of its hands. Prince Ching, head of the Foreign Office, has had not even official cognizance of the abrogation of the Manchurian convention between Russia and the powers. Several prominent Chinese officials do not conceal that they desire war between Japan and Russia, hoping that such a struggle would result in Japan's downfall.

Great Britain Asks For Freedom for Congo Slaves ThE Powers should Act

Britain Addresses a Forcible Dispatch to the Treaty of Berlin Powers.

London, Oct. 26.—The British Foreign Office has issued a despatch in regard to the ill-treatment of natives and the existence of trade monopolies in the Congo State to the powers which participated in the Treaty of Berlin under which the Congo Free State was constituted.

Taking into consideration the diplomatic language in which such documents are usually couched this despatch must be described as very forcible.

"It was alleged that the object of the Congo Administration was not so much to care for the government of the natives as for the collection of revenue. This object was pursued by means of a system of forced labor differing only in name from slavery. The demands upon each village were exacted with a strictness that constantly degenerated into great cruelty, and the men composing the armed force of the State were recruited from the most warlike of the savage tribes, who often terrorized their own officers, maltreated the natives, and had no fear of punishment."

ACTUAL SLAVERY.

It declares that the method of obtaining laborers was similar to that formerly applied to obtain slaves. Force was as much required not to take natives to a place of service as was formerly necessary to convey captured slaves.

The despatch quotes the British consul at Boma and also the British officers in territory adjacent to the Congo Free State to show that "notwithstanding the obligations which were accepted under the Berlin treaty no attemp at any administration for the natives has been made, and the officers of the Government are devoting all their energy to the collection of revenue.

"Neighborhoods which were populous a few years ago are now uninhabited, the natives averring that they have been driven from their homes by tyranny and exactions."

POWERS SHOULD ACT.

The despatch then expresses the deep conviction of England that the charges are founded on truth. For this reason his Majesty's Government is of the opinion that it is incumbent upon the powers who were parties to the Berlin treaty to confer and consider whether the Congo Free State has fulfilled its obligations and, if not, to secure the carrying out of the same. The despatch asks for suggestions which might contribute a subject for reference to The Hague arbitration tribunal.

It also draws attention to the action of the Congo Free State in establishing a trade monopoly and restricting trade, in direct contravention to the principle of the open door provided for in the Berlin treaty.

THE MODUS VIVENDI.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 26.—It is thought probable in official circles here that Canada, owing to the dissatisfaction caused by the result of the Alaska boundary arbitration, will denounce the modus vivendi respecting the Atlantic fisheries at the close of the present season. The effect of this step, if taken, will be to deprive American fishermen of the right to enter Canadian waters to tranship their catches, hire crews, or purchase bait. It is thought that Canada will invite Newfoundland to join in this policy because of the inaction of the American Government on the Bond-Hay treaty.

LORD STRATHCONA DEFENDS SIR WILFRID.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is Not Disloyal in Asking That Canada Be Given Treaty Rights

London, Oct. 26.—Lord Strathcona has taken up the cudgel in defence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's loyalty. He says that Sir Wilfrid's utterances in the Canadian House of Commons when he spoke of Canada wishing the right to make her own treaties was very moderate considering the circumstances of the case. Canada, he said, had received a deep disappointment in the result of the Alaska award, and the disappointment would not be readily forgotten. Nothing which the Canadian Premier had said could justify the inference that Sir Wilfrid Laurier desired to sever Canada's connection with the Mother Country. Lord Strathcona added, "It is impossible to understand why the boundary line through Portland Channel, which had originally been agreed upon by the six Commissioners, by which the four islands would have gone to Canada, has been departed from in the final award."

INJUSTICE TO CANADA.

New York, Oct. 26.—The Evening Post had an interesting despatch from its London correspondent, in which, in part, he says: "There is no denying the widespread feeling of uneasiness provoked by the official and unofficial Canadian outburst of anger over the Alaska boundary award. Today's papers flame forth with headlines after this manner: "Injustice to Canada," "Forced to Accept a Packed Tribunal," and Englishmen have of late years had so many revelations of Ministerial ineptitude that, in the absence of official denials, they are half prepared to believe that Canada has been most badly treated, both at Washington and Downing street. Even such mild-mannered Imperial peacemakers as the venerable Lord Strathcona talk in the same strain. Moreover, Mr. Chamberlain's friends are anxious to remind one that the commission was formed when the Colonial Office was in the hands of that estimable country gentleman, Lord Onslow, Mr. Chamberlain being in South Africa, while the award came after Mr. Chamberlain had quitted the office.

"You cannot, of course, get any Englishman to admit that the Lord Chief Justice is anything else than what the Spectator describes him today, namely, a man of honor and a conscientious jurist, but there stands the formal detailed charge of the Canadian Commissioners above their own signatures in the Times, that Lord Alverstone first agreed with them that the Canadian contentions regarding the Portland Canal must prevail, and that Canada would be given the four islands named, that he also joined them in a memorandum to the same effect, read to the whole Commission, and then, at the last moment, for no and then, at the last moment, for no stated reason, handed two of the four islands over to the United States, and, in the words of the Canadian Commissioners, wholly destroyed the strategic value to Canada of the remaining islands. Whether the islands are of such value or not, there is a clear charge of breach of faith, which the friends of Canada here advise is a justification, if proved, for a refusal to accept the award, leaving the British Ministers to explain as best they can. Lord Alverstone has told an interviewer that he will not stoop to refute such an allegation, but, as one review says, 'the circumstances are so grave and so full of possibilities of trouble that it is his bounden duty to refute it.'"

New York, Oct 26.—Mr. C. P. Anderson, one of the counsel for the United States before the Alaska Tribunal, was a passenger on the New York, which arrived yesterday. He said in part: "I was surprised at the little interest in the affair manifested by the English people and the English papers."

Weather Notes

Moderate winds, fair and quite cool.

THE MAD MULLAH WAS CLOSELY CORNERED.

Made a Desperate Attempt to Capture Sea Point for Supplies But was Repulsed

Rome, Oct. 26.—The Government has received the following information concerning an engagement between the Italian cruiser Lombardia and forces of the Mad Mullah, near Illig, in Italian Somaliland.

"As owing to the close watch kept on the Somaliland coast by British and Italian ships the Mad Mullah was unable to get arms and ammunition by sea as previously, he decided to make a desperate attempt to take possession of a point on the coast with 800 men, who on the 11th instant attacked the Italian boats and killed several men.

The following day the Lombardia bombarded the Mullah's position and obliged his followers to retire."

A Great Meeting Promised

London, Oct. 26—Mr. Chamberlain's meeting at Liverpool today will show the largest gathering of members of Parliament ever seen in that city. Most of the Lancashire and Cheshire Unionist representatives have accepted invitations to be present, and sixty thousand application for tickets have been received. A solid silver casket will be presented to Mr. Chamberlain and also a vellum address, illuminated with the arms of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

Bandits Hold Town

Newburg, Ore., Oct. 26.—For two hours this morning this place was under control of a gang of bandits whose object was to blow up the building of the Bank of Newburg and plunder the vault. Though several charges of dynamite were exploded, the steel vault failed to give way and the bandits departed on horseback toward Portland. The vault contained probably $30,000. The building was wrecked.

READJUSTMENT

There are signs that "the rich's man's panic" is almost over, and now the question is, what will come next? Some have said, and are still saying, that the antics in Wall street wont hurt the rest of the country, but the best opinion is that those antics have been signs of a condition of things which is more general than the optimists think. The New York Journal of Commerce is not an optimist just now, and its idea of the situation is worth attention. The boom of the last three years was not confined, it is contended to any one locality. It was general. The Wall street promoters only shared in the prevailing spirit of the time. Prices were advancing everywhere because the demand for products exceeded the supply. This led to large hopes, and the promoters devised means of spreading expected profits over a great volume of corporate securities. Prices were pushed up all round. Labor and materials, as well as stocks, rose to excessive heights, from the point of view of the consumer. Wages and wares reached a level that could not be maintained. The result was to check consumption and relax the demand for goods upon which the promoters had counted. Intending builders found building too expensive, and canceled their contracts. The average consumer was similarly effected. Manufacturers in turn were forced to shorten sail and discharge employes. "In spite of much that is healthy in existing conditions," says the Journal, "there is a readjustment going on which is not likely to stop until prices and wages—the cost of production and distribution — are brought down to a normal level again."

This is a sensible view of the situation, much more sensible than the notion that the great losses inflicted all over the country by Wall street are not going to be felt all over the country.

NEW PENSION SCHEME

The teachers of the province, through the special deputation, have been laying their ideas before the government in regard to a superannuated pension scheme. The utility of such a thing is very doubtful, and some time will be spent in considering its details.

The old superannuation scheme was so defective that, after a trial of many years, it was abandoned. Now something better is proposed. It is, in essence, that each teacher, after twenty-five years' service, be given a retiring allowance of at least nine per cent. upon each year's salary with interest added at the rate of 3 1-2 per cent. Provision is made for the payment of certain benefits to the teachers who for good reason leave the profession before the limit of twenty-five years, and also for the payment of benefits to the heirs of deceased teachers.

The fund from which annuities are paid will be formed from the annual assessment of teachers, (three per cent. of their salaries), which shall be supplemented by equal sums from the government and the school boards. The teachers are willing. The proposal is theirs. The government may concur, and so be a party to the arrangement. The school boards should be consulted in order that the demand upon them may not be regarded as an imposition.

AN AWFUL YANKEE THREAT

A Scotch journalist who had come to America to ascertain the trend of opinion in Canada and the United States with reference to Chamberlain's tariff proposals, got off at Chicago during his tour, for the purpose of getting in touch with some Western Yankees who are recognized authorities in the wheat world. As a result of this visit the Dundee editor has gone home shivering with fear. The Chicagoans told him that if the British Government gave a preference to Canadian wheat the act would drive the producers of the Western States into other lines and that would mean ever decreasing crops of wheat and higher prices for food in England and Scotland! And the dear old gentleman believed every word that La Salle street jollier told him. He is now telling his Scotch friends that Chamberlain's campaign will lead to such desperate measures in the United States that every breakfast table in Scotland will be directly affected by the Mississippi Valley rebellion against the right of the Britisher, to make his own tariffs.

And that same valley, bear in mind, is overwhelmingly protectionist in sentiment. It believes in Protection because that policy has given it hundreds of flourishing manufacturing towns and cities, while it also heartily approves the British Liberal's stand on the fiscal question. The United Kingdom has been the chief prop of the Mississippi Valley —its best customer. It has been repaid for the patronage extended by a series of political agitations that had for their object the closing of the United States markets to the products of British workshops. And now that light is breaking in upon the British electors, whose Government have gone in for Tariff reform, the Chicago mouthpieces of the Mississippi Valley wheat grower threaten some Dreadful Reprisals! It's all very funny; and the strangest part of it all is to find an eminent Scotch journalist seriously accepting the manufactured conclusions of the Chicago dealers as business statements bearing every evidence of honorable contention.

NO HOPE FOR THEM

The outcome of the Alaska boundary business will not help the annexationists, if there are still any in Canada, says the Hamilton Spectator. However much the action of the British commissioners may be critised, the Canadians cannot forget that the American commissioners went into the conference with their minds made up to capture the piece of Canada in dispute. Canadians know that the American commissioners dared not do anything to peril the administration that appointed them; that the least recession of one of them from the line claimed by the United States would result in the defeat of President Roosevelt when he asks for his second term, and endanger the chances of the whole Republican party. And Canadians will prefer to belong to an empire in which a mistake is sometimes made to a country run on the American principle. If the outcome of the business temporarily diminishes the Canadian's respect for British institutions, it certainly will not increase his admiration for American institutions. Canada remains British—loyally and solidly British.

STUBBORN UNIONISM

In London, England, where large works are in progress for the installation of electricity, under the management of Americans, there is a good deal of friction between them and the British workmen, who are often union-ridden. We hear of one case in point. The union rate of pay for bricklayers is 21 cents an hour, with a working day of nine hours. The managers of the Westinghouse Company, at Neasden, paid the bricklayers 22 cents an hour but stipulated that the men should start work immediately when the whistle blew. The representative of the union insisted that the men must remain at the bottom of the ladder until the whistle blew, and that when it had finished blowing they should ascend the ladder to where the work was to be done. It was a matter of three minutes, but as the first rule of the managers to get the work done promptly, they refused to change the rule.

The union's representative, however, insisted on the old way, and now the men have returned to work under the old conditions, getting a cent less an hour, and killing time at the bottom of the ladder until the signal is sounded. The unions are also incensed at the system of bonuses to men doing especially good work. A pretty pass, indeed, for the unions to arrive at—the unions, whose very raison d'etre was to "protect" labor.

WILL U. S. SENATE RATIFY TREATY?

Alaskan Boundary Decision Must be Agreed to

New York, Oct. 22.—The Sun says that the decision reached by four of the six members of the Alaskan Boundary Commission would be satisfactory to Canadians. Not only do they loose the towns of Dyea and Skagway, which they claimed, but they must renounce the hope of free access to the Pacific at any point along the Alaskan coast from Mount St. Elias in the north-west to Portland Canal in the south-east. On the other hand, they have gained something of substantial value from a strategic point of view, for Pearse and Wales Islands, which lie at the mouth of Portland Canal, command not only Port Simpson, which is expected to be the western terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, but also the neighboring harbor, from which the British Columbia, Northern, and Mackenzie Valley Railway is to run through Canadian territory to Dawson City. The importance of the right to occupy and fortify the islands named will not be underrated by those who are alive to the commercial possibilities of the projected railways mentioned.

It is, of course, understood that the decision reached by a majority of the Alaska Boundary Commissioners is not final. They have simply laid down general principles which are to be followed by the Americans and British engineers who will be employed for the purpose of making a joint survey and marking the boundary. Even these principles will not have been definitely settled until they have been embodied in a treaty signed and ratified by Great Britain and the United States. It is conceivable, though most improbable, that the United States Senate might refuse to sanction the concession of Pearse and Wales Islands to Canada.

Aside from its territorial and strategic consequences, the decision of the Alaska Boundary Commission will have a moral result that is likely to exercise a momentous influence in the future relations of the British and American peoples. Instead of being a blow to arbitration, as it is strangely pronounced by the London Daily Mail, the decision is likely to cause a renewal of the attempt to arrange an arbitration treaty between Great Britain and the United States like that which was negotiated during Mr. McKinley's first Administration, but which then failed of ratification in our Senate by a few votes. That treaty provided, it will be remembered, that controversies of certain designated kinds between the signatories should be referred to an international tribunal, half of whose members should be judges of the United States Supreme Court and the other half occupants of high judicial posts in Great Britain. The Senators who successfully opposed the ratification of the treaty were actuated by the history of our relations with Great Britain, that not even on the bench could a British subject be found who would not persist in upholding the supposed interests of his country, no matter how cogent might be the appeals to his sense of justice or of equity.

By his impartial and high-minded course Lord Alverstone has refuted the assumption on which was based the principal objection to the former arbitration treaty.

PARKS IS AGAIN INDICTED

New York Walking Delegate Likely to Face Long Sentence

New York, Oct. 24.—Many witnesses appeared before the grand jury against walking labor delegates who have levied blackmail in connection with strikes. One indictment was ordered to-day and others are to follow, in the near future. The indictment ordered, it was reported, is against Sam Parks, the convict walking delegate of the Housesmiths' and Bridgemen's union. Parks is charged with perjury and upon conviction may be sent to state prison for twenty years.

District Attorney Jerome will ask that a bench warrant be issued and Parks will be arraigned on Wednesday for pleading. It is said that the district attorney intends to put Parks on trial on the perjury charge as soon as he has disposed of the case charging him with blackmailing Contractor Schwidt of the Tiffany Studio building out of $500. For this offense Parks will be put on trial. Parks is now out on $15,000 bail.

WAR CLOUDS IN EAST

Conflict Between Russia and Japan is Certain

Pekin Oct. 21.—Although the rumor that Russia has ordered the Japanese workmen of Port Arthur to evacuate has been ridiculed here, reports received from that place confirm the statement and say that all preparations have been made for the despatch of a special train.

Admiral Alexieff, the Russian Viceroy of the Far East, has arranged to go to St. Petersburg for the purpose of opposing all of the concessions demanded by Japan in the pending negotiations. While there is no signal tension, it is the generally accepted belief that war is unavoidable. Private advices from high sources in Japan, which have just been received, state that all the army and navy war preparations of Japan have been finished.

WARSHIPS PRESENT.

The occupation of Masampho, Corea, has been accomplished nominally by the presence of one or more warships. The practical occupation, which is expected to precipitate a naval contest for the control of the seas, which is deemed of the first importance, has been planned for the winter. The Chinese Government regards the situation as being out of its hands. Prince Ching, head of the Foreign Office has had not even official cognizance of the abrogation of the Manchurian convention between Russia and the powers. Several prominent Chinese officials do not conceal that they desire war between Japan and Russia, hoping that such a struggle would result in Japan's downfall.

A SMUGGLER GANG

Canadians Smuggle Chinamen and Opium into United States

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 23— Jack Lynch, who was arrested here on Monday with three Chinamen, whom it is alleged he was trying to smuggle across the border, has made a written confession, according to the officers, telling the story of an organization which had for its purpose the smuggling of Orientals and opium into the United States. He tells of a Chinaman in Toronto who is one of the gang, and says there are several people in the Canadian "Soo" engaged in the tarffic.

Lynch says he has been in the business for years, most of the time in Buffalo, and that the organization of which he is but a tool has been smuggling Chinese, opium, and all kinds of forbidden Oriental goods into the United States. Nearly all are Canadians or Canadian citizens.

Bandits Hold Town

Newburg, Ore., Oct. 26.—For two hours this morning this place was under control of a gang of bandits whose object was to blow up the building of the Bank of Newburg and plunder the vault. Though several charges of dynamite were exploded, the steel vault failed to give way and the bandits departed on horseback toward Portland. The vault contained probably $20,000. The building was wrecked.

Womanly Troubles

SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED TO UNDERMINE HEALTH AND BEAUTY, BUT SHOULD BE TREATED AT ONCE BY FERROZONE

It is impossible to go into details on this subject, but the experience of many a poor woman who is crippled for life, just because she didn't use a good remedy in time, should be a warning to others.

When the first stages of womanhood appear in a young girl, a great deal depends upon getting her over this critical stage, so that in years to come she will not develop green sickness or consumption.

As soon as she complains of flushed face, headache, bearing down feelings, give her at once a course of Ferrozone treatment which will carry her past the crisis.

In the adult woman if any irregularities occur, Ferrozone will be found a remedy of remarkable potency and power.

Ferrozone is the ideal regulator for the monthly period and causes all organs of the body to perform their work properly, and at just the expected time.

It purifies the blood, tones up the nerves and vital energies. The stomach is strengthened, and digestive and assimilative processes are improved by the good work of Ferrozone. It regulates the bowels, cures constipation, and piles, and replaces disease and decay by health and strength.

There is nothing better for the complexion than Ferrozone. It removes the dark circles from under the eyes, removes and cures all manner of skin eruptions, gives brightness and brilliancy to the eyes, a rosy tint to the cheeks, whitens the teeth and develops a well rounded plump and handsome form.

Ferrozone is the ladies' favorite, and should find a place in every household. It is prepared in the form of a chocolate coated tablet, convenient and pleasant to take. Price per box 50c. or three boxes for $1.25. Sold by all druggists, or by mail from N.C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house or sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

Mr. Edison's Ideas on Radium.

Thomas A. Edison has evolved and announced a theory which he believes solves the problem that has been puzzling scientists ever since the discovery made by Madame Curie of the peculiar properties of radium and the kindred substances uranium and thorium. The phenomenon presented by these substances, as is generally known, is their apparent property of giving off actinic rays of peculiar chemical properties, somewhat similar to the Roentgen rays, without any apparent loss of energy or bulk. Based on these observed phenomena several new theories of matter have been put forward, all of which accept as a fact the apparent origin of the energy within the substances themselves.

Mr. Edison's theory eliminates this contradiction of accepted natural laws, and indicates the possibility that the energy emitted by radium is merely reflected, as it were, from some unknown source.

"I have made extensive experiments with the Roentgen ray and with 'radium,'" said Mr. Edison to a representative of "Harper's Weekly," "and have come to the conclusion that these new substances are not the sources of energy, but are rendered fluorescent by the action of some hitherto undetected ether vibration or ray. Just as the Roentgen ray and the Herzian wave remained undreamed of for centuries after the phenomena of sound, light and heat were well understood, so it is not only possible but extremely probable that there are other rays in the immense gamut from sound to ultra-violet which we have not yet discovered. In my own experiments I have found that the ordinary electric arc when raised to an extremely high temperature gives off a ray which renders oxalate of lithium highly fluorescent. In the same way the Roentgen ray renders platinum-baryum-cyanide, tungstate of calcium, and cupro-cyanide of potassium highly fluorescent—that is, the X-ray sets up in these substances a condition of activity which results in the emission from them of actinic rays and a small amount of heat.

"My theory of radio-activity is that the rays which the new elements emit are set up in the same way, the substances being rendered fluorescent by some form of ether vibration which is undoubtedly all-pervading, but has not yet been isolated or measured, and which may have some extra-planetary origin. To accept any other theory is to declare one's belief in perpetual motion, in getting something for nothing.

"It is not at all strange that only two or three substances have yet been found which exhibit this phenomenon, as there are only three substances known which are rendered fluorescent by the Roentgen ray. It is a peculiar coincidence, moreover, that the only one of the known fluorescent substances that is ever found in its natural state, tungstate of calcium, is always more or less closely associated with pitchblende, from which all the radium so far made has been extracted.

"I believe this theory is capable of proof, but I shall be content to let someone else prove it. I am through for all time with experiments in radio-activity. Two of my assistants have been maimed for life by their close association with the Roentgen rays, and I myself have one eye badly out of focus and am suffering from severe stomach disturbances from the same cause. The new darkroom laboratory which I have just completed for such experiments will remain unused or be converted to some other use."

Something New in Hotels.

To whom it may concern: We beg leave to call your attention to the following novel features of the unrivaled up-to-date society hotel, which the undersigned propose to build, if sufficient encouragement is forthcoming:

The architecture will be a combination of Queen Anne, Gothic, Moorish, and several extinct styles, the purpose being to secure adequate corners for convenient exclusive gossip; also, as far as possible, giving a private entrance to each guest. All rooms will face front. This arrangement will prove a convenience to young people in the evening, particularly as the management guarantees that the electric light connections will be out of order at least twice a week.

Each room will be furnished with our especially patented "vitalometer," supplying sea air or mountain air of any altitude on demand. If desired, the rooms will be fitted with movable scenery painted to order by two Royal Academicians to be especially imported for the purpose.

The dividing walls of the rooms will be of papier-mache, and sounding-boards will be introduced when requested by hard-hearing neighbors.

Electric calls in every room will connect with clergymen of all denominations, and guests will press the button should they require their services day or night. Discreet witnesses supplied on application.

Chinese, French, Italian and German chefs will have charge of the cuisine on alternate days, thus ensuring a genuine international dyspepsia.

Our bell-boys will be mutes, our chambermaids will be blind, our coachmen will be deaf, telephone operators will be discharged twice daily, and every other effort will be made to secure privacy.

Our mosquitoes will be hand-fed with Agamomermis Culicus. These and other undesirable insects will not be permitted on the premises.

A special chamber will be fitted with Gatling guns, electrocution chairs, and other suicidal conveniences.

Arrangements will be made for a satisfactory time-table, and affidavits that trains left ahead of schedule time will be issued to married men on payment of the notary fee.

Rooms may be reserved now. Address all communications to the Up-to-Date Hotel Company.—"Town Topics."

For Love's Sake.

A Budapest paper reports another romance of the Austrian Imperial family. The Archduke Eugene, brother of the Queen Regent of Spain, it says, has fallen in love with the pretty daughter of a petty tradesman, and has resolved to renounce his title and birthright and marry her. Archduke Eugene is thirty-nine, has the rank of a general, and commands an army corps in the Tyrol. He is of gigantic stature, is extremely handsome, and is frequently seen in the streets of Vienna, where his free and easy manners have made him a popular favorite.

The sagacious wife watches her husband's angry efforts to find the collar button that has rolled beneath the bureau.

"I should think," she says, "that you would have two collar buttons."

"You should!" he snorts, reaching under the bureau for the fiftieth time and rasping his hand along the floor. "It takes a woman to figure out some way to double a man's troubles!"—New York Herald.

"Predigested" Literature.

In a recent issue of the "Booklovers Magazine" the novelist Frank H. Spearman enters a plea for the "art of skipping." It is not too much to say, he affirms, that "the whole body of literature, as we know it, stands for no art so much as that of skipping. The forgotten, the lost, the buried tomes, represent what the world has skipped." He continues:

"The trouble with our dutiful American book-lover is that he feels a question of conscience in skipping. No scruple could be more strained. Is not every book provided for his recreation of value largely in proportion to the author's own mastery of the art of skipping? Every book that charms its reader does so not alone by what it provides; it charms by what it omits.

"Let the book-lover cultivate the art of skipping. It is an art, and it may be learned, mastered even, by the average reader. Follow your own instinct in it; nothing in the art of skipping is so sure as your own instinct. Read while your book holds you. The book-lover offers himself a willing victim to his author. 'Here,' he says in effect, 'is my attention. If you can hold it, you are welcome to it. I rather hope you can hold it.' The battle is on. Does your interest lag? A long paragraph stares at you? Take the first sentence and jump straight to the last. Is the subject still the same? Go ahead. Has the subject changed? Dip into the middle of the paragraph. A glance gives you the connection and again you are away at a canter; before you know it you are reading in lines and paragraphs instead of in words and sentences.

"Then comes something you want—every word of it. You read contentedly on till an inward monitor stirs and, like a master, you resume the art; one glance, one page. If you go too far, as you easily may, retrace. It is a pleasure to be compelled by your author to do so; but, above all, follow your instinct, the instinct of selection, the first and greatest of natural instincts—and soon you will be looking for something to read. Moreover, you will feel after the exercise of this instinct the beginning of your own conclusions on literature and life. Selection makes one think. The book-lover who can select for his own needs out of what has been provided for all is not far from being already a capable critic. Taste many books; hold fast to those that your instinct approves."

The Springfield "Republican" considers this very bad advice, and devotes nearly two columns to a rebuttal of Mr. Spearman's argument on behalf of "predigested" literature. It says, in part:

"How many readers there are who read after this lazy fashion, and how many writers there are who feel compelled to cater to their laziness. The question which the average novelist anxiously asks himself is not, 'Is this good art?' but 'Is this easy reading?' Does the story get well under way in the first chapter? Is everything such clear sailing that absolutely no mental effort is required? Is everything cut out in advance which the average reader, for whom the average novelist writes, might be tempted to skip?

"If the average novelist fails in his estimate of the mental grasp of the average reader, he has the average publisher at his elbow to help him with friendly advice and commercial experience, cutting out descriptions, abridging conversations, excising digressions, getting rid, in short, of everything that might tax in ever so little this precious, coddled faculty of attention. The book must be prepared beforehand like a predigested food; nothing must be left for the reader to do but kindly to allow his eyes to rest for a certain number of minutes or hours on the printed page, after which the contents are supposed to be absorbed. If at any point a bad symptom appears, such as a tendency to wander, there is something wrong with the preparation—a hard piece, perhaps, not quite predigested. Out with it; let us go on with the literary maltose. Unfortunately with many readers, those in whom mental activities have not been altogether destroyed by predigestion, the method defeats its very end. Left with nothing to do, the mind blissfully wanders off into quite other pastures, or emerges from a state of delicious unconsciousness from time to time, just long enough to make sure that all is well with the hero and the heroine.

Remains of an Ancient City.

Out of the 100 acres composing the site of the buried Roman city at Silchester, Hants, between 80 and 90 have already been excavated, says The Times of Sept. 18. This year's operations have been unusually successful, because they have brought to light the public baths of the city. The whole of the foundations have now been laid bare, the area being nearly 300 feet long and about 100 feet wide, and, although everything down to the floor-line has been destroyed, there still remains enough to show the whole system and its arrangement. The baths are like those discovered at Uriconium, near Shrewsbury, but larger. The courtyard, at the entrance, apodyterium, frigidarium, tepidarium, sudatorium, and caldarium, with the hypocausts and remains of the hot-air flues can all be traced. It is evident that during the hundreds of years that these baths were in use many changes were made in the original design. This is particularly observable in the changes of floor level and in the alterations made in the size and shape of some of the rooms. For instance, in the frigidarium there are remains of a division wall built upon the tiled floor. In this room can be seen the lead pipe through which the water was drained off, while the floor and remains of the walls show the specially durable cement which the Romans generally used for lining receptacles for water or fire. In some places a cement floor is found, in others tile, and in others brick laid in herringbone fashion. Some excellent specimens of both coarse and fine mosaic work are also visible. At one end of the caldarium was found part of a fallen wall made of brick and flint, showing on the under side the plaster with which all the walls were covered, both within and without. The fragment shows clearly the side of a window, which must have been square-headed. In almost every room are visible the piles which carried the floors. A number of bone pins, beads, styli, etc., were found, as well as portions of columns of different sizes, parts of a basin which must have been eight feet or so across, and a very good specimen of a Roman altar, unfortunately not inscribed, and a handsome Doric capital. The efforts of the past year have also brought to light a number of sites of small houses. It is hoped that these discoveries will bring more contributions to the excavation fund, which has of late suffered from the deaths of some subscribers and other causes.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is new offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

Purchase the Treasury Stock of The Drake Mining Drainage and Tunnel Transportation Co.
OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 150 to 450 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,300 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale 200,000 shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at 57 cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends have been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

sat down and took the newspapers on her lap.

She never knew what prompted her to turn the pages over and run her eye through each paragraph.

She had almost got to the last sheet, when her gaze became fixed on a sentence that drove the life-blood from her face, and left her as cold and pallid as stone.

"My God!" she gasped, her eyes dark with horror; "Geoffrey Grey only just dead? Not drowned, as I believed when the vessel was wrecked—not dead when I married Frank! Whose wife have I been all these weeks?—not Frank's, not Frank's!"

Once more she read the paragraph announcing the death of Geoffrey Grey, and relating the circumstances under which he had been saved from drowning.

When the vessel foundered he had managed to cling to a floating raft and had been rescued in an almost expiring condition by the crew belonging to a foreign ship.

Some days had passed before he had regained consciousness, and then memory had entirely left him—he could not remember so much as his name.

It was only lately, when he was at the point of death, that recollection returned to him.

He remembered his marriage with Gretchen, the parting which had taken place immediately after the ceremony and his voyage to Australia.

Then, once more, he had embarked for England, bringing with him all the gold he possessed—the treasure which had sunk under the waves with the wreckage.

He remembered clinging to the raft, and then everything was a blank until he found himself in a strange land, lying on a bed of sickness.

Then, his young wife, to whom he knew the tidings of his supposed death must have been carried, became his one thought.

He suffered keenly, realising the friendless state into which his disappearance had plunged her.

By making her his wife he had thought to ensure her against poverty, to give her wealth and position—and now, even should he regain his strength, and live, what had he to offer her?

The gold he had brought from the mines was lying, fathoms deep, under the sea, and he was a beggar, depending on these strangers who had given him charity.

* * * * *

Gretchen read and re-read the tidings until her brain reeled, and the words seemed to burn before her in letters of flame.

The report of his having been drowned at the time of the wreck was contradicted and the date of his death announced.

She scarcely needed a stronger proof than what was conveyed in those closely-printed lines.

Her first husband had been living at the time of her marriage with Frank Stanford.

Before her was Geoffrey Grey's last message, explaining his long silence; that he must die among strangers and leave her penniless.

Gretchen had not a doubt as to the truth of the statement, and a quick course of action flashed across her brain.

Carrying the paper containing the startling paragraph, she went up to her own room and locked herself in.

Once more she read the fatal words, then, seating herself at the writing table, penned a few lines to the address where Geoffrey Grey had died.

She asked for more minute particulars, for a fragment of his handwriting to be sent to her that she might identify this dead Geoffrey Grey with the husband whose name had been on the list of the drowned months ago.

In a few days an answer came.

She held in her hand a letter Geoffrey Grey had written her on his death-bed—a letter full of tender regret and loving thought.

"What has my life been worth during this dark spell?" the missive ran. "It would have been better for you if I had sunk and the gold had been saved for you. If it should ever come to light it is yours, but there is little hope that the great deep will ever give back its buried treasure. God bless you, Gretchen, my little bride! I meant to make you happy, to give you my gold for your bright, sweet youth. The hand of Providence has come between us; memory has returned only with the pangs of death. My last thoughts are of you. When you receive news of my death, try and think kindly of your husband.—GEORGE GEOFFREY."

There was a date affixed to this missive—the date of a few days ago, the figures traced carefully by Geoffrey Grey's dying hand.

Think kindly of him!

How could she but loathe his very name?

Why had the hungry seas given up their prey?

She had believed him dead, buried with the sunken treasure—and little more than a week ago he had penned this missive.

That night she met Frank in a tumble-down old lodge at the back of the shrubbery. He had had some business to attend to up in town, and had been looking forward to this meeting.

Gretchen had Geoffrey Grey's letter pressed against her bosom—a dead weight on her heart.

She went towards Frank with lagging steps, a dull pain in her head, her hands icy cold.

Frank put his arms about her and drew her into the lodge.

"How slow you came to me, my darling," he said, kissing her lips. "I have been waiting nearly an hour. What kept my wife so long?"

Gretchen shuddered and laid her hand on her bosom where the letter lay.

"Frank, I have something horrible to tell you!" she exclaimed in a husky whisper. "Geoffrey Grey was not drowned, as we believed. He was alive when I married you. Read this; I received it this morning—written by him scarcely more than a week ago."

She thrust the letter into his hand, and then cowered down on an old wooden bench with her face in her hands.

"I can't read in the dark," Frank said, hardly knowing what to make of her words. "What is it?"

"A letter from Geoffrey Grey. He was not drowned as reported."

"Not drowned? Good God! Where is he now?"

"Dead."

"Dead—since when?"

"He died about a week ago. Get a light and read."

The lodge was little more than a hut. In one corner there was a battered lantern, into which Gretchen had stuck a candle on a previous occasion.

Frank felt in his pocket for his fusee-case, and fumbling in the dark for the lantern, lit the candle and placed it where the light could fall on the letter he held in his hand.

"Is there any fear of the light being seen from the house?" he asked, not wishing to run the risk of a discovery.

"They are all in bed," she answered, without lifting her face, "and the trees surround this lodge."

He unfolded the letter and read it through to the end; then his gaze fell on a paragraph cut from a newspaper and pinned to the blank side of the note.

It was the announcement of Geoffrey's death.

Frank's fingers closed over the letter, and a sudden haze seemed to come before his eyes.

"This means," he said, after a moment's awful silence, "that our marriage is null—you are not my wife!"

Curious Bits of News.

English bacteriologists have taken a small piece from a woman's skirt which had been trailed through London streets, and after washing it in distilled water, have examined the offscourings under a microscope. One hundred and fifty drops of the water contained more than twenty-five thousand germs of such diseases as consumption, diphtheria and typhoid fever.

The automobile lawn-mower was sure to come. No sooner was it prophesied than an inventor made one, and it can be seen in operation on the Capitol grounds in Washington. When it is produced at a popular price, the suburbanite, of whom the comic papers make so much sport, may take a few turns about his lawn every morning, and then head the mower toward the railroad station to take his train for town. On his return in the afternoon he may finish the job of mowing the lawn, while he keeps the grass along the roadside cut and rolled by his daily trips. Then on Sundays he may give his baby a ride up and down the road in its horseless carriage, that it may understand what the modern inventor can do.

The Shawnee "Herald" offers this exceptional value in bird stories: Jesse Davis, a farmer, who resides east of town, has a sparrow's nest which was built in the rear of a buggy seat which Mr. Davis frequently uses. The cover of the seat had worn away, and the old birds took possession of the moss padding and made a very comfortable home. Mr. Davis once a week comes to town to remain all day, but the old bird stays at home on these occasions, returning to her nest as soon as the buggy reaches its shed. The eggs she laid there have now hatched and Mr. Davis is in Shawnee today with the buggy and the little sparrows, but the parent bird is at home awaiting the return of her young ones.

The Pullman Company has made a demand on F. P. Woolston, a prominent Christian Endeavorer, of Denver, for two hundred dollars damages to the sleeper in which he recently made his bridal trip. It seems that the car was captured by Woolston's friends and decorated in a unique manner. Men's and women's shoes and old horseshoes and banners and things were nailed to the windows of the Pullman sleeper, inside and out. Nails were driven into the car with as much abandon as if it had been a picket fence. When the sleeper got back to Denver from Ogden it is said that it looked as if it had been the target for a Gatling gun. It was taken out of service and put in the shops, and now the Pullman Company is trying to make Woolston pay for the repairs.

A Witches' Broth.

London "Outlook."

The Carlyle-Froude witches'-broth thickens apace. In the June number of the "Contemporary Review" appears a paper by Mr. Ronald McNeill, written as a vindication of Froude. To common-sense persons neither Carlyle nor Froude needs vindication. They were both very human persons who erred and achieved in varying degrees. Had Froude painted Carlyle as a tender husband or a genial friend—which is what the Carlyleans seem to desire—there were hundreds of people alive when the biography was written who would have humorously corrected him. If the Froudeans claim that Froude's biographical and editorial work is absolutely perfect, there are just as many persons ready now to contradict them. But the marvel is why all this cannot be done on the ordinary lines of literary comment and criticism. What is the need of all this fire, fury, and partisanship? What does it matter, after all, if Carlyle pinched his wife's arms till they were blue, and found the written record of his evil temper in her journals after her death? Carlyle was no saint, but that does not make him a devil. And why is the world now threatened with the publication of a document left in MS. by Froude in which constitutional reasons are to be specified as the cause of Carlyle's ill-success as a husband? The witches'-broth thickens indeed, and round it dance the frantic forms of writers and editors of no consequence, playing the hag to perfection.

The average young woman doesn't wish to see her thirtieth birthday; yet, when she has seen it, she would like to see it again.

Ella—But surely you are not going to marry against your parents' wishes?

Flo—Why not? Did they marry to please me?

The Mistress—Don't you think Miss Pink has a beautiful complexion? The Maid—Well, ma'am, of course she has roses in her cheeks, but I don't like artificial flowers.—"Judge."

AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY
FOR BOTH LARGE AND SMALL INVESTORS

Owing to valuable Patents having been granted this Company, we are desirous of extending our business to the Dominion of Canada. Owing to the Customs duties, the extra cost in transportation and the numerous expenses attached, and the delays in deliveries in shipping goods from one country to another, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a factory in the Dominion, that we may be in a position to meet the immediate wants of the business.

The articles that we make from our Patent Fabric are too numerous to mention, and it is not necessary that we go into the details of the merits of our goods, as they are already in use to a large extent and have no equal. Our goods are covered by several patents, and the profit on the goods is large, averaging from 25 to 100 per cent, thus affording the company large revenue to meet all its obligations

In order to secure funds to equip a plant in the Dominion of Canada we will offer to the people of Canada $100,000 of our Bonds paying ten per cent. interest per annum.

Experience has shown that stocks based upon sound industrial enterprises have never been equalled from the standpoint of legitimate profit. For instance, a few hundred dollars invested in the Bell Telephone Company's stock in the beginning of the enterprise now commands thousands of dollars, after having yielded large dividends annually. Of course opportunities for such profitable investments do not present themselves every day, and it is also very true that a vast amount of capital has been misdirected in the endeavor to exploit inventions and enterprises which shrewd and far seeing investors should have recognized as impractical. But as regards this enterprise even the most conservative must admit it has possibilities of development which are almost incalculable and which have already been demonstrated in a practical manner. We have no speculative elements—this is a sound business proposition, and the patents which we own are worth several million dollars, as there can only be one fabric of this kind and that is ours.

All the above facts are simple statements of the truth and can be fully substantiated to the satisfaction of all investors.

The business is no experiment, the incorporators of this Company have made it their business for a great many months past and understand all the details, the prospects are therefore bright, and brighter than those of many other opportunities.

This Company is not a promotors company, every dollar goes to enhance the value of the property and business and increase the capacity. There is nothing speculative in this proposition, the enterprises are undertaken for industrial purposes only to make profits by the operation and development of the business.

Considering that the enterprise is already upon an established basis with a certainty of profitable future expansion, we feel warranted in the assertion that this is an attractive proposition to investors whether large or small.

The price of these Bonds are one dollar each, and will be issued in any number wanted With every purchaser of each five Bonds we will give as a bonus, one share of stock of the Company, the par value of which is five dollars per share, thus assuring interest on the investment, and with the stock which is bound to increase you will have for nothing. These Bonds will be issued for five years. Persons desiring to avail themselves of this opportunity want to send their remittance at once.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January, 20th, 1902.

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 11 years. I have tried several doctors and they done my no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tulloch, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Erwin D Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 166 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

New York, Oct. 26—The trade in the stock market on Monday was only moderate. The London market was stronger. There was some talk of an early improvement in iron trade. A. C. P. was well bought and there was some intimation that insiders were taking big blocks The labor report was conflicting but the impression prevailed that the differences are being well adjusted. Outside bonds were steady with a better demand while bonds continued form.

Be careful about selling A.C.P. short the market will be professionally narrow. Trade accordingly, but buy any of the active issues on all fractional recessions, since the trend of prices will be towards moderate improvement. There is excellent buying of Atch., St. Paul and N.Y.C.

New York, Oct. 26—The bond market was comparatively more active than the stock market in the early trading the stock market in the early trading. There were a number of transactions recorded, and houses who do an investment business report that all their business is in this direction.

Chicago, Oct. 26—The wheat market was irregular Monday; there was a strong feeling on the opening, but there was selling and lower prives prevailed. On the close there was a rather mixed feeling. The market for corn also sought a lower level, though early in the day there was some show of strength. The crop and weather news was bearish. The market for oats was rather dull.

Harris, Gates are selling May corn. Comstock buying May corn.

Liverpool—Close, wheat, quarter higher; corn 1-8 and 1-4 higher.

Strawberry Jam.

If there is an agitation in which generalities will never accomplish anything, it is the campaign against impure and adulterated foods. The average man reads of the adulterants in general use, from the aristocratic-sounding salicylic acid to the homely sand in the sugar, but he isn't afraid. Providence, or an inherited good constitution will save him somehow. Nothing will break up this serene frame of mind except concrete revelations of doctored foods. Thus, says the New York "Evening Post," too wide circulation cannot be given to such a revelation as that just made by the Minnesota State Dairy and Food Department about canned fruits. This is the season when the provident house-wife is toiling over fragrant steaming kettles, while the firm, fresh fruit is metamorphosed into the appetizing array of jellies. It is a great trouble, and they are selling jams and jellies at the grocer's really more cheaply than you can make them. Very well. Here are preserved strawberries made from a mixture of timothy seed, glucose, acids and sugar, with flavoring and coloring matter. Raspberry jam is the same, except for the substitution of broom corn for the timothy. Picture the great caldron with the fire ready kindled. First the skilful cook pours in water. Then comes a half-peck of hayseed. Here is a dish fit for the most fastidious horse. Then the thick glucose and some sugar. Last comes a dash of the nearest flavor to the strawberry that synthetic chemistry can produce. Water boil and caldron bubble. It is done, and here are colored labels with pictures of the luscious fruit. Sixteen dealers have been prosecuted in Minnesota since January 1 for selling preserves of this general class as "pure."

RECORD YEAR IN EXPORTS

An Increase in Canada's Shipments of 15 Per Cent

Montreal, Oct. 24.—"The cheese and butter trade of Canada will this year show by far the largest exports in the history of the country. They will reach a total value, according to the accurate statements we have, of $22,500,000."

In making the announcement to a press representative today, Mr. A. A. Ayer, head of the A. A. Ayer Co., the largest exporters in Canada, touched upon the principal points of interest in one of the most important trades in Canada.

"Of this total amount I would say that cheese is represented to the extent of $20,000,000, and butter to $2,500,000. This makes an increase of over 15 per cent. on the exports of last year, which were then the largest on record. The reason of the big difference that has occurred in the two trades is that the farmer has found that he can secure a much higher price for his cheese all the year round, and as a result is not devoting much attention to butter. The great demand for cheese has resulted in the price going so high that it is too dear to allow the exporter to handle it with much of a profit. The farmer knows that he can surely get a high price, and so plays a waiting game, and gets his price.

"Canadian cheese has proved quite a favorite on the English market, and the demand for it has steadily increased.

"The development of Manitoba and the Territories have not increased the amount fo butter and cheese available for shipment in the slightest degree. They apparently need all they can manufacture for home consumption. The trade has mainly ddeveloped through the increased manufacture in different parts of Ontario and in the Eastern Townships of Quebec.

"While much improvement has been made in the facilities afforded for shipment, the cold storage accomodation on a number of the steamers is not satisfactory enough for the butter trade."

Fire in Lindsay

Lindsay, Oct. 24—One of the Flavelle Milling Company's elevators was on fire yesterda ymorning, and was fortunately saved by the combined exertions of the employes and the local frie brigade. The damage to the building, machinery, and contents will amount to several thousand dollars. It is estimated that upwards of 60,000 bushels of grain were stored in the elevator at the time of the fire, and a considerable portion of this will prove a loss. Building and contents were insured.

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non assessable, the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 45 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore, There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100 foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Cold Mining Co. is to make some money. "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure-house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

First Class Mining Proposition.

The Anaconda Gold Mining Co.

Home Office: 412 Merchants Loan and Trust Bldg.
135 Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.

This is one of the best propositions ever placed before the Canadian investor. The Company owns 600 acres in the celebrated Black Hills District, South Dakota, comprising 22 claims. The track is unquestionably on the great Homestake belt, being located directly between the wonderful Homestake mine and the Clover Leaf mine. Two shafts have already been sunk, the main one being down 154 feet, with capacity of going 1000 feet. The Company has also installed an Ingersoll-Sargeant air compressor and drills, 125 horse power boiler, steam pumps, and in fact everything needed for actual operation, with the exception of its stamp mills; which will be installed at once. The vein of gold-bearing quartz traversing the Company's property is very rich. Assays have run from $3 to $54.20 per ton.

The Company has a capital of 1,500,000 shares, divided into 750,000 preferred and 750,000 common, par value $1 per share, fully paid up and non-assessable. The treasury stock has been made preferred stock to the amount of 25 cents a share. Out of the first dividends 25 cents per share will be paid to the owners of this preferred stock before holders of common stock receive any share of the profits. After the 25 cents has been paid to the shareholders of preferred stock, then all alike share in the dividends. (This means nothing less than that the first investors in the enterprise will have all their money returned to them before any dividends are declared to the rank and file o investors.

BRONCHITIS CURED

For fifteen years Mr. John Pearson of Melvern Square suffered from Bronchitis and throat irritation. Doctors failed to reliev but Catarrhozone cured qui kly

The remarkable recovery of Mr. Pearson, who for years was principal of Melvern Square High School, is convincing evidence of the exceptional curative powers possessed by Catarrhozone.

"For fifteen years," writes Mr. Pearson, "I constantly suffered from Bronchitis and Throat Irritation. Until quite recently I was able to keep up my teaching, but my bronchial trouble became so annoying that I was forced to resign.

"For months I doctored with different physicians and was not benefited. My trouble grew more severe and extended to the lungs, and I feared I would end in decline.

"Providentially I was advised to use Catarrhozone, and I believe it really saved my life. Its immediate effect was to relieve the throat trouble sufficiently to give me perfect ease in speaking. Within one short week all symptoms of bronchitis had disappeared. I can fervently recommend Catarrhozone. I know it has no equal as a sure and speedy cure for throat trouble and bronchitis."

Every air cell and air passage, all parts of the breathing organs are reached and breathed by the antiseptic vapor of Catarrhozone. It soothes and heals the inflamed mucous surfaces, stops the cough, clears the nose and throat, and drives every symptom of bronchitis right out of the system.

To purify the blood of all poisons, and to build up the system, Ferrozone Tablets, which are included in every Catarrhozone outfit, are very highly recommended. This local and constitutional treatment in Bronchitis, Catarrh, and Consumption cannot be equalled.

Catarrhozone is endorsed by physicians and ministers and thousands it has cured. Two months' treatment costs $1. Small size, 25 cts. Sold by all Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

LOST

On Saturday evening, on Rubidge, Simcoe or George streets, a lady's gold "Maccabee" pin, with letters L.O.T.M. engraved thereon. Finder will be rewarded by leaving it at this Office.

The Ontario Bank

The new offices of the Ontario Bank were finished last night, and the staff has moved to the front of their splendid remodelled premises. The rear portion will now receive the finishing touches.

A Trip to Paris

At the meeting of the George street church League held last night, Mr. J. Jeffries, B.A., of the Collegiate Institute staff, who visited Paris in 1902, delivered a very interesting and instructive address on the French capital. There was a good attendance.

STREET SIGNS NEEDED.

To the Editor of The Times:

Dear Sir,—If you will allow me space in your columns I would like to draw the attention of the Council to the condition of the street signs. At present they are in a very poor condition, only about one-third of them being up, which makes it very difficult for strangers and others not familiar with the streets to find their destination.

The Council should give their immediate attention to the matter.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space. I am etc.,

Death of Mrs Scott

Mrs. John Scott, of Galt, passed away in that town on Sunday last. Her two daughters, Mrs. W. J. Scott, Water street, and Mrs. H. Neill, Ashburnham, went up last week, and were with her when the end came. Mr. Scott and Mr. Neill left yesterday for Galt, to attend the obsequies.

Plenty of Ducks

The Cobourg Post says: Messrs. J. D. Hayden, J. B. McCall, M.P., Alex Pratt, and Rev. Mr. Beattie returned from duck shooting at Rice Lake on Thursday evening, heavily laden with game. Mr. Fred Field was also at Rice Lake last week enjoying a little duck shooting. On Thursday it was reported that all the ducks on the lake flew his way and he knocked down nearly fifty.

Printed Envelopes

The postoffice department urges all who send letters through the mails to have printed on the left hand corner of the envelope their name and postoffice address so that if not called for at destination it may be promptly returned to the sender instead of going to the dead letter office. The Times has a splendid stock of envelopes of all kinds which we can print very cheaply. Try us.

Hunting Season

The Grand Trunk Railway have issued a very handsome and illustrated pamphlet, entitled, "Haunts of Fish and Game," giving information regarding season for shooting Deer, Moose, Caribou, etc., in the "Highlands of Ontario" and at other points along the line of the Grand Trunk. Copies of same will be furnished on application at Grand Trunk ticket offices or to J. D. McDonald, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

Big Apple Crop

Cobourg Post—The apple orchards of Northumberland county are yielding largely. As an instance, Mr. Robert Coyle, Jr., of Colborne, and his men picked in Mr. Robert Bland's orchard last week 105 barrels of Northern Spies from 10 trees, and 16 Baldwins from 1 tree. The color and quality of these apples were first class. Some of the orchards in the vicinity of Cobourg have turned out large quantities, and exceeded the buyers estimates by two hundred barrels.

Union Prayer Meeting

There will be a union prayer meeting of all the churches of Peterborough held in the George street Methodist church on Wednesday, 28th inst., at 8 o'clock p.m., when Rev. T. Albert Moore, Secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, will be present and address the meeting in the interests of the work throughout the Dominion. There will be a meeting of the Executive of the Peterborough Branch at the close of the services. By order,

ROBERT HARRISON, Secretary.

BLOCKING THE STREET.

To the Editor of The Times

Sir,—I wish to call the attention of our Council to the abuse of a privilege granted by them which has well nigh become intolerable. Our shopkeepers are very properly allowed to place their merchandise on the sidewalk in front of their shops until the same can be removed to the inside. Some of these shopkeepers have become notorious for their abuse of this privilege. They single out Saturdays and other busy days for this purpose, and there let the goods remain for an unreasonable length of time if not for the whole day to the great detriment and risk of pedestrians. The police should be instructed to see that the time allowed should be limited, and not allowed at all on Saturdays and other busy days, especially now (when the sidewalks are two feet narrower than they used to be.

The case against Curran and Hill was dismissed.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Mr. John Pogue Injured at the Electric Works Yesterday

Yesterday afternoon while Mr. John Pogue, who lives on Dublin street, was at work on the new building which is being erected by the Canadian General Electric Company, he had the misfortune to fall from a steel girder, to the ground, a distance of about 30 feet. He was badly shaken up, and his arm was broken near the wrist. Dr. Young, who was promptly summoned, set the broken bones, and he is now doing nicely.

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

TEACHERS' MANY TROUBLES

A Few Samples of What They Have to Contend With

Yesterday The Times was handed the following batch of "excuses," for publication. They were said to have been collected by one of the teachers from the other teachers in town:

A teacher in the Central School received the following note as an excuse for the absence of the pupil: "Teacher—Georgie's mother got no catching illness. She got a girl. Very respectfully HIS AUNT.

"Mr. Sorsolell—You must stop teach my Lizzie fiscal torture she needs yet reading and figors mit sums more as that, if I want her to do jumping I can make her jump.—MRS. M——."

"Teacher—Please excuse Rachel for being away them two days her grandmother died to oblige her mother—MRS. J——."

"Teacher—I dink you are a fool. You wan my boy to read when he don't no no alferbits. Please teach him some.—HIS FATHER."

"Teacher—If Louis is bad please lick him till his eyes are blue. He is very stubborn. He has a good deal of the mule. He takes after his father.—MRS. P."

A DOURO WEDDING

Nuptials of Miss Helen Hayes and Mr. J. J. Blackburn

On Tuesday last a very interesting event took place in St. Joseph's church, Douro, when Miss Helen, daughter of Mr. J. Hayes, was united in marriage to Mr. John J. Blackburn, of Newmarket. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Father Kielty, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

The bride looked charming in grey crepe dechene over grey silk, with garniture of cream applique. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and wore a gold chain and pendant studded with pearls, the gift of the groom. Miss Mollie Hayes, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, in old rose crepe de chine, trimmed with cream medallions. R. Blackburn, brother, assisted the groom.

The bride, who is a very popular young lady, carries with her to her new home the hearty good wishes of a large number of friends and acquaintances.

MINISTER OF MILITIA COMING

Hon. Dr. Borden Will Visit Peterborough in Short Time

Yesterday Mr. J. H. McClellan received a letter from Hon. Dr. Borden, Minister of Militia to the effect that he would visit Peterborough on his return from Nova Scotia, where he had been called on official business. He will select the site for the new armory which is to be built in Peterborough by the Dominion Government. The Minister will be accompanied by Hon. Wm. Paterson, Minister of Customs, and possibly also Sir Wm. Mulock, Postmaster-General.

The armory will probably be built on the spot where the drill shed now stands, as Col. Miller and officers of local regiment are in favor of the old site.

We understand that the visit of the Ontario Ministers will also settle the proposed changes in the post office building, as well as settle certain matters in the Customs House here.

A banquet will be tendered the Ministers while in Peterborough.

Mr. McClellan, through whose efforts a new armory is to be built, deserves all credit for the success which followed his representations at Ottawa.

THE NEW REGIMENTAL COLORS

Letter and Donation from Lieut. Col. Bell Toronto

The ladies who are collecting funds for a new stand of colors to be presented to the 57th Regiment, have succeeded in getting $239.51. The following letter from Lieut.-Col. Bell, formerly commanding officer of the Regiment, will be read with pleased interest:

London, Oct. 20, 1903.

My Dear Col. Miller,—I see by the Peterborough papers that at last there is a good prospect of the 57th Regiment getting a new stand of colors, which are badly needed. I enclose my cheque for five dollars as my contribution towards the purchase of them, and I am delighted to assist. I do not know who to make out the cheque in favor of, but you can turn it over to the proper party for me, and say I never paid out $5.00 with greater pleasure. With kind regards to yourself and all old friends, yours sincerely.

It Must Come.

As inevitable as the changing seasons of the year is the change which comes to every woman. And just as one anticipates the changes of other seasons it is wise to anticipate this change of season and prepare for it. In this way the discomforts and disasters suffered by many women at the period of change can be avoided or overcome.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, a medicine for every season of woman's life, will entirely meet the needs of women at this period of change. It cures the physical ills and relieves the mental anxiety and depression usually associated with this critical period. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces refreshing sleep.

$500 REWARD! FOR WOMEN WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

J. B. Carlisle, Esq., of Manchester, Coffee Co., Tenn., writes: "I have been using your medicines for the last sixteen or eighteen years in my Poor-house. I am superintendent of the Coffee County Poor-house and Asylum combined. Your 'Favorite Prescription,' 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets' are the best medicines for the diseases for which they are recommended, that I ever used. They saved my wife's life at the time of 'change of life.' I have been recommending your medicine to many afflicted women and have also guaranteed that if it did not cure I would pay back the money spent for it. I have told our druggist that if the people came back and said Doctor Pierce's medicines did not give satisfaction, to give them back their money and charge it to me. I have not once been called upon to refund. I have never found anything to equal the 'Favorite Prescription' for diseases of women."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps for the paper covered book, or 31 stamps for the cloth bound. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

BOARD OF HEALTH

Short Session Held Yesterday—Closing Town Wells

A meeting of the local Board of Health was held yesterday afternoon. There were present, Messrs. R. Neill, chairman; A. Parker, W. Eyres, G. Schneider, Dr. McNulty and Mayor Roger. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

It was moved and seconded that an account from J. D. Tully be paid.—Carried.

Reports of samples of water sent to the Provincial analyst in Toronto for examination were read. In consequence of these reports it was moved that the wells at 23 Stewart street, 617 George street, 161 London street, were ordered to be closed.

Some discussion followed regarding closing certain wells where it would be impossible to connect with the city water this year. An instance was stated where on Downie street a well was ordered to be closed and it was found that no connections could be made on this street with the city water until next spring.

It was moved and seconded that the clerk be instructed to write to the owners of wells which had been ordered closed, stating that unless the wells were closed by November 5th proceedings would be taken to compel them to do so.

The Board adjourned for two weeks.

DIVIDE AFRICA

TWO POWERS AGREE

GERMANY AND GREAT BRITAIN

TO DIVIDE AFRICA.

They will Stand by Each Other Against Third Party, Russia is Aware Of Treaty

Berlin, Oct. 27.—On the highest political authority it is stated that Germany has effected an agreement with Great Britain with reference to Africa. By this treaty each country guarantees to assist the other in the event of its colonial possessions being attacked by a third power.

Russia is aware of the African treaty, but has given assurance that it is not objectionable, because the Czar has no interests in the Dark Continent. The African alliance is altogether independent of the Anglo-German secret treaty concerning the Yangtse Valley.

CHINA THE CYNOSURE AT AMERICAN BANQUET

Open Door Must be Maintained Even by Force of Arms is the Slogan

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 28.—The importance of the recent treaty with China, together with a glowing description of the profit which will accrue to the United States from the opening of the trade of the orient, formed the subject of a striking address by James J. Hooker, of Cincinnati at the banquet given by the St. Louis Commercial club to the Commercial club of Chicago, headed by President Martin A. Dyerson, and the Commercial Club of Cincinnati, headed by President Hooker.

In the evening the Commercial club visitors went to the Century club, where a reception to all the businessmen in the city was held, the banquet following in the evening. Mr. Hooker spoke at length on China and the Chinese, part of his address being designed to show that the Mongolians were a far better race than many of the people in the United States supposed, since only the criminal and lower classes came to America. He declared they had a great future before them as a commercial people and pointed out that the most important field to which the American manufacturer and trader now could look was China.

"It is not with a disposition to underestimate the possibilities of trade in South America or South Africa," said Mr. Hooker, "that I express the opinion that the prospect for trade in these countries bears no comparison with what can be accomplished in China. It is not alone because of the vastly greater population, but because of the consumption per capita of articles of foreign growth and production will be larger. There are no people in the world who have a keener scent for the Almighty dollar than the Chinese.

"The completion of the treaty with China the past week for the opening of two additional ports, including Mukden, a city of about 200,000 population in Manchuria on the trans-Siberian road about 100 miles north of New-Chwang, must suggest to Russia that the United States still recognize China as paramount in Manchuria and that we have to be considered in connection with the Manchurian question.

"It has not been long since we heard much of the division of China among the European powers and Japan; maps were made showing how it would be done. The attitude of our state department did much to frustrate that plan and establish the open door. If it becomes necessary to keep the door open with our navy and army we must not shirk the responsibility, remembering W. H. Seward's prophecy: 'The Pacific ocean, its shores, its islands, and the vast regions beyond will become the chief theatre of events in the world's hereafter.'"

IS NOT YET COMPLETE

Satisfactory Answers are Still Wanting

Conference Scheme Called a Gigantic Installation of Corruption

London, Oct. 26.—Mr. Chamberlain's meeting in Liverpool to-day was the largest gathering of members of Parliament ever seen in that city. Sixty thousand applications for tickets have been received. A solid silver casket was presented, with a vellum address, illuminated with the arms of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa.

The Standard says that several questions have been put to Mr. Chamberlain, from no irresponsible quarter, to which satisfactory answers are still wanting. Lord Goschen's cogent analysis of the proposed food tax is not to be disposed of in the few sentences he bestowed on it at Newcastle, as to how the argument is to be met, that the war taxes must be reduced before the preferential plan can come into operation. We are all dark regarding the details of the great plan. Everything depends on the proposals and temper of the colonists. If the colonists have no real intention of lowering the barriers what shape are their propositions going to take?

SIGN OF DECAY.

The Times says the return of the two new Cabinet Ministers does not show any alarming sign of decay in the Government, nor darken the relations of the Prime Minister and the great Minister who left the Colonial Office.

The News says the powerful support which obtained Lord Goschen's nomination to the post of chancellor of Oxford University should remind Mr. Chamberlain of the realities of the political situation, as Lord Goschen was among the first to denounce the new protection.

The News calls Mr. Chamberlain's scheme of a conference of English trades to adjust the proper tariff a gigantic installation of corruption in our politics and social life, and adds that the proposed conference with the colonies is a gigantic introduction of confusion in the affairs of the Empire.

A NEW ELECTRIC RAILWAY

A Good Investment Offered by the Grand Valley Ry. Co

One of the latest companies to be placed on the Canadian market is the Grand Valley Railway, a radial line, with head offices at Brantford, Ontario, and running, when completed, from Brantford to Paris, St. George, Galt, Berlin and Waterloo, with several branch lines, one from Guelph to Galt.

The main line, as now under construction, will cover a distance of about 65 miles, with a population along the route of over 70,000 people, though the charter covers from Port Dover on Lake Erie to Goderich on Lake Huron. The Company's Gold Bonds are 6 per cent., thirty year, interest payable half yearly in Toronto.

The first portion of the line, Brantford to Paris, has been in operation since May 12th, with earnings for the first five months to end of September last, from passenger tariff alone, of $15,241.00, which after deducting $4000 for bond interest leaves a surplus of $11,241.00, a result very satisfactory for common stock holders.

The company is well managed, being under the care of Dr. S. Ritter Ickes, a former Electric Railway man from Pittsburg, Pa., who has already built five or six lines, all of which are netting good returns to the bond and stock holders.

The company has two fine parks, one, thirteen acres, five miles from Brantford, which city with a population of 18,000 today is the third exporting city of Canada.

The company own their right of way and is supplied with power from a fine large power house in Brantford, where they have built good brick car barns, all of which are of the latest design and are built to accommodate forty cars.

The road is well built, and running as it does through the best part of Ontario is looked upon as an exceptionally sound investment.

The directors are all well known business men, and are fully alive to the Company's rapidly-growing interests. They are Mr. Jas Wallace, Barrister, Woodstock, President; Dr. S. Ritter Ickes, President of the Brantford Street Railway Co.; Mr. D. W. Karn of the Karn Piano Co., Woodstock; Dr. H. B Yates, Montreal; Mr. A. J. Pattison, Mngr. Home Life Assce. Co., Toronto and Mr. M. B Turnbull, Wholesale Hardware, Brantford.

LONDON BANK NEAR DISASTER

Financial Crash Averted by Aid From the Rothschilds

London, Oct. 28—One of the oldest and supposedly wealthiest and safest of the English private banks was only saved in the last week, according to a report current in financial circles here, by an advance of $5,000,000 by the Rothschilds. The difficulties of this bank, including its heavy forced liquidation of gilt-edged securities, is held to account for the extraordinary weakness of those stocks.

A conference of the leading banking authorities in London was held yesterday at the Rothschilds' bank with a view to taking steps to tide the threatened firm over without a financial crash which would be as serious and surprising to the outside public as that of the Barings.

SUN IS A MASS OF GEMS

Alexander Young of La Porte Adds to His Alleged Discoveries

La Porte, Ind., Oct. 28 — Alexander Young, of this city, who recently heralded to the world his belief that the sun was inhabited and that he has been able to find unmistakable signs of verdure and whose discoveries were given wide publicity by the press, resulting in the publication of a book which elaborated his theories, today gave to the newspapers of this city what he claims are recent discoveries made by the solarscope of his invention.

Young says there are now eight bands appearing across the sun's disc, and that the vast floor, which is unfolded, presents the appearance of being paved with glittering gems of every hue. He asserts that these bands first made their appearance on Aug. 1, and that they mean that the earth is to have seven years of plenty, followed by another period when drouths and famines will rage.

African King Sends a Son

Winfield, Kan., Oct. 28—A genuine African prince is to attend school in this city for the next two years. King Lewanica of Basutoland has two sons attending school in England and one in Australia. He desired another to come to America to learn the ways of this country. Negotiations were conducted through B. R. O'Connor of this city, who has a son at Lia Liu, Rhodesia, and they proved successful.

The young prince will board with a negro family of Winfield.

MRS. DOWIE TAKES TREASURE

Mysterious Chest Carried on Steamer with Care Said to Hold $7,000,000

Boston, Mass., Oct. 28 — When Mrs Dowie and her son, A. J. Gladstone Dowie, boarded the steamship Saxonia on which they sailed for Australia via Europe, they were accompanied by Dr. Dowie, a detective, a valet and two porters who carried a heavy box and several hand packages. The box and parcels were brought to the pier in the hack in which Mr. and Mrs. Dowie and valet rode and the detective occupied a seat beside the driver.

The mysterious box led to many enquires and the rumor that it contained $7,000,000 worth of stocks, bonds, drafts and gold was generally accepted to be true. Dr. Dowie refused to say what the box contained and he turned away from reporters in a wrathful frame of mind when asked if Mrs. Dowie had taken $7,000,000 with her.

NOT TO REMAIN IN SECLUSION

New Pontiff Announces he will Not Immure Himself

Rome, Oct. 28—The announcement made on the very day of the election of the new pope, that Pius X did not intend to follow the policy of his predecessor toward the Italian government by remaining a prisoner in the vatican, has received confirmation on many occasions. Pius X has made known his decision to his sisters and relatives whom he directly authorized to make the statement public, that he intends to come out of the vatican as soon as the necessary arrangements for his safeguard are made by the Italian government, with which Monsignore Merry Del Val is arranging the details.

It is believed that this important change of policy will be seen next month when Pius has declared he will pay a visit to the Monastery of St. Cecilia in Trastevere, whose inmates are Benedictine nuns, under the strictest rule of enclosure. Cardinal Rampolla is the protector of the order and on the feast of St. Cecilia, Nov. 20, he usually presides at the pontificial mass. It is not improbable that Pius X will assist in person at this celebration as a special mark of regard to the nuns, who, of all the religious institutions of Rome, have been especially devoted to the holy see under preceding popes.

TO FIGHT THE UNIONS

Wholesale Discharges to Offset Labor Union Activity

Chicago, Oct. 28—"The railways are about to present a united front to the labor unions. Already there is a move on foot to reduce the pay rolls by ten per cent." Such was the statement made yesterday by an executive of a leading Western line. The plan at present does not contemplate a reduction in wages, it was said, but the working force is to be reduced in every possible way.

That an agreement has been entered into by the big railway systems was not denied. While their is no formal association, the understanding is said to be definite and binding. The primary object is to present a solid front to the labor unions, so that employes as a club to bring their own road into submission.

Word has gone forth to all large railroads that retrenchments are to be made in certain lines where the companies can most easily reduce forces, such as car shops, repair shops, maintenance of way department, and improvement corps. The passenger train service is to be rearranged, so as to get along with as few trains as possible.

By laying off men and making retrenchments that will enable them to get along with fewer men the result will be much the same as if wages were cut.

GOVERNOR FORBIDS DANCING

John H. Mickey of Nebraska Tells State Employes to Quit Balls

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 28—Female stenographers who work for the state may not trip the light fantastic toe, neither may grave heads of departments pose in cotillions. Governor Mickey has spoken and declares dancing an abomination.

"I am opposed to dancing," he said: "on moral grounds. Liberties are permitted in the ballrooms not tolerated elsewhere. Most of the disgraced women attribute their fall to dancing, for human vultures haunt ballrooms to presume upon acquaintances and ruin young women.

"The difference between the masculine and feminine code of morals is the cause of the sin and sorrow of the under world. A man may stray from the path of virtue and be respectable. Every hand pushes a woman downward.

"I am opposed to dancing in schools and colleges where on the examples of the young people mislead the poorly informed. If dancing contributes in any way to pulling the women of our land down from their throne of virtue we should not permit it."

—This week's Saturday night social in the Y.M.C.A. parlors will be a unique entertainment and should be largely attended. All young men are invited.

THE SULTAN'S POWER HAS BEEN CURTAILED

Britain's Policy Has Been Strong in Favor of Reforms in Macedonia

Vienna, Oct. 28—Candid officials admit that England's strong policy in the near east has greatly facilitated the development of a scheme for Macedonian reform that gives real hope of improved conditions. It is felt that the result of the combined thinking of Lord Lansdowne, Lamsdorff and Goulchowski is a document worthy of a world-wide admiration as holding out hope of a permanent solution, agreeable to Christendom, of one of the most difficult problems known in diplomacy.

It is pointed out that the Sultan's supreme authority theoretically remains but that effective barriers will be erected against his Majesty's traditional manner of governing subject races.

"We intend to get rid of barbarism in Macedonia," said an official to a correspondent this morning. "That means we must get rid of essentials of Turkish sovereignty."

POWER REDUCED.

Constantinople, Oct. 28.—Nobody in the Diplomatic Corps here doubts that the time has arrived when the cardinal feature of Turkish rule in Macedonia must begin to disappear. The new reform scheme of the powers with the improved mechanism for its enforcement makes that result practically certain. The powers are committed to this and cannot, consistently with their own dignity and interest, turn back, though going forward may finally necessitate the dreaded experient of the employment of force.

Abdul Hamid is said to fully realize the gravity of the situation from the standpoint of Turkish sovereignty. He intensely resents the new scheme, but unless he can break the solidarity of the powers he is helpless. The Sultan could easily precipitate a tremendous struggle, but it is doubtful if even the hot heads among his advisers would counsel such a course in the absence of some real sign of encouragement from one or another quarter of Europe. It is not believed any such sign will appear.

Many Turkish officials express the utmost indignation at the Austro-Russian demands. They declare that they mean the overrunning of Macedonia by impudent, usurping foreigners, and warn Western Europe that Russia and Austria intend to obtain a hold on the Balkans that cannot be broken.

The Western Ambassadors are not alarmed at these intimations, and state that neither Russia nor Austria is hunting trouble in the Balkans.

While according Russia and Austria the unquestioned premiership in the work of restoring order and installing decent government in Macedonia, the new reform scheme gives adequate representation to the rest of Europe and tends to the development of a political system that will offer stubborn resistance to plans of absorption whencesoever they may rise.

VIEWS OF INSURGENTS.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 28—While the insurgent leaders are reserved in their expression of opinion regarding the new Macedonian reform scheme, they acknowledge that it goes far beyond anything hitherto proposed. It is expected that the controlling spirit of the devolution will agree to a cessation of hostilities pending the disclosure of how much driving power Europe is prepared to put behind its plans.

Official Bulgaria awaits with a sense of relief the issue of the deliberations of the Sultan's advisers. In Constantinople it is thought possible the Porte will spring a startling surprise on the powers.

BUY GREENLAND

Hon. Mr. Fielding Afraid Yanks will Take It

Halifax, Oct. 27.—Replying to a reference made in the Canadian Senate by Senator Poirier, of Shediac, N.B., to the possibility of the United States obtaining possession of Greenland, to the detriment of Canadian interests, the Halifax Chronicle, the leading newspaper supporter of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Nova Scotia, advocates the purchase of the island by Canada. The Chronicle says:

"Unless prompt action is taken we shall, no doubt, awake some dark morning to find that our neighbors have encompassed us on the east also, and that we have another "arbitration" to face. At least, if we cannot secure Greenland by purchase from Denmark, let us have some definite Imperial pronouncement with reference to it, analogous to the Monroe Doctrine.

"The other half of this continent is, by choice and by right, British. The Americans bought land on our northwest solely for the purpose of annoying us and lessening the value of our territory. They are quite capable, if unchecked, of pursuing a similar policy in the east. Now is the time to take action, or at least to speak out a plain warning.

RUSSIAN FORCES ARE FAST ENTERING COREA

Their Mysterious Movements Continue--Fortification of Yongampho

Yokohama, Oct. 27.—Mysterious movements of Russians in Corea continue to be reported. A detachment of 200 Russian troops is said to have crossed the River Tumf into Corea, and another contingent of forty Russians appeared at Witu on Friday last and subsequently retired.

Following the announcement made here yesterday that the Corean Government had protested against the Russian fortification of Yongampho, official advices received at Tokio tend to confirm the report that the Russians have fortified that place. This may lead to important developments, as the fortification at Yongampho would be an infringement of Corean integrity.

The newspapers here regard the situation as being easier, and believe that Baron De Rosen, the Russian Minister, and Foreign Minister Komura are nearer to reaching an agreement.

LIB. MAJ. AT GENERAL ELECTION 96

The Latest Reports of the Bye-Elections in Muskoka Dis. Elect Mahaffy and from Sault Marie Smith by Substantial Maj.

Toronto, Oct. 27.—The bye-elections held yesterday in Muskoka and Sault Ste. Marie have excited as much interest as a general election in this city. The Sault Ste. Marie constituency was rendered vacant by the unseating of Andrew Miscampbell, the Conservative member, for illegal practices. His majority was 199. In Muskoka, the Liberal member, the late Dr. Bridgeland, had a majority of 96. His death rendered a bye-election necessary. The standing of the parties today is: Government, including speaker, 50, Opposition, 45.

The latest reports to hand of the bye-elections in Sault Ste. Marie and Muskoka are as follows:

Muskoka—Mahaffy elected by a majority of 156 over his opponent, Hart, with 13 polling sub-divisions to hear from.

Sault Ste. Marie—Smith's majority over Miscampbell is about 116.

In Sheriff's Favor

The following order-in-council has just been passed on the recommendation of the Minister of Justice: "For attending sittings of the court held at places other than where the sheriff resides, or where such attendance is necessitated by the criminal business the sheriff shall be entitled to mileage as above, and also to an allowance of three dollars a day for subsistence. Provided, however, that no such mileage or subsistence fees shall be paid unless it is certified by the presiding judge that the attendance of the sheriff at such court was necessary, and that the amounts charged are correct. Where a deputy sheriff attends any sittings of the court under similar circumstances he shall be entitled to the same mileage and subsistence allowance as a sheriff."

WOULD BAR CANADA OUT IN FUTURE DISPUTES

The St. James' Gazette Says This Dominion Should Have No Representatives But Should Submit to British Views

London, Oct. 27.—The St. James Gazette says that this country and the United States can well afford to pass over some hasty expressions by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in his criticism of the Alaska award. Canada is annoyed just now, as any private individual is annoyed at losing a lawsuit. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, so to speak, has tied the horse's tail with red to give warning that it is safer to keep away from his heels. The true lesson of the award is the need of closer union and better organization. There should never again be both British and Canadian commissioners on such a tribunal. It should be composed of two parties only—the British and the foreign representatives.

London, Oct. 27.—The Times, referring to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's declaration for wider powers for the negotiations of treaties, says: "We are unwilling to interpret the declaration as deliberately claiming for Canada anything like full treaty-making powers, because the suggestion points logically to separation, and we feel that such a conclusion is distant to the mind of the Canadian Premier or the vast majority of Canadians and Englishmen. The power that makes treaties in its own behalf must also possess the means of giving effect to them, and we cannot see how Canada could hope to do so unless she can count on the armed strength of England.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier misunderstands the decision as to the outlet of the Portland Channel, as did Mr. Aylesworth. The two tiny islands which have passed to the United States had very little strategic value. Not they, but Dundas Island, our property, commands the Port Simpson passage. By the interpretation of the 1825 treaty, Canada is not evicted, but only foregoes the claim she hoped to establish. We share Canada's common territorial loss, but we recognize transcending it the common gain of removing once for all an obstacle to a full concord with the great Republic with which every tie of nature places us in such close relations."

NOT NICE READING.

The Financial Times says these Canadian papers do not make nice reading. Canada's anger should convince the devotees of Anglo-Americanism that they are carrying the infatuation too far in the policy of grovelling before the spread-eagleism of the United States. It is a doubtful policy in any case, especially when it alienates the Empire's eldest daughter.

ALVERSTONE IS SILENT.

Lord Alverstone, interviewed last night, said that the statement appearing in the press that his written defence would appear in the Times was incorrect. A great deal had been said on the subject already, and he could add nothing further.

NOT BETRAYED.

Sir Gilbert Parker says: "I think that Canada has good reason to feel disappointed in regard to the Alaska award, but she has no reason to cry that she was betrayed. She accepted the tribunal, she sent representatives, presumably she was prepared to accept the verdict of the majority. Personally, I thought the constitution of the commission little likely to secure without prejudice and peril the ends of justice, and I say so publicly, because each of the American members had committed himself against the Canadian case. With the most profound respect and admiration for our Canadian representatives, they could not be said to be judicial. Only the Chief Justice of England was above the suspicion of allowing himself to be used for any political purpose. I happen to know, on attitude of judicial impartiality upon the British authorities before consenting to act. It would have been right, and I believe it would have been best for Canada at the beginning to have objected to the character of the tribunal, and to have condemned it. I think it unfortunate that Canada does not accept the decision with dignified silence and reserve. The decision of the tribunal is like the red and black at roulette; we have put our money upon the red and lost. Let us not blame the croupier."

PLAYTHING OR FOOL.

The London Daily Mail devotes a column to Edgar Wallace's letter from Canada today, in which he says: "Canada is no longer the plaything or fool of the family. Canada is a separate distinct, and unique nation; it is no more a colony than India is a colony. Its vigor, great strength, and possibilities frighten me." The writer says there is danger of secession if Great Britain loses the present opportunity.

The Manchester Guardian says that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's demand for Canadian control over foreign affairs strikes at the very root of the imperialist position, and if pressed must lead to a complete overhauling of the ordinary conceptions of imperial colonial relations.

HAVE YOU CHRONIC AILMENT?

In the course of his practice as specialist in the treatment of chronic ailments, Dr. Goldberg has evolved a system of his own, which is a positive cure. His method differs widely from the old fashioned system, as taught in colleges, and yet is along the strictest scientific principles, with this exception, that where the old methods took months and sometimes years to bring about a cure, his latest method does it in a few weeks and cures are thorough, permanent and reliable. The curing of chronic diseases has been his specialty for years.

He will cure you quicker than any other specialist in the world. There are thousands in this broad land today who are healthy and happy, who once suffered as you perhaps now suffer, and who owe their present well-being to Dr. Goldberg's Latest Method Treatment. If you are sick it is only natural for you to want to be well. Before you decide definitely on the doctor to intrust your case call or write to Dr. Goldberg and find out all about his Latest Method of curing chronic diseases without pain and permanently. It will cost you nothing to learn the particulars and it will in no way put you under obligations to him.

Recognized as the oldest established and most reliable specialist.

If it is inconvenient for you to call in person write the doctor and he will explain his method to you just the same, free. Do not delay; promptness is certainty.

Each Time You Call You See Dr. Goldberg Personally or each time you write it receives his personal attention, and remember he is the only specialist who allows the patient to pay when cured. You need pay nothing until a complete cure has been made.

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 28 1903

WHITHER BOUND?

An eccentric New Englander has built for himself a monument and inscribed on it, "Going, but Know Not Whither." Evidently he refers to the destiny of his soul after death, and, agnostic that he is, he wishes to make sure that no sentiment implying religious faith shall be inscribed on his tombstone.

Scientists have left to theologians the problem of the future world, but they are having no little perplexity over the trend of our tiny earth in the great plan of the universe. So long as it was believed that the earth was the centre of things the question "Where are we going?" could not come up. But when it was found that our earth whirls about the sun, which, in turn, with all its planets is rushing through space at the rate of 45,000 miles an hour, it was natural to ask what is the cause of the rush? Where are we going? And it was for scientists to give us the answer.

More than a century ago Herschel said we were making straight wake for the right arm of Hercules. He underrated our speed of progress, but later scientists say he was not wide of the mark in his brilliant guess of the objective point; that we are moving along a straight line pointing toward Vega, and that at least a part of the apparent velocities of other stars comes from the fact that we are moving away from them.

Not satisfied with the present inadequate knowledge of our destined port or point, Professor Campbell of the Lick observatory has sent an expedition to Santiago de Chili to obtain the velocities of 300 or 400 of the brighter stars in the vicinity of the south pole of the heavens, and to determine by their apparent counter-movements the direction and velocity of our own solar system. The expedition is to be gone two years, but the result of its work, it is thought, will answer the curious question and we may learn just where we are going.

To be sure, it matters little to most of us in what direction the sun is going, just as it mattered little to the human race to know that the earth moved instead of the sun, but humanity indirectly has the benefit of all this knowledge without seeing its source or range of influence.

Geometry once seemed an idle study but the mariner learned the relation of lines and angles to his particular business and all the world profited by the knowledge. What problems shall be solved by the new discovery is not yet revealed, but it is certain the astronomers have not gone to South America on an idle pleasure trip or from mere curiosity.

Some advantage will be gained by it, and other problems will be solved that have a practical bearing on the welfare of the race.

RESULTS OF THE SESSION

The session of the Dominion parliament is over, and what of it? It occupied the longest time of any parliament in Canada and it gave effect to some of the most important legislation. Of the many acts the chief has reference to the transcontinental railway. The Grand Trunk contemplated an extension of its lines to meet the increasing conditions of trade, and the government encouraged it into spanning the continent with another road, running farther north and through a territory which will, in the years to come, be occupied by a thrifty and prosperous people. Parliament did not differ as to the necessity for greater railway accommodation, and transportation facilities. The opposition simply antagonized the Grand Trunk scheme because it was endorsed by the government. The alternative scheme was in no sense as acceptable to the country, and that point will be demonstrated later on. The railway project will be the issue in the next election. Meanwhile the work goes on, and with all the energy which a great corporation can infuse into it.

Next in political effect was the Redistribution Act. This does not affect the other provinces so much as Ontario, in which the loss of population, by removal to the North-West, reduces the membership and blots out some of the extremence of the tory gerrymanders. The work was very materially advanced by the special committee, and though the measure was fought in its passage through the house it had to be acknowledged as in the main very fair, as calculated to invite an honest expression of public opinion.

A great act was that which gave effect to the Railway Commission whose work will be of an exalted character. The commission is composed of sound business men who will make a study of the railway business and so be in a position to deal with the questions coming before them with the efficacy of experts. There was the need of such a commission, and it is expected to justify its existence.

The minor acts will be passed in review before the public between this time and the next election, and the government can make its appeal with every reason to look for the endorsation of the country.

MR. BULL IS STARTLED

Great Britain is shocked by the disagreement of Mr. Aylesworth and Sir Louis Jette with the Lord Chief Justice of England, says the Toronto Star. It's such deucedly bad form. Not content with refusing to sign the verdict of the commission, these two Canadians cooly withdrew to one side and put their opinions in writing—opinions opposed to those of the Lord Chief Justice of England. More shocking than all, they criticized the Lord Chief Justice of England, expressing their inability to account for the fact that he agreed with them on a given point and yet conceded this point to the American commissioners.

It must feel to Englishmen as if the whole edifice of their institutions is toppling down when two colonials, not satisfied with being commissioners in an international dispute, must intrude their views and shock all the traditions and proprieties by criticising the Lord Chief Justice of England.

But so far as Canada is concerned, all commissioners "look alike to her." This country would as soon secure fair play from a commoner as from a Lord, and when fair play is denied, is not awed in the least by the high-sounding title of the position occupied by Lord Alverstone when he is not engaged in carving away the north-western margin of Canada.

Sir James Watson

This eminent English physician is one of the greatest authorities on diseases of the respiratory organs

In a recent address Sir James Watson stated that the commonest of all disorders is Catarrh and that not one person in ten thousand passes the winter without an attack of some sort.

Sir James advises local treatment very strongly, and says it is all nonsense trying to treat Catarrhal diseases by stomach medicines, atomizers, douches and snuffs.

Local treatment is applied most scientifically by Catarrhozone, which is inhaled into the nose, throat and lungs, and drives the disease completely out of the system.

Catarrhozone is a rational, commonsense treatment; it clears the air passages, makes breathing easy, and relieves at once. Physicians prescribe Catarrhozone with gratifying results, and pronounce it a specific for Catarrh in any part of the system.

Mr. Thos. Cox, one of the most prominent citizens of Minden, Ont., says: "I want to recommend Catarrhozone. It is a nice, clean cure for Catarrh. Cured me perfectly, and is well deserving of a trial from everyone at all affected by Catarrh or throat trouble."

Mr. G. F. Fadden, of Royan, Que., writes: "In my opinion Catarrhozone is the only cure for Catarrh. I had the disease in its worst form, but only got relief from Catarrhozone. It cured me quickly and permanently, and I have no fear of the Catarrh ever returning."

The foregoing brief extracts, like thousands of others that the proprietors of Catarrhozone have received, prove that the proper remedy to use is Catarrhozone. It is quite different from the ordinary Catarrh preparation, and is warranted to prove entirely satisfactory. If it fails your money will be refunded, so if not benefited you won't be out of pocket.

All druggists sell Catarrhozone. Complete outfit, hard rubber inhaler, liquid for recharging, etc., costs $1.00; trial size, 25 cents. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston Ont.

Russia Must Observe her Promise to Evacuate Manchuria

Threats of the United States May Be Disregarded

Tokio, Oct. 26.—A prolonged conference was held Saturday by the Ministers and "Elder statesmen" of Japan. It is believed that the chief subject of discussion was Marquis Ito's proposal for a compromise with Russia, whereby Japan will refrain from pressing for the military evacuation of Manchuria in return for a pledge that Russia will respect Chinese and Corean integrity. The outcome is understood to be that Japan will adhere to her policy, and insist that Russia fulfil her pledges regarding Manchuria.

It is officially reported that the Russians prevented M. Hagiwara, secretary of the Japanese Legation at Seoul, who had a party with him, from landing at Yonghampho.

A NEW NOTE.

London, Oct. 26.—A new note has been sounded by Russia in regard to the situation in Manchuria and Corea and the attitude of the United States.

The Novoe Vremya, the official organ in St. Petersburg, is permitted to publish the following statement:

"American statesmen realize the approaching danger of collisions with trans-oceanic powers, and therefore they are insisting upon the rapid enlargement of their navy. At present their navy, although considerable, is not large enough to attain the objects that may be desired, and the powers of the Old World are not compelled to reckon seriously with the United States. Their real force is not great. Only when they possess a navy that will command the oceans separating the Old and New World will the Americans be able not merely to proclaim their rights, but also to demand recognition for them. This will not be soon, and in the meantime the American demands and threats need not particularly alarm either Europe or Asia."

THE $15 FISHING ROD

List of Competitors in Toronto Star Contest

The $15 prize rod offered by The Toronto Star to the person catching the largest small-mouthed black bass in Ontario on or before the 15th of September will be presented to John James Irwin, a young farmer of Smith, who on July 29, in Clear Lake, while fishing with a hook and line and a cedar pole, caught the largest small-mouther black bass of the season. The fish was 23 inches long, 17 inches in circumference, and weighed 7 pounds.

The second largest bass was caught by J. D. Rosser, Campbellford, in Bellmont Lake, Labor Day, Sept. 7, weight 6 lbs 5 oz.

E. G. Rooke, Port Hope, on July 21 caught a small mouth black bass in Rice Lake, 22 3-4 inches long, 16 3-4 inches in circumference, weight 6 lbs. 1-2 oz.

Fred Herchmer, Bobcaygeon, caught a small mouth black bass in Pigeon Lake on August 21, length 20 inches, circumference 14 inches, weight 6 lbs.

J. Brown, Toronto, July 30, caught in Bellmont Lake a small mouth black bass, 19 1-2 inches long, 16 inches girth, weight 5 lbs. 9 oz.

A. M. Phillips, Pittsburg, Pa., Sept 1st, caught a small mouth black bass in Stony Lake, 21 inches long, 14 1-2 in. girth, weight 5 lbs. 8 oz.

Miss Wardrobe, Lindsay, on July 28, caught a small mouth black bass at Rosedale, on Balsam Lake, length 20 inches, 17 inches girth, weight 5 lbs. 8 oz.

Alex. Purser, Bensfort, on July 3rd, caught a small mouth black bass in Rice Lake, length 21 inches, girth 18 inches, weight 5 lbs. 7 1-2 oz.

E. N. Baer, Newcastle., Pa., on July 23, caught a small mouth black bass in Clear Lake, length 21 1-2 inches, girth 16 inches, weight 4 lbs. 8 oz.

In regard to Mr. Irwin's fish the Star says: Mr. Irwin lives 10 miles back of Peterborough and when he made his catch he did not know about the prize rod offered by The Star, so the fish was made ready to be cooked, salted, and put away, the head erected on a pole in the sun to dry. Next day he spoke of his catch to Mr. D. Moore, of the Crown Timber Lands office Peterborough, who told him he should enter it for the prize rod, which he therefore did, making an affidavit to the facts before Mr. D. W. Dumble, K. C., who sent it in. The head of the fish was secured by us, and found to be that of a small mouth black bass. As to its weight and measurements, we have secured four separate affidavits, one from Irwin himself, one from his mother, one from Mr. Philip Card, a witness, and another from Mr. Adam Hall, of Peterborough, who, accompanied by Mr. Benjamin Shortly of Peterborough, went to the Card home in Cavendish Township, and tested the scales on which the fish was weighed. Through the kindness of these gentlemen and of Mr. D. W. Dumble, K.C., of Peterborough, the scales were not only tested, but were sent to us to be tested at this office.

The weight of the fish was so large that very careful enquiries were made by us before determining that Mr. Irwin had fairly earned and was entitled to the rod. We are perfectly satisfied of that and the prize will accordingly be sent to him, so that next year he will whip Clear Lake with something better than a cedar pole. But he is not likely to catch anything bigger than he got on July 29.

BUY GREENLAND

Hon. Mr. Fielding Afraid Yanks will Take It

Halifax, Oct. 27.—Replying to a reference made in the Canadian Senate by Senator Poirier, of Shediac, N.B., to the possibility of the United States obtaining possession of Greenland, to the detriment of Canadian interests, the Halifax Chronicle, the leading newspaper supporter of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Nova Scotia, advocates the purchase of the island by Canada. The Chronicle says;

"Unless prompt action is taken we shall, no doubt, awake some dark morning to find that our neighbors have encompassed us on the east also, and that we have another "arbitration" to face. At least, if we cannot secure Greenland by purchase from Denmark, let us have some definite Imperial pronouncement with reference to it, analogous to the Monroe Doctrine.

"The other half of this continent is, by choice and by right, British. The Americans bought land on our northwest solely for the purpose of annoying us and lessening the value of our territory. They are quite capable, if unchecked, of pursuing a similar policy in the east. Now is the time to take action, or at least to speak out a plain warning.

Died in Wine Bath

London, Oct. 27.—The strange death of Charrere, a wine-grower of Acata, may interest the drinkers of Italian wines. Each season when the new wine was warm from fermentation Charrere was accustomed to take a bath in the frothing juice, with the object of securing a year of prosperity for himself and family. This year he entered his cellar as usual. His sister followed him some time later, and in a search found him unconscious in the wine. In an endeavor to rescue him she was also overcome by the fumes, and both died before assistance could be summoned.

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house or sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is now offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,100,100, consisting of 2,100,100 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 150 to 600 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,300 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale 250,000 shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at 50 cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

CHAPTER IX.

His voice sounded like the knell of doom in Gretchen's ears.

A convulsive shiver shook her frame, and dropping her hands from her face, she slowly raised her head and looked at him.

He was standing with the letter crushed in his hand, his face deathly pale, the light from the lantern making his blue eyes glitter like steel.

Gretchen was not his wife!

This thought brought a thousand possibilities to his mind.

He remembered the wording of his father's will—the risk he had run by marrying Gretchen—the secret that at any time might come to light and be a stumbling-block between himself and his inheritance.

A sense of relief swept over him.

He felt as though he had escaped from some heavy thraldom; and never had he tasted anything half so sweet as this new freedom.

Gretchen rose and clasped her hands feverishly round his wrist.

"We must go through the ceremony again, Frank," she said, a sick fear at her heart, as she tried to interpret the look on his face. "It will not be much trouble, and it will make everything right. You can get a special license, and we shall be legally man and wife."

He did not make any reply.

The hand she had clasped felt cold and unresponsive to her touch.

She saw the veins standing out on his wrist, and there were drops of moisture on his brow.

"You will arrange for the marriage, Frank?" she said her tones sharpened by suspense. "In the sight of Heaven, I am your true wife; make me so in the eyes of the world!"

"No!" he returned, huskily. "No! It is for the best Gretchen. Had I foreseen how my father's will would stand I should never have married you. This broken marriage means fortune to me. I shall not gain my inheritance by fraud, for I have never legally possessed a wife. I am free!"

She staggered back from him as though he had dealt her a blow.

The cruelty of his words pierced her to the heart, and yet the agony she felt was caused by the thought that she must lose him.

For a few moments all physical power seemed to leave her.

She sank on her knees at his feet, her white face upturned piteously to him, her eyes full of wild misery.

"You cannot—oh, Frank, you cannot mean this!" she cried, her voice sounding shrill in the dead silence of the night. "I love you: I would lay down my life for you! Surely—surely you will not cast me off, knowing I may never call myself your wife! For the sake of the love you bear me, for the sake of my great love for you, take me back to your heart and make me again your wife. I will wait for you; I will keep your secret; I will suffer any torture for you, only I must be your wife. I must have the first right to your love!"

He stooped and tried to raise her from where she knelt, supplicating, at his feet.

"You do not understand me, Gretchen," he said. "I shall not love you less because you are not my wife. You always will be nearest and dearest to me. I shall see you just as often—more often than when there was danger of our marriage being discovered. You will have my love, Gretchen, but there will be no wife between me and my inheritance. Can't you see what I mean, dear? We can be together—always together, and when the day comes for me to claim the money I can say with truth I have no wife."

He had raised her from her kneeling posture. She drew herself from his hold and stood before him, with horror and loathing in her eyes.

"You can say this to me?" she gasped, recoiling with every word she uttered. "You, whom I love better than my life; you, to whom I have looked up as a woman can only look up to the husband she adores. I would have died a thousand deaths for you—if you had been true to me. But the sacrifice you ask is beyond my power. I can give you love for love, not love for dishonor. All these weeks I have believed myself your wife. Before God, I am your wife; you cannot undo what is done."

"I know it must seem hard to you, Gretchen," he said, folding his arms, moodily, and looking away from her. "Yet, when you reflect over the circumstances, you will think with me that nothing could have turned out more to our advantage. I committed a rash act by marrying you against my father's wishes, knowing it was in his power to cut me off without a penny. I want the money; not even my love for you will tempt me a second time to risk being a beggar."

"You speak of love," she exclaimed bitterly, "while you cast me off as though I had no claim upon you!"

"You have none. You proved that to me by placing these papers in my hands."

"I trusted you—as a woman should trust the man she has believed to be her husband."

"Nothing can alter facts," he said, holding Geoffrey Grey's letter in the full light of the lantern, "or make our marriage legal. You must bow to the inevitable and accept such terms as I shall make for your happiness. When the time is up, and I am free to choose my wife, I shall lead you proudly to the altar, and all that is mine shall be yours. I love you too well to give you up, Gretchen; but you cannot help seeing that our marriage was folly and that it would be sheer madness to go through it again until I am twenty-

"You think I can wait all those years?"

"You can be with me, Gretchen—you need not be away from me a day."

Her eyes flashed with a passion of scorn.

"Should I be fit then to become your wife legally?" she asked, her trembling hands clenched. "What should I be in your eyes? Would my love be sufficient bond between us when I had lost all claim to your respect? I am your wife in the sight of Heaven. I demand that you shall make our marriage lawful."

He gave a chill smile.

"You are not my wife, else the marriage would not need to be made lawful. Be sensible, Gretchen, and look upon things in their true light. I tell you I am delighted circumstances have turned out in this way. Nothing could have been better. I was getting tired of these secret meetings, of stealing about in the dark and the cold, like a thief at night. We can go abroad, Gretchen, till the time is up. We can find a quiet little spot where we shan't be overrun with debts—and we shall be together."

He would have taken her hands and drawn her to him.

With a passionate gesture she flung off his touch.

"You must be prepared to go through the form of marriage with me in a week, or we must part to-night forever," she said, her voice vibrating with the passion she was struggling to restrain. "I consented to become your wife in secret—to keep that secret until you could proclaim the truth without fear. I would still keep our marriage from the world—but I will not be less than your wife."

"My dear Gretchen, what does it matter if the marriage is put off a little longer? There is plenty of time; we are bound together for life, and the only change is that we shall be always near each other, and these stolen meetings and dreary separations will be things of the past."

She drew herself erect, her eyes still burning with that inward fire.

The Symphony.

Carry me home to the pine-woods!
 Give me to rest by the sea;
Leave me alone with the lulling tone
 Of the south wind's phantasy.

For I am weary of discord.
 Sick of the clash of this strife,
Sick of the bane of this prelude of pain,
 And I yearn for the Symphony—Life.

A Swimming-School for Horses.

Horses are "enlisted" in British cavalry regiments on reaching their third year, but it is generally two years more before they are taken for their first swimming lesson. This branch of their education receives a good deal of attention at the Aldershot training camp, writes W. G. Fitzgerald in the "Royal Magazine." The veterinary officer and riding-master of the regiment supervise the work, and only experienced men are allowed to assist.

The great thing is not to force or alarm the horse during his training, but rather to lead him by easy stages to enter the water quickly, fearlessly and as noiselessly as possible. If terrified at the start, the horse would be likely to fight shy of deep water ever after. So on the first day the man who has charge of the horse walks his pupil about on the edge of the water, just permitting him to wet his hoofs and fetlocks. The next day the horse is introduced a little farther into the water, perhaps up to his body, and allowed to splash round as he pleases. In this way the horse is gradually taken farther and farther in, until at length he loses his footing and starts swimming quite naturally, the man in charge swimming by his side to give him greater confidence.

Then the horse is taught to swim in company with others, beside a boat, by way of training him to cross rivers with his regiment en masse. The horses are divested of all saddlery but head collars and head ropes. The men of each troop get into a boat, and by means of the head ropes bring their horses into the water alongside. Then the boat is hauled across the river by a rope manned from the opposite side, and the horses necessarily follow.

At times the horses are exercised in bearing their riders across on their backs. The horse wears only the head collar and bridoon, and the rider strips himself, and throws his legs up along the horse's flanks so as not to impede the animal's movements. As the horse naturally swims very low in the water, the rider's weight pushes him down until only his head is above the surface. But the animal soon gets over the uneasiness this causes him at first. Then the horse's tuition is complete, and he is classed in his regiment as "proficient." He has, in fact, passed his "exam" as much as any cadet at Sandhurst.

"Punch's" Interview with H. G. Wells.

Some member of "Punch," with a turn for genial fooling, writes a "Sketchy Interview" with H. G. Wells, the pseudo-scientific writer, in which he says:

"On our pressing the electric button the door was opened by a well-trained Martian, who, in answer to our question, hooted politely that Mr. Wells was out on his aeroplane, superintending the flying drill of the Sandgate Highlanders and was for the time being an invisible man, but that he was expected in any moment. While he was speaking a whirring noise was heard overhead, and Mr. Wells swooped to earth. Divesting himself of his celluloid cloak, studded with plasmon buttons, Mr. Wells, on demand ing and receiving our assurance that we belonged to the middle classes, ushered us into his sanctum. We experienced considerable difficulty in keeping our feet, owing to the curvature of the floor—Mr. Wells adopts this system to prevent the collection of dust—but finally succeeded in anchoring ourselves to a selenite paperweight, while our host settled himself comfortably in the cushioned seats of his time machine and began to talk."

'Tis said the individual who
 Would win success's crown
Must keep his grit and never let
 The people laugh him down.

And yet the joke-smith's chances for Success are mighty slim
Unless he's smart enough to make
 The people laugh at him.

AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY
FOR BOTH LARGE AND SMALL INVESTORS

Owing to valuable Patents having been granted this Company, we are desirous of extending our business to the Dominion of Canada. Owing to the Customs duties, the extra cost in transportation and the numerous expenses attached, and the delays in deliveries in shipping goods from one country to another, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a factory in the Dominion, that we may be in a position to meet the immediate wants of the business.

The articles that we make from our Patent Fabric are too numerous to mention, and it is not necessary that we go into the details of the merits of our goods, as they are already in use to a large extent and have no equal. Our goods are covered by several patents, and the profit on the goods is large, averaging from 25 to 100 per cent, thus affording the company large revenue to meet all its obligations

In order to secure funds to equip a plant in the Dominion of Canada we will offer to the people of Canada $100,000 of our Bonds paying ten per cent. interest per annum.

Experience has shown that stocks based upon sound industrial enterprises have never been equalled from the standpoint of legitimate profit. For instance, a few hundred dollars invested in the Bell Telephone Company's stock in the beginning of the enterprise now commands thousands of dollars, after having yielded large dividends annually. Of course opportunities for such profitable investments do not present themselves every day, and it is also very true that a vast amount of capital has been misdirected in the endeavor to exploit inventions and enterprises which shrewd and far seeing investors should have recognized as impractical. But as regards this enterprise even the most conservative must admit it has possibilities of development which are almost incalculable and which have already been demonstrated in a practical manner. We have no speculative elements—this is a sound business proposition, and the patents which we own are worth several million dollars, as there can only be one fabric of this kind and that is ours.

All the above facts are simple statements of the truth and can be fully substantiated to the satisfaction of all investors.

The business is no experiment, the incorporators of this Company have made it their business for a great many months past and understand all the details, the prospects are therefore bright, and brighter than those of many other opportunities.

This Company is not a promotors company, every dollar goes to enhance the value of the property and business and increase the capacity. There is nothing speculative in this proposition, the enterprises are undertaken for industrial purposes only to make profits by the operation and development of the business.

Considering that the enterprise is already upon an established basis with a certainty of profit ble future expansion, we feel warranted in the assertion that this is an attractive proposition to investors whether large or small.

The price of these Bonds are one dollar each, and will be issued in any number wanted. With every purchaser of each five Bonds we will give as a bonus, one share of stock of the Company, the par value of which is five dollars per share, thus assuring interest on the investment, and with the stock which is bound to increase you will have for nothing. These Bonds will be issued for five years. Persons desiring to avail themselves of this opportunity want to send their remittance at once.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January, 30th, 1902.

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 11 years. I have tried several doctors and they done my no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 412 Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes: "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McFadyen, Riverdale, P.E.I., writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. 35c per box or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

The Macgregors of the Sahara.

Thank heaven, there is still some mystery left in the world. A book with a title like that of "The Masked Tawareks" makes us grateful that we live now and not some hundred years hence, when all the tracts of the world will be accurately mapped and epitomized in gazetteers, when no surprise will meet the traveler anywhere, when savage peoples will have died out or have become civilized into shirts and Sunday hats, and wild beasts will survive only as stuffed specimens in museums.

The masked Tawareks! Critical honesty compels us to say that the author is a mighty long while in getting at them; but the journey and the search are thoroughly enjoyable. The Tawareks are the people we hear of so often in connection with French extension in North Africa. The Sahara is their country—the Sahara of sand, loneliness and desolation; the Sahara of the oasis, the palm plantation and the solitary mosque. As to the origin of the Tawareks and their language let the learned decide. Our author describes them as a Berber race; but, whatever their history or descent, certain it is that to-day they are nomads of the Sahara who levy blackmail on all who use the caravan routes through the desert, and, failing concession of their demands, make free to pay themselves in the "good old way, the simple plan." They live in small wandering communities far from the settled haunts of other peoples, to whom they are known chiefly as raiders who come like a whirlwind upon the encampment in the dark before the dawn, and make no scruple to take human life if they are resisted. To visit the Tawareks, note their ways and customs, and if possible photograph their countenances, was the object of our author. This last promised to be difficult, for it is a point of almost religious etiquette among the Tawareks to keep the face covered up to the level of the eyes with a folded cloth. How Mr. King found his Tawareks at last, and succeeded in taking photographs of three of their women, whom he persuaded to unveil in the absence of the men, makes most interesting reading. The countenance of the young male Tawarek whom, with much greater difficulty than in the case of the women, he induced to uncover his face is extremely fine as reproduced by photography. The youth might be poet as well as warrior. How far it is typical the author does not say, and probably cannot, as he had few opportunities of seeing uncovered faces. But he tells us enough of other characteristics of the Tawareks, the pride, the dignity, the small well-formed hands, the stature, the fearlessness, to wake in us that ancient belief in the open air as the true sphere of man's perfection and ennoblement.

So also when we turn from the men to the desert scenes so well described in the book, how the desires of youth are stirred once more. Again we learn the true significance of that sadly misused word "oasis" as we follow the little company of men and camels through some long day's journey over the limitless sand, so hot that it can scarcely be held in the hand, so unpermanent that the piled-up mounds and dunes shift from year to year, so loose that in places one sinks in it ankle-deep. In due time, but never before desired, appear in the distance the specks of tufted palms. The camel quickens its pace until it reaches the hollow where lies stretched a green place of shrubs, trees, berries and flowers, a place of mud houses, mud mosques and—water. On the morrow the desert again, and sand, sand, as far as the next oasis. We have read of all this before, of the glare, the sky colors, the mirages, the salt pools, but we do not remember to have heard of the "weird, unaccountable droning of the Sahara" at all hours by day and night. The booming of London we know, and the long moan of the sea, and the crooning of the night winds among the hills, but that droning of the Sahara is a thing we would go far to hear for its own sake. Indeed the book shows us how good is life even in the desert. The Sahara can be no mere waste while the Tawareks survive.

France has painted the Sahara into her maps as her own. And most strange it is to read the description of a Sheik's house wherein cheap French trinkets and ornaments were mingled with objects of true Arab art and fabrication. Nickel alarm clocks and china shepherdesses have reached the oases, but over the Sahara as a habitable place prevails and must prevail the Tawarek. Civilization requires that he should not harry caravans and exact blackmail, but we have a sneaking desire that he may long continue to do so.—London "Outlook."

Meant for a Compliment.

Immigrants, the workers in the social settlements say, so often wish to adapt themselves as fast as possible in ways and speech to their new environment that they sometimes acquire the language, as it were, wrong side foremost, getting a vivid and modern assortment of slang before they can use even ordinary words correctly.

A young woman who has taught a class of little foreign-born girls, and who happens to be in appearance peculiarly small, dainty and elegant, had the pleasure recently of overhearing two of her pupils speaking of her, says the "Youth's Companion."

"She is a bully lady!" said the first with enthusiasm. "She is great!"

"Oh, yes," assented the other, "she is great, she is gran', she is immense! An' the hat she was wear! It is a most stylish corker."

Another woman had a more startling experience. She is plump and pleasing to look at, just right in the eyes of her friends, but in her own a little too near the point where one ceases to say plump and begins to use a less agreeable word; and that she may some day slip over the line of division between the two is her secret and haunting fear. As a charity-worker and in pure neighborly kindness, she has made many friends among the foreign-born residents of her city. One of them, a voluble, warm-hearted woman of middle age, whose vocabulary is innocent of more than one pronoun, and all but the most direct and obvious adjectives, once met her unexpectedly in the street after a vacation from which the settlement-worker had returned rosy, sunburned, vigorous, and carrying an extra pound or two which she preferred not to remember.

Her friend rushed up to her beaming with welcome, seized her in an enveloping embrace, and then, wishing to express a polite appreciation of her blooming appearance, exclaimed loudly in a voice of rapture:—

"Gosh! Ain't he fat!"

A Good Prescription.

Fastleigh—I'm afraid I'm going wrong, doctor. What would you advise me to do? Family Doctor—Pay your debts, my boy. "Eh, what? What do you mean?" "Why, if you were to pay your debts you couldn't afford to drink so much whiskey, to play so many games of billiards, or to eat such expensive suppers—and so you would soon recover your usual health."—"Ally Sloper."

Morganatic Marriages in America.

The announcement is made that the United States Government will deal strictly with army officers who have married Filipino girls and abandoned them. Commenting on this information, the Kansas City "Journal" alludes to the similar treatment of Indian girls by white men in the early settlement of the West—a state of affairs that was not confined to Uncle Sam's territory by any means, but applied to the Canadian North-West and British Columbia also, where there are to-day hundreds of halfbreed descendants of white men who made their mark in the commerce and politics of the country. Says the paper referred to:

"There is nothing particularly new in the revelations with respect to 'morganatic' marriages by United States army officers. Before the Civil War it was almost the customary thing for officers stationed in Oregon or Washington Territory to consort with Indian girls. At Tacoma or Seattle the visitor often has pointed out to him halfbreeds who bear the names of some of the most distinguished Civil War generals, and who are known to be the sons or daughters of these officers. It is explained that when these officers were young lieutenants they were stationed in the wilds of the North-West, far from the society of women of their own kind; that they needed housekeepers; that it was the custom of the region for white men to consort with Indian maidens; that, according to Indian standards, there was nothing wrong about it, and that from every standpoint it was advantageous to the girl taken for a temporary wife. At the little town of Puyallup, ten miles from Tacoma, there are two fine-looking men who bear the name of a general who for a long time was at the head of the quartermaster's department of the United States army. These men are the sons of the general. He married their mother, a Puyallup Indian, when he was a lieutenant, and stationed at the Puyallup Indian Agency, long before the Civil War. In later years he married an American woman in the far East, and reared a family. But he did not abandon his family on the Pacific Coast. His sons were taken east and put through one of the leading colleges. He frequently visited them, and openly acknowledged them. On one occasion, at least, he was accompanied by his American wife, who seemed to know the circumstances, and to have accepted them philosophically. His Indian wife lived for some years after he had married his American spouse, though he never visited her. But old-timers about Tacoma will tell the visitor how he made her old age comfortable while caring as a father should for the sons of their marriage."

Character in Names.

In allusion to the theory of an English newspaper writer who holds that a man's character is consciously or unconsciously influenced by his Christian name and whose article to that effect was reproduced in "Saturday Night" last week, London "Punch" prints some bantering comment:

Nothing, it declares, is so unalterable as the character that accompanies a Christian name. Deductions from Christian names are absolutely safe. They have all the finality of the axioms of Christian science. For instance, have you ever known an Oliver who was not interested in lightning conductors, an Alma who was not artistic, or a Sidney who did not oppose the Baconian heresy?

Names ending in ew always denote selfishness. Names ending in thu are to be avoided: their owners are treacherous. Beware of names beginning in Yp. No woman over seven feet high was ever called Birdie. Women named George write novels. A baby named Jabez Elijah Ahasuerus, if always called by its full name, will not grow up. A cat if called Beethoven is sure to indulge in moonlight sonatas.

Joseph is ambitious and shrewd. Hugh is opinionated and talks too much. Winston shares these peculiarities. Lloyd is argumentative. Jesse is bovine, and runs to side-whiskers. Show me a Wilfrid and I will show you a teetotaller. Arthur might be less willowy. Gerald is academic. George is eloquent and epigrammatic. John is sturdy and persistent. Gibson is importunate and impertinent. Tim is vitriolic.

Literary men, who study these things, will bear out what I say. Ask them if they ever knew an Andrew who was not bookish, an Anthony who was not witty, a Marie who was vain? They will tell you that Maurice is romantic, Jerome facetious, MacGregor undersized. Produce a Rudyard, and you will see omniscience. Conan is interested in crime. Algernon composes ballads before breakfast. Theodore is critical. William by itself is capable de tout: allied to Ernest it thunders; allied to Schwenck it jokes; allied to Robertson it resists the payment of rates.

Nicknames are equally consistent in their connotations. A boy called "Trotters" has large feet. No boy with a snub nose was ever called "Hookey." Have you ever seen a brunette known as "Ginger?" Boys and girls who are called "Carrots" have red hair always.

A Clever Swindle.

Several years ago a "gentleman" alighted from a well-appointed brougham at the door of a London silversmith's shop and purchased a considerable quantity of plate, in payment of which he tendered a one hundred pound note and received a small balance. He carried the plate away with him in the brougham and shortly afterward a "policeman" called at the shop to say that he had heard of the purchase and to inform the silversmith that the note tendered in payment was a bad one. He was glad to add, however, that the thief had been apprehended and requested him to attend at the police station at a certain hour in the afternoon to identify the prisoner. He told the silversmith that it would be necessary for him to give up the bad note to facilitate the preliminary enquiries, and this the latter did, obtaining a formal receipt. On going to the police station the unfortunate shopkeeper found that he had been hoaxed. The "gentleman" and the "policeman" were both members of the light-fingered fraternity, and the note was a good one.

Guest (at restaurant)—This is the second time I have seen that fat, bald-headed old man walk out of here without paying for his meal.

Waiter—Yes, suh. We let him eat here for nothing because he attracts all the flies, suh.—Chicago Tribune.

Doctor—Do I think I can cure your catarrh? Why, I'm sure of it.

Patient—So you are very familiar with the disease?

Doctor—I should say so! I've had it myself all my life.—Judge.

"The lady next door is celebrating her golden wedding."

"Married fifty years?"

"No—times!"—Puck.

THE STERLING OIL CO.

brought in on Monday the 20th of July one of the biggest gushers in Sour Lake. It is situated in the Wirt-Davis tract and has been producing oil continuously since it came in, the Spindletop Power Com[illegible] taking the entire output from the well. Besides owning this [illegible] the Company owns two other valuable pieces of Oil Land at [illegible] Lake, where they have just let a contract for drilling a second well in the gusher district. The Company has acquired a twelfth interest in 87 acres of land near Saratoga and a well will soon be drilled on this land, the indications are that fine gushers will be developed in this territory. The Company also owns property in Beaumont, Texas where there are two wells.

All who purchase the stock prior to September 15th, will participate in the September dividend. The price of the stock is 20 cents per share. No orders accepted for less than 50 shares.

COPETE MINING CO.

27 William Street, New York

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Senora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them ar—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tulloch, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Erwin D Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 166 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

New York, Oct. 27—Bull sentiment was in evidence at the opening of the stock market and the leading securities rose quickly. The news on the whole was favorable. The money situation was the subject of bullish arguments, in that time money was offered at 4 1-2 per cent. There was some talk of reduced tonnage in railroads, but the earnings continued to show big increases. The labor situation was gloomy but observers were inclined to figure on an early improvement. The copper dispute a great deal of speculation, but much of the news is conflicting. Shorts in the copper stocks here and at Boston continued to cover on a free scale. Outside stocks were dull but firmer in tone and the bond market was fairly active with a good demand for investment issues.

The monetary situation continues favorable in that money continues to loan at low rates. Call funds are being freely offered, while tim money is bringing but 4 3-4 per cent. on mixed collateral the chances are that the banks will further improve their position this week.

Chicago, Ill. Oct. 27—The operations in the wheat pit today were rather mixed, with some little irregularity in consequence of the disposition to buy on declines and sell on rallies. The advices from the northwest were bullish. The St. Louis advices were also rather bullish; the primary movement reflected some accumulation and clearances were rather small. The crop news was not much of a feature this late in the day, the fluctuations were rather nervous. The corn market was narrow. There was quite a lot of selling on the better levels, the bulls taking profits freely. Crop news was mixed; weather map favorable, on the close there was mixed feeling; the market for oats was slow; there was some good buying on lower levels causing the market to show some strength at times.

NAVIES FIGHT POLICEMEN

Detective Wm. Cox Badly Hurt with a Stone

Winnipeg, Man., Oct 26.—A pitched battle between the local police authorities and a gang of fifty Italian navvies who are working for the C.P.R. occurred at Portage la Prairie about noon today, and during its progress some fifty shots were fired, while the air was also thick with stones, clubs and other missiles.

As a result of the fracas, Detective William Cox is severely wounded, having been hit with a huge stone on the head, and injured in the back and leg by flying debris. Three of the Italians have been safely lodged behind the bars, and more arrests are expected. The men have been allowed to remain in their boarding cars to-night, and further arrests will be made to-morrow.

The trouble arose over an attack made by the Italians on their foreman, named MacDonald, who was last night slugged by a gang. Attempts were made today to arrest the ring-leaders when the battle between men and constables occurred.

WAS TIRED OF LIFE

Banker McGregor Thought to Have Committed Suicide

Oakville, Oct. 26.—While Arthur Felan and Norman Tyrell were strolling through the field of the Swann property on the Lake Shore road on Sunday afternoon, they discovered on the ground a coat and vest, a silver watch, a gold chain and a pocket book containing a bank book with the name of D. McGregor, of the Merchants Bank, Galt, with $260 to his credit.

In the pocket book was a calling card. On the back was written, "Tired of life." The spot where the clothing was found was a gully, near the lake. The boys searched the bushes near by, but were unable to discover any traces of the missing man. It is supposed he must have been drowned. His watch was stopped at one o'clock.

D. McGregor has been boarding at Mrs. Walsh's, Rosedale Farm, opposite the Swanns, for the past three weeks, and left there last Monday morning for the first train, presumably on his usual business, and has not been heard of since. He leaves a wife and three children, who are still at Rosedale Farm.

Search parties are out to see if any trace of the unfortunate man can be found. No reason can be given for his disappearance.

Mr. McGregor was at one time Manager of the Bank of Commerce at Galt.

Life of Parliament

London, Oct. 26.—The Ministerialists, instead of reckoning the life of the present Parliament by months, give it years of power, and state that it will not be dissolved until it has run its natural course. The principal object of the Liberals is to force a dissolution, to do which it would require that they defeat the Government, and to accomplish this they have very little chance. Premier Balfour favors holding the election at a distant date. His doing so gives strength to the belief that, though Mr. Chamberlain said he could not leave England this year, since he has left the Government his presence is not needed in the House of Commons next session, and he could without inconvenience tour the colonies next year. Rumor says he will visit Cape Colony.

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non assessable, the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100 foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Cold Mining Co. is to make some money "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure-house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Taird: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

A limited number of shares of this really first class proposition may be obtained on application to PETERBOROUGH BROKERAGE CO., Fiscal Agents, Peterborough, or J. J. BRANDON, Fenelon Falls; W. GALLON, Apsley; G. B. HILLIARD, Lakefield, or GEO. H. BROWN, Chemong

First Class Mining Proposition.

The Anaconda Gold Mining Co.

Home Office: 412 Merchants Loan and Trust Bldg.
135 Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.

This is one of the best propositions ever placed before the Canadian investor. The Company owns 600 acres in the celebrated Black Hills District, South Dakota, comprising 32 claims. The tract is unquestionably on the great Homestake belt, being located directly between the wonderful Homestake mine and the Clover Leaf mine. Two shafts have already been sunk, the main one being down 184 feet, with capacity of going 1000 feet. The Company has also installed an Ingersoll-Sargeant air compressor and drills, 125 horse power boiler, steam pumps, and in fact everything needed for actual operation, with the exception of its stamp mills; which will be installed at once. The vein of gold-bearing quartz traversing the Company's property is very rich. Assays have run from $8 to $64.80 per ton.

The Company has a capital of 1,500,000 shares, divided into 750,000 preferred and 750,000 common, par value $1 per share, fully paid up and non-assessable. The treasury stock has been made preferred stock to the amount of 25 cents a share. Out of the first dividends 25 cents per share will be paid to the owners of this preferred stock before holders of common stock receive any share of the profits. After the 25 cents has been paid to the shareholders of preferred stock, then all alike share in the dividends. (This means nothing less than that the first investors in the enterprise will have all their money returned to them before any dividends are declared to the rank and file o investors.

A limited amount of Stock has been placed on the Canadian market. Full particulars and copy of prospectus may be obtained from MR. R. J. KIDD, or the undersigned Agent for Peterborough city

Constipation

Causes Headache, Abdominal, Pains, Piles and in Severe Cases Insanity and Apoplexy

It is a common mistake to conclude that Constipation is not a dangerous condition. Although at first it is only accompanied by slight inconvenience and pain, yet if not corrected, it will inevitably lead to very dire results.

Great care should be used in selecting a remedy for constipation because if a violent purgative is employed, it is sure to set up pain, irritation and congestion, and result finally in piles.

The experience of those who have tested all the cures for constipation, serves to prove that Ferrozone is the most agreeable and satisfactory treatment. It makes the bowels so well ordered that natural and unassisted action is established. Nothing can equal the immediate sense of comfort it produces, and pains in the head, and stomach, and in the intestines, disappear almost at once.

Ferrozone is very mild and certain in its action, and never causes inconvenience or distress. Ferrozone can be taken early as long as required and in no way interferes with business or pleasure, and nothing may be feared from its use, however prolonged it may be.

For Constipation, Piles and Sick Headache, Ferrozone stands unrivalled. The driver of the City Express Company, who suffered from piles, says: — "Constant sitting on the wagon seat, produced a rectal irritation, which combined with constipated condition of the bowels, brought on a severe attack of piles. I used without benefit, different ointments, and other remedies; but got quick relief and most satisfactory results from Ferrozone. I can recommend Ferrozone to all who suffer from piles.

Ferrozone always cures, and can be purchased at any reliable drug store or 50cts. a box or three boxes for $1.25. Sent to your address by mail if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE BEST TOWN IN CANADA

Peterborough is so Named by a St. Thomas Newspaper

St. Thomas Journal: "St. Thomas will grow with the growth of confidence of its own people in the city.

"Peterborough ranks as Canada's Premier Town. It has a larger population than St. Thomas, though it is only a Town.

"Peterborough has grown because of the enterprise of its own people. They invested money in industries, and to-day the town is one of the great manufacturing centres of the province.

"The citizens believe their money draws better interest and does their town more good when invested in local industries. This spirit ought to be emulated in this city."

THE BRANTFORD DEAL

The Mathews Company Have Purchased a Large Plant

We find the following in the Brantford Expositor, which speaks for itself:

"The Geo. Matthews Co., of Peterborough, who recently purchased the Farmers' Co-Operative Pork Packing Factory in West Brantford, are in the city today, and formally took over the property from the B. N. A. Bank. The new owners intend to improve the factory in many ways, and make it one of the finest in the country. They possess sufficient capital for the business and will run a big concern on thoroughly business principles.

"The members of the firm will remain over to-night, and will appear before the city council for the purpose of asking the city to construct a sewer from their packing house down through West Brantford and into the river below the town. This is a costly piece of work, and as a large portion of the sewer can be used by the residents of West Brantford, the firm thinks the council should at least assist in the undertaking. They will appear to-night to press their views on the aldermen. The factory will be thoroughly overhauled at once and operations resumed in the course of a few weeks."

The Late Dalton Ullyott

The remains of the late Mr. Dalton Ullyott were interred in the Little Lake cemetery yesterday afternoon, the funeral being largely attended. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. C. Davidson, assisted by Rev. Dr. Torrance. The bearers were Messrs. Judge Weller, Robert Walton, J. J. Lundy, P. Hamilton, A. Hall and D. J. Lundy.

COFFEE PARALYSIS

A Well Defined Case

Coffee paralysis is not common but there are more cases than folks imagine and there are cases where the nervous victim keeps on with the coffee until the trouble is chronic and incurable.

On the other hand there are many cases where leaving off the coffee and drinking Postum Food Coffee in its place has resulted in complete and speedy cures as in the following

"For several years I was in an alarming condition and had consulted every physician in our town besides three visiting specialists. My trouble baffled them all, but their different verdicts frightened me, and the treatment proposed was long, tedious and very expensive. My husband had already spent a small fortune trying to help me and the last efforts was a $30 experiment which did no good.

"My trouble was a numbness or half paralyzed sensation that would creep over me especially bad at night, commencing in my arms, shoulders and down to my left side and was followed by terrible pains and a prickly sensation that is beyond description. My hands would puff up and feel like great lumps, so thick and heavy and unnatural. I could do absolutely no work of any kind.

"It was then that my mother persuaded me that my position was largely due to the use of coffee of which I was a great lover. She knew what leaving off coffee and using Postum had done in her own case and she finally persuaded me to make the same shift, which I did without much faith. To my everlasting surprise the change was wonderful for all my old complaints soon lessened and are now completely gone. The terrible feelings and sensations that I cannot describe have stopped completely, and I feel as if new rich, red blood was flowing through my veins, bringing me health and happiness.

"All this I know is due to my having stopped coffee and used Postum. My husband and three sons all use Postum now and enjoy it greatly." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum makes red blood.

THE BOYS SENTENCED

Youthful Thieves Get Their Deserts at the Police Court

Yesterday morning the twelve boys accused of stealing goods from the C.P.R. appeared before the Police Magistrate.

Mr. F. D. Kerr and Mr. LaPlante made a strong plea for leniency, after which Police Magistrate Dumble summed up the case, in which he forcibly pointed out to the young culprits the enormity of their offense. He then sentenced them as follows: Thos. Jones, guilty of three charges, i.e., stealing tobacco, whiskey, and candies on three occasions, was sentenced to six months in Central Prison. He was the oldest of the lot, and was considered the ringleader; Michael O'Brien, guilty of two charges, i.e., of stealing tobacco and candies, was sentenced to two months in the common jail at hard labor. Edward Shepherd, guilty of two charges, i.e., of stealing whiskey and tobacco, was sentenced to two months hard labor in the common jail; and Bert Hartley, guilty of stealing candles, was given two months hard labor in the common jail. S. Brewer, W. Connors, E. Scully, F. Laplante and T. Menzies, were allowed to go on suspended sentence, while J. Scully, W. Collins and F. Collins were discharged, the Magistrate stating that owing to their extreme youth, he did not wish to make a criminal record against them. The ages of the boys ranged from 13 to 17 years.

STRAINING A POINT

What a Little Word May Do—A Local Philosopher

It was in the back parlor of the Snowden House. "No sir," said the genial proprietor, "you can tell what a little word will do. A word may make or a word may mar. I know this from experience. I knew a man who loved a beautiful girl. Her father was a millionaire who got his start in the milk business, and I had reason to believe that she regarded him with favor. One evening my friend called on her for the purpose of asking her to be his wife. They sat in the sumptuously furnished parlor, holding hands, and at last, when my friend could control his feelings no longer he told her what was in his heart. She put her soft cheek against his, and, throwing her arms around his neck, cried out:

"I love you; but we don't belong to the same church.'

" 'Darling,' he said, 'don't let that bother you. Can't you strain a point and——

"But she never gave him a chance to finish. She turned on him and angrily ordered him out of the house. His letters to her were returned unopened. He tried to telephone her, but she always rang him off. Finally she got married to another man, and, when it was too late, he succeeded one day in getting a chance to ask her for an explanation.

" 'Do you recall what you said?' she asked him.

" 'As well as if it had been last night,' he answered her. My friend said: 'I asked if you couldn't 'strain a point' and let me——.'

" 'Oh, heaven!' she wailed. 'I thought you said "strain a pint" and that you were making an insulting reference to the way my father had become great.'

"So you see how a little word wrecked her happiness and made it necessary for my friend to keep on working for a living."

And then everybody called for what they wanted.

THE WINTER MEETINGS

Farmers' Institute Meetings Arranged for Coming Winter

Mr. William Collins, Secretary of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute, has received from the Superintendent of Farmers' Institutes, Mr. George C. Creelman, a draft of the meetings arranged for District No. 8, including North Ontario, East and West Victoria, East and West Peterborough, East Northumberland and North Hastings.

The meetings in Peterborough will be held in the Council Chamber on November 27th, at which the regular speakers sent out by the Department will give addresses, and in addition to the addresses the president of the Institute, Mr. E. M. Elliott, will present a Royal Humane Society medal to Lewis Fowler, for distinguished bravery in rescuing from drowning at Chemong, in June last a son of Dr. Poole.

The list of subjects and dates of meetings are as follows:

T. H. Mason, Staffordville, "The Hog as a Money Maker," "Care and Feed for Dairy Cattle," "Growing Corn for Grain and Silage," "Butter Making," Red Clover," "Sheep Raising" Evening subject, "Changing Conditions in Canadian Agriculture."

Miss Laura Rose, Guelph, "The Production and Care of Milk," "Buttermaking on the Farm," "Defects in Butter: their cause and remedy," "The Making of Bread and Buns," "How Much are We Worth?" "One Eye in the Field the Other in the Town," "A Rolling Stone Gathers No Moss."

Fenelon Falls, Dickson's Hall, East Victoria, November 25th.

Bobcaygeon, town hall, East Victoria, November 26th.

Peterborough, council chamber, West Peterborough, afternoon, November 27th.

North Monaghan, town hall, West Peterborough, evening, November 27th.

Lakefield, town hall, West Peterborough, November 28th.

Norwood, town hall, East Peterborough, November 30th.

Keene, town hall, East Peterborough, December 1st.

WEDDING BELLS

A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hillier, of 13 Victoria avenue, when Miss Martha, youngest daughter of Mr. Chas. Dredge, was united in holy matrimony to Mr. Elgy Chatten, of Otonabee. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. P. Wilson, B.A., pastor of George street Methodist church, in the presence of a large number of the relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

The bride, who was becomingly attired in white muslin with chiffon and baby ribbon trimmings, entered the room on the arm of her brother, Walter, to a position under an arch of evergreens and roses, and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. She was attended by Miss Mary J. Speirs, who was similarly attired, and carried pink carnations. The groom was ably supported by his brother, Edward J.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the happy young couple received the hearty good wishes for their future happiness by those assembled.

A sumptuous dinner was served, after which the evening was spent in games.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents.

THE CAMEL'S HEAD.

"Where the camel's head goes his body follows," says an Oriental proverb. It's the same way with disease. A small opening will give it an entrance and when disease once has a place in the body a large number of ills may follow it.

The opening for disease is often found in a "weak" stomach. When the stomach is "weak" the body also becomes weakened by lack of nutrition, and disease attacks the heart, liver, lungs, kidneys and other organs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the weak stomach strong. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and so enables the body to resist or throw off other diseases.

Men and women who are sick are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free, and so obtain without charge the opinion of a specialist on their ailments. All correspondence strictly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"For the past two years I have been a very sick woman," writes Mrs. Chesley, of 165 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. "I tried medicines from doctors and to no avail. At last I decided to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When I started I was all run-down and had a very unpleasant taste in my mouth. Was choked up, and at times it was very hard for me to breathe. I had severe headaches and cutting pains in my knee joint. Was so weak I could not attend to my work nor walk up or down stairs without the assistance of my brother or some friend. I am now taking the fourth bottle, and am happy to say I feel like myself again. I can go up and down stairs and perform my duties as well as any one. Everything seems to be brighter, and I can assure you that life is worth living."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing just as good for dyspepsia or debility.

Biliousness is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

The young couple, after a short visit to the groom's relatives, will reside on Hunter street.

Peace Assurances Are Purely Diplomatic

Russia Now Mobolizing Large Army

Her Fleet is Weak but Army is Very Strong

Tokio, October 29—Pacific official assurances with regard to the Russo-Japanese situation should be accepted as purely diplomatic. No compromise has yet been reached. Nothing has occurred to reduce the chances of an early conflict. Marquis Ito's attempt to find a peaceful way out of the embroglio has utterly failed. The majority of his colleagues have decided that the plan suggested would merely give Russia the time it so urgently needs to augment its military and naval strength in the region of prospective hostilities.

From an unimpeachable source connected with the Imperial household, a correspondent learns that the Emperor, in whose hands rests the final decision for peace or war, considers the acts of Russia so flagrantly hostile as to deprive the situation of almost every hope of peace. Russia is daily speaking soothing words to Japan, but its course both in Europe and Asia flaringly reveals the hollowness of its statements. Floods are raging in the North of Manchuria and have temporarily interrupted travel by railway and wagon road, and the flow of Russian troops and munitions of war southward has consequently been arrested. This circumstance has served to show how large and constant is that stream, for the Russians are now taxed to the utmost to provide for the wants of their soldiers.

Japanese agents in Manchuria have reported fully what is going on and the result is that Tokio is disturbed by the gloomy forebodings.

St. Petersburg, October 29.—Russia's energy in connection with the far eastern situation is unabated. It takes the form of diplomatic efforts to convince Japan that the Czar's Government does not mean to strike first and equally constant efforts to strengthen Russia's land and sea forces where they can most advantageously assail the Island Empire. A correspondent is reliably informed that Admiral Alexieff has been systematically exaggerating the forces at his command to intimidate Japan, and has been instructing his officers to feed Japanese and other foreign enquirers with false stories of the Muscovite power in Manchuria and in Chinese waters. Correspondents got hold of these stories and consequently have given magnified versions of the state of Russian preparedness to meet Japan.

There were only 28,000 troops at Admiral Alexieff's recent review at Port Arthur and Dalny. Of these only 26,000 would be able to take the field. The total number of Russian soldiers now in East Siberia and Manchuria does not exceed 150,000. This means that the army available for fighting operations against Japan would be about 80,000. Moreover, the size of the Russian navy in the Far East has been exaggerated. The ships there would be no match for those of Japan. That accounts for the fact that Russia is straining every nerve to not only stay the hand of the Mikado, but also to rush troops and ships to the Far East.

MOVEMENT OF ALEXIEFF.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 29—A despatch from Port Arthur says Viceroy Alexieff has gone to Tallenwan, to inspect the Russian naval forces in the Pacific.

STRENGTHENING THE FLEET.

London, Oct. 29—The Copenhagen correspondent of the Daily Mail says in a despatch that the Russian cruiser, Dimitri Donskoi, laden with troops and guns, passed Copenhagen today bound for the Far East.

Our Trump Card

St. Johns, Nfld., Oct. 29—It is thought probable in official circles here that Canada, owing to the dissatisfaction over the result of the Alaskan boundary arbitration, will denounce the modus vivendi respecting the Atlantic fisheries at the close of the present season. The effect of this step, if taken, will be to deprive American fishermen of the right to enter Canadian waters to tranship their catches, hire crews or purchase bait. It is thought that Canada will invite Newfoundland to join in this policy because of the inaction of the American Government on the Bond-Hay treaty. The one practical effect of the Alaskan boundary award will be the taking of Newfoundland into the Canadian Confederation, and the cementing of the bonds of unity between the colonies with a view of shutting out the Americans. American diplomacy has overreached itself for once.

SEES A WORLD WAR SAYS BRITISH DIPLOMAT

A War Between Russia and Japan Would Involve Other Powers

New York, Oct. 29—According to the Hon. Arthur H. Drayton, who has just resigned as first assistant secretary of the British legation at Tokio, to become secretary to the British ambassador at Portugal, war between Japan and Russia is inevitable.

"Of the two countries," said Mr. Drayton, "Russia is the better prepared to engage in a contest. When the clash comes—and there is no doubt it will come, and that in the very near future, too—it will be a very serious one, indeed.

"There is no longer any doubt as seems to be the general impression, that war between Russia and Japan would necessarily mean war between Russia and France on the one side and England and Japan on the other.

"Shortly before leaving Tokio I went to say good-bye to Baron Komura, the Japanese foreign minister, and the last words he said to me on leaving him were—'Rest assured that Japan will not need any of your warships; we can handle Russia ourselves.' The fight if it were to come at this moment, would, of course, be a naval one, as the vital point at issue now concerns Corea and not Manchuria."

Of American interest in the far east, Mr. Drayton said—

"If there is anything your country could do to compel Russia to keep her pledge with you to evacuate Manchuria, you could certainly count upon having the moral, if not the material support, of Japan in effecting that issue, and I can safely say that England would be with you, too, in the moral sense."

WAR IS UNAVOIDABLE.

Pekin, Oct. 29—While there is no signal tension, it is the generally accepted belief that war is unavoidable.

Private advices from high sources in Japan which have just been received, state that all the army and navy war preparations of Japan have been finished.

IS VIEWED AS LORD ALVERSTONE'S REPLY

London Times Alleges Islands Ceded to States are Valueless

IS NOT TAKEN SERIOUSLY

Official Circles Think Laurier Did Not Mean Demand re Treaty-Making

London, Oct. 29—The nearest approach to a reply from Lord Alverstone to the explicit charge of breach of faith brought against him by the Canadian commissioners in the seemingly inspired statement in the Times today, with maps, alleging that the islands in the Portland Channel ceded to the United States are of no strategic or commercial importance whatever, and certainly in no way hold the command of Port Simpson. The obvious Canadian reply to this is, why then were they gratuitously ceded to the United States.

NO ANSWER BY TIMES.

The Times makes no attempt to answer the charge of breach of faith, though in an editorial it goes to the length of regretting that Lord Alverstone failed to make his fresh conclusion about two little islands clear to his Canadian colleagues.

NOT TAKEN SERIOUSLY.

In British official circles Sir Wilfred Laurier's demand for full treaty-making powers is not yet taken seriously. It seems to them to imply something like full independence and they cannot suppose Sir Wilfrid to mean that.

London, Oct. 29—The Times referring to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's declaration for powers to make treaties, says—"We are unwilling to interpret the declaration as deliberately claiming for Canada anything like full treaty making powers because such a suggestion points logically to a separation and we feel that such a conclusion is distant in the mind of the Canadian Premier, or the vast majority of Canadians and Englishmen. To exercise power to make treaties on her own behalf Canada must possess the means for giving effect to them and we cannot see how Canada could hope to do so unless she could count on the armed strength of England. Sir Wilfred Laurier misunderstands the decision."

GILBERT PARKER SPEAKS.

Sir Gilbert Parker, speaking to the Canadian Associated Press, said—"I think that Canada has good reason to feel disappointed, but has no reason to cry 'betrayed.' She accepted the tribunal: she sent representatives, and presumably she was prepared to accept a verdict of the majority. Personally I thought the constitution of the commission little likely to secure without prejudice and peril the ends of justice. Each of the American members had committed himself against the Canadian case. With the most profound respect and admiration for our Canadian representatives, they could not be said to be judicial. Only the Chief Justice of England was above suspicion. I happen to know on the best of authority that he pressed his attitude of judicial impartiality upon the British authorities before consenting to act. I believe it would have been best for Canada at the beginning to have objected to the character of the tribunal and to have denounced it. I think it unfortunate not to accept the decision with dignified silence and reserve. The decision of the tribunal is like red and black at roulette. We have put our money on the red and lost. Let us not blame the croupier."

When interviewed last night, Chief Justice Alverstone said he had nothing further to say on the subject.

The Financial News says the Canadian papers do not make nice reading these days. Canada's anger, it adds, should convince devotees of Anglo-Americanism that carrying infatuation too far in grovelling before the arrant eagleism of the United States is a doubtful policy in any case, especially when it alienates the Empire's eldest daughter.

A COLONIAL MONUMENT.

Princess Louise visited St. Paul's Cathedral yesterday to select the position for the memorial bronze shield executed, at the invitation of the Colonial Troops Club, to the memory of the colonials who fell in the South African war. The design consists of an angel, with outstretched wings poised.

ANOTHER ALLAN TURBINE.

The Allans have ordered a second turbine ocean liner for their Canadian-Liverpool service.

BOURASSA FOR PREMIER

Hon. Mr. Tarte Assumes the Role of Prophet

Montreal, Oct. 29—"In any case I predict that Henri Bourassa, M.P., for Labelle, will be Premier of Quebec within a month." Hon. Mr. Tarte has become prophetic. He is informed by a gentleman possessing the confidence of the Ottawa and Quebec Liberals that Mr. Parent is going to leave office, and while the present Premier will remain Mayor of Quebec, he will be named one of the Railway Commissioners. He declares that the position at Quebec has become untenable, that Mr. Parent is killing the party, both at Ottawa and the ancient capital. Amongst those who aspire to the leadership he names Hon. Messrs. Archambault, Gouin and Turgeon, but all three will prefer an outsider. He predicts that the change will be made within the next four weeks, as the new leader will require time to prepare for the session. The article concludes as follows—"It was thought for a time that the English element might object to Mr. Bourassa, but already the South African war is a thing of the past, and the Alaska award has considerably modified their views."

THE YUKON RIVER BLOCKED WITH ICE

Navigation Closes and Food will Have to be Freighted

SEASON'S OUTPUT OF GOLD

Serious Fire in Opera House, Indignation Over the Boundary Award

Dawson, Y. T., Oct. 29—The steamers Lafrance and Prospector, after a plucky trip through the ice, have arrived with five scows heavily loaded with needed meat and food. The steamers Susie and Rock Island from St. Michael, after a hard battle with the ice below Dawson arrived with less than a hundred tons of food for Dawson. Two hundred people are waiting to go out by stage. The river is running full of ice and navigation is closed for the season. Outgoing steamers are doing well above Selkirk. Several incoming steamers are on the bars near Stewart. The freight will have to be sledded to Dawson.

Official returns show the gold exported from Klondike to the close of navigation to be a trifle over ten million dollars, which is a very satisfactory showing, considering the long period of drought during the middle summer. There is likelihood of a good winter's work.

News comes of the wreck of the Northern Transportation and Trading Company's magnificent big steamer, Will H. Isom," near St. Michaels, Behring Sea. The vessel plied to Dawson and cost $200,000.

FIRE IN A THEATRE.

On Friday fire gutted the upper part of the three-story Orpheum Theatre building on First avenue, near the corner of King street, owned by Ben Levy. The damage is about eight thousand dollars damage to the building. The stocks of Reid and Company, druggists, Renaud, jeweller; Hamilton Douglas, tobacconist, were damaged to the extent of several thousand dollars. The offices of Smith and McRae, barristers, were gutted.

ASSESSMENTS REDUCED.

The Dawson Court of Revision has reduced the assessment on the Canadian Bank of Commerce to $150,000, and the Bank of British North America to $125,000. The White Pass Railway is appealing against $300,000 assessment. The big trading companies are also appealing. The city rate is one cent and a half.

DAWSONIANS INDIGNANT.

There is a bitter feeling among Canadians over the sacrifice of Canadian territory in the boundary award. An agitation for a railway through Canadian territory has already been started.

TO CLIMB THE POLE

Exploring Party Caught in Ice Take Dogs

New York, Oct. 27.—The Fiala-Ziegler polar exploring party, which left New York last May in an attempt to reach the North Pole has failed to get through the passage leading to Franz Josef Land on account of ice floes gathering at the narrows, 150 miles from their intended winter quarters.

Anthony Fiala of Brooklyn, the leader of the expedition, intends to leave his ship and travel along the ice on sleds drawn by Esquimaux dogs, expecting to reach winter quarters by January 1, 1904. In a letter dated August 22, received by his sister, he said:

"We are surrounded by large floes of ice and every hour the weight threatens to crush the side of our good ship America, but before I see friends again I will positively discover the whereabouts of the North Pole and plant the Stars and Stripes at its peak."

THE PROPOSED RAILWAY

The Grand Trunk Manager Refers to Local Railway Scheme

The proposed new line of railway from the C.P.R. below Peterborough to Campbellford, Cobourg, Port Hope, and along the front to Toronto, was the subject of comment by Mr. C. M. Hays, of the Grand Trunk. Mr. Hays, who was seen by a reporter, said: "We, in this office, have received no direct complaint from the merchants in question. It may be that, during the past two years when we were busy double-tracking the line in the vicinity of those towns—this with the object of giving the merchants increased facilities for the transportation of their goods—some vexatious delays have occurred. Otherwise there has been no occasion for discontent. While on the branch lines it is not always possible to make close connections, the passenger traffic has not, in other particulars, been interrupted in our improvements."

UNIONISM IN QUEBEC

Sensational Evidence Given in Labor Matters in Quebec

Quebec, Oct. 29—Before the Tribunal of Arbitration which has now taken en delibere the case of the leather cutters of Quebec against the manufacturers in their demand for higher wages, some highly sensational evidence was given by some of the employes as to the controlling influence operated over them by the unions to which they belong. One of the cutters, a man named Desgatie, who testified for the employes, admitted upon cross-examination that if a man working on a weekly salary earns more than he should, according to the scale of prices, he would not be tolerated in the Brotherhood, as in that case he would be giving more work to his employer to the detriment of those who were paying for piecework. Every cutter had to keep a book containing the amount of work performed during a week, and these books were handed in to the Brotherhood for examination to ascertain whether those working on weekly salaries were doing more than they should according to the scale of prices. As regards those working upon piece work, he said that prior to the decision given in 1901, by Mgr. Begin in the matter of the grievances mutually submitted to him, there was a clause in their by-laws which prevented these cutters from receiving more than $13 weekly. Now there was nothing in their rules which prevented a man from earning whatever he could, though he admitted that individual understandings might exist in certain factories that men were not to earn more than a certain amount, though personally he claimed not to know of any such cases. Several witnesses proved, however, that the cutters could earn more than they did if they worked to the utmost of their time and ability.

EMPLOYEES TO UNITE

A Colossal Union of Employers of Labour

Chicago, Oct. 28—The International Federation of Employers which is to be formed in Chicago this week, is attracting attention throughout the United States and Canada and more than 250 associations in various parts of the country have forwarded credentials of delegates who have been assigned to join in the formation of the great national body.

The American Federation of Labor, which for twenty years has been organizing the laboring men of the country into unions, has already begun to warn trade unions of the plan of the employers and is predicting a crisis in unionism.

While the employers are not declaring open antagonism to the labor movement the object of the new national federation is to place the employers of the country in a position to combat unjust and exorbitant demands that have characterized the trade unionism in many districts in past years.

Plan an Employers' Federation.

To successfully cope with the wave of union dictation that has spread over the country it is the plan of the leaders in the movement to form this national federation of employers to divide the United States and Canada into geographical districts, according to the scheme of the American Federation of Labor. In each of these districts an agent will be assigned for the purpose of organizing employers of all trades into associations to become affiliated with the national body.

Will Employ Many Organizers.

Frederick W. Job, secretary of the Chicago Employers' association, who will preside at the sessions of the national congress at Kimball hall, Oct. 29, and 30, said yesterday:

"It is our purpose to place organizers in all parts of the country. These men will have their own districts and will work with employers in the various sections, not only as organizers, but in cases of strikes and trouble that may arise with labor unions. Every man will have his own territory.

"Aside from that, after the national federation has been formed plans for raising a defence fund to be used for the benefit of members of the organization in cases of trouble will be devised. This fund will be created by an assessment on the associations which become affiliated with the national organization."

Secretary Job's office has been a busy one during the past weeks, letters from all parts of the country having been coming in with credentials of the delegates who have been sent to take part in the convention.

THE SULTAN DISLIKES THE POWERS' REFORM

They Mean That Abdul Hamid's Liberty by Misrule of His Subject is at an End--Resents Scheme

Constantinople, Oct. 28.—Abdul Hamid is said fully to realize the gravity of the proposed reforms from the standpoint of Turkish sovereignty. He intensely resents the new scheme, but unless he can break the solidarity of the powers he is helpless. The Sultan could easily precipitate a tremendous struggle.

Many Turkish officials express the utmost indignation at the Austro-Russian demands. They declare that they mean the utter overrunning of Macedonia by impudent, usurping foreigners, and warn Western Europe that Russia and Austria intend to obtain a hold on the Balkans that cannot be broken. The Western Ambassadors are not alarmed at these intimations, and state that neither Russia nor Austria is hunting trouble in the Balkans.

WORLD-WIDE ADMIRATION.

Vienna, Oct. 28.—Candid Austrian officials admit that England's strong policy in the near East has greatly facilitated the development of a scheme for Macedonian reform and gives real hope of improved conditions. It is felt that the result of the combined thinking of Lansdowne, Lamsdorff, and Goluchowski is a document worthy of worldwide admiration as holding out hope of a permanent solution agreeable to Christendom of one of the most difficult problems known in diplomacy.

BULGARIA RELIEVED.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 28.—Official Bulgaria awaits with a sense of relief the issue of the deliberations of the Sultan's advisers.

SULTAN IS WELL.

London, Oct. 28.—The Ottoman Embassy in London issued a statement yesterday to the effect that there was no truth in the report that the Sultan was ill.

UNCLE SAM IS MIXED UP IN THIS REVOLT

Sends a Warship to the Caribean Sea to Keep the Colombians in Order

Washington, Oct. 28.—Is the American Government getting ready for the much-talked-of pro-canal revolution on the Isthmus of Panama? From all appearances trouble of some sort is expected by the Administration, and President Roosevelt is moving energetically to meet it, whether it be secession from Colombia by the Department of Panama or an outbreak in some other region bordering on the Caribbean Sea.

Evidently something is up in the waters to the south of us, but just what it may be is a State secret which is being guarded most jealously. On Saturday the auxiliary cruiser Dixie was despatched from Philadelphia with 400 marines on board. Only a few hours before she sailed she arrived at the League Island navy yard, and the belief of everyone there, as well as those on board, was that she would remain some time to be overhauled. Her boilers and engines need repairs, and a report to that effect had been sent to Washington. Despite this, orders came from Washington for the Dixie to put to sea regardless of her condition. That indicated that the Washington authorities regarded the mission of the Dixie as of too much importance to permit of delay, and that her engineers would have to manage to get along in some sort of fashion with defective boilers and engines.

BALKAN WAR SCARE OVER TILL SPRING

Bulgarian Reserves Leave Leave for Their Homes To-day

A STRAIN ON BULGARIA

Mobilization Was the Cause of an Improved Pacification Plan

Sofia, Oct. 29—An order has been issued for the complete demobolization of the Bulgarian reserves, who will return to their homes today. This marks the end of the war scare for this year. The decision to mobolize the reserves at the moment when the Macedonian massacres were at their height and the large concentration of Turkish troops taking place on the frontier occasioned a sudden change in the situation. Europe realized that the forbearance of Bulgaria was almost exhausted and a serious crisis imminent. The attitude of the Sultan underwent a rapid change. His Majesty did not lose any time in expressing conciliatory sentiments and re-opening direct negotiations. The mobilization has been a severe strain on the sources of Bulgaria, but the sacrifice has not been made in vain. It is scarcely too much to say that if Bulgaria had not armed the enlarged Austro-Russian programme would not have seen the light. Upon the success or failure of the programme depends the contingency of a fresh mobolization in the spring.

TURKEY MAY OBJECT.

Constantinople, Oct. 29—It is said there that a cabinet council has decided to reject the proposed appointment of assessors and other measures of control set forth in the Austro-Russian plan for the betterment of Conditions in Macedonia as incompatible with the sovereign rights of the Sultan. The council, however, agreed that the other proposals were acceptable.

The council of ministers has appointed a commission to consider the Austro-Russian demands and to ascertain the attitude of the other powers on the subject.

Revived National Bathos

THE MAJORITIES ARE GOING HIGHER

Smith will Have Over 200 in the Soo--Mahaffy 185 Ahead

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 28.—Returns from Michipicoten, Goulais, and Batchewana have not yet been received. Smith (Liberal) will have 75 majority in those districts, and the total majority when the returns are complete will be over 200.

Bracebridge, Ont., Oct. 28.—The following addition returns were received this morning:

Ryde, No. 1, 11 majority for Mahaffy.
Ryde, No. 2, 1 majority for Hart;
Polling sub-division 47, Baxter, tie;
Sub-division 19, Franklin, No. 1, majority for Mahaffy 7.
Sub-division 21, Sinclair, No. 1, majority for Mahaffy 7.

Mahaffy's majority is now 186, with five polls to hear from.

TO FIGHT UNION LABOR

President Parry Outlines Objects of Meeting Held in Chicago

Indianapolis, Oct. 28—A constitution for the federation of employers which is being formed at a meeting in Chicago today and tomorrow, has been drafted under the direction of David M. Parry, of the National Manufacturers' Association and will be submitted to the meeting for adoption. It will provide for subordinate federations in districts composed of different sections of the country and there will be one general headquarters, at which the business of all the federated bodies will be transacted.

Mr. Parry says there will be from 800 to 900 delegates at the Chicago meeting, and that the federation will start out with a membership of several thousand employers, thus ensuring success from the beginning. He says Denver has an association of 14,000 members, Kansas City has one of 7,000 members, and there are many others in the East and West, and all will send representatives to the meetings.

He makes no concealment of the fact that the purpose is to oppose the exactions of organized labor and secure to employers the untrammelled conduct of their own affairs.

—The Franchise Committee of the Town Council met last night.

CHANCES FOR CONFLICT IN THE EAST ARE GREATER THAN EVER BEFORE.

Peace Assurances Are Purely Diplomatic

Russia Now Mobolizing Large Army

Her Fleet is Weak but Army is Very Strong

Tokio, October 29—Pacific official assurances with regard to the Russo-Japanese situation should be accepted as purely diplomatic. No compromise has yet been reached. Nothing has occurred to reduce the chances of an early conflict. Marquis Ito's attempt to find a peaceful way out of the embroglio has utterly failed. The majority of his colleagues have decided that the plan suggested would merely give Russia the time it so urgently needs to augment its military and naval strength in the region of prospective hostilities.

From an unimpeachable source connected with the Imperial household, a correspondent learns that the Emperor, in whose hands rests the final decision for peace or war, considers the acts of Russia so flagrantly hostile as to deprive the situation of almost every hope of peace. Russia is daily speaking soothing words to Japan, but its course both in Europe and Asia flaringly reveals the hollowness of its statements. Floods are raging in the North of Manchuria and have temporarily interrupted travel by railway and wagon road, and the flow of Russian troops and munitions of war southward has consequently been arrested. This circumstance has served to show how large and constant is that stream, for the Russians are now taxed to the utmost to provide for the wants of their soldiers.

Japanese agents in Manchuria have reported fully what is going on and the result is that Tokio is disturbed by the gloomy forebodings.

St. Petersburg. October 29 Russia's energy in connection with the far eastern situation is unabated. It takes the form of diplomatic efforts to convince Japan that the Czar's Government does not mean to strike first and equally constant efforts to strengthen Russia's land and sea forces where they can most advantageously assail the Island Empire. A correspondent is reliably informed that Admiral Alexieff has been systematically exaggerating the forces at his command to intimidate Japan, and has been instructing his officers to feed Japanese and other foreign enquirers with false stories of the Muscovite power in Manchuria and in Chinese waters. Correspondents got hold of these stories and consequently have given magnified versions of the state of Russian preparedness to meet Japan.

There were only 22,000 troops at Admiral Alexieff's recent review at Port Arthur and Dalny. Of these only 25,000 would be able to take the field. The total number of Russian soldiers now in East Siberia and Manchuria does not exceed 150,000. This means that the army available for fighting operations against Japan would be about 80,000. Moreover, the size of the Russian navy in the Far East has been exaggerated. The ships there would be no match for those of Japan. That accounts for the fact that Russia is straining every nerve to not only stay the hand of the Mikado, but also to rush troops and ships to the Far East.

MOVEMENT OF ALEXIEFF.

St. Petersburg. Oct. 29—A despatch from Port Arthur says Viceroy Alexieff has gone to Talienwan, to inspect the Russian naval forces in the Pacific.

STRENGTHENING THE FLEET.

London, Oct. 29—The Copenhagen correspondent of the Daily Mail says in a despatch that the Russian cruiser, Dimitri Donskoi, laden with troops and guns, passed Copenhagen today bound for the Far East.

Our Trump Card

St. Johns, Nfld., Oct. 29—It is thought probable in official circles here that Canada, owing to the dissatisfaction over the result of the Alaskan boundary arbitration, will denounce the modus vivendi respecting the Atlantic fisheries at the close of the present season. The effect of this step, if taken, will be to deprive American fishermen of the right to enter Canadian waters to tranship their catches, hire crews or purchase bait. It is thought that Canada will invite Newfoundland to join in this policy because of the inaction of the American Government on the Bond-Hay treaty. The one practical effect of the Alaskan boundary award will be the taking of Newfoundland into the Canadian Confederation, and the cementing of the bonds of unity between the colonies with a view of shutting out the Americans. American diplomacy has overreached itself for once.

SEES A WORLD WAR SAYS BRITISH DIPLOMAT

A War Between Russia and Japan Would Involve Other Powers

New York, Oct. 29—According to the Hon. Arthur H. Drayton, who has just resigned as first assistant secretary of the British legation at Tokio, to become secretary to the British ambassador at Portugal, war between Japan and Russia is inevitable.

"Of the two countries," said Mr. Drayton, "Russia is the better prepared to engage in a contest. When the clash comes—and there is no doubt it will come, and that in the very near future, too—it will be a very serious one, indeed.

"There is no longer any doubt as seems to be the general impression, that war between Russia and Japan would necessarily mean war between Russia and France on the one side and England and Japan on the other.

"Shortly before leaving Tokio I went to say good-bye to Baron Komura, the Japanese foreign minister, and the last words he said to me on leaving him were—'Rest assured that Japan will not need any of your warships; we can handle Russia ourselves.' The fight if it were to come at this moment, would, of course, be a naval one, as the vital point at issue now concerns Corea and not Manchuria."

Of American interest in the far east, Mr. Drayton said:

"If there is anything your country could do to compel Russia to keep her pledge with you to evacuate Manchuria, you could certainly count upon having the moral, if not the material support, of Japan in effecting that issue, and I can safely say that England would be with you, too, in the moral sense."

WAR IS UNAVOIDABLE.

Private advices from high sources in Japan which have just been received, state that all the army and navy war preparations of Japan have been finished.

IS VIEWED AS LORD ALVERSTONE'S REPLY

London Times Alleges Islands Ceded to States are Valueless

IS NOT TAKEN SERIOUSLY

Official Circles Think Laurier Did Not Mean Demand re Treaty-Making

London, Oct. 29—The nearest approach to a reply from Lord Alverstone to the explicit charge of breach of faith brought against him by the Canadian commissioners in the seemingly inspired statement in the Times today, with maps, alleging that the islands in the Portland Channel ceded to the United States are of no strategic or commercial importance whatever, and certainly in no way hold the command of Port Simpson. The obvious Canadian reply to this is, why then were they gratuitously ceded to the United States.

NO ANSWER BY TIMES.

The Times makes no attempt to answer the charge of breach of faith, though in an editorial it goes to the length of regretting that Lord Alverstone failed to make his fresh conclusion about two little islands clear to his Canadian colleagues.

NOT TAKEN SERIOUSLY.

In British official circles Sir Wilfred Laurier's demand for full treaty-making powers is not yet taken seriously. It seems to them to imply something like full independence and they cannot suppose Sir Wilfrid to mean that.

London, Oct. 29—The Times referring to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's declaration for powers to make treaties, says—"We are unwilling to interpret the declaration as deliberately claiming for Canada anything like full treaty making powers because such a suggestion points logically to a separation and we feel that such a conclusion is distant in the mind of the Canadian Premier, or the vast majority of Canadians and Englishmen. To exercise power to make treaties on her own behalf Canada must possess the means for giving effect to them and we cannot see how Canada could hope to do so unless she could count on the armed strength of England. Sir Wilfred Laurier misunderstands the decision."

GILBERT PARKER SPEAKS.

Sir Gilbert Parker, speaking to the Canadian Associated Press, said—"I think that Canada has good reason to feel disappointed, but has no reason to cry 'betrayed.' She accepted the tribunal: she sent representatives, and presumably she was prepared to accept a verdict of the majority. Personally I thought the constitution of the commission little likely to secure without prejudice and peril the ends of justice. Each of the American members had committed himself against the Canadian case. With the most profound respect and admiration for our Canadian representatives, they could not be said to be judicial. Only the Chief Justice of England was above suspicion. I happen to know on the best of authority that he pressed his attitude of judicial impartiality upon the British authorities before consenting to act. I believe it would have been best for Canada at the beginning to have objected to the character of the tribunal and to have denounced it. I think it unfortunate not to accept the decision with dignified silence and reserve. The decision of the tribunal is like red and black at roulette. We have put our money on the red and lost. Let us not blame the croupier."

When interviewed last night, Chief Justice Alverstone said he had nothing further to say on the subject.

The Financial News says the Canadian papers do not make nice reading these days. Canada's anger, it adds, should convince devotees of Anglo-Americanism that carrying infatuation too far in grovelling before the spread eagleism of the United States is a doubtful policy in any case, especially when it alienates the Empire's eldest daughter.

BOURASSA FOR PREMIER

Hon. Mr. Tarte Assumes the Role of Prophet

Montreal, Oct. 29—"In any case I predict that Henri Bourassa, M.P., for Labelle, will be Premier of Quebec within a month." Hon. Mr. Tarte has become prophetic. He is informed by a gentleman possessing the confidence of the Ottawa and Quebec Liberals that Mr. Parent is going to leave office, and while the present Premier will remain Mayor of Quebec, he will be named one of the Railway Commissioners. He declares that the position at Quebec has become untenable, that Mr. Parent is killing the party, both at Ottawa and the ancient capital. Amongst those who aspire to the leadership he names Hon. Messrs. Archambault, Gouin and Turgeon, but all three will prefer an outsider. He predicts that the change will be made within the next four weeks, as the new leader will require time to prepare for the session. The article concludes as follows—"It was thought for a time that the English element might object to Mr. Bourassa, but already the South African war is a thing of the past, and the Alaska award has considerably modified their views."

THE YUKON RIVER BLOCKED WITH ICE

Navigation Closes and Food will Have to be Freighted

SEASON'S OUTPUT OF GOLD

Serious Fire in Opera House, Indignation Over the Boundary Award

Dawson, Y. T., Oct. 29—The steamers Lafrance and Prospector, after a plucky trip through the ice, have arrived with five scows heavily loaded with needed meat and food. The steamers Susie and Rock Island from St. Michael, after a hard battle with the ice below Dawson arrived with less than a hundred tons of food for Dawson. Two hundred people are waiting to go out by stage. The river is running full of ice and navigation is closed for the season. Outgoing steamers are doing well above Selkirk. Several incoming steamers are on the bars near Stewart. The freight will have to be sledded to Dawson.

Official returns show the gold exported from Klondike to the close of navigation to be a trifle over ten million dollars, which is a very satisfactory showing, considering the long period of drought during the middle summer. There is likelihood of a good winter's work.

News comes of the wreck of the Northern Transportation and Trading Company's magnificent big steamer, Will H. Isom," near St. Michaels, Behring Sea. The vessel plied to Dawson and cost $200,000.

FIRE IN A THEATRE.

On Friday fire gutted the upper part of the three-story Orphum Theatre building on First avenue, near the corner of King street, owned by Ben Levy. The damage is about eight thousand dollars damage to the building. The stocks of Reid and Company, druggists, Renzoni, jeweller; Hamilton Douglas, tobacconist, were damaged to the extent of several thousand dollars. The offices of Smith and McRae, barristers, were gutted.

ASSESSMENTS REDUCED.

The Dawson Court of Revision has reduced the assessment on the Canadian Bank of Commerce to $150,000, and the Bank of British North America to $125,000. The White Pass Railway is appealing against $300,000 assessment. The big trading companies are also appealing. The city rate is one cent and a half.

DAWSONIANS INDIGNANT.

There is a bitter feeling among Canadians over the sacrifice of Canadian territory in the boundary award. An agitation for a railway through Canadian territory has already been started.

TO CLIMB THE POLE

Exploring Party Caught in Ice Take Dogs

New York, Oct. 27.—The Fiala-Ziegler polar exploring party, which left New York last May in an attempt to reach the North Pole has failed to get through the passage leading to Franz Josef Land on account of ice floes gathering at the narrows, 150 miles from their intended winter quarters.

Anthony Fiala of Brooklyn, the leader of the expedition, intends to leave his ship and travel along the ice on sleds drawn by Esquimaux dogs, expecting to reach winter quarters by January 1, 1904. In a letter dated August 22, received by his sister, he said:

"We are surrounded by large floes of ice and every hour the weight threatens to crush the side of our good ship America, but before I see friends again I will positively discover the whereabouts of the North Pole and plant the Stars and Stripes at its peak."

THE PROPOSED RAILWAY

The Grand Trunk Manager Refers to Local Railway Scheme

The proposed new line of railway from the C.P.R. below Peterborough to Campbellford, Cobourg, Port Hope, and along the front to Toronto, was the subject of comment by Mr. C. M. Hays, of the Grand Trunk. Mr. Hays, who was seen by a reporter, said "We, in this office, have received no direct complaint from the merchants in question. It may be that, during the past two years when we were busy double-tracking the line in the vicinity of those towns—this with the object of giving the merchants increased facilities for the transportation of their goods—some vexatious delays have occurred. Otherwise there has been no occasion for discontent. While on the branch lines it is not always possible to make close connections, the passenger traffic has not, in other particulars, been interrupted in our improvements."

UNIONISM IN QUEBEC

Sensational Evidence Given in Labor Matters in Quebec

Quebec, Oct. 28—Before the Tribunal of Arbitration, which has now taken en delibere the case of the leather cutters of Quebec against the manufacturers in their demand for higher wages, some highly sensational evidence was given by some of the employes as to the controlling influence operated over them by the unions to which they belong. One of the cutters, a man named Degagne, who testified for the employes, admitted upon cross-examination that if a man working on a weekly salary earns more than he should, according to the scale of prices, he would not be tolerated in the Brotherhood, as in that case he would be giving more work to his employer to the detriment of those who were paying for piecework. Every cutter had to keep a book containing the amount of work performed during a week, and these books were handed in to the Brotherhood for examination to ascertain whether those working on weekly salaries were doing more than they should according to the scale of prices. As regards those working upon piece work, he said that prior to the decision given in 1901, by Mgr. Begin in the matter of the grievances mutually submitted to him, there was a clause in their by-laws which prevented these cutters from receiving more than $13 weekly. Now there was nothing in their rules which prevented a man from earning whatever he could, though he admitted that individual understandings might exist in certain factories that men were not to earn more than a certain amount, though personally he claimed not to know of any such cases. Several witnesses proved, however, that the cutters could earn more than they did if they worked to the utmost of their time and ability.

EMPLOYEES TO UNITE

A Colossal Union of Employers of Labour

Chicago, Oct. 28.—The International Federation of Employers which is to be formed in Chicago this week, is attracting attention throughout the United States and Canada and more than 850 associations in various parts of the country have forwarded credentials of delegates who have been assigned to join in the formation of the great national body.

The American Federation of Labor, which for twenty years has been organizing the laboring man of the country into unions, has already begun to warn trade unions of the plan of the employers and is predicting a crisis in unionism.

While the employers are not declaring open antagonism to the labor movement the object of the new national federation is to place the employers of the country in a position to combat unjust and exorbitant demands that have characterized the trade unionism in many districts in past years.

Plan an Employers' Federation.

To successfully cope with the wave of union dictation that has spread over the country it is the plan of the leaders in the movement to form this national federation of employers, to divide the United States and Canada into geographical districts, according to the scheme of the American Federation of Labor. In each of these districts an agent will be assigned for the purpose of organizing employers of all trades into associations to become affiliated with the national body.

Will Employ Many Organizers.

Frederick W. Job, secretary of the Chicago Employers' association, who will preside at the sessions of the national congress at Kimball hall, Oct. 29, and 30, said yesterday:

"It is our purpose to place organizers in all parts of the country. These men will have their own districts and will work with employers in the various sections, not only as organizers, but in cases of strikes and trouble that may arise with labor unions. Every man will have his own territory.

"Aside from that, after the national federation has been formed plans for raising a defence fund to be used for the benefit of members of the organization in cases of trouble will be devised. This fund will be created by an assessment on the associations which become affiliated with the national organization."

Secretary Job's office has been a busy one during the past weeks, letters from all parts of the country having been coming in with credentials of the delegates who have been sent to take part in the convention.

TO FIGHT UNION LABOR

President Parry Outlines Objects of Meeting Held in Chicago

Indianapolis, Oct. 28—A constitution for the federation of employers which is being formed at a meeting in Chicago today and tomorrow, has been drafted under the direction of David M. Parry, of the National Manufacturers' Association and will be submitted to the meeting for adoption. It will provide for subordinate federations in districts composed of different sections of the country and there will be one general headquarters, at which the business of all the federated bodies will be transacted.

Mr. Parry says there will be from 600 to 800 delegates at the Chicago meeting, and that the federation will start out with a membership of several thousand employers, thus ensuring success from the beginning. He says Denver has an association of 14,000 members, Kansas City has one of 7,000 members, and there are many others in the East and West, and all will send representatives to the meeting.

He makes no concealment of the fact that the purpose is to oppose the exactions of organized labor and secure to employers the untrammelled conduct of their own affairs.

THE SULTAN DISLIKES THE POWERS' REFORM

They Mean That Abdul Hamid's Liberty by Misrule of His Subject is at an End--Resents Scheme

Constantinople, Oct. 28.—Abdul Hamid is said fully to realize the gravity of the proposed reforms from the standpoint of Turkish sovereignty. He intensely resents the new scheme, but unless he can break the solidarity of the powers he is helpless. The Sultan could easily precipitate a tremendous struggle.

Many Turkish officials express the utmost indignation at the Austro-Russian demands. They declare that they mean the utter overrunning of Macedonia by impudent, usurping foreigners, and warn Western Europe that Russia and Austria intend to obtain a hold on the Balkans that cannot be broken. The Western Ambassadors are not alarmed at these intimations, and state that neither Russia nor Austria is hunting trouble in the Balkans.

WORLD-WIDE ADMIRATION.

Vienna, Oct. 28.—Candid Austrian officials admit that England's strong policy in the near East has greatly facilitated the development of a scheme for Macedonian reform and gives real hope of improved conditions. It is felt that the result of the combined thinking of Lansdowne, Lamsdorff, and Goluchowski is a document worthy of worldwide admiration as holding out hope of a permanent solution agreeable to Christendom of one of the most difficult problems known in diplomacy.

BULGARIA RELIEVED.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 28.—Official Bulgaria awaits with a sense of relief the issue of the deliberations of the Sultan's advisers.

SULTAN IS WELL.

London, Oct. 28.—The Ottoman Embassy in London issued a statement yesterday to the effect that there was no truth in the report that the Sultan was ill.

UNCLE SAM IS MIXED UP IN THIS REVOLT

Sends a Warship to the Caribean Sea to Keep the Colombians in Order

Washington, Oct. 28—Is the American Government getting ready for the much-talked-of pro-canal revolution on the Isthmus of Panama? From all appearances trouble of some sort is expected by the Administration, and President Roosevelt is moving energetically to meet it, whether it be secession from Colombia by the Department of Panama or an outbreak in some other region bordering on the Caribbean Sea.

Evidently something is up in the waters to the south of us, but just what it may be is a State secret which is being guarded most jealously. On Saturday the auxiliary cruiser Dixie was despatched from Philadelphia with 400 marines on board. Only a few hours before she sailed she arrived at the League Island navy yard, and the belief of everyone there, as well as those on board, was that she would remain some time to be overhauled. Her boilers and engines need repairs, and a report to that effect had been sent to Washington. Despite this, orders came from Washington for the Dixie to put to sea regardless of her condition. That indicated that the Washington authorities regarded the mission of the Dixie as of too much importance to permit of delay, and that her engineers would have to manage to get along in some sort of fashion with defective boilers and engines.

BALKAN WAR SCARE OVER TILL SPRING

Bulgarian Reserves Leave Leave for Their Homes To-day

A STRAIN ON BULGARIA

Mobilization Was the Cause of an Improved Pacification Plan

Sofia, Oct. 29—An order has been issued for the complete demobolization of the Bulgarian reserves, who will return to their homes today. This marks the end of the war scare for this year. The decision to mobolize the reserves at the moment when the Macedonian massacres were at their height and the large concentration of Turkish troops taking place on the frontier occasioned a sudden change in the situation. Europe realized that the forbearance of Bulgaria was almost exhausted and a serious crisis imminent. The attitude of the Sultan underwent a rapid change. His Majesty did not lose any time in expressing conciliatory sentiments and re-opening direct negotiations. The mobolization has been a severe strain on the sources of Bulgaria, but the sacrifice has not been made in vain. It is scarcely too much to say that if Bulgaria had not armed the enlarged Austro-Russian programme would not have seen the light. Upon the success or failure of the programme depends the contingency of a fresh mobolization in the spring.

TURKEY MAY OBJECT.

Constantinople, Oct. 29—It is said there that a cabinet council has decided to reject the proposed appointment of assessors and other measures of control set forth in the Austro-Russian plan for the betterment of Conditions in Macedonia as incompatible with the sovereign rights of the Sultan. The council, however, agreed that the other proposals were acceptable.

The council of ministers has appointed a commission to consider the Austro-Russian demands and to ascertain the attitude of the other powers on the subject.

Reviled National Anthem

THE MAJORITIES ARE GOING HIGHER

Smith will Have Over 200 in the Soo--Mahaffy 185 Ahead

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 28.—Returns from Michipicoten, Goulais, and Batchewana have not yet been received. Smith (Liberal) will have 75 majority in these districts, and the total majority when the returns are complete will be over 200.

Bracebridge, Ont., Oct. 28.—The following addition returns were received this morning:

Ryde, No. 1, 15 majority for Mahaffy.
Ryde, No. 2, 1 majority for Hart.
Polling sub-division 47, Baxter, tie.
Sub-division 9, Franklin, No. 1, majority for Mahaffy 1.
Sub-division 41, Sinclair, No. 1, majority for Mahaffy 7.
Mahaffy's majority is now 186, with five polls to hear from.

THAT CAMPAIGN LITERATURE

An incident that has reflected little credit upon either Dominion parties is ended with the announcement that the last car load of franked Conservative literature has left Ottawa for its destination.

The Journal thinks it is little credit that is coming to the Conservative party in flooding Canada's mails with their free carried literature, and thus costing the country thousands of dollars' expense which the Conservative party fund should pay.

It is little credit to the Liberal government that once these thousands of mail bags were accepted by the post office department, their postage filling the letter is violating the spirit of the law, that they were allowed to hang around week after week in the corridors of parliament because of the fact they were only Conservative literature.

If the government does not care to abolish the franking privilege or make such alterations in it as to render such abuses impossible, it logically must be prepared to take the consequences that such lack of legislation engenders.

One pleasing point in the affair is in the class of literature that is being sent out by the Conservative party. It consists largely of the printed speeches of its leaders in parliament, and is partisan only in the sense that it but represents one side of great questions. The Conservative party seem to have abandoned the old highly colored literature, which dealt more with rhetoric than facts and with abuse rather than argument.

The Conservative literature which seems to be destined to convince the independent voter, rather than to delight the hearts of the ninety and nine faithful that need no such fillip, is typical of the saner ideals that have recently governed the Conservative party, and, with other things, means that the next Dominion election will be a more closely fought one than the election that is past.

But it is a pity that the party saw fit to send their literature out at the country's expense.

REMOVING THE HATS

Rev. Mr. Johnston, of Toronto, formerly the pastor of the Queen street church, Kingston, on Sunday asked the ladies when they attended the evening service to remove their hats. There was a very ready response. We need an innovation of that kind here. Where the floor of the church is dished the hat nuisance is not so apparent, but in any case there is the menace of one being completely shut out behind the new style of hat. The writer, says the Kingston Whig, had a recent experience and knows whereof he speaks. He had a seat in a pew which was pretty well filled, which did not permit of him altering his location. Before him sat a young lady with her new fall hat. It had an immense rim and projection. Beyond it he could see nothing. He craned his neck occasionally in the hope of seeing the preacher, but in vain. So he settled down to be a hearer of the word, and a viewer of the hat. Rev. Mr. Johnston has perhaps observed people in his congregation endeavoring to dodge the new hat discs, and he has come to their rescue. His manly course can be imitated fittingly by every clergyman in this city. The hat is all right, and looks well upon the street. But in the church it is a blind and a nuisance and suggests thoughts that are seriously out of place.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

At a small school in the backwoods a well-meaning but misguided instructor gave her pupils the task of subtracting 629 from 880,745,869 until nothing remained, as a home lesson. On the way from school the children rejoiced at so easy a requisition, but once at work their rejoicing was speedily turned to sorrow. After working for hours without any perceptible diminution in the figures, the youngsters gave up in despair. Parents then tried, but without better success, and small wonder. In order to complete the task the number given would have to be subtracted 1,400,300 times, leaving a small remainder. Some indignant parent calculated that, working at the rate of three subtractions a minute for 12 hours a day, the task given the children for an evening's exercise would require a little more than a year and nine months to accomplish.

THE CROSSION AFFAIR

Provincial Secretary Makes a Statement of the Affair

Hon. J. R. Stratton says the opposition papers were insinuating the Government and himself had been in some way connected with the purchase or the transfer of Mr. Gamey's stock in the piano factory to obtain the recently published statement from Mr. Crossin. Mr. Stratton says that he purchased no stock of Mr. Gamey's nor any from Mr. Crossin, nor did any one do so, directly or indirectly for himself or for the Government. If there was any broader or more general way of denying this he desired to be understood as having denied it in the broadest possible terms. The matter was one between Mr. Gamey and Mr. Crossin and his counsel, and he had nothing to do with it, and cared less about it. Mr. Crossin, declared Mr. Stratton, had made his statement, so far as he knew, of his own accord.

A KINGSTON VICTIM

Frank J Upper Killed in Subway Collapse

New York, Oct. 27.—It has come to light that Frank J. Upper, one of the victims of the subway collapse on Saturday night, when ten men lost their lives, was not a laborer, but the son of Mrs. Katherine Upper, widow of Joseph Upper, a wealthy railroad contractor of Kingston, Ont. For the last year Mr. Upper has been employed on the subway. He obtained his position through John E. McDonald, who had been a close friend of his father's. Crushed beyond all recognition, Mr. Upper's body has been forwarded to Kingston, Ont., Mrs. Upper and her daughter accompanying the body.

Creeps Like a Serpent

Catarrh is an insidous disease, scarcely noticeable at first, but horribly relentless if not checked

No disease makes such inroads into weak constitutions as Catarrh. It spreads from the place of beginning to the lungs, bronchial tubes, stomach, intestines, and before long all the organs of the body are affected.

A splendid remedy, attended with remarkable success in curing Catarrh has lately come prominently to the front. Its name is Catarrhozone, and no case is recorded where it failed to quickly relieve and cure.

The strong points about Catarrhozone are that it is both a local and constitutional treatment. It not only affords quick relief to the local symptoms, but also purifies the blood of all Catarrhal poisons, builds up and strengthens the system.

Catarrhozone Inhaler supplies an abundance of medicated air which is breathed in at the mouth, and after passing through every air cell and air passage of the breathing organs, is slowly exhaled through the nostrils.

This penetrating, volatile antiseptic at once kills the germs that cause Catarrh and prevents the disease from spreading when once established. It is so healing and soothing that the inflamed membranes and sore spots are restored to normal and healthy condition in a few days.

Catarrhozone cleanses the nose and throat and keeps them entirely free of mucous discharge. It prevents dropping in the throat, cures headache and makes breathing easy and the breath pure and sweet.

To build up and invigorate the system, a blood purifier and tonic called Ferrozone should be taken after each meal. In conjunction with Catarrhozone it is a valuable aid in establishing such a healthy condition of the body that Catarrh cannot exist.

$1.00. Trial size, 25 cts. Sold by

Other remedies have been known to give relief, but to permanently eradicate every trace of Catarrh you must use Catarrhozone. It is a common-sense, convenient, clean method of cure that is endorsed by the profession and all intelligent pharmacists.

You are sure to be benefited quickly and positively cured by Catarrh-

A POLITICAL MURDER

President of Armenian Revolutionary Society Killed

London, Oct. 27. — Sagatel Sagouni, president of the Armenian Revolutionary Society in London, was murdered in the suburb of Nurhead last night. The crime has created a sensation, as it has every appearance of being of a political character, and has been preceded by the assassinations of other officials of branches of the same society on the Continent.

Sagouni, who only returned to London yesterday after settling up the affairs of an associate in Switzerland who was recently assassinated by stabbing, was entering his residence when a man rushed across the road and fired four shots at Sagouni in quick succession, the last bullet entering the region of the heart. The murderer, who appeared to be a foreigner, fled. The only clues to the man in possession of the authorities are a felt hat and a silver-plated revolver, both made in New York, which he dropped in his flight.

The murdered man, who was a mining engineer, became wealthy in the Caucasus, and devoted his money to the Armenian cause. His society was entirely passive and opposed to violence, and it is thought this attitude inspired the advanced section of the Armenians with the desire for vengeance, the latter claiming that Sagouni's society devoted funds to charity which would have been better applied to violent remedies for the Armenian grievances.

VICTORIA'S BIOGRAPHER

John Morley Mentioned as Best Man for the Work

London, Oct. 27.—The official biographer of Queen Victoria has not yet been selected, although John Morley has been suggested as the best man in England to write a history of her reign. R. R. Holmes, the librarian at Windsor Castle, wrote an authorized life some years ago, and she edited the manuscript herself, striking out what Mr. Holmes says were the most interesting parts. Queen Victoria's papers, covering her reign of 63 years, which are very voluminous and contain a mine of historical material, have been placed in the royal archives with her autographs—perhaps the most valuable collection in the world. The late Queen was very fond of collecting autographs and fine books, although she never went at either systematically, and her collection is more incidental than otherwise. She was careful about keeping letters that were written to her, and among her preserved correspondence are personal letters from nearly every sovereign and from many of the famous churchmen and statesmen who occupied the world's attention during the nineteenth century. Many of them relate to subjects of international importance.

DUMPED DOWN PIT

Bucket in Which They were being Lowered Tipped

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 27.—At Dawson & Riley's wheel-pit of the Canadian Niagara Power Company's works shortly after 7 o'clock this morning a portion of the day shift men were being lowered into the pit in the bucket. It contained George Hillier, employed as pumpman, who resides with his widowed mother in this town, and five Hungarian laborers. When the bucket reached about 50 feet from the bottom it was stopped to allow one of the men to get off on to a cross-bridge, and some one in the bucket gave the signal to lower when the side of the bucket was caught on the cross-bridge. Hillier and four of the Hungarians were dumped out. They fell on the solid rock, some 50 feet below. Two of the Hungarians were killed instantly, while Hillier had both arms and both legs broken, and died in the ambulance on the way to the hospital. The third Hungarian who fell had his left wrist, right arm and wrist, and above the elbow broken and his skull is supposed to be fractured. The fourth escaped with a broken leg and a few bruises. The fifth Hungarian clung to the bucket.

A Western Character.

The recent death of Martha Canary—better known as "Calamity Jane"—has revived many tales of her remarkable adventures in the West during the early troubles. Once, it is related, she was riding in a stage coach driven by Jack McCaull, a notorious character of Deadwood, S.D., when a band of Indians swooped down. McCaull was wounded and fell back on his seat. The six passengers in the coach were helpless with fright. "Calamity Jane" scrambled to the seat, lashed the horses into a run and escaped. It was this same McCaull who afterward was made the most memorable example of "Calamity Jane's" vengeance. McCaull shot "Wild Bill" Hickok from behind a tree, for a reason never known, after "Wild Bill" had staked him. When "Calamity Jane" heard of it, she started at once to find McCaull. "Wild Bill" was her friend and the fact that she had once saved McCaull's life did not deter her from taking it. "I gave it to him once," she declared, "I'll take it back now." She came across him unexpectedly in a meat-shop, seized a cleaver, and, threatening to brain him if he moved, waited till her friends bound him. She was one of those who tugged hardest to pull him over a cottonwood limb, and with grim satisfaction she watched him kick his life away.

ENGLAND'S NEED.

What Benefit will Preference be to Dairy men

London, Oct. 27.—At a meeting of the Cheshire Chamber of Agriculture, called to discuss the preferential tariffs, Tollemache, M.P., referring to the suggested tax of five per cent. on cheese, said he failed to see how such a duty would benefit the English dairymen, when colonial cheese must come in free. An Irish member of Parliament said that without doubt, whenever Mr. Chamberlain's proposals are brought before the House, whether it be sooner or later, the Home Rule flag will be waved stronger than ever. "Where," asked the member of Parliament, "would the Government have been on the Education bill but for the Irish contingent in Parliament? When the English political parties are swept to and fro by irresistible tides of political difference that is our opportunity, and we will seize such opportunities every time they are offered."

The Upheaval of the Celt

Someone has been yelling forth the virtues of the Celt. The upheaval of the Celt is a periodic event, and is in some way distantly related to the Australian drought cycles and the spots on the sun. Personally (says a writer in an Australian paper) I have always found that you can make a fast friend and sworn ally of the Celt by simply remarking in an affable manner, "Good night, Sergeant!" The Celtic chest swells immediately, there is a more dignified atmosphere about the movements of his hind legs; and after passing that remark three nights running you are free to commit any crime in the calendar—murder, arson, abduction; anything, in fact, but the crime of tearing "me uniform." Yes, the Celt is a very fine fellow as long as you address him as "Sergeant"—unless he is a sergeant—then I am always careful to address him as "Inspector." That, however, has to be done with discretion—if done too often or too suddenly the Celt is liable to burst.

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house or sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

COPETE MINING CO.
27 William Street, New York
Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5
More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tulloch, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Erwin D Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now a clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

[illegible] of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

Strange Run of Numbers.

"Odd how one particular number will seem to be connected with the fate of some particular person, is it not?" asked the man with the incandescent whiskers of the man with the underdone nose.

"Yes," answered the man with the underdone nose. "Now, there was Finley Marigger, down our way. He was born on the sixth day of the month, grew to be six feet tall, had six children, and died on the sixth day of the week, worth six million dollars."

"Rather strange," said the man with the incandescent whiskers; "but it isn't a circumstance compared to Tennyson Ten Eycke, a fellow I used to know. He was born on the tenth day of the tenth month, in the tenth year after his parents were married. He was always a tender-hearted boy, and at ten years of age he lost ten fingers and toes altogether by trying to save ten kittens that had been thrown in front of a train of ten cars on the tenth siding in the railway yards at 10.10 a.m. Ten years later he was married to Tennie Tendall, whose father owned ten business blocks, each ten stories high. They were divorced in ten weeks, and he married a girl named Tenwick, who lived ten miles from Teneriffe. They got room 10 at a hotel on their bridal tour, which began on the tenth day of the month, and the hotel collapsed at ten o'clock at night, and ten hours later they dug them out, and she was dead. He mourned her for ten days only, and was then married to a widow woman by the name of Tengerrow. She eloped with a man named Tenhally ten minutes after they were married. It went along that way until Ten Eycke had married ten wives, and he was perfectly happy with the tenth."

"That certainly is remarkable," observed the man with the underdone nose.

"Yes. And in addition to all that Tennyson Ten Eycke was the most tender-hearted man you ever knew, in spite of his misfortunes. Also, he was the champion tennis player; but at golf it always took ten strokes for him to put the ball in the hole, and as a usual thing he lost ten balls in every game. He died ten years ago, having been shot ten times by a man who disputed a debt of ten dollars and ten cents."

The man with the underdone nose cast a glance of suspicion at the man with the incandescent whiskers.

"And," he mused, "I suppose they buried Ten Eycke in a grave ten feet deep and ten miles from nowhere, and the tender tendrils of ten of the tenderest vines are tentatively twining over his ten-year-old tomb."

Then the man with the incandescent whiskers ordered some ten-cent cigars, and they smoked for ten minutes.—"Judge."

Victim of His Own Game.

Mrs. Potter Palmer's son Honore, who was married in August, once outwitted a concierge in Paris neatly.

A lad of sixteen or thereabout at the time, he was spending the winter in Paris with his mother. One cold night in February he stayed out unusually late, and, desiring to get in without awakening anyone, he rang up the concierge softly. The concierge, with equal softness, came downstairs. He whispered through the keyhole, "Is that you, M. Palmer?" and then he said, positively:

"I can't let you in, sir."

"Why not?" asked the young man.

"Because the rules are very strict," said the concierge. "No one ever is let in after midnight."

The boy desired ardently to enter. He thought a moment, then he slipped a gold louis under the door.

"I have just slipped a gold louis under the door for you, concierge," he whispered. "Now let me in, that's a good fellow."

The concierge instantly drew back the bolt. "Come in softly. Make no noise monsieur," he said shamelessly.

But young Palmer was already regretting the gold louis—his last one. A thought struck him, and he had no sooner entered than he said:

"Oh, by the way, I left a book on the stone balustrade outside. Do you mind getting it for me?"

With great politeness the concierge, in his bare feet, tiptoed out upon the cold stones. While he fumbled about the boy pushed to the door and locked it.

"Let me in, monsieur," whispered the concierge, who had on nothing but a nightdress of white linen.

"I can't let you in. We let no one in after midnight. Unless——"

But young Palmer had to go no further. The concierge, freezing in the cold, perceived that he had been outwitted and in his turn slipped the gold louis under the door. Pocketing it, the boy admitted the man and then went quietly to bed.

An Imaginary Mongoose.

A passenger entered a railway carriage in Australia, in which was seated a particularly aggressive commercial traveler, and placed in the rack opposite a small wooden box pierced with holes. In the conversation which followed the commercial traveler gave several hints that he would like to know what was in the box, without avail. At last his curiosity got the better of him.

"I say, old man," he asked, "what have you in that box?"

"A mongoose," was the reply.

A series of diplomatic remarks followed, aimed at getting the reason for carrying a mongoose; but, as no explanation was offered, the commercial traveler had to say plump out:

"What are you going to do with that mongoose?"

The answer he got was: "I'm going to see a friend who has been drinking very heavily of late—so heavily, in fact, that he has developed delirium tremens. You may be aware that people so suffering are inclined to see snakes, and you may also be aware that there is nothing on earth so deadly to snakes as a mongoose." He sat back, evidently satisfied that he had given a full and complete explanation.

"But—but, I say," said the commercial traveler, "those snakes are imaginary."

"So is my mongoose," returned the person interrogated.—"Sporting Times."

A State of Nature.

Our English cousins use "left off" for our "cast off" as applied to second-hand garments. The following advertisement recently appeared in a London paper: "Mr and Mrs. Hardy have left off clothing of all kinds. They can be seen any day from 3 to 6 p.m."—Julia' I. Patton in "Lippincott's Magazine."

The most gifted of all women composers was Clara Schumann, yet shortly before her marriage she frankly wrote in her diary: "I used to think I had talent for creating, but I have changed my mind. Women should not wish to compose; not one has ever succeeded. To suppose that I was destined to be an exception would be an arrogant assumption, which I made formerly, but only because my father prompted me."

Cupid in the Country.

Young and bashful Henry Dorn and Jenny Hicks were standing on opposite sides of the fence that enclosed the Dorn farm. Jenny's elbows were on the top rail, and her chin was in the palms of her hands. Henry was standing a little off, wistfully but modestly contemplating his pretty little neighbor.

"Jenny," he said, "have y' heerd y're pap say how his potatoes air comin' out this year?"

"They're all little and mighty few in a hill, Henry."

Henry put out one hand and rested it on the top rail very near Jenny's elbow.

"Ours is pretty good," he said. "Reckon we'll have a fair crop of 'em."

"I hope y' will."

Henry put his other hand on the rail. His position was face to face with Jenny, his hands enclosing her elbows.

"Air y' afeerd of fallin' backward?" she asked.

"Wall, it's kind o' humpy underfoot here. A plowed field's no place to stand 'thout holdin' on ter somep'n."

Notwithstanding Jenny's covert intimation that Henry was edging rather close, she stood her ground.

"They say Mabel Haines is a-goin' to be married," she remarked.

"Waal, that's naterl. I'd like to find some gal willin' to marry me."

"I s'pose any of 'em would suit y'?"

"No, they wouldn't. The gal I want has blue eyes, yaller hair, and a mighty trim figure."

"Half the gals 'bout here has blue eyes and yaller hair."

"There's only one got the right shade for me."

Henry continued to pull himself forward at intervals, each time drawing a trifle nearer to Jenny's face.

"Y' better stop that," she said.

"Why?"

"'Cause."

Although Jenny spoke very mildly, she frightened the bashful swain. He leaned as far back as his arms would let him and looked at her dubiously. He saw no encouragement. It did not occur to him that Jenny might stand farther from the fence. But Jenny's mild admonition was her only effort to prevent him touching her rosy lips with his whenever he had mustered the necessary courage.

"Jenny," he said, "I b'lieve y're afeerd I'm goin' to kiss y'."

"No, I ain't. Y' wouldn't dare do that."

"Would y' mind?"

"Henry Dorn, y' jist stop talkin' 'bout sich things."

Henry started. He wondered how he could have been so bold. He let go his hold on the fence and stood back.

"Our brindle cow," he said, "had a calf last night."

To this bit of information Jenny made no reply. She dropped her arms on to the top rail and looked far beyond the easily discouraged Henry.

"Y're mad at me fer talkin' about kissin' y'," he said.

"I ain't mad about y're talkin' about kissin' me," she replied.

"Y're mad from somep'n. I reckoned that was it."

"What y' say?"

Henry repeated.

"Oh, y're standin' so far away I couldn't hear y'."

Henry pondered upon this remark, and a glimmer of encouragement penetrated his sluggish brain. He approached the fence, and after a few irrelevant remarks put his hands on the rail again, enclosing Jenny's round arms, though his were unbent, keeping him at a distance from the lips he coveted.

"If y' think y' kin drive me away from this fence," she said, "y're mighty mistaken."

"I ain't a-tryin'."

Henry began a process of swinging backward and forward. Several times he approached within a few inches of her lips. She neither moved nor spoke. Finally the temptation was too great for him, and as a bit of metal placed too close to a magnet will suddenly click against it, he got within an irresistible attraction and their lips met. Henry drew back, abashed.

"That was an accident," he said. "I wouldn't 'a' done it fer a quarter section o' land if I could 'a' helped it."

"And I wouldn't 'a' had y' done it fer another quarter section," replied the girl, coloring. "D'ye think I want anybody to kiss me as feels that a-way?"

"Air y' goin' to forgive me, Jenny?"

"No."

The word was spoken in a very noncommittal tone, but Henry did not so understand it. He stood very near the pouting lips that had tasted so sweet, and a bit of recklessness came to him.

"Jenny," he said, "I reckon that if y' air not goin' to forgive me fer takin' one, I might as well have a dozen."

To this Jenny made no reply. She looked out toward a barn that loomed up on the crest of a distant hill and waited.

"How much madder would y' be if I took a dozen than if I took one?" he asked.

"Lots."

Henry was beginning to discover that the penalty he must pay for a kiss was not very severe. Jenny's lips were still pouting within a few inches of his, and he was thinking if one kiss had been so sweet that a dozen must be twelve times sweeter. He slowly drew nearer and nearer, giving her plenty of time to draw back. She did not move, and at last Henry was reveling in another kiss, though whether it was one long kiss or a dozen short ones, he never afterward recollected.

That was the way it began. It drifted for months before Henry said anything about marriage, and when he did Jenny had long understood that that would be the inevitable result.—Harriet Ferguson in "The 400."

The Easy Route.

The old squire lay a-dying, and his faithful coachman was summoned to the bedside. "Well, John," said the old gallant, "I'm going now on a longer journey than ever you could drive me." "Never mind, squire, never mind," cried the servant, in a broken voice; "it'll be downhill all the way."—London "Globe."

A United States newspaper tells the following somewhat improbable story:

While in Canada, Lord and Lady Lansdowne pleased the Canadian people by their friendly and unassuming manners, which were in marked contrast to those of former Governors-General and their wives. It is related that at a garrison ball at Halifax the Colonel of the regiment that was giving the dance came up to Lady Lansdowne and said: "Lady Lansdowne, won't you give me a dance, please? I'm tired of dancing with these silly little colonial girls. They have no style. I believe I'm engaged to one of them for the next dance, but you might be kind enough to rescue me." Lady Lansdowne replied, in tones loud enough for everybody to hear, that the Colonel was unfit to associate with any decent people, colonial or otherwise, and concluded: "If this is the way you treat your guests I will relieve you of the presence of one of them at once." Then she ordered her carriage and left the ball.

Black Hills Copper Company
LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is new offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

Purchase the Treasury Stock of The Drake Mining Drainage and Tunnel Transportation Co.

OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 150 to 450 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,300 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale 200,000 shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at 50 cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

Active and experienced agents wanted to sell said Preferred Treasury stock on commission

THE ROSE OF THE RING

"I will not stoop to such a bondage," she said, all the pride of her nature revolting against his words. "An hour ago you believed me to be your wife. Give me the right to bear that name—the name that should be justly mine—or we must part."

"Then let it be so," he retorted, angered by her scorn. "You have decided for yourself and will have only yourself to blame for our separation. Having escaped from this marriage, I should be mad to renew the tie. There will be a time when I am my own master, when I have wealth at my disposal. Heaven knows, I shall suffer as much through this parting as you will," he added, his voice softening as he read the agony on her face. "I am not made of stone, Gretchen, and I never loved any one as I love you."

He put out his arms and drew her to his breast.

Gretchen could not speak.

Her heart seemed bursting, and the breath came through her dry lips in heavy gasps.

Suddenly a fierce cry broke from her, and she tore herself from his arms.

In her eyes there was a frenzied look that for a moment made him quail.

"Coward!" she panted. "How dare you mock me with that word? Love! Have you a ray of tenderness in your heart? Your only love is love of self—love of gold! In you there is no sense of manly honor. You sacrifice all to black, sordid greed! Go; freedom is yours—with it my bitterest curse!"

She flung open the door of the hut and pointed out into the darkness.

The light from the lantern glimmered on her face and fell faintly about her form.

Frank stood immovable, gazing at her like one in a dream, dazed by the tragic aspect the scene had assumed.

Was this the Gretchen he had loved?—this pale, wild-eyed woman, whose every nerve seemed strung to scorn.

He looked into her eyes—they were living flames.

His glance fell on the lips he had been wont to kiss—they were pallid and ghastly, showing the gleaming teeth behind them, as though she longed to spring upon him and tear him piece by piece.

A kind of fascination urged him to her side.

He touched her hand—her clenched hand—and it was dashed savagely in his face.

"Go, traitor! Go, fiend!" she hissed. "I loved you, and you have turned my love to scorn! The time will come when you will kneel at my feet and implore me to give you back that love; when you will beseech me to become your wife—to bear the name to which you now deny me the right! Then I will give you such an answer as you have given me—and leave you mocked and scorned!"

Enraged, and smarting under the blow she had struck him with her hand, he went past her, out into the darkness.

Once he turned and looked at her, standing in the murky light.

Her face seemed transformed, like a face conjured up by a nightmare; all that was soft and lovely had given place to tigerish hate.

It was not the Gretchen of his love who stood there, but a woman whose passion made her repulsive in his sight—a woman from whom he turned as from a scorpion.

He plunged deep into the night, her face, as he had seen it last, haunting him.

Once he stopped to wipe the clammy drops from his brow, and a sense of escape and relief came over him.

"This, then, is her true nature," he muttered. "Thank Heaven, I am not tied to her for life! Her face was like a devil's! How could I ever have loved her?"

Already his love for her was dead, and he wondered that he could ever have held her in his arms and kissed her lips.

Few men forgive a blow, even from a woman's white hand.

In striking him Gretchen had sealed her doom; she had quenched the one spark of tenderness that existed in his breast for her.

Pitiful as his love had been, such as it was, she had slain it, and no word of hers would ever kindle the dead ashes to life.

She watched him depart, saw him disappear in the shadows and mingle with the darkness.

How many times she had parted from him on this very spot!

How often had listened to the sound [illegible]

Now he was gone forever; gone with anger rife in his breast.

Their farewell, a tide of bitterness between them.

The uncertain light from the lantern played on her face, and gradually the evil in it faded.

The look that had been so terrible to Frank left her eyes, and an expression of heart-breaking despair settled on her features.

He was gone.

She had driven him from her with mad words and a cruel blow.

She had struck the face she loved, the face she would have covered now with sorrowful kisses.

The memory of that blow tortured her with a remorse as passionate as her scorn had been a few moments ago, and lifting her face in the darkness, she cried out his name.

"Frank! Frank! come back to me! I love you. Come back and forgive me! I love you! I love you!

Her voice pierced the stillness of the night.

Her despairing accents must have penetrated to Frank's ears, but the sound could not turn him from his purpose, nor bring a softened feeling to his heart.

Gretchen called again and again, her voice shrill with agony, her face piteous in its wild remorse.

"He hears me," she moaned, when no answer came to her, "but he will not come back. Oh, God, shall I ever see him again. My love, my love, come back to me, or I shall die!"

She tried to raise her voice once more.

The words were choked in her throat, and only a faint, gasping sound came through her lips.

Pressing her hands to her head, she tottered back into the hut, feeling as though there was no light on earth for her.

"Gone—gone!" she wailed. "And what am I? Heaven pity me! In my extremity I know not to what I may be driven!"

After this there came a sound as of rushing waters in her ears; her brain seemed to be a flaming fire brand; her limbs lost their power, and, staggering forward, she fell to the ground.

A chill wind blew in through the open door-way and made the hinges creak; save for this, all was as silent as the grave, and Gretchen's cold, white face seemed to wear the stillness of death.

CHAPTER X.

Marc had gone up to his room at the usual hour for retiring, but not with any feeling of sleepiness.

He knew Sir Felix liked the lights put out early, so that the servants should not be kept up, and he had complied with the habits of the house so far as to leave the library at ten o'clock and go to his own apartment.

He had come across some interesting books during the evening, most of them on the subject of ancient art.

These he had carried to his room, and, making himself as comfortable as he could in an easy chair, he went on with his reading.

It seemed there could be nothing to disturb him, if he chose to read on through half of the night, so tomb-like a silence reigned over the place.

"The I[illegible]ple Lady."

The announcement that Miss Hallie Erminie Rives, the Virginia novelist, was seriously considering the plan of giving up literature for the footlights to assume the role of the heroine in the dramatization of her late novel, "Hearts Courageous," has inspired one budding poet to song. The authoress's notable possession is a wonderful head of curling hair of the tint that Dido and other fascinating women of antiquity have possessed. Interviewers have called it by such terms as "flame-washed," "Swedish yellow," "[illegible]ten bronze," "tawny-russet" and "streaked amber." Others have contented themselves with the more obvious adjective of three letters. Miss Rives was once heard to say that when, as a child, she asked her "black mammy" why her hair was not like other children's, the old woman used to say: "Honey-chile, ah specks, fo' yo' was borned, yo' done runned th'oo hell bar'-headed." The poetical effort referred to, Miss Rives found in her mail the other day. It was unsigned, and the authoress has been passing it around among her friends with joy. The "Book News" prints it:

A RHYME OF REDHEADS.

I warble no ballad of sense or of salad,
But a rhyme of a torrid intention,
For I sing of the red that emblazons the head
Of a type that's too many to mention.
It's wiry and fiery and always inspiry,
And very, oh, very well bred.
It's a vision Elysian of tints that are Titian—
That's red!—Red!!—RED!!!

Now, lithe Mrs. Carter, who chews cream-a-tartar
And sasses her frizzes of auburn,
Has a head of rare red (tho' a rival has said
That she wouldn't for money so daub hern!)
It's gushy and blushy, and maybe not lushy,
Though very, oh, very well fed.
But I sing of an airy, new, cap capillary
As red!—Red!!—RED!!!

For Mrs. Brown Potter a new plan has got her
To put in a play galumpageous
A fresh tawny-top, 'neath whose sorrel-hued mop
Grew the story we call "Hearts Courageous."
Oh, it's rough on the yellows, the blacks and prunellas,
But it's very, oh, very well said
That the cerebral color that yanks the big cruller
Is red!—Red!!—RED!!!

A big, gawky-looking fellow came into the smoking compartment of one of the Pullman cars on the Knickerbocker just as the train was pulling out, and, taking a cigar from his pocket, began to scratch the company's matches (that will light only on the box) on the sole of his shoe. He tried a half dozen without succeeding in lighting one, but the incident created a laugh.

"You can't light those matches on anything but the box," ventured one of the men in the compartment.

"I always have done it," answered the big fellow, and he tried it again on the sole of his shoe.

"I'll bet you the dinner for the crowd in the cafe car," said the first speaker, "that you can't light one of those matches on the sole of your shoe."

"I'll take the bet," was the hurried answer.

Then he coolly rubbed some of the "stuff" from the box on the sole of one of his shoes, and lighted a match, and everybody got [illegible] for the "first call for the dining car."—Indianapolis News.

AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY
FOR BOTH LARGE AND SMALL INVESTORS

Owing to valuable Patents having been granted this Company, we are desirous of extending our business to the Dominion of Canada. Owing to the Customs duties, the extra cost in transportation and the numerous expenses attached, and the delays in deliveries in shipping goods from one country to another, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a factory in the Dominion, that we may be in a position to meet the immediate wants of the business

The articles that we make from our Patent Fabric are too numerous to mention, and it is not necessary that we go into the details of the merits of our goods, as they are already in use to a large extent and have no equal. Our goods are covered by several patents, and the profit on the goods is large, averaging from 25 to 100 per cent, thus affording the company large revenue to meet all its obligations

In order to secure funds to equip a plant in the Dominion of Canada we will offer to the people of Canada $100,000 of our Bonds paying ten per cent. interest per annum.

Experience has shown that stocks based upon sound industrial enterprises have never been equalled from the standpoint of legitimate profit. For instance, a few hundred dollars invested in the Bell Telephone Company's stock in the beginning of the enterprise now commands thousands of dollars, after having yielded large dividends annually. Of course opportunities for such profitable investments do not present themselves every day, and it is also very true that a vast amount of capital has been misdirected in the endeavor to exploit inventions and enterprises which shrewd and far seeing investors should have recognized as impractical. But as regards this enterprise even the most conservative must admit it has possibilities of development which are a most incalculable and which have already been demonstrated in a practical manner. We have no speculative elements—this is a sound business proposition, and the patents which we own are worth several million dollars, as there can only be one fabric of this kind and that is ours.

All the above facts are simple statements of the truth and can be fully substantiated to the satisfaction of all investors.

The business is no experiment, the incorporators of this Company have made it their business for a great many months past and understand all the details, the prospects are therefore bright, and brighter than those of many other opportunities.

This Company is not a promotors company, every dollar goes to enhance the value of the property and business and increase the capacity. There is nothing speculative in this proposition, the enterprises are undertaken for industrial purposes only to make profits by the operation and development of the business.

Considering that the enterprise is already upon an established basis with a certainty of profitable future expansion, we feel warranted in the assertion that this is an attractive proposition to investors whether large or small.

The price of these Bonds are one dollar each, and will be issued in any number wanted With every purchaser of each five Bonds we will give as a bonus, one share of stock of the Company, the par value of which is five dollars per share, thus assuring interest on the investment, and with the stock which is bound to increase you will have for nothing. These Bonds will be issued for five years. Persons desiring to avail themselves of this opportunity want to send their remittance at once.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January, [illegible], 1902.

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 14 years. I have tried several doctors and they done my no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 412 Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes: "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McFadyen, Riverdale, P.E.I., writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure, it has done grand work for me, I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have bee standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. 50c per box or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $100 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

brought in on Monday the 20th of July one of the biggest gushers in Sour Lake. It is situated in the Wirt-Davis tract and has been producing oil continuously since it came in, the Spindletop Power Com- taking the entire output from the well. Besides owning this the Company owns two other valuable pieces of Oil Land at [illegible] Lake, where they have just let a contract for drilling a second well in the gusher district. The Company has acquired a twelfth interest in 87 acres of land near Saratoga and a well will soon be drilled on this land, the indications are that fine gushers will be developed in this territory. The Company also owns property in Beaumont, Texas where there are two wells.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 166 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

New York, Oct. 28—The trade in stock exchange today was slow; there was a noticeable degree of nervousness among operators and the trade in many instances were irregular. The affairs in St. Louis were reported to be in better condition and some of the savings have posted notices that they will require the thirty to sixty days limit to meet their obligations under the circumstances the troubles were figured to be of little concern. Not a few important interests were inclined to hold off for fresh developments before taking on fresh obligations. The late news was without special significance. Outside stocks were dull and steady while for the better classes of bonds there was still a good demand.

New York, Oct. 28—American stocks in London about parity. St. Louis banks will assist trust companies, but heap considered unnecessary and trouble not expected. Considered unlikely that R. I. interests will enter Atch. board; acquisition of Alton by some other property not regarded as impossible. 16 roads, Sept. net increase, 25.45 per cent.; 3 roads, 3d week October, gross increase 5.19 per cent. Regular semi-annual divident expected on Pennsylvania next Monday. Banks lost since Friday $1,362,000. Expected money will be plentiful in December Columbus, Hocking, Coal & Iron declares one per cent. dividend for year commencing Nov. 14. 12 industrials advance .06 per cent.; 20 roads advance .41 per cent.

There is excellent buying of Atchison by strong Pennsylvania interests and at forthcoming annual election Pennsylvania will get representative in Atch. Buy St. P. on any further recession; buy A.C.P. on any further dip. B.R.T is being purchased by strong interests.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 27—There was quite a little liquidation in December wheat today and weakness in this option results in some selling of May. Sentiment was mixed; St. Louis was a seller and this was a surprise; the cables were bearing and export business was small; the late market was nervous with the professional interest largely in control of the situation. There was considerable cash demand; the market for corn showed some sympathy with the movement in wheat. There was a fair demand at the lower prices, representing shorts, but the bear party propose to express confidence in its position, despite the facts; the primary movement reflected an excess of shipments over receipts, there was also some bullishness regarding the visible supply changes of the future. The cash demand was moderate, the market for oats was dull; there was some selling on the better levels.

Liverpool, Oct. 27—Close, wheat 1-4 lower; corn unchanged.

A Fellow-Feeling

London, Oct. 27.—King Edward has again shown his sympathy with victims of appendicitis. This time the sufferer was James Kier Hardie, M.P., who underwent a successful operation yesterday. Before starting for the races at Newmarket today, His Majesty sent a letter to Sir Thomas Barlow, the physician to the King's household, saying he has a fellow feeling for all who have to go through an operation for appendicitis, asking Sir Thomas to report the condition of Mr. Hardie, and sending the latter an expression of sympathy.

WAR ON LABOR

President Parry Outlines Object of Chicago Meeting

Indianapolis, Oct. 27.—A constitution for the federation of employers, which is to be formed at a meeting at Chicago on Thursday and Friday, has been drafted under the direction of President David M. Parry, of the National Manufacturers' Association, and will be submitted to the meeting for adoption. It will provide for subordinate federations in districts composed of different sections of the country, and there will be one general headquarters at which the business of all the federated bodies will be transacted.

Mr. Parry says that there will be from 600 to 800 delegates at the Chicago meeting, and that the federation will start out with a membership of several thousand employers, thus ensuring success from the beginning. He says Denver has an association of 14,000 members, Kansas City has one of 7,000 members, and there are many others in the East and West, and all will send representatives to the meeting.

He makes no concealment of the fact that the purpose is to oppose the exactions of organized labor and secure to employers the untrammeled conduct of their own affairs.

DOWIE'S VIEWS

Says Christian Science Undermines All Honesty

New York, Oct. 27.—Speaking in this city this morning, John Alexander Dowie treated of the subject of Christian Science and Mrs. Eddy's book. "The Science," he said, "lacks the very essentials of Christianity, and it seems to me that it is impossible to understand. There is one grain of truth in Christian Science. It teaches that disease does not come from God.

"As for the arguments of the Scientists that there is no such ting as feeling, tasting, or smelling, except in the imagination of persons, it is all bosh."

Dowie concluded by saying that Christian Science "undermined all common honesty and veracity in the human mind."

Thinks Canada is Stingy

London, Oct. 27.—The London Globe hopes the "niggardliness" hitherto usually displayed at Ottawa in framing of the naval and military estimates will give way before Lord Dundonald's earnest remonstrances.

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 45 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100 foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Co. is to make some money. "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure-house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50 000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

A limited number of shares of this really first class proposition may be obtained on application to PETERBOROUGH BROKERAGE CO, Fiscal Agents, Peterborough, or J. J. BRANDON, Fenelon Falls; W. GALLON, Apsley; G. B. HILLIARD, Lakefield, or GEO. H. BROWN, Chemong

First Class Mining Proposition.

The Anaconda Gold Mining Co.

Home Office: 412 Merchants Loan and Trust Bldg.
136 Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.

This is one of the best propositions ever placed before the Canadian investor. The Company owns 600 acres in the celebrated Black Hills District, South Dakota, comprising 32 claims. The track is unquestionably on the great Homestake belt, being located directly between the wonderful Homestake mine and the Clover Leaf mine. Two shafts have already been sunk, the main one being down 154 feet, with capacity of going 1000 feet. The Company has also installed an Ingersoll-Sargeant air compressor and drills, 125 horse power boiler, steam pumps, and in fact everything needed for actual operation, with the exception of its stamp mills; which will be installed at once. The vein of gold-bearing quartz traversing the Company's property is very rich. Assays have run from $3 to $54.[illegible] per ton.

The Company has a capital of 1,500,000 shares, divided into 750,000 preferred and 750,000 common, par value $1 per share, fully paid up and non-assessable. The treasury stock has been made preferred stock to the amount of 25 cents a share. Out of the first dividends 25 cents per share will be paid to the owners of this preferred stock before holders of common stock receive any share of the profits. After the 25 cents has been paid to the shareholders of preferred stock, then all alike share in the dividends. This means nothing less than that the first investors in the enterprise will have all their money returned to them before any dividends are declared to the rank and file of investors.

A limited amount of Stock has been placed on the Canadian market. Full particulars and copy of prospectus may be obtained from MR. R. J. KIDD, or the undersigned Agent for Peterborough city

Billious Dyspepsia

A DREADFUL COMPLAINT ACCOMPANIED BY HEADACHE, SICKNESS OF THE STOMACH, VOMITING THAT CAN BE PERMANENTLY AND QUICKLY CURED BY FERROZONE

Some persons have attacks of Billious Dyspepsia very frequently, and feel as if they were about to die. The whole system seems to collapse. The tongue becomes coated, the face a sallow pallor, and a bitter taste is always noticeable in the mouth. At times the bowels are very constipated, but occasional acute diarrhoea is caused by the accumulation of bile in the system.

It is highly dangerous to allow such a condition to imperil your life. It must be cured and the simplest and surest remedy is Ferrozone. It digests every particle of food eaten, and prevents the waste products from clogging up the system.

Ferrozone restores all deranged organs to a healthy, vigorous condition. It keeps the bowels well regulated, makes the kidneys eliminate all poisons from the blood, and supplies the necessary elements to build up and strengthen the entire body.

Mr. Louis Meehan, one of Peterborough's most enterprising and well known business men, during the past three years was an unceasing sufferer from Billious Dyspepsia. He was cured permanently by Ferrozone and is so anxious that all others may profit by his experience that he gives the following testimonial.

"About three years ago," says Mr. Meehan, "I had the Gripps which left me in a very run down condition that finally developed into Dyspepsia. I was unable to eat but a few things and had a craving for acid. I gave up treating with the doctors because they did not help me, and on the advice of a friend used Ferrozone. It not only cured by of Dyspepsia and Billiousness, but has built up my strength to what it was before I had the Grippe. I can recommend Ferrozone as an ideal restorative."

Ferrozone is capable of digesting all classes of food, and contains in a highly concentrated form the elements necessary for strengthening and reconstructing, and nourishing the stomach and other digestive organs. It is a builder of blood, muscle and fat, and makes sickly, weak, disheartened people strong and well. Ferrozone gives you force, energy, vim and spirit and cures every time. Sold by all druggists. Price 50c. per box or three boxes for $1.25. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

WEDDED IN NEW YORK

Miss Helen M. Kempt Married to Mr Frank H. White

On Wednesday, October 21st, at the residence of the bride's mother, New York City, Miss Helen M., third daughter of the late Dr. Kemp, formerly of Peterborough, was united in marriage to Mr. F. H. White, of that city.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Parker, in the presence of a large number of invited guests.

SEVENTEEN TONS OF PAPER

This Quantity Contracted for by The Times

If any further proof is needed regarding the large and rapidly growing circulation of The Times, it is supplied by the fact that we have just placed an order for seventeen tons of paper with a Montreal house. The paper will arrive next month, and will make a pile half as high as the Opera House block. This is probably the largest shipment of newspaper ever received in Peterborough.

AN ENJOYABLE AFFAIR

Fowl Supper at Bridgenorth on Tuesday Evening

The fowl supper given by the congregation of the Methodist church, Bridgenorth, on Tuesday evening, was a great success, a large number from town and county attending. The ladies of the congregation excelled in the sumptuousness of the spread, while a choice program of music, etc., was also provided, and was greatly enjoyed.

The popular pastor of the church, Rev. J. W. Bunner, did the honors, and in a brief address, thanked those present for their attendance. The delightful program was as follows: Anthem by the excellent choir; duet, by Miss Beatrice Kelly and Mr. E. Telford; address, by Rev. Mr. McKinnon, of Gilmour Memorial church; solo, Miss Ada Black, sweetly rendered; solo, Miss Sherman, also a gem; address, Rev. G. Carr, Oakwood; solo, Miss Maggie Milburn, in splendid form; quartette, Telford brothers, which was also loudly enchored.

The proceeds amounted to $85. Those who had charge of the affair are to be congratulated on the result of their efforts.

FIRE IN DOURO.

Home of Mr. Thomas Sullivan Completely Destroyed

The residence of Mr. Thomas Sullivan, who resides about eight miles from town in Douro, was completely destroyed by fire on Tuesday last. It appears that Mr. Sullivan, with his son, were out in the field when the blaze was noticed in the rear of the house, which was a frame one. All efforts to save the house were of no avail, and it was consumed, as well as the shed adjoining it. The contents of the house and shed were almost completely destroyed, only a few pieces of furniture being rescued, twenty-eight bags of potatoes, seventeen bags of mangles, and eighteen bags of carrots were all burned. The fire is supposed to have originated from sparks which fell on the dry roof from the chimney. There was a strong wind blowing at the time, which thwarted the efforts to save the building.

Mr. Sullivan's loss will be over $800, the insurance which he received amounting to $350. Much sympathy is felt for him in his severe loss.

BUSY DOCTOR

Sometimes Overlooks a Point

The physician is such a busy man that he sometimes overlooks a valuable point to which his attention may be called by an intelligent patient who is a thinker.

"About a year ago my attention was called to Grape-Nuts by one of my patients," says a physician of Cincinnati.

"At the time my own health was bad and I was pretty well rundown but I saw in a minute that the theories behind Grape-Nuts were perfect and if the food was all that was claimed for it it was a perfect food so I commenced to use Grape-Nuts with warm milk twice a day and in a short time began to improve in every way and I am now much stronger, feel 50 per cent better and weigh more than I ever did in my life.

"I know that all of this good is due to Grape-Nuts, and I am firmly convinced that the claims made for the food are true. I have recommended and still recommend the food to a great many of my patients with splendid results and in some cases the improvements of patients on this fine food has been wonderful.

"As a brain and nerve food, in fact as a general food, Grape-Nuts stands alone." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Look in each package for a copy of the famous little book, "The Road To Wellville."

—John Ryan, charged with assault, was summoned to appear in Police Court yesterday morning, but failed to show up. John thought discretion the better part of valor and left town.

—The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock and will take the form of a Thanksgiving meeting.

—The new Dan Spence Memorial Ambulance was brought into requisition for the first time yesterday. It was a case of scarlet fever, which was taken to Nicholls Hospital.

—Mr. Frank Carney met with a painful accident in the Wm. Hamilton Company's workshop on Tuesday, by having his thumb badly lacerated with a saw.

—The Property Committee of the Town Council has made arrangements with Mr. D. Belleghem, undertaker, to assume charge of the Dan Spence Ambulance. Persons requiring it will now know where to apply.

The Late Frank Walsh

The Times, of Akron, Ohio, publishes the following concerning the death of Frank Walsh, formerly of The Times' staff, who died in that city: "Two telegrams sent out by Coroner L. B. Humphrey, Thursday afternoon, one to Orillia, Ont., caused heartache and sorrow to the parents of F. A. Walsh, the young printer, who died Thursday at noon, while waiting for his dinner in the Boston dining room on South Howard street. Coroner Humphrey is of the opinion that he was engaged to be married soon, but that the theft of $25 from him, by a stranger whom he befriended several weeks ago, put off plans for his marriage. A post-mortem was held over the remains Thursday afternoon at the morgue of Ellow & Sons, conducted by Dr. J. W. Rockwell. It was found that the heart was abnormal, and Coroner Humphrey rendered a verdict that death was due to organic heart disease."

Outing for November

"The Silent Places, or the Trial of Jingoes," Stewart Edward White's new novel of the Northwest begins serially in Outing for November. Among many profusely illustrated articles are Vance Thompson's "The Golf Links of Paris," characterizing from an American point of view French golf and golfers. Mrs. Burton Kingsland's story of a driving trip, with a thorough description of the preparations a woman should make for such a journey. Philip Delany's vivid account of a frontier trip in an automobile across unexplored Colorado and New Mexico country, some remarkable photographs of herons, ibises and spoonbills taken in the jungle of Florida swamps by Herbert K. Job, and a charming and practical article on nutting as a pastime by Clarence Deming. This being the hunting and shooting season articles and stories with this sport as a background are numerous. George Bird Grinnell's "Antelope Hunting Thirty Years Ago and Now," illustrated with many drawings by Carl Rungius, is full of the author's practical and exciting experiences in the field and gives interesting reasons for the thinning of the numbers of antelope and for the need of their present protection. The "Niles-Tewksbury Turkey Hunt" and "Old Time Michigan Squirrel Shoot" are two sometimes amusing and always interesting stories by Arthur McFarlane and Stanley Waterloo. Edwyn Sandys compares wild fowling and upland shooting in his regular Gamefield department, and tells also a characteristic story—full of an expert's information—of a day's quail shooting. Charles F. Holder relates his experience in shooting flying fish off the California coast, and A. C. Gibson furnishes suggestions for flight duck shooting. 'Pemberton's Fluke,' a football story by Ralph Henry Barbour, Sergeant McPherson's story, a tale of the army in the Philippines, by Perry D. Frazer, a roaringly amusing yarn entitled "A Case of Mistaken Identity," the true story of Mr. Joseph Hodgson's first grizzly bear, and another of Ralph Paine's adventures filibustering in Cuba are other stories in this number.

DOWIE IN PETERBORO'

HOW THE "ELIJAH II." ONCE ASSAILED PASTOR HERE

Rev. P. C. Parker, of Toronto Recalls Remarkable Incident of Dowie's Visit to Peterborough

The Toronto World says: Rev. P. C. Parker, of First avenue Baptist church, can claim the distinction of having been the object of a two hours tirade by Dowie, who, as the second Elijah, has been a towering figure in the life of New York for the past few weeks.

It was back in 188? or thereabouts when Rev. Mr. Parker was pastor of a church in Peterborough. He had been given a short leave of absence. Returning full of enthusiasm to resume his duties, he encountered Dowie. The latter had just come over from Australia. It was his initial entry into Canada. He had come with a powerful style of address, at least that was what he claimed for it.

Some of the deacons had been impressed by the personality of Dowie. They had invited him to fill the pulpit erstwhile occupied by Rev. Mr. Parker, not as a fixture, but until the latter came back, and Dowie had taken them at their word.

WOULDN'T RESIGN PULPIT.

When the pastor got home he found Dowie very busy. He was inculcating new ideas in religion, and was anointing all who had no rooted objections. Moreover, he was inflexible to Rev. Mr. Parker's persuasive powers directed to the end of inducing him to vacate at once. There was a meeting he desired to hold on a certain evening. Rev. Mr. Parker had himself designs on that particular night, as a time for a service, hence a clash.

There was a special committee meeting held by the church officers, and it was resolved that the interloper must go, on hearing which decision Dowie engaged the opera house for the evening in question.

HIS LANGUAGE WAS IMMENSE.

Then his pent-up wrath broke forth, and great was the volume. He displayed a capacity for vituperative epithets and a comprehensive vocabulary, of denunciary terms, that, perhaps, his latest efforts with New York reporters as his victims could hardly surpass. For two hours the torrent lasted, during which space of time he drew a harrowing picture of what would inevitably befall Rev. Mr. Parker. Before a year had passed he was to become a decrepit, limping specimen of humanity, and here Dowie contorted his own limbs and worked his way painfully across the stage by way of illustration.

FAILURE AS A PROPHET.

More than the year has gone by since then, but somehow and somewhere there has been a hitch in Dowie's prophecy. Rev. Mr. Parker has felt no premonitory symptoms of an alarming nature, and is disposed to be optimistic as regards the future outlook.

A Woman's Prayer

It is notable that in the despondency caused by womanly diseases, there seems to many a suffering woman no way of escape from pain except at the price of life itself. It would be sad to record such a story of struggle and suffering except for the fact that in such dire distress many a woman has found a way back to health and happiness by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The one and only remedy for leucorrhea, female weakness, prolapsus, or falling of the womb, so absolutely specific and sure in curing these common ailments of women, as to warrant its makers in offering to pay, as they hereby do, the sum of $500 reward for a case of the above maladies which they cannot cure.

"Your medicine almost raised me from the dead," writes Mrs. Edwin H. Gardner, of Egypt, Plymouth Co., Mass., Box 14. "My urine was like brick dust, and I had pain all over me, and such a dragging feeling it seemed I could not do my house work. One day I found a little book. I read it and wrote to Dr. Pierce, and in a few days received an answer. I decided to try his medicine, and to-day I am a well woman. I have no backache, no headache, no pain at all. I used always to have headaches previously to the monthly period and such pain that I would roll on the floor in agony. I took three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and three of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and three vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and was completely cured."

Accept no substitute for "Favorite Prescription." There is nothing just as good.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE C. P. R. ON THE FUTURE OF THE DOMINION.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy Outlines Several Alternative Policies for Ganada

WE SHOULD EXPORT MORE AND IMPORI LESS

Canada Is a Bigger Country Than U. S. But Would Dwell Together in Perfect Harmony

Montreal, Oct. 30—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy has returned from a trip to Boston, where, on "Canadian night" he made an effective speech before the Boston Society.

"Canada is older than the United States," said Sir Thomas, "but of slower development. About 1880 a great railway system was stretched across the Dominion from tide water on the east to the Pacific, and from that begins the development of Canada as she is today. The wonderful effect of the opening of this territory is seen in the hundreds of thousands of prosperous farmers scattered over this area. From this territory millions of dollars' worth of timber is shipped every year to all parts of the world. Her exports have increased 100 per cent. I regret to say also that her imports have increased in the same proportion.

"With all this, enormous areas are still undeveloped. We have enough coal and iron left untouched to supply the markets of the world. Canada's position is very different from 20 years ago. She is considering the future. Thousands upon thousands of American citizens have come into this territory during the past year.

CANADA WANTS NEW POLICY.

"Canada must shortly determine upon a new policy. We do not want these imports to increase. Some say that an imperial preference of trade to keep trade within the empire will give the best results. Others urge that the creation of home markets will be of most value. This would be accomplished by placing a duty on imports to build up our manufactures and consume our products at home. A remaining policy would have Canada enter a reciprocal arrangement with your nation, endeavoring to get for out products the best prices for raw materials."

The speaker then illustrated some reciprocal arrangements that would be of advantage to both nations. "Canada has been forced to use some American coal," he said. "But from Montreal to the coast and from the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific we can not only meet our own requirements for coal, but can supply the United States with better coal and better prices than prevail in the United States. By the present arrangement we both buy and sell coal, and both nations are paying 53 per cent. duty on large amounts yearly. This ought to be corrected with fair reciprocity with disadvantage to neither. We have more territory than you; but one-tenth the population. We desire to live along the 3,000 miles of frontier in the greatest amity and friendship."

THE DOUKHOBORS AGAIN

When Preached to by a Methodist Preacher the Women start to Undress

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 28.—Word was received here yesterday of a riot in the Doukhobor colony to the north of Swan Lake, in which three persons were killed and another severely injured.

Peter Veregin, the anti-Christ of these people, went on a visit to the Yorkton colony on Friday. Before he went he called his followers before him, and, while they lay prostrate before him, he told them to follow out his doctrine during his absence, and pay no heed to any so-called missionaries who might visit them.

All went well until a Methodist minister named Perkins arrived at the settlement and tried to preach to them. The community divided itself, and one faction of the women stripped themselves of clothing, as they have done on several previous occasions, and started to look for Peter Veregin, their leader and self-styled Christ.

PITCHED BATTLE ENSUED.

The men interfered, and a pitched battle ensued, in which the contestants used the first tools which came to their hands.

Wasyl Kyryk was almost cut to pieces with a reaping hook, Paul Selenko's skull was split with an axe, a hay fork was run through the body of Jean Wankeskie, and Andrew Bey was so severely injured about the head and body that he was not expected to live.

Several of the English-speaking people who saw the affray telegraphed for the North-West Mounted Police, and a number of them have set out for the scene.

After the battle had raged for over an hour Peter Veregin returned suddenly, and the contestants stopped the battle and laid down their arms and fell prostrate before him. He ordered the wounded cared for. They numbered some dozens.

There were 300 men in the affray.

A UNIQUE PETITION

Ottawa City Want the Government to Pay Taxes

Ottawa, Oct. 30—A strong case was made out by the city before the Government for a revision of the existing system by which all Government buildings leased from private parties stand exempt from taxation and are taken off the city assessment rolls. The deputation consisted of Ald. Ellis, Ross and Storey and Civic Assessment Commissioner Pratt, accompanied by the city members of Parliament, Messrs. Belcourt and Birkett.

The Ministers seen were Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Fielding and Mr. Fitzpatrick. It was shown that these exemptions which amounted to an assessed value of $79,763 in 1900, have risen year by year until this year's rolls show a total exemption of $334,050. From the questions and remarks made by Ministers it would appear that while the city had proved its case as regards the extent of the exemption some doubt was felt as to whether the owners of the buildings leased, by occupying other quarters, were not still contributing to the city's taxes.

The Prime Minister suggested whether the remedy ought not to be sought in the Ontario Legislature, the exemptions being apparently under provincial law, and the Ministers did not hold out any expectation of being able to deal with the question.

DOWIE AGAINST MRS.EDDIE

Declares Her Teachings are Christian Imposture

New York, Oct. 30—"Having freed himself of the secret of his birth and publicly denounced the ducal coronet which he said might be his if he chose to push his claims for it, John Alexander Dowie, leader of the "restoration host," confined himself to the convention in his discourses at Madison Square Garden today. As a result his audiences rapidly dwindled and he permitted hundreds to leave the auditorium without a word of reproof. Dowie talked last night on two subjects which he said were really one—"Why I Am a Theocrat" and "Where God Rules Man Prospers." He explained that he had intended to speak on the former subject Monday night, but had been unable to do so, because he had devoted his time to scourging the wicked press.

Russia Fortifies Yongampho

Yokohama, Oct. 30—Official advices received at Tokio confirm the report that the Russians have fortified Yongampho, on the Yalu River. This may lead to important developments as the fortification of Yongampho would be an infringement of Corean integrity.

An American Revolution

Chicago, Oct. 30—D. M. Parry of the National Manufacturers' Association, speaking of the convention of the Employers' Association, which closed here last night, said:—"The greatest work, perhaps, will be an effort to save the republic. Conditions are so bad that it will not be long before the nature of our government is changed and we shall have socialism. We propose to see that the present condition of affairs is preserved. We will show the workingman a better way to improve his condition than through the unions as they now exist or through socialism."

SHOULD ACCEDE TO CANADA'S REQUESTS

Liverpool Delegate to Montreal Congress on Preference

IMPERIAL COASTING TRADE

Chamberlain Emphasises Colonial Premiers' Attitude, Hon. Geo. E. Foster at Meeting

London, Oct. 30—Liverpool was usefully prepared for Mr. Chamberlain's great speech by the publication of the report of Mr. Charles Lancaster, who represented the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce at the Montreal Congress. Mr. Lancaster reported that Canadians believed England ought to be supremely happy that she was connected with such a country as Canada, with its limitless possibilities, while English opinion was that Canada ought to be happy that she had such an indulgent mother and such a fine ally. Canadians, he said, regarded as the choicest preference the considerable investment of capital in Canada and the development by England of Canadian territory.

The impression of every delegate was that England ought to do everything that Canada reasonably expected, and that Canada in turn would do everything possible in reciprocation.

MR. FOSTER PRESENT.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster occupied a seat on Mr. Chamberlain's platform.

Especially noteworthy was the prominence Mr. Chamberlain gave to the Colonial Premiers' request for the reconsideration of the conditions under which the Anglo-Canadian coasting trade was carried on, the object being to mete out to the United States and foreigners the same treatment now given to British Empire.

HOLDS AMERICA AS DANGEROUS

Chamberlain Says "Dumping" of Foreign Wares Must Depress Industry

Liverpool, Oct. 30—Joseph Chamberlain addressed a meeting called by the Workingmen's Conservative Association last night. The "dumping" of American and German goods in England, he said, must result in degression after the present prosperity. Emphasizing the statement, that it was impossible to reconcile free trade with trades unionism, he pointed out the inconsistency of supporting a policy which admitted the product of the cheapest kind of labor without taxation. A resolution was adopted eulogizing Mr Chamberlain, endorsing the government's fiscal policy and declaring the advisability of binding the empire more closely together.

ASSUMES FATHER'S GUILT

Convict Pardoned After Serving Twenty Six Years for Another's Crime

Berlin, Oct. 30—A bricklayer named Burmeinster, who has served twenty-six years in the penitentiary, though innocent of the crime for which he was sentenced, has just been released under singular circumstances. In 1877 Burmeinster and his father undertook to commit a burglary at the house of a farmer at Damsdorf, Schleswig-Holstein, and Burmeinster's father in doing so shot and killed the farmer and his wife.

At the trial the son confessed that he fired the fatal shots. Both men were sentenced to death, but a petition to the emperor secured a change in the sentence to imprisonment for life in the penitentiary. The father died in prison in 1898 and the son recently gave such a circumstantial narrative of his part in the affair that the authorities were convinced that he was not guilty.

Burmeinster claims that his father fired the shots which killed the farmer and his wife, but that he, knowing his father had a black record and would certainly suffer death, took the guilt upon himself in order to save his father. Upon the basis of this statement Burmeinster sought for a pardon, which was at first refused him but he renewed his efforts with success. Burmeinster has now been liberated and has rejoined his mother, who is 90 years of age.

FULL OF ELECTRICITY

William Millenberg Received 32,000 Volts and Lives

Pocatello, Idaho, Oct. 30—William Millenberg, an electrician, employed by a local light and power company, has received a shock from a wire charged with 32,000 volts of electricity, and physicians say he probably will recover. Millenberg accidentally touched a heavily charged wire in the power house. His body was badly burned by the current which was so powerful that the nails in his shoes were melted.

LESS GRAIN IN ELEVATORS.

Reports of C. P. R. Officials Show Movement to be Later

Montreal, Oct. 30—G. M. Bosworth, of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has received orders showing that the receipts of inland elevators for this month so far were 5,000,000 bushels, as against 8,000,000 bushels last year; and for the season 8,700,000 bushels, against 13,000,000 bushels last year. Cars loaded with grain in October, 1903, were 3,600, and for the same period last year, 4,500. For the whole season of 1903 to date, the cars loaded totalled 5,500, and for 1902, 7,900.

UNIONIST ASSAULTED

Four Men Make Brutal Assault on a Chicago Man

Chicago, Oct. 30—William Rossel, a member of the Finance Committee of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and former business agent of the International Association of Machinists, is at his home, suffering from an attack made upon him by four unidentified men. Rossel, after being drugged, which then left him lying in a gutter for dead. The circumstances of the attack are similar to those of the attack a few weeks ago on Michael Donnelly, president of the Amalgamated Meat Men and Butchers' organization. President Schardt of the Chicago Federation of Labor has also been receiving threatening letters recently.

DR. ROOD EXPECTS TO DIE.

With Tetanus Germs in Veins He Works Till "Fatal Day."

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 30—Firmly believing that death is fixed for next Saturday, Dr. L. D. Rood moves quietly about his duties with the feeling that tetanus germ has taken hold in his blood. The doctor accidentally inoculated himself while treating Lloyd Gay, 12 years, for lockjaw. The boy had a small wound on the forehead and said a playmate struck him with a whip. Examination disclosed a small piece of leather beneath the skin. This was removed, but within twenty-four hours the jaw of the boy set and a few days later he died.

Dr. Rood gave the boy a hypodermic injection and afterward pricked his thumb with the needle used.

SAM PARKS ON TRIAL.

Charged with Extortion From the Tiffany Stores—Strange Evidence

New York, Oct. 30—The trial of Sam Parks, the notorious walking delegate, on charges of extortion from the Tiffany stores and studios, was continued today. Benjamin Thacker, David Fraze, and Louis Schmitt, superintendents of various departments of the Tiffany concern, testified as to paying to Parks a "fine" of $500 in bills and gold in order that the employees might be allowed to continue at work without molestation. After the money was paid Parks said the firm could employ union or non-union men as they saw fit. If any of the union men objected to working with non-union men, Parks would see that they were fined $50 and prevented from working in the city. He declared that the money was for the use of himself and a few friends.

A COUNTESS ON TRIAL

Said to Have Introduced False Heir to Rich Estate

MANY NOBLE FAMILIES.

Husband is Also Charged with Being a Party to the Fraud

Berlin, Oct. 30—The trial of Countess Isabella Wesierska Kwilecki, belonging to a rich and aristocratic Polish family, on the charge of having pretended to have borne a son over six years ago and presenting him as the heir to an estate at Wroblewo, province of Posen, consisting of 10,000 acres, and having a yearly rent roll totaling $15,000, began here today. Count Kwilecki appears at the trial, charged with being an accessory to the crime. The countess was arrested Jan. 22 of the present year and the count was taken into custody Aug. 5. One midwife and two women servants were also placed in the box as accessories.

The morning train from Posen brought about 250 witnesses, mostly Polish peasants, who made a motley crowd in the courtroom, owing to their variegated. Crying babies were held in the arms of many of the women.

High in Aristocratic Circles.

Countess Kwilecki is defended by seven leading Polish lawyers. Great interest in manifested in the case here, as the accused countess and count are well known in the higher aristocratic circles of Berlin. She was born in March 1846, married the count in 1864 and bore him three children, the last in 1879. Then, the count and countess claim, the latter gave birth to the son who is the cause of the present proceedings.

This son is said to have been born Jan. 27, 1897. The prosecution claims that the latter is the son of a peasant girl of Parcze, in Austrian Silesia, who is present as a witness and as a claimant for the child.

The morning session was wholly occupied with taking the testimony of the countess, who is of aristocratic appearance. She stood erect, holding a lorgnette in her right hand and gesticulating excitedly with her left hand while answering questions put to her by the presiding judge. The countess pleaded "not guilty" and sweepingly denied all complicity in any criminal act. But she was frequently cornered by the judge.

Countess Fails To Explain.

She was unable to give satisfactory explanations of many suspicious circumstances and some damaging facts were brought out, including that when the countess came to Berlin to await her accouchment she said she did so because she could get better medical attention here, but she did not call in a physician and employed an obscure midwife. The countess, it was also shown by the testimony, had intended going abroad from the accouchment and only desisted from so doing upon representations being made to her that the collateral heirs to the estate would suspect her.

Another point brought out was that the countess refused to see the family physician when he came from Posen to Berlin in order to attend her.

The trial is expected to last a long time.

Once Tried and Acquitted.

Count Miecislaw Kwilecki, a member of the Prussian house of lords, and his son, Count Hector Kwilecki, a member of the reichstag, contested, as next of kin, the legitimacy of the countess' son about two years previous to her arrest, but after a sensational trial at Posen she was acquitted, and the countess and the count, her husband, continued to live quietly on the Polish estate, spending the winters in fashionable Berlin society.

The prosecuting attorney, however, continued his investigations, and, it is said, obtained fresh testimony through a police examination of a woman who bore a child at the time the son of Countess Kwilecki is said to have been born and the rearrest of the countess followed.

It is alleged that the countess had women of high rank as accomplices. These, whose names have not been disclosed, are said to have procured the illegitimate son of the daughter of a railroad watchmen in Austria and at the proper moment to have brought the baby to the countess' apartments in Berlin.

TORONTO ASSESSMENT.

Amount on which the Taxation for 1904 will be Based Toronto, Oct. 30—The Court of Revision has concluded its work on the assessment of the city for 1904, therefore the amount on which the taxation next year will be based is obtainable. The total taxable assessment for the year will be $141,667,776, compared with $139,645,986 for 1903, an increase of $2,021,790.

RAISING GOATS.

Attempt being Made to Breed Them in Quebec

Montreal, Oct. 30—A serious attempt is being made to introduce goat farming into Canada. The Chevriere Canadienne has imported from France a hundred goats of six different breeds, and is attempting to raise them on a farm at Cote Visitation, near Montreal. The varieties include the Maltese, Jogganbourg, of Switzerland, the Alpine, Saagen, also of Switzerland, and the Marcienne, of Spain. Then there is the pride of the flock, a young Nubian, coal black and with hanging ears. This animal is adored in its home country, and the only pair of the variety in Europe are the parents of the little one at Cote Visitation. It is hoped that it will be possible by next year to obtain a mate, so that the breed may be perpetuated here. The milk of the goats is abundant and nourishing. Dr. Parizeau is authority for the statement that after mother's milk, that of the goats is next best for infants. It is pointed out that tuberculosis is a thing unknown among them. They are easy and cheap to keep, and it is said, would be of immense service to the settlers in the mountains north of this province.

DOWIE'S BIG FAILURE.

None of Promised Achievements Has so Far Been Materialized

HAS MADE NO CONVERTS.

Wall Street Betting Slightly Favors Low Over McClellan, Other New York News

New York, Oct. 30—Dowie has now been in New York ten days, and with all his efforts he has failed, so far as can be learned, to add one follower to his Zion band. Not one person has been immersed in his baptismal tank, and his house to house visitation manifests no results whatever. In a pecuniary way, Dowie's New York campaign has been dispiriting. Collections have been taken in the garden each day and night, but Deacon Newcomb stated today that the aggregate receipts had not been enough to pay gas bills. Madison Square Garden costs Dowie $1,000 a day, and his personal expenses, including an expensive suite of rooms at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, private car, and carriage hire, must bring his daily expenses up into the thousands.

When Dowie came to New York he promised things he would accomplish the following things:

Fill Madison Square Garden with converts.

Festoon the walls of the garden with crutches and canes of those who were healed.

Baptize thousands.

Drive the devil from Manhattan Island, from within the hearts of the people, and take $50,000,000 back to Zion.

The things he really has and has not done are:

Devoted nine days and nights to billingsgate and abuse.

He has not healed a body or converted a soul.

He has not baptized a man, woman, or child.

He has had his horses attached by the sheriff.

He has publicly proclaimed himself of illegitimate birth.

He has spent something like a quarter of a million dollars without taking in enough to pay gas bills.

Dowie's talk this morning was devoted to an attack on the Christian Scientists and Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, whom he called a "much married woman," and an "anti-Christian impostor."

SAYS THAT CANADA HAS WON THE VICTORY.

Bishop Ridley of British Columbia Knows Disputed Territory--Those Islands are Valueless

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 25. — Bishop Ridley, of Caledonia, who has returned from making a tour of his diocese, embracing all of the northern part of British Columbia, and who from his long residence at Port Simpson and his intimate knowledge of the territory lately in dispute between Canada and the United States, is well qualified to discuss the subject, considers, that in securing the ownership of Wales and Pearse Islands Canada has gained more than was expected.

In the early days the United States Government had a fort and Custom house at Tongas, and the middle of Portland Channel was always regarded as the boundary, and was never questioned until the Klondike excitement and the construction of the White Pass Railway made the port of the Lynn Canal of value. In fact, Bishop Ridley considers the award a victory for Canada. President Roosevelt's note of congratulation can be regarded, he says, as a ruse to cover his retreat from an unsuccessful attempt to retain possession of Wales and Pearse Islands, awarded to Canada. These two large islands are rich in timber and minerals, as well as salmon streams. From a strategic point of view their value is inestimable. They command the harbor of Port Simpson and its approaches, and at the western end, on Wales Island, is an eminence some 1,100 feet high, a natural location for fortifications. Sitka and the other islands are small, rocky islets of no value, and useless for strategic purposes, as they are low and could be swept from Wales Islands. Wales and Pearse Islands also have splendid harbors and shelters.

A further point to be considered is that the entire entrance to the passage, on which are located several canneries, goes to Canada.

BRITAN EXPECTS BIG WAR SENDS MILITARY ATTACHE

To Japan so That When Hostilities Begin She will be on the Ground

London, Oct. 30—England's military attache to the Japanese army, who, in view of the threatened hostilities between Japan and Russia, was appointed a fortnight ago, has received his commission and sailed for the Far East. This shows that the heads of the British army think war is probable, and that Arnold Forster, the new Minister of War, is disposed to begin promptly to live down the reputation of his office for lethargy and inefficiency.

Officials at the War Office state that if Japan and Russia fight the struggle will be peculiarly interesting to all military and naval students, since it will be the first really modern conflict under conditions approximating equality of strength. It is pointed out that the South African war was a one-sided affair, although it developed a vast deal of knowledge that both Japan and Russia will utilize, should they face each other in armed encounter.

LAMSDORF IN PARIS.

Paris, Oct. 30—Count Lamsdorff, the Russian Foreign Minister, arrived here yesterday. M. Delcasse, the French Minister for Foreign Affairs, was at the railway station to extend a personal greeting to the Russian Minister.

Among the leading officials a strong feeling prevails that the main result of the visit of the Russian Minister will be a strengthening of the bonds of Franco-Russian alliance. This is considered to be more desirable because small groups here and in Russia are strongly favorable to the continuance and to the extension of the alliance and it is expected that public and private expressions during the visit will emphasize the permanency of the alliance.

COAL FOR THE RUSSIANS.

Berlin, Oct. 30—According to the Hamburg Nachrichten, the steamer Batavia, the largest freighter of the Hamburg-American Line, will go to England, where she will load 10,000 tons of coal and proceed for East Asia. The coal is for the use of the Russian Government.

HAMILTON THUGS' MURDEROUS DEED

Hamilton, Oct. 29.—The shooting and the slashing that have marked the past few days in this city have thrown people into a state of terror. Before they had time to recover from the shock of the Barton tragedy they were horrified to learn that another shooting affray had taken place last evening. The victim is Harold Case, the 18-year-old son of Edward Case, who is employed as foreman of the late Hon. Isaac Buchanan's estate, about a mile back of the asylum.

Miss Buchanan had noticed two men prowling about her premises, and when Case and his son came home for supper she told them of her suspicions. The two started out on a hunt for the intruders, going in different directions. The son came on the pair hiding beneath a tree.

"What are you doing here?" he demanded.

A bullet was the only answer he got. The wounded young man jumped over the fence and gave chase, and was fired upon again, but dodged the bullet.

The first bullet had struck his arm, and had apparently split on the bone. While the injury is serious, the doctors think he will recover.

It was about two hours after he was shot before the police were notified, and the desperadoes got a good start. Case can give but meagre description of them. All he could say was that one was short and the other tall. This is the only description that was furnished of the men who shot P. C. Barton.

Miss Moore was held up last evening on Macnab street by two men, who snatched her purse and ran off with it.

Lovers Must Have Cards

Manitowoc, Wis., Oct. 30—"I would advocate that any young woman of this audience who is keeping company with a young man who is not the possessor of a paid-up union card or the little red badge symbolic of socialistic allegiance, drop him entirely, or give him to understand that she could not consent to bear his company unless he complied with these conditions."

So said Father Hagerty, the socialistic lecturer, in a speech last night. The girls seemed favorably impressed and just to show that they are "union" at heart, sixty of them, who are employed by the Madison Seed Company, struck today for higher wages.

Demands for Cash

New York, Oct. 28.—St. Louis continues to make demands on this center for cash. The sum of $600,000 was sent by telegraphic transfers from the Sub-Treasury this morning, and direct shipments of about this amount were made by local banks last night.

No definite news regarding the situation in St. Louis is obtainable in authoritative quarters, but bankers profess to believe that reports have been much exaggerated. Private advices received by stock exchange houses agree that the substantial interests of St. Louis have this situation well in hand. Chicago and New Orleans also draw moderately on the Sub-Treasury this morning for "crop" money.

UNCLE SAM'S NAVY ON THE GREAT LAKES

Formidable Fleet of Revenue Cutters to Keep Eye on Canada's Doings

Chicago, Oct. 29.—A despatch from Washington to the Record-Herald says: A formidable fleet of revenue cutters is to be maintained upon the great lakes. Not long ago the old Michigan was the only Government vessel upon those waters. Now, however, the United States has the Tuscarora, the Morrill, and the Dallas upon the lakes, and to this fleet will soon be added the Mackinaw. The Tuscarora is to be assigned to Lakes Superior and Michigan, the Morrill to Huron and Erie, the Dallas to Ontario, and the Mackinaw to St. Mary's anchorage as station boat.

The fleet will be augmented as fast as available appropriations will permit, it being the purpose of the Government to have American interests upon the great lakes thoroughly protected, especially in view of recent developments, which indicate that the Canadians will attempt a stricter enforcement of their laws. As the question of the boundary is involved in most of the cases, and as the Canadians are quick to fire upon American vessels, it is deemed imperative that our force of revenue cutters should be augmented until it is adequate to grant prompt protection to all American ships.

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 30 1903

A CASE OF NERVE

The New York Press is supposed to be, like all newspapers, an educator of the masses, and on the boundary award question it talks in an unpardonably stupid manner.

The Press asserts, with all the boldness of one who knows whereof he affirms that "the award was made, no other being possible, on the very lines always set down in the official maps and records of the dominion government itself until the discovery of gold in Alaska."

And that is not all. The Press proceeds to say that the commissioners knew, and every member of the Canadian government knew, from their own official maps and records, that the boundary was just where the commissioners—the three Americans and Lord Alverstone—allege it is.

Life is truly too short to waste any of it in the discussion of this subject along the Press lines. It is not, with it, a question of fact, but a question of fancy. The maps of the United States commissioners showed one thing and the maps of the Canadian commissioners showed another. The boundary line, as the commission has established it, runs between the two, and is to some extent a compromise. It is after all a surrender to what Sir Wilfrid Laurier has termed the "grasping tendencies" of a very audacious and cheeky neighbor.

FIRE INSURANCE SCHEMES

Montreal is now fighting the fire insurance combine and threatening to establish a municipal bureau of insurance. Ottawa or Montreal or Toronto ought to be in a position, by reason of large property holdings and population, to give this matter a fair and reasonable trial. It has been figured out that a civic insurance department can be economically managed, and why it is not undertaken by one of the cities which feels that it is being imposed upon, is the question of the hour. The Municipal Insurance Bureau, to be successful, of course aims at a monopoly of the fire insurance business. Every property owner desiring fire insurance will see the importance of patronizing the service which he must, in any case, help to keep up. The amount of fire insurance is determined like the ordinary assessment for the purpose of taxation. The one man, the assessor, makes both calculations at the one visit to the property. The finances are collected with the taxes. The scheme looks feasible. In Toronto, some time ago, all went well until the necessary legislation was sought. The great fire insurance syndicate then probably got in its work.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The prospect of a near-by general election in England made it doubtful if the new fiscal policy would be sustained by the people, whether the educative campaign would be long enough to make the needful number of conversions from free trade. It is now said that Parliament will be allowed to run its full term, which will give over two years for the new medicine to take effect. By that time Ministerialists feel confident of being sustained in their policy.

One able commentator remarks that the artistic taste of old Alaska map makers is seen in their putting in a range of mountains wherever it would look pretty. Another wonders why the map was gerrymandered so as to leave a strip of coast so far down. But Sir Wilfrid Laurier has explained that that was the way of it "from time immemorial," while Alaska was Russian, and was not altered when the land was sold to the United States. Mr. Sifton added the testimony in Parliament that "as the United States had had undisputed possession for some time past (nearly forty years) Canada was precluded from taking possession of that territory.' These statements, given by ministerial authority in the Canadian Parliament, greatly simplified matters before the Commission.

The Emperor William, it will be remembered, during the exuberance of the naval festivities at Kiel, when a United States squadron by his invitation was visiting that station, volunteered to give a splendid testimony to the American flagship, the Kearsage. We do not recall the exact words, but she was first class in every respect. Unfortunately for the credit to be attached to his Majesty's opinion in such matters, the Kearsage is not turning out by any means as well as was expected. Rear Admiral Bradford, of the United States, in an official report, has lately stated that, during sixty-one days of summer cruising, the turret guns of that vessel could not be used, and that for at least one-third of that time the broadside guns could not be used, the reason in each case being the condition of the sea. The authority for this statement is Captain Hemphill, the Kearsage's commander. King Edward, perhaps, is wise in not talking quite so much as his imperial nephew, and in not expressing his opinion on so great a variety of subjects. We expressed a modest opinion to this effect at the time.

BESIEGE SAVINGS' DOORS

Depositors Made a Run on the Trust Companies

St. Louis, Oct. 28.—Long before 10 o'clock, the hour of opening, lines of depositors stretched away from the closed doors of the Mississippi Valley Trust Company, the Lincoln Trust Company, the Mercantile Trust Company, and the Missouri Trust Company. Small crowds assembled before the doors of some of the other savings institutions also. Most of those in line were working people, and many of them women.

Owing to the action taken last night by the officials of the trust companies, in St. Louis, requiring thirty and sixty days' notices of intention to withdraw funds, depositors were not able to get any money. All they could do was to declare their intention of withdrawing their deposits at the expiration of the time limit.

The trust companies also decided not to pay certificates of deposit before maturity.

Splitting Headaches

CAN BE STOPPED AND THE CONDITIONS WHICH CAUSE THEM CURED BY FERROZONE

Poisons accumulate in the blood and spread with it every movement to all parts of the body. The brain becomes congested, the nerves irritated, and the result is that awful headache so well known to the female sex.

Most of these poisons are absorbed into the blood from the waste matter that has accumulated in the intestines resulting from indigestion. Matter which should be promptly passed from the system through natural channels.

Ferrozone cleanses the entire intestinal tract, and the liver and kidneys as well. It cures constipation and its many attendant evils. It makes the body strong and the blood pure, induces natural sleep and enables one to eat and drink anything at any time without risk of headache, nervousness or skin eruptions.

Ferrozone is nature's own remedy for headaches. It is a lasting potent tonic and the greatest health maker the world has ever seen. It masters all female derangements, and restores weak, sickly women to a healthy vigorous condition of mind and body.

No other remedy so effectually meets the requirements of a health giving tonic and regulator as Ferrozone. Every woman and growing girl can derive marvellous benefit from its regular use, and if you suffer from Chlorosis, Anaemia, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Poor Appetite, Nervousness or female disorders of any kind, you can make no mistake in selecting Ferrozone for a cure.

Every reliable druggist recommends and sells Ferrozone for 50 cents a box. Be sure you get the genuine article, and refuse a substitute. Remember the name and insist on only Ferrozone. Sent to your address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

HIT LORD ROBERTS

The Old Veteran is Scouring the Country for American Report

Colonies Are Still Loyal to the Mother Country

London, Oct. 28.—Lord Roberts is so much interested in Elihu Root's speech at the Pilgrims' Club banquet that he is scouring the country to find a verbatim report. Root's speech was full of taffy, mostly smeared on Roberts.

NOT ALL SHAKY.

Lord Carrington, speaking at the London Liberal Federation meeting, said that he did not believe that the colonies were at all "shaky" in their loyalty to the Mother Country. They were devoted to her, but they meant to manage their own affairs. "Will the attachment to the Mother Country be cemented by giving Australia a preference on freight when the staple industry of that country is wool, and by giving Canada a preference on wheat when her staple is timber?" he asked.

WILL BE WISE.

A letter in the Pall Mall Gazette signed "Barlow Cumberland, president of the Canadian Society in London," says: "Never again on any international commission in which they are interested will the Canadians agree to an Englishman as a representative."

CANADA RIGHT OR WRONG.

The London Truth says: "Surely the Canadians would not have Lord Alverstone sacrifice his bounden duty to a patriotic desire to stand by Canada right or wrong."

At a sale of rare stamps a Canada 12-penny black of 1851 sold for £13. A New Brunswick shilling red lilac of 1851 and a 5 cent brown stamp of 1860, with the head of Connell, brought £21. A Newfoundland 4 1-2 penny stamp of 1857 sold for £5 1s. A scarlet stamp of 1857 brought £3, and an orange stamp of 1860 brought £7. A Nova Scotia shilling cold violet of 1851 sold for £14, and a shilling violet for £7 1s. A purple stamp with a small margin brought £4.

FOSTER IS PLEASED.

Canadian ex-Minister of Finance George E. Foster visited the Canadian emigration office this morning and declared the situation splendid and the display of fruits and vegetables in the window a splendid advertisement.

DUKE IS UNCERTAIN.

The Duke of Devonshire's latest pronouncement is causing uneasiness in the Liberal Unionist ranks. The Duke, writing to Sir Jonathan Backhouse, said that having regard to the proceedings at the conference at Newcastle, it may be necessary to reconsider the position of the Liberal Unionists towards the question referred to. This question was the possibility of the free trade Unionists joining the Liberal party, and the Duke of Devonshire's reply to Backhouse is taken to mean that the position of the Liberal Unionists may have to be considered in that direction.

CHANGE THEIR NAME.

Mr. Chamberlain, speaking to-day at Liverpool, hoped that the Duke of Devonshire would induce the so-called free traders to change their name, for they had done more than anyone else to bring about a tax on food.

CHINESE TO VOTE

Naturalization Papers Taken Out by Celestials

Montreal, Oct. 28.—There is much interest at the City Hall on account of the number of Chinese who are being naturalized in order to have the right to vote.

In this connection an important problem has arisen in regard to Chinese who hail from Hong Kong, which is a British possession. It is held that Chinese born in this place are British subjects by birth, and, hence, do not need to take out naturalization papers.

Speaking yesterday of so many Chinese being naturalized, a City Hall official said that every year more Chinese are becoming naturalized, and the outlook is that in the years to come Montreal will have quite a host of Chinese citizens who have pledged their allegiance to England. "I may say," said he, "that those who take the oath of allegiance generally intend to stay in the country, and make better citizens than the Chinese who only come to the country with the idea of making money and then getting back to China."

Continuing, the speaker said it was surprising the large number of Jews that had become naturalized during the past few years. In St. Louis and St. Lawrence wards there were hundreds of Jews who had taken the oath of allegiance.

Another city official said that the time was not far distant when the Jews in St. Lawrence and St. Louis wards would be strong enough to elect a Jewish alderman.

DENOUNCES MR. BALFOUR

Stead Criticizes British Premier's Acts During Crisis

New York, Oct. 28.—William T. Stead declares in the Review of Reviews that Arthur Balfour, Prime Minister of Great Britain, is no longer a gentleman. Mr. Stead says Balfour was "straight" and "a thorough gentleman" up to the time Joseph Chamberlain resigned. Then he fell from grace. Mr. Stead explains as follows:

"Sept. 10 the Prime Minister received a letter from Mr. Chamberlain informing him that, despite the sacrifices made by the Cabinet to retain him as Colonial Secretary, he felt it his duty to resign his portfolio. * * *

"With Mr. Chamberlain's resignation in his pocket, Mr. Balfour summoned a meeting of the Cabinet Sept. 14.

"We know, on the authority of two of the Ministers who took part in it, that at no time during the whole of the protracted debate or at any time during the adjourned Cabinet held next day did the Prime Minister give his colleagues the slightest hint that Mr. Chamberlain had resigned, and that nothing they could do would induce him to reconsider his position.

"They say there is honor among thieves. There seems to have been a plentiful lack of it among Ministers, or, rather, it would be correct to say, between two Ministers—The Prime Minister and the Colonial Secretary. As for the other poor victims, they were as innocent as babes unborn. Hour after hour they were conducted blindfolded like lambs to the slaughter by the Prime Minister and his confederate, who must sometimes have felt qualms of conscience at the part they were playing. For these colleagues of theirs assumed so confidently that they were dealing with a gentleman.

"Three of the Ministers went home to write out their resignations. They were prompted to take this action because they believed, as they had deliberately been led to believe, that Mr. Chamberlain was to remain in the Cabinet to support and to incite Mr. Balfour to deviate as widely as possible from the hitherto accepted fiscal policy of the unionist party. Mr. Balfour received these resignations knowing that they had been written by Ministers whom he had purposely kept ignorant of the fact that Mr. Chamberlain had resigned, and that if they had but stayed their hand for a day, they would have known that the one man who had raised the 'dead and damned' ghost of protection from the infernal shades had recognized his defeat and had abandoned office."

FREDK DALTON PARKER, LAWYER,	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
GEORGE T. ORDWAY, COMMISSION BROKER,	CHICAGO, ILL.
EGBERT CHAMBERLAIN, Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.	NEW YORK

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house or sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5
More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them ar—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tulloch, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Erwin D Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

A Matrimonial Entanglement.

In "Chapters From My Diplomatic Life," which Andrew D. White, the United States diplomatist, is contributing to "The Century Illustrated Magazine," there occurs an interesting reminiscence regarding the working of the German marriage laws:—

"One morning a man came rushing in exclaiming: 'Mr. Minister, I am in the worst fix that any decent man was ever in. I want you to help me out of it;' and he then went on with a bitter tirade against everybody and everything in the German Empire.

"When his wrath had effervesced somewhat he stated his case as follows:—Last year while travelling through Germany I fell in love with a young German lady, and after my return to America became engaged to her. I have now come for my bride. The wedding is fixed for next Thursday; our steamer passages are taken a day or two later, and I find that the authorities will not allow me to marry unless I present a multitude of papers such as I never dreamed of! Some of them it will take months to get, and some I can never get. My intended bride is in distress; her family evidently distrust me; the wedding is postponed indefinitely; and my business partner is cabling me to come back to America as soon as possible. I am asked for a baptismal certificate—a Taufschein. Now, so far as I know, I was never baptised. I am required to present a certificate showing the consent of my parents to my marriage—I, a man thirty years old, and in a large business of my own! I am asked to give bonds for the payment of my debts in Germany. I owe no such debts; but I know no one who will give such a bond. I am notified that the banns must be published a certain number of times before the wedding. What kind of a country is this, anyhow?'

"We did the best we could. In an interview with the Minister of Public Worship I was able to secure a dispensation from the publishing of the banns; then a bond was drawn up, which I signed, and thus settled the question regarding possible debts in Germany. As to the baptismal certificate, I ordered inscribed, on the largest possible sheet of official paper, the gentleman's affidavit that in the State of Ohio where he was born no Taufschein, or baptismal certificate, was required at the time of his birth, and to this was affixed with plenty of wax the largest seal of the Legation. The form of the affidavit may be judged peculiar, but it was thought best not to startle the authorities with the admission that the man had not been baptised at all. They could easily believe that a State like Ohio, which some of them doubtless regarded as still in the backwoods and mainly tenanted by the aborigines, might have omitted in days gone by to require a Taufschein, but that an unbaptised Christian should offer himself to be married in Germany would perhaps have so paralyzed their powers of belief that permission for the marriage might never have been secured.

"In this and various other ways we overcame the difficulties, and though the wedding did not take place upon the appointed day, and the return to America had to be deferred, the couple at last after marriage first before the public authorities and then in church, were able to depart in peace."

The Blighting of His Fame.

"Ruined!" he cried, as he dashed a paper to the floor and trampled upon it "Ruined, disgraced! My fair fame blasted! My honor gone!"

"Dearest, what disaster is this?" It was his fond wife who gasped the question, in tones of anguish.

"A disaster which is irretrievable; a calamity which will crush me to the earth!" He ran his white, thin fingers through his luxuriant crop of long and inky hair, black as the raven's wing, at ten-and-a-half the bottle of black, warranted to defy detection—not a dye, not a stain, but a harmless liquid that merely has to be combed into the hair. (Vide advt.).

"Heavens, Horatio, tell me what has befallen thee!" The fair girl turned her horror-full eyes upon him. Her young soul, aged thirty-eight, shared his agony.

"Felicia," he cried, "do I look like a humorist?"

"The fates forefend!"

"Do I strike you at all as being a funny man?"

"Anything but that!" she shuddered

"Am I not known as a serious author?"

"You are," she admitted.

"Do I not paint the serious side of life?"

"You do," she interjected.

"Am I not a novelist of grave and serious endeavor?"

"You am," she whispered.

"Does not my fame depend on my reputation as a man that abhors a jest as a writer who revels in the darkness of despair and the greyness of existence?"

"It doth!" she moaned.

"Then listen to this," he faltered "These are the words that should have wound up the 'Fourpenny Monthly':—'As the light flickered out, she bent her queenly head and kissed him in the dark!'"

"Beautiful!" she ejaculated, enraptured.

"Yes, but listen to what the printer has made of it—'She bent her queenly head and kissed him on the beak!'"

"Oh, Horatio!" she murmured, and swooned.

"The horror of it!" he wildly cried. "The public will take me for a new humorist!"—"Ally Sloper's Half-Holiday."

A Unique Luncheon.

The Paris correspondent of the "Pall Mall Gazette" recently attended a luncheon given by M. Deming-Whitmore, which was distinctly original. The table, he says, took the form of a boat, and the waiters were dressed as sailors. There was a distinctly nautical flavor about the whole thing, and during the hors d'ouvres and dessert a sailor's chorus was sung. Not being a particularly good sailor, the perpetual motion of the table—which, it appears, took some time to get in working order—was not for me the most enjoyable sensation of the occasion. I was able, however, to appreciate the dexterity with which it had been planned, as not an article ever rolled—or even attempted to roll—off the table. To make the scene more realistic a canvas was hung on the walls, on which was painted a somewhat rough sea. The guests numbered twenty-four, and each was presented with a small compass.

When Hetty Green was brought to court on complaint of not having a license for her dog Dewey, she said:

"I've got a New York license for the dog. Ain't that enough?"

"No, you must have a Jersey license."

"Must I? Well, it's mighty extravagant; but a dog's worth mor'n a lawyer, anyhow; barks louder for you, and don't cost near so much."—New York Times.

For the Farmer.

Fresh excrement from animals is not always available fertility and not infrequently is injurious to vegetation with which it comes in contact, but decomposing manure, spread and ploughed under, exerts some influence upon the clods with which it is mixed, and whatever latent fertility it possesses is made more available.

Horse Dealers' Tricks.

"There are tricks in every trade, but I think that men who deal in horseflesh have a few more than those engaged in other occupations," said Samuel Ford, formerly owner of a big stock farm near Louisville, who is at the Plankinton House. "One of the directions in which the grafter in this line turns his attention is to making horses appear younger than they are, and there are scores of methods for accomplishing this purpose. The usual way of telling the age of an equine is to examine its teeth. A horse has a full set when five years old, and this consists of forty teeth. Six months later the nipper, or front teeth, become marked by a natural cavity, and it is the presence or absence of these markings that demonstrates the exact age of the horse. As it gets older the cavities begin to wear away, and it is then that the faker gets busy. In order to reproduce the markings the surface of the teeth is cut with a steel tool, and the requisite black lining of the groove burned in with nitrate of silver. In this way the animals that have passed their tenth birthday are palmed off as five-year-olds. If so desired, a three-year-old may be made two years older by chiselling away the side milk teeth, which are naturally present until the fifth year.

"It is not in that line alone, however, that the fakir operates," continued Mr. Ford, "for there are other things which call the attention of a close observer to the advanced age of a horse. One of these is a hollow which invariably appears on the forehead directly over the eyes. If a sale is in prospect the cunning agent introduces a fine pointed blowpipe through the skin; and blows gently through this until the skin is perfectly level. Skill is also required to conceal the fact that a horse is broken-winded, and drugs and chemicals of various kinds are used in doing this. Another graft is to conceal the fact that a horse is lame. This is often done by inserting something in the shoe so as to make the other hind, or fore foot, as the case may be, lame also, and while this gives the horse a peculiar gait, it makes the feet work alike."—From The Milwaukee Sentinel.

Pig-feeding Experiments.

In a recent bulletin issued by the Massachusetts Experiment Station, the best results were obtained with Indian meal and separated milk when mixed in the following proportions: Pigs weighing from 20 to 80 pounds, two ounces of Indian meal to each quart of skim milk; pigs weighing 80 to 125 pounds, four ounces of Indian meal to each quart of skim milk; pigs from 125 to 190 pounds, six ounces Indian meal to each quart of skim milk. In these experiments it was not found profitable to feed beyond the weight of 180 or 190 pounds. The daily food consumed after these weights were reached cost more than the increased value of the pork. From experiments recently carried out in Germany, it was shown that profit in feeding ceases when the animal attains two hundred pounds in weight. It has been ascertained that 2 per cent. of the live weight in food must be taken each day to support live weight. If the animal weighs three hundred pounds, this amounts to six pounds of food for that purpose daily, or over 40 pounds per week, from which no profit is derived. In another experiment the pigs were taken at ages ranging from five to eight weeks. During the first hundred days of the experiment not far from two pounds of digestible food produced one pound of growth, while during the last fifty days the ratio was four pounds digestible food to one pound of growth. Every pound of pork made during the last fifty days cost double that made in the first hundred days. These experiments indicate that it is not advisable to keep pigs until they grow into large weights.

Toulouse Geese.

I was once much prejudiced against geese, but after having some years of experience with Toulouse geese I find no fault with them. They are gentle, not liable to disease, light eaters and long livers. I am surprised at the small quantity of food required to keep them. Grass and green stuffs are their principal food during the summer. In cold, snowy weather I feed them cut fodder and clover, with a little corn at night. A shed open to the south, with a little straw thrown in occasionally, is given them. They occupy it at night and on cold days. I also succeeded in coaxing them to lie in it. In open weather they take care of themselves. They are by nature fond of water, but I find it is not necessary to have a pond or stream for them. The young goslings should have water in shallow vessels. They will not thrive if they get their backs wet in any manner until they are feathered.

Geese should be picked only when the feathers are ripe. If not picked when ripe they shed them and pick them out themselves. Picking geese too often is cruel, and any one doing so ought to be bound hand and foot and the hair jerked out. Picking geese in winter is unnatural, and any one doing so ought to be forced to spend a night out of doors in a half nude condition. I use their eggs for setting, and do not pick them during the laying season. A pair of these geese will yield enough feathers to pay for their feed, and we have the geese and eggs left. There is always a demand for feathers. Roast goose for the holidays is almost equal to turkey in popularity. How can a farmer with plenty of range excuse himself from keeping a choice flock of geese?—W. A. Crosby, in Poultry Farmer.

Dr. Rainsford had a habit at one time of conditioning his actions with the phrase "Deo volente," or "God willing," or something of the sort. An old woman, the head of an aristocratic family, invited him to dine.

"I shall be delighted to accept," he said, "if I am spared."

Perhaps the woman thought she sniffed cant in the terminal phrase, for she said quickly. "Oh, if you're dead, I promise not to expect you."—Christian Register.

Black Hills Copper Company
LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is now offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

Purchase the Treasury Stock of The Drake Mining Drainage and Tunnel Transportation Co.

OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 150 to 450 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,300 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale 200,000 shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at 25 cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

Active and experienced agents wanted to sell said Preferred Treasury stock on commission

THE ROSE OF THE RING

He did not calculate on the disturbance in store for him.

Scarcely had he reached the end of the first volume, when a cry from without made him glance up from his book.

The sound was repeated, a woman's voice calling on the stillness, the accents wild and shrill, as though wrung from a soul in the extremity of despair.

Flinging aside the book, he sprang to his feet and hurried towards the window.

Once more he heard the cry, this time dying away in a long moan. Having made up his mind as to the direction from which the sound had come, he took a lighted candle, and opening his door, noiselessly went down to the hall.

No wish was further from his mind than that of rousing the household; yet the cries he had heard had convinced him there was somebody in distress out in the grounds, and eager to render what assistance might be in his power, he determined to leave the house without disturbing any of the inmates.

He looked at the hall door; heavy bolts were drawn across, and it occurred to him that, in addition to this precaution, the butler had charge of the key by which the lock was secured.

Marc did not hesitate; he would not arouse the butler while there was any easier way of leaving the house.

Remembering a door leading from one of the passages out into the grounds, he hurried towards it. The bolts had been drawn back, and, seeing there was no other fastening to the door, he laid his hand on the knob and drew it towards him.

The door yielded to his touch. Either the butler had neglected to secure the bolts, or they had been unfastened by somebody who had since left the house.

Placing the candle on a shelf, he stepped out into the darkness, gently drawing the door to after him.

There was not a moment for him to lose if he meant to render assistance to one whose cries had reached his ears.

The sound had come from the direction of the shrubbery.

He started off at once in that direction, and presently saw a light gleaming through the trees—a faint ray issuing from a ruined lodge he remembered having seen during one of his rambles through the grounds.

He quickened his pace.

The cries must have come from this spot—the distracting, heart-piercing cries that even now seemed to echo in his ears.

The rough, wooden door was flung open.

With rapid strides he reached the threshold and almost stumbled against a woman's form lying on the floor.

The light the lantern gave was but dim.

At first he could not distinguish more than the form of a woman stretched at his feet—a woman unconscious, perhaps dead.

He bent down and looked into her face.

He gazed with a kind of wonder at the parted lips, the beautifully-curved eyelids with their dark fringes, and then slowly drew himself erect.

He had recognized Gretchen.

Marc did not question himself as to why she was in such a plight.

She was always a mystery to him, and instinctively he felt whatever her secret, that secret had brought her here to-night.

His gaze, fixed on her face, seemed to draw her back to consciousness.

She moved uneasily, and, with a moaning sound, opened her eyes.

Her senses were too dim for her to remember what had happened.

She looked at Marc as though she were in a dream; then, as little by little, recollection returned to her, she dragged herself up on her elbow, and an expression he never forgot came into her eyes.

"Why are you here?" she exclaimed fiercely. "To watch over me, to pry into my secret? Could you not leave me to myself? How have I wronged you that you should try to injure me?"

Marc saw the wildness in her eyes and gazed down at her with pity.

"I am here only to help you," he said, gently. "Let me assist you to rise. I am afraid you are hurt."

She drew back savagely from his touch.

"No, I am not hurt," she replied. "You need not wait to take me back. I can go as I came—alone."

A look of anger came over his face although when he spoke his voice was very gentle.

"It is scarcely an hour for you to pass through the grounds by yourself especially as you seem to have just recovered consciousness. Let me lift you. I fear you will not be able to walk without my assistance."

He stooped and raised her to a standing posture, keeping his arm firmly about her lest she should sink again to the ground.

In his manner there was quiet power she made no attempt to defeat.

Perhaps she felt too weak to resist him.

She swayed slightly against him as he led her from the lodge, and for a few moments he was in dread of her fainting again.

In silence, he half-led, half-carried her back to the house.

He did not ask whether those cries he had heard had issued from her lips.

To have done so, he knew, would have been to rouse all her defiance against himself, and, for her own sake, he was anxious to win her confidence.

When they had reached the passage where he had left the candle burning, he paused and quietly fastened the door.

"In future, I think it would be better not to leave the house at such a late hour," he said, breaking the silence, which had lasted during the walk back. "This is a lonely old place, and you might get into some perilous predicament and not find it easy to save yourself. If you called for help there are few who would be likely to hear you."

She cast a swift look up in his face. "Did I call any one to-night?" she asked with a desperate defiance.

He hardly knew how to answer her. The truth came first to his lips.

"I heard cries which I thought were uttered by somebody in distress," he said. "Following the direction whence they proceeded, the only living creature I came across was yourself."

"Did anybody else hear those sounds?" she asked, her lips dry, her tones husky.

He defined her meaning, and did his best to divert her fears.

"I think not. Mine is the only room overlooking the shrubbery, and all the rest of the household seemed to be sleeping."

There was a pause.

Gretchen's hands twitched nervously.

Her great imploring eyes were fixed on his face.

"Will anyone else hear of this incident—to-morrow?" she forced herself to say at last.

There was infinitely more in her look than was expressed in the few words.

"Rest assured," he answered, "I shall breathe nothing of this adventure; nor shall I urge your confidence. I only advise you, in future, not to wander out by yourself at night. One can never tell what danger may be lurking near."

Gretchen took his words for what they were worth—a promise not to be lightly broken; knowing she would have nothing to fear from him, she turned away and went up to her own room.

Vegetable Crops Under Cover.

Several interesting experiments are being conducted this year in the horticultural department of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, by the horticulturist, W. T. Macoun. One of these experiments is the growing of vegetables in an enclosure the top, sides and ends of which are made of cheese cloth, as compared with growing them in the open air. The object is to determine what difference there will be in time of maturing and in the tenderness of some of the vegetables. The kinds of vegetables used in this experiment are radishes, lettuce, beets, beans, carrots, tomatoes, cucumbers, watermelons, muskmelons, cauliflower, egg plant and corn. The results of this experiment will be published in the annual report of the farm, but already several interesting facts have been noted. The temperature is at times several degrees higher in the enclosure, the greatest difference being at night, which is very favorable to plants that succeed but in hot weather. During heavy storms the rain comes through the cloth as a thick mist, and the soil is hence not compacted as much as outside. Radishes were ready for use three days earlier inside, and were perfectly free from maggots, while those outside were rendered almost worthless on account of them. Cauliflowers inside were also free from maggots, while those outside were badly affected. Tomatoes ripened earlier inside, but it is doubtful if the crop of fruit will set as well as outside. Cucumbers, melons, beans and egg plants are more advanced inside than out. Even if it does not prove profitable to grow many kinds of vegetables under cheese cloth, there is no doubt but that in the home garden this method would give good satisfaction for most vegetables.

An enclosure has many advantages. The cats, dogs, chickens, birds, and even children, can be kept out, while all injurious insects except those already in the soil are excluded. The cheese cloth used in this experiment cost 4 1-2 cents a yard of 40 inches in width. The height of the enclosure is about 6 feet 6 inches. This experiment was suggested by a somewhat similar one which was tried by Mr. Graham Bell in Cape Breton last year. Experiments of this kind are also being made in the United States. Tobacco, which has been grown so successfully in the State of Connecticut under cheese cloth, is also being tried in another enclosure on the farm.

AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY
FOR BOTH LARGE AND SMALL INVESTORS

Owing to valuable Patents having been granted this Company, we are desirous of extending our business to the Dominion of Canada. Owing to the Customs duties, the extra cost in transportation and the numerous expenses attached, and the delays in deliveries in shipping goods from one country to another, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a factory in the Dominion, that we may be in a position to meet the immediate wants of the business

The articles that we make from our Patent Fabric are too numerous to mention, and it is not necessary that we go into the details of the merits of our goods, as they are already in use to a large extent and have no equal. Our goods are covered by several patents, and the profit on the goods is large, averaging from 25 to 100 per cent, thus affording the company large revenue to meet all its obligations

In order to secure funds to equip a plant in the Dominion of Canada we will offer to the people of Canada $100,000 of our Bonds paying ten per cent. interest per annum.

Experience has shown that stocks based upon sound industrial enterprises have never been equalled from the standpoint of legitimate profit. For instance, a few hundred dollars invested in the Bell Telephone Company's stock in the beginning of the enterprise now commands thousands of dollars, after having yielded large dividends annually. Of course opportunities for such profitable investments do not present themselves every day, and it is also very true that a vast amount of capital has been misdirected in the endeavor to exploit inventions and enterprises which shrewd and far seeing investors should have recognized as impractical. But as regards this enterprise even the most conservative must admit it has possibilities of development which are a most incalculable and which have already been demonstrated in a practical manner. We have no speculative elements—this is a sound business proposition, and the patents which we own are worth several million dollars, as there can only be one fabric of this kind and that is ours.

All the above facts are simple statements of the truth and can be fully substantiated to the satisfaction of all investors.

The business is no experiment, the incorporators of this Company have made it their business for a great many months past and understand all the details, the prospects are therefore bright, and brighter than those of many other opportunities.

This Company is not a promotors company, every dollar goes to enhance the value of the property and business and increase the capacity. There is nothing speculative in this proposition, the enterprises are undertaken for industrial purposes only to make profits by the operation and development of the business.

Considering that the enterprise is already upon an established basis with a certainty of profitable future expansion, we feel warranted in the assertion that this is an attractive proposition to investors whether large or small.

The price of these Bonds are one dollar each, and will be issued in any number wanted. With every purchaser of each five Bonds we will give as a bonus, one share of stock of the Company, the par value of which is five dollars per share, thus assuring interest on the investment, and with the stock which is bound to increase you will have for nothing. These Bonds will be issued for five years. Persons desiring to avail themselves of this opportunity want to send their remittance at once.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January, 20th, 1903.

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 11 years. I have tried several doctors and they done my no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peaks Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 412 Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes: "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McFadyen, Riverdale, P.E.I., writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure, it has done grand work for me, I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have bee standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough, 50c per box or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $100 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 166 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

New York, Oct 29—The market today was only fairly active. There was some scattered support in evidence on the lower prices but the offerings on the advances were quiet. The news from St. Louis was more cheerful but the money market locally was less bullishly regarded, since the call rates show tendency to harden; the London market was strong but buying attracted very little attention. There were no new features in connection with the copper situation in Montana, but A.C.P. and other copper shares displayed a firm tendency. The market for outside stocks was dull and easy, while in bonds there was some profit taking and some issues were quite heavy.

New York, Oct. 29—The stock market for the most part was rather irregular as a consequence of uncertainty in connection with the situation at St. Louis. The affairs of the Mound City are believed to be well in hand, however, and no further trouble is expected. The money market shows a tendency to harden but the advance in interest rates yesterday was the result purely of the transfer of a big block of money to New Orleans and St. Louis. There is still a good demand for investment securities and in this connection the better classes of bonds are being early sought. The foreigners are credited with having bought a great many American bonds during the past few days.

Chicago, Oct. 29—The market continues at a standstill. There was a fair demand on the lower prices; the crop news was bearish, but indications are that the acreage will not be increased. The clearances continued only moderate but the Northwest movement showed an increasing tendency; on the close there was a tired feeling in that there was some uncertainty with regard to to the actual market position of certain professionals; the corn market was nervous. The movement from the country was fair; the primary movement was in fair demand and the clearances were light. The market for oats was quiet and steady. The cash demand was fair and the country offerings small.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 29—There was some fair buying of wheat on the lower levels but the bulls were not aggressive, and on the firm spots there were signs of realizing. However, there was a better export business than looked for at the close. Shorts in May and December are believed to have covered quite freely yesterday. Corn and oats displayed considerable strength yesterday. Shorts are believed to have covered freely. The crop news continues quite favorable.

Notice—The New York Stock Exchange will be closed Tuesday, Nov. 3rd, election day.

IS GUILTY OF MURDER

Cashel to Swing December 15 for Killing Belt

Calgary, N.W.T., Oct. 28.—The trial of Ernest Cashel for the murder of Isaac Rufus Belt, rancher, at Red Deer last fall, concluded yesterday, and the prisoner was found guilty. Cashel was sentenced by Chief Justice Sifton to be hanged on December 15.

The trial lasted eight days. The judge's charge was strongly against the prisoner.

The doomed man's widowed mother owns a ranch near Red Deer, whither she had come from Kansas a few years ago. Last fall the prisoner started out forging checks and stealing horses. In attempting to escape he wound up at Belt's, who was living alone, and after Cashel went away Belt could not be found, but his body was discovered three months after in the Red Deer River, with a bullet in his head. Cashel in the meantime was found guilty of stealing horses and sentenced for two years in the Stony Mountain Penitentiary. He was brought from there to stand his trial for murder.

As already stated in the Times, the evidence of the Crown was a complete network of circumstantial evidence, with a few scattered words by Cashel to fellow prisoners indicating a confession.

No evidence was offered by the prisoner. In answer to questions by the judge before sentence, he said he could read and write, was intemperate, and 21 years of age. He took his sentence coolly.

THE ALASKA AWARD

Main Entrance to Portland Canal Between Disputed Islands

Ottawa, Oct. 28.—A Government official, who makes a study of cartography has been looking into the award of the Alaska Boundary Commissioners, with the aid of the latest United States naval charts, and thinks he has found an explanation of the decision for which Lord Alverstone is blamed, giving two of the four islands in Portland Channel to the Americans.

He says the chart shows that these two islands, Kannaghunut and Sitklan are separated from the mainland to the north by a narrow channel, which is charted as being only about four fathoms, or 24 feet, deep, which is not a navigable depth for seagoing vessels. Between these two islands and the adjacent island of Wales the channel is wider, and has a depth of 50 fathoms, or 300 feet, at mean low water.

This therefore, was regarded as the main entrance of Portland Channel, and accordingly the two small islands named were regarded as belonging to the northern mainland, and the islands of Wales and Pearce, which are separated from them by the deep channel, were held as being to the south of the true Portland Channel, and given to Canada.

In corroboration of this explanation the fact is cited that in 1871, when the possession of San Juan Island, in the Straits of Fuca, were submitted to arbitration, the Emperor of Germany decided that the island belonged to the United States, as the channel separating it from Vancouver, was the main passage, the sounding being much shallower between the island and the coast of Washington State.

DYSPEPTIC AND SALLOW

Englishmen Advised to Shun Yankee Wives

London, Oct. 28.—Not content with excoriating the scandals and foibles of London society, Rita, the English novelist, whose books have a circulation almost equalling Corelli's, pours out the vials of her wrath upon America, its men and women alike. Rita likes nothing American, not even the engagement of American heiresses to British peers. In an article in the current Free Lance, entitled, "The Amazing American," Rita, discussing American manners, says:

"That anybody can be rich or titled, yet perfectly unassuming, is a fact the American cannot realize or comprehend. It will take centuries to instill that knowledge into him.'

After scornfully referring to American dyspepsia and sallowness, Rita asks,

"What will be the result of grafting this effete, anaemic branch of modern humanity on the once sturdy British constitution? What will be the consequence of ever recurring intermariage between the English aristocrat and the American girl? It is a question for serious consideration, but the amazing American considers nothing seriously except the almighty dollars."

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore, There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100-foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G. Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Co. is to make some money. "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

One-quarter section patented land adjoining above;

All located in the Susanville Mining District, Eastern Oregon. Will be sold together or separately. Total price, $9,000.

We consider this group of properties to be unusually promising as a heavy producing mine joins a portion of the land, and near-by placer grounds are showing up very rich.

Act quickly, if at all interested.

First Class Mining Proposition.

The Anaconda Gold Mining Co.

Home Office: 412 Merchants Loan and Trust Bldg.
135 Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.

This is one of the best propositions ever placed before the Canadian investor. The Company owns 600 acres in the celebrated Black Hills District, South Dakota, comprising 32 claims. The track is unquestionably on the great Homestake belt, being located directly between the wonderful Homestake mine and the Clover Leaf mine. Two shafts have already been sunk, the main one being down 154 feet, with capacity of going 1000 feet. The Company has also installed an Ingersoll-Sargeant air compressor and drills, 125 horse power boiler, steam pumps, and in fact everything needed for actual operation, with the exception of its stamp mills; which will be installed at once. The vein of gold-bearing quartz traversing the Company's property is very rich. Assays have run from $3 to $64.80 per ton.

The Company has a capital of 1,500,000 shares, divided into 750,000 preferred and 750,000 common, par value $1 per share, fully paid up and non-assessable. The treasury stock has been made preferred stock to the amount of 25 cents a share. Out of the first dividends 25 cents per share will be paid to the owners of this preferred stock before holders of common stock receive any share of the profits. After the 25 cents has been paid to the shareholders of preferred stock, then all alike share in the dividends. (This means nothing less than that the first investors in the enterprise will have all their money returned to them before any dividends are declared to the rank and file o investors.

A limited amount of Stock has been placed on the Canadian market. Full particulars and copy of prospectus may be obtained from MR. R. J. KIDD, or the undersigned Agent for Peterborough city

Cured in Ten Minutes by Simply Inhaling

CATARRHOZONE

THIS SIMPLE INHALER is a most wonderful cure for colds, coughs and catarrhal diseases. Simply inhale the medicated air at the mouth and nostrils. It spreads through every air cell and passage of the breathing organs, clears away mucous discharges, heals sore spots, and relieves congestion. It is pleasant, simple and effective.

ORDINARY COLDS last just about ten minutes when Catarrhozone is breathed deeply into the lungs and exhaled through the nostrils.

COLD ON THE CHEST is relieved quickly and cured with absolute certainty in half a day if Catarrhozone is inhaled ten minutes every hour.

ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS are relieved right away, and cured to stay cured by the persistent use of Catarrhozone.

CATARRH and DEAFNESS are almost instantly relieved and thoroughly eradicated by inhaling Catarrhozone.

A GUARANTEE is given with every complete Catarrhozone outfit to give satisfactory results, and a trial will convince the most sceptical of its merits. Price $1.00. Sample size 25c. Sold by all druggists and N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A Painful Accident

While engaged in domestic duties yesterday morning, Mrs. John Stewart, 407 Wolfe street, met with a painful accident. It appears she in some way fell, sustaining a fracture of both bones of the right leg below the knee. Dr. Boucher was called, and Mrs. Stewart afterwards removed in the ambulance to Nicholls Hospital. Her many friends will sympathize with her in her misfortune.

—King Edward's birthday, Nov. 9th, will not be a public holiday, but will be celebrated on Victoria Day, May 24th, thus following the same procedure as last year.

A TERRIBLE MISTAKE

Child Drank Lye and is in Critical Condition

Yesterday about noon a child of Mr. Fred Nelson, who resides on Water street, secured a bottle containing lye and ammonia, and drank the contents. Dr. Young, who was immediately summoned did what he could to relieve the little one, who is in a very critical condition.

A CHILD BURNED

Little Daughter of Mr. Fleming, Ashburnham Badly Burned

Yesterday the two-year-old daughter of Mr. Fleming, who resides on Brown street, Ashburnham, met with a terrible accident. It appears the child had been playing around the stove, and, it is thought, lit some paper, the flames catching her dress and enveloping her body. Mrs. Fleming happened to be in the yard, and the child's screams brought her quickly into the house. She succeeded in putting the fire out, but not before the little one was frightfully burned on the left shoulder and arm.

Dr. Young was sent for and did what he could to relieve the little sufferer. The child is now doing as well as can be expected.

SAPPHIRE CORRUNDUM CO'Y.

The Mines and Machinery will be Sold

The court has ordered the judicial sale of the mines, machinery, and all the assets of the Sapphire Corundum Company, of Peterborough, one of the companies floated by Ernest Terence Hooley, the English promoter. Until November 24th Official Referee McAndrew will receive tenders for the whole of the properties, which include nearly 300 acres in Methuen township, Peterborough county. On November 25th he will accept the highest tender. The claims of the creditors are not large. There are perhaps a dozen for in all $15,000. The Hamilton Powder Company, of Montreal, are among the chief creditors. It was upon their claim that the court recently granted the winding-up order.

THE LATE HENRY OWENS

Mr. Henry Owens, an Old Resident, Passes Away

On Wednesday evening last Mr. Henry Owens, an old and esteemed resident of Peterborough, passed away at his late residence, 366 Water street. Deceased was born in Hope Township, 68 years ago, and came to Peterborough when a young man, residing here ever since. For many years he engaged in the manufacture of pumps, which he gave up a few years ago to go into the sale of agricultural implements. The deceased was a consistent member of the Methodist church. He was also a member of Corinthian Lodge A. F. & A. M.

About four months ago Mr. Owens was taken ill with bronchial trouble, which developed pneumonia from which he could get no relief. He leaves a widow to mourn his demise.

Highly esteemed by everybody, Mr. Owens' demise will be greatly regretted.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at three o'clock, under Masonic auspices, from his late place of residence, on Water street, and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery.

HUNTERS GALORE

Several Parties Leaving for the Northern Woods

The Gold Lake Club is the first hunting party from town to get to work. The following members are already at the lodge at Gold Lake: Messrs. W. Snowden, T. Rutherford, F. Stenson, W. R. Hartshorn, A. Ringer, A. Blade. J. Fitzgerald and others will leave today.

Messrs. J. Alexander, J. P. Larocque, W. Gere, H. Willis and G. Williamson, who constitute another party, will leave today for Sucker Lake.

The Coe Hill party will leave tomorrow. These are: Messrs. D. Best, Dr. Anyes, T. Brightman and son, John F. Fraser, of Norwood, and a few others from out of town. They will be absent for two weeks.

The Eagle Lake party will also leave town tomorrow. In the party will be Messrs. R. Tivey, C. James, G. Fitzgerald, C. Gumsolus, C. Westlake, M. Dobson, J. Cochrane, H. Evans, W. White, J. J. Cottingham, B. Mitchell, C. Butcher, T. Parker, O. Dumble, L. Hay, M. Tooley, D. Sheehy and J. Mitchell.

The Ketchecum hunting party will leave tomorrow. The party is made up as follows: Captain-General H. C. Winch, G. W. Bennett, G. S. Matthews, G. W. Morrow, R. Stuart, — Andrews, — Douglas, — Laird, R. M. Dennistoun, V. Eastwood, D. Walker, J. M. Brooks, — Johnston, — Gibbs, W. H. Hill, R. King, W. Irwin, R. Hicks.

Advertising for Teachers

Mr. J. H. Knight, Public School Inspector, Lindsay, writes to the papers advising trustees when advertising for a teacher to state the salary they will give. Mr. Knight says if this plan were adopted it would save a good deal of unnecessary correspondence and often failure to obtain what was wanted. Then a date should be given up to which applications would be received. The trustees should meet the next day, and the secretary should notify both the successful and the unsuccessful candidates of the result.

KNOW NOW.

And will Never Forget the Experience

The coffee drinker who has suffered and then been completely cured by changing from coffee to Postum Food Coffee knows something valuable.

He or she has no doubt about it. A California lady says: "I learned the truth about coffee in a peculiar way. My husband who has for years been of a very bilious temperament decided to leave off coffee and give Postum a trial and as I did not want the trouble of making two beverages for meals I concluded to try Postum too and the results have been that while my husband has been greatly benefited, I have myself received even greater benefit. When I began to drink Postum I was thin in flesh and very nervous and now I actually weigh 18 pounds more than I did at that time and I am stronger physically in all my nerves while husband is cured of all his ails.

"We have learned our little lesson about coffee and we know something about Postum too for we have used Postum now steadily for the last three years and we shall always continue to do so. We have no more use for coffee—the drug drink. We prefer Postum and health." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

MRS. BOOTH-TUCKER KILLED IN WRECK.

Was Traveling Over Santa Fe Railroad to Visit Her Husband in Chicago

Kansas City, Mo., Oct 29.—Mrs. Emma Booth-Tucker, consul in America of the Salvation Army, wife of Commander Booth-Tucker, and second daughter of William Booth, founder of the Army, was killed in the wreck of the eastbound California train, No. 2, near Dean Lake, Mo., 85 miles east of Kansas City, at ten o'clock last night. Col. Thomas C. Holland, in charge of the Salvation Army at Amity, Colo., was fatally injured, but up to 3.30 this morning was reported still alive. Fifteen others were more or less seriously hurt. The dead and injured were taken to Fort Madison, Iowa.

Mrs. Booth-Tucker was rendered unconscious, and died within half an hour after being injured. Her skull was fractured, and she was injured internally.

Mrs. Booth-Tucker was on her way from a visit to the colony at Amity, Col., to Chicago, where she was to have met her husband to-day. Though the wreck occurred at 9.30 o'clock last night, it was not known until after midnight that Mrs. Booth-Tucker was among the injured.

MR. EARLE'S LECTURE

Mr. Barton Earle Delivers a Lecture at Ottawa

—Mr. Barton Earle, for many years a resident of Peterborough, delivered a lecture at Ottawa on Shakespeare. Regarding the lecture, the Free Press says: "Mr. Barton Earle, of Peterborough, gave an address on Shakespeare last night in the Glebe Presbyterian church. Rev. J. W. H. Milne presided, and a large number assembled to hear the address. Mr. Earle was for some time English master in Peterborough Collegiate Institute. He has made a thorough study of the great Elizabethan dramatist, and his hints given last night on the way to study Shakespeare demonstrated his masterly hold over his subject.

"There were certain principles easily recognized in the study of Shakespeare dramas. For instance, there were five acts in all his dramas, and the climax of interest was in the central act. As an illustration of the best way to study the great master, he selected the "Merchant of Venice," and showed Shakespeare's wonderful ability of illustrating character.

Rev. J. W. H. Milne's opinion of Mr. Earle's address is that it is a masterpiece. It is certainly one of the best addresses that has ever been delivered on the subject in Ottawa.

When Mr. Earle speaks again on Shakespeare in the Capital it will be in a larger building and before a larger audience, for he is an authority on the subject and knows how to present his views on the platform.

A vote of thanks was moved to Mr. Earle by Mr. J. R. Reid, and was seconded by Dr. McElroy. Rev. Mr. McIntosh and Mr. Payne spoke of the address in terms of high eulogy.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January, 20th, 1902.

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 11 years. I have tried several doctors and they done my no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

DRS. KENNEDY & KERGAN

The Leading Specialists of America. 25 Years in Detroit. Bank Security.

Nine out of every ten men have been guilty of transgression against nature in their youth. Nature never excuses, no matter how young, thoughtless or ignorant he may be. The punishment and suffering corresponds with the crime. The only escape from its ruinous results is proper scientific treatment to counteract its effects. The DRAINS, either by nightly losses, or secretly through the urine, must be stopped—the NERVES must be built up and invigorated, the blood must be purified, the SEXUAL ORGANS must be vitalized and developed, the BRAIN must be nourished. Our New Method Treatment provides all these requirements. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers disappear; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and sexual systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. The various organs become natural and manly. We invite all the afflicted to call and consult us confidentially and free of charge. Cures Guaranteed or no Pay. We treat and cure: Varicocele, Blood Diseases, Stricture, Gleet, Emissions, Urinary Drains, Spermatorrhoea, Unnatural Discharges, Kidney and Bladder Diseases.

JAPAN WOULD RATHER FIGHT NOW IF WAR WITH RUSSIA IS TO COME

s Better Prepared for Hostilities Than the Great Northern Empire

APAN IS LIKELY TO LAND TROOPS IN COREA

ch an Action Might Force the Czar to Issue an Ultimatum--War Probable

okio, Oct. 31—Unless Russia within e next few weeks cease to accumulate rmaments in the Far East and otherse to offend and menace Japan, it is obable that the Mikado will sanction e landing of Japan's forces at Pingng, Corea, with the object of forealling the southward movement of ussia's troops across the Peninsula. is realized that such action might lead natum, but Japan would prefer an uliatum, but Japan would prefer an ulnatum to an indefinite prolongation of e existing situation. Indeed if war is vitable, as many of the best inrmed observers believe, the Mikado's visers favor compelling Russia to ue an ultimatum.

Japan would pay no attention to such message and consequently Russia ould be compelled to fire the first ot. On excellent authority a corresndent is able to state that some of e strongest of the Mikado's Cabinet ge a forward movement of the kind ggested as soon as the coming wint- renders Japan's natural advantages vorable.

t is possible that the alternative opnism and pessimism of the corresponnce emanating from the Far East, day day, bears little relation to the urse of the crisis which remains comratively constant and thus far exbits almost no promise of a pacific teome.

Some hope is entertained that the Czar ll ultimately strike an effective blow r peace, but it is feared His Majesty ll delay his action until too late.

COMMERCE IS AFFECTED.

London, Oct. 31—The uncertainty of the tuation in the far east, according to e Che-Foo correspondent of the Morng Post, is seriously affecting comerce. Trade between Che-Foo and anchuria is suspended. The corresndent says:

"I hear from a trustworthy source that pan will not gain an inch of territory Corea through raising the Tongampho question, as the Russians are firmly settled there. It is possible that a Japanese occupation of Ma Sam Pho, Corea, will cut off communication between Vladivostock and Port Arthur. Some troops from the Trans-Baikal territory have been ordered to Liao Tung Peninsula, and have been styled the army of east Siberia. A Japanese paper says the Russian Consul at Ma Sa. Pho is creating a consulate at Fusan, Corea, which is regarded as a Japanese strong hold.

CZAR'S LETTER TO LOUBEF.

Paris, Oct. 31—Though the Czar's letter to President Loubet, brought by Count Lamsdorff, has not yet been made public, the Echo de Paris today gives the following summary of its contents which it claims is correct: The Czar refers with pleasure to his own visit to Paris and to the visit of President Loubet to St. Petersburg. Russia, continues the letter, will firmly pursue the policy of peace enunciated in his previously expressed views and affirmed by his initiative in the bringing about of The Hague Arbitration Court. He hopes to remain a friend and ally of France and to co-operate with France in the peaceful task of securing a happy settlement of pending questions in both the near East and the Far East. The letter concludes with the presentation of the Czarina's compliments to President Loubet.

The first formal conference between Count Lamsdorff and M. Delcasse was held at the Foreign Office yesterday afternoon. After an hour together, the two statesmen proceeded to Elysee Palace, where President Loubet received Count Lamsdorf who presented M. Loubet with an autograph letter from the Czar. The conference at Elysee lasted one hour and ten minutes.

The various meetings of the Ministers have caused a wide range of speculation. The Ministers themselves, however, have kept their own counsels. The view is generally accepted that the conferences covered the entire range of France-Russian relations, and particularly the pending issues in the East and Far East.

France recognizes the paramount importance of the interests of Russia and Austria in the Balkans, and, therefore, waives her former objections to representatives of those countries alone supervising the Macedonian reforms. France thus supports Russia. The situation in the Far East was also discussed with the result that the attitude of France will not be modified by the possibility of war between Russia and Japan.

HYGIENEIC ALLIANCE

Strong Organization Formed to Fight Disease Immortality and Intemperance

Paris, Oct. 29.—Assembled in the amphitheater of the faculty of medicine of the University of Paris, the members of the first National Anti-Alcoholic Congress on Monday witnessed the formation of a powerful "Alliance for Social Hygiene," including all the societies in France formed to fight disease, immortality, and intemperance. Casimir-Perier, ex-President of the Republic, pointed out in a passionate speech the necessity for these bodies working together, since the evils they are fighting are closely connected.

France, the ex-President declared, with tears in his eyes, had loaded him with honors, but had not yet satisfied his ambition, as he desired to devote the rest of his life to the cause of temperance.

Declarations such as these seem to have reawakened the country to the ravages of drink, for the committee of the new mutual organization includes men of all parties and professions.

The Anti-Alcoholic Congress decided to provide bi-weekly conferences on the liquor question in the lecture rooms in every city in France throughout the coming winter.

COMBINE TO ROB

Contractors and Union Accused of Dividing Illegal Rake Off

New York, Oct. 29.—In a statement to the public issued last night by the firm of William Bradley & Son, contracting stonecutters, in Brooklyn, it is alleged that their employes, about one hundred in number, were ordered on strike yesterday at the instigation of an association of employing stonecutters, which has formed an illegal alliance with labor unions connected with the trade.

This firm charges specifically that members of the association regularly add ten per cent. to all bids for stone work, and after averaging bids the association's officers apportion the contracts that this added ten per cent. amounts annually to about $800,000, which is divided with the unions, the latter receiving about $80,000.

Widow Brown's Paper

Morrisburg, Oct. 29.—Mr. Fawcett, acting Customs collector, made a seizure of 550 pounds of show paper and a boat last night about 9 o'clock. The paper was for "The Real Widow Brown" Company, dated to play on Friday, but there were no marks on the parcels indicating ownership. The owner will have to pay double duty to obtain it, and the owner of the boat, which belongs to Waddington, will have to pay to recover it.

The Sultan will Fight

Vienna, Oct. 31—An official telegram from Constantinople announces that Tyrkey has suspended the demobilization of her troops, but will probably resume before long. It is supposed at Vienna that the Sultan is filled with loathing at the Austro-Russian scheme of control, and wishes to promote the belief that he will fight rather than yield, but it is expected that under the pressure of the powers this bellicose demeanour will presently change.

LAURIER BETWEEN TWO MILLSTONES

New York Sun Points Out Premier's Unenviable Position

New York, Oct. 31—The New York Sun says: The means which Laurier would employ to obtain Canada's right to negotiate her own treaties are not specified, nor is it in any way indicated how far he would venture in claiming or in demanding rights.

"In view of this declaration by the head of the dominant party in Canada, it is interesting to note that some of the Canadian people charge him with responsibility for the adverse decision of the Alaska commission.

"So eminent a man as Sir Charles Tupper has openly asserted Sir Wilfrid's responsibility by reason of his consent to allow the matter 'to be arbitrated by a commission of United States politicians and British and Canadian lawyers.' He asserts that the manner in which Laurier yielded to the wishes of the United States as to the way in which the question should be settled, will be long remembered by the people of Canada as a piece of weak-kneed statesmanship.

"The Canadian Premier seems to be occupying a central position between millstones. In England he is charged with disloyalty. At home in Canada he is charged with the sacrifice of Canadian interests. Treaty making is an act of sovereignty open only to sovereign powers. To declare that Canada must have the right to effect her own treaties is little short of the declaration that Canada must become a sovereign power."

CUT IT OUT

Quit White Bread and Coffee and Get Well

A tale that sounds like magic yet is but a simple evidence of what proper food can do in the place of improper food:

A lady of Quincy, Ill., says: "It seems impossible that I could have gone through what I did and be alive and well today. I was most of my life troubled with a weak stomach and severe headaches and as I grew older I got slowly worse. Ony physician treated me five years for dyspepsia without any help and I went to another physician who said I had a tumor and I believed him. I was unable to bear even the loosest clothing and could scarcely lift my head, finally becoming entirely bed-ridden.

"Then I changed to another doctor who said I had chronic catarrh of the stomach and advised a change of climate telling me I would get well if I would winter in California. He might as well have advised a trip to the moon in my case. Then I tried a change of diet. It seemed I could not live on crackers and tea nor could I find anything else to agree with me and it began to look as though I was doomed to die. So I made up my mind to eat everything that I craved and determined to die happy at least in the thought of not starving to death.

"Now that I look back at it I don't see how it is possible for a human being to live through such misery as I did. Of course my stomach trouble grew worse and my head grew worse. I had all my hair cut off, but it did not help me and when one of my headaches was on I was really and truly crazy and did not even recognize my husband. The doctor would give me morphine tablets to stop my crying.

"Then a friend who knew what she was talking about advised me to give up white bread and tea and coffee and try the pre-digested food Grape-Nuts and Postum Coffee in place. I did so and I have had grand results. The improvement began immediately. I had fallen from 135 pounds to 98 pounds in my sickness and with my hair cut off and gray too I was a fright.

"In a few days after I started Grape-Nuts I could eat a little beef and crackers without the least discomfort, my face began to fill out and the awful distresses in my stomach soon ceased. Then my headaches began to grow less frequent and the sick dizzy spells have gone from me altogether and I have reached and passed my former weight and am now comparatively well and strong. I am certainly happy and I never touch coffee now for I am certain that coffee and the white bread and biscuits caused all my trouble. As soon as my body got the proper food it did not take it long to put me right both in body and mind. All the credit is due to Grape-Nuts and Postum in place of white bread and coffee." A LARGE INDUSTRY FOR PETERBOROUGH

The Peterborough Cold Storage and Provision Company

WILL ERECT A LARGE PLANT.

An Outline of the Proposed Industry—Requirements of Trade Demand a Plant of This Kind.

A large industry is about to be established in the Town of Peterborough, which will be of much importance to the farmers of this country generally. The Peterborough Cold Storage and Provision Company, Limited, are to erect an extensive plant in the Town of Peterborough, for the purpose of carrying on their business.

The Company will engage in the business of pork packing, cold storage and export of farm produce, and will use in connection with this business an abbatoir.

It is the intention of the Company to erect a large cold storage plant, which they will use for the purposes of their own business as well as for the purpose of affording cold storage accomodation to others requiring it.

So rapidly has the export trade in farm produce increased during the last decade that it has far outstripped the facilities of the present companies and business interest handling it. Hand in hand with this trade has grown the demand for cold storage, in fact it may be said that the life of the export trade in farm products depends essentially upon a proper cold storage system.

A moment's consideration of the trade returns from 1891 to 1902, concerning the export of farm products will convince the most pessimistic, that there is a great future in the Province of Ontario for industries of this kind. A few figures will show how this trade has increased in a few years. In 1891 the export of eggs was $1,150,359, and in 1902, $1,732,242, showing an increase of $572,883; export in cattle was in 1891, $8,772,499, and in 1902, $10,663,819, an increase of $1,891,320; and export of bacon, ham and pork in 1891 was $657,558, and in 1902, $12,457,863, an increase of $11,820,305.

With the export trade in articles produced upon Canadian farms growing in this manner, it is not surprising that the facilities for handling it have been found to be entirely inadequate. As these facilities increase from time to time, there is every reason to expect that the trade will increase still more rapidly in the future. This is evident from the fact that though the butter exported in 1902 amounted to 27,855,978 pounds, an increase of over 24 million pounds upon that of the year 1891, yet it was little over six per cent. of the total quantity imported by Great Britain in 1902, the total amount imported by that country in the last mentioned year being over 445,000,000.

The establishment of industries of this character throughout the province will give an impetus to the trade, which it has not yet enjoyed, and will place the farmers of this country in a position to take the benefit, to the full extent, of the European markets. The farmers cannot appreciate too much the great benefit they derive from the establishment of these industries. They are the means by which they are enabled to reach foreign markets, and the products being placed before the purchasers of the world, ensures them much enhanced prices for the products which they have to sell.

The present Company have undoubtedly fully appreciated the requirements of the trade. They are carrying on together a chain of industries which place them in a position to handle the products with the greatest facility and economy, and to the best advantage for the producers. The Company in engaging in cold storage, pork packing and export of farm products have placed themselves in a position to deal in these various business concerns in the most economical manner, in fact it may be said that three different branches of the trade have been combined in one, in such a way as to enable the Company to stand in an enviable position in regard to the export position. These different industries fit into one another and are in fact dependent upon each other. The facilities necessary for carrying on pork packing to a great extent can be utilized, without much extra expense in connection with the trade in other articles of farm produce, and the cold storage system is a necessary compliment to both. All these industries must, of course, to a certain extent, work together either in the hands of one or more companies. By carrying them on all together by one concern a great saving is effected in operating expenses, and much greater facilities are afforded for the effectual handling of the trade. It is expected, and with good reason, that the saving effected by reason of the combination of these industries will place the Company on a much better profit making basis than where the various branches are carried on separately. The business carried on in these various industries has been productive of considerable profit to the parties interested in them, and much more may be expected from the carrying on of these different trades together, for the reasons already given.

With the trade in the articles handled by the Company growing so rapidly, and with the unlimited market waiting these products in Europe, there is certainly a very bright future awaiting this Company. With skillful business management, and by reason of the economies effected by the combination of the industries, the shareholders will undoubtedly receive a handsome return upon their investment.

There is perhaps no other industry, that can be carried on in the Province of Ontario, so well adapted to the needs and requirements of the trade, of the country, as that to be carried on by the Company now opening its career in the Town of Peterborough. It is situate in a Province that has preserved the very highest standard in the quality of these farm products, and its place of business is in the heart of a rich agricultural district. The Company having proper regard for the best manner in which this trade can be conducted has effected a most economical combination of the several different business enterprises, and it is engaging in a trade that is going ahead in this country by leaps and bounds. It certainly has the satisfaction of knowing that a large trade is awaiting its operations, and with proper business management and aggressive action in reaching out for its share, a business will undoubtedly be done that will tax its capacity to the full extent.

The Town of Peterborough itself will be much benefited by the location of this Company here. From 125 to 150 hands will be employed, all men, earning good wages, and in this respect it is unlike many other business concerns employing a cheap class of labor. These men, with their families, will have to locate in the Town, and will go to swell our population to a considerable extent.

The farmers, not only in the neighborhood of Peterborough, but throughout the Province, will be benefited by the enterprise. Increased facility will be offered to them for marketing their products with the consequent advantage of increased prices from a broader market, than they have hitherto enjoyed.

The Company is established under the most auspicious circumstances, with every advantage of trade and local conditions in its favor, and it requires no prophetic mind to predict for it a most prosperous career.

Largee Increase in Trade.

THE statistical figures relating to the membership of the Co-operative Wholesale Society, Manchester, Eng., and the trade done during the past half year have just been circulated. The capital (shares, loans, deposits, reserve, and insurance) shows an increase of £176,605 on the corresponding figures twelve months ago. The number of societies holding shares is 1,120 (an increase of 20), and the number of members belonging to shareholding societies is 1,434,898 (an increase of 78,854). At the society's own creameries 19,509 cwts. of butter, representing a value of £92,932, has been produced; compared with 21,067 cwts. of a value of £104,113 last year. In addition a large trade in Irish butter is done with other producers. The tea sales for the past twelve months amounted to £770,000 (an increase of £25,718), and the coffee sales to £96,045 (a decrease of £164). The amount of trade done direct with foreign countries during the half year was: America, £426,181; Australia, £67,192; Austria, £23,785; Belgium, £2,019; Canada, £56,585; Denmark, £1,449,038; Finland, £11,142; France, £84,387; Germany, £203,588; Holland, £58,091; Italy, £1,748; Norway, £391; Russia, £862; Spain, £2,047; Sweden, £204,824; Switzerland, £4,703; a total of £2,596,582. The great bulk of these imports is food products. It is interesting to note that the enormous trade of £9,207,119 done with the shareholding societies during the past half year was done practically for cash, in accordance with a rule passed in 1870 that "all goods must be paid for in seven days or under, and in case not paid for in fourteen days from date of invoice, no more goods to be delivered until such overdue accounts are paid."

C. P. R. TO RETRENCH

Big Reduction in Working Staff Contemplated

The Reduction in Earnings will Involve the Laying Off of Many Men

Montreal, Oct. 31—A high official of the Canadian Pacific Railway announces that the company is about to inaugurate an important and extensive movement in the direction of retrenchment in operation expenses, which will result in the laying off of a large number of men in the various branches of the company's service.

It was pointed out by this official that the operating expenses for September, amounting to $3,734,735, were so heavy that there was a decrease in net earnings compared with September last year, amounting to $286,468.

It is usual at this time of year for the management to issue a circular ordering a reduction in the working staffs, owing to the falling off in the traffic, usual in the fall, but this circular has not yet been issued. When it is sent out it will order much more extensive reductions than usual.

It is pointed out that the leading railways in the United States have for some time been caryring out a similar policy, and it is claimed that conditions which necessitate such a policy there will in all probability hold good in Canada before long.

OUR ULTIMATE DESTINY

Grant's Grandson Repeats his Remarks on Canada

Capt., Sartoris Reaffirms That "Every Sign of Late Years is Towards Independence or Annexation.

The following letter appeared in the World:—As my communication to your paper seems to have given some offence, especially the remark that the United States could take Canada at will, I would feel grateful if you would publish this. It seems to me that every sign of late years in the Dominion is towards either independence or annexation. They do not like —and I admit there are grounds for this—the way in which England manages foreign affairs where they are concerned.

War between the two great Anglo-Saxon peoples would, I hope, be utterly impossible. Sir Wilfrid Laurier suggests openly that Canada ought to have the management of her treaties. This is independence. In my humble judgment, no nations of eight millions of people no matter how brave, can stand up against one of eighty millions, should that people elect to fight, but they will not do so.

I think, however, that as time goes on the true interests of the Dominion will be to voluntarily join the United States, making it a vast republic, without the trade barriers, boundary disputes and other evils which continually threaten to disturb the good relations happily existing between the Anglo-Saxon peoples today. I would only suggest that since the tribunal, which I again aver was upon the American side made up of men of high character and standing, has decided against the Dominion government, it be accepted, without reproach to those who decided according to their consciences. This is but just.

For the rest I dare to hope that some day we will be but one people from Alaska to the Gulf of Mexico, with the same ideas of civilization or justice, and with the common end of Anglo-Saxon domination, a domination which would compel peace over all the nations of the earth. I again take the opportunity to say that the letter was offensive to anyone [illegible] its wording, but I do think that, even if worded injudiciously, my statement is a self-evident fact.

SERIOS RIOT FOLLOWED BIG LABOR MEETING.

A Serious Riot Occurred in Front of the Bourse de Travail in the Workingmen's District

Paris, Oct. 31.—A serious riot occurred this afternoon in front of the Bourse de Travail (Labor Exchange) in the workmen's district, in which several policemen and a dozen rioters were seriously wounded. The trouble followed a meeting of six thousand persons, who protested against the establishment of municipal employment bureaus.

The authorities, in anticipation of disorders, had occupied the Place de la Republique and the nearby streets with the strong force of military and police. Speakers made inflammatory speeches, crying "Down with the employment officers." The crowd rushed into the streets singing revolutionary songs. A lieutenant of police and six men advanced to arrest the singers and a free fight followed. The rioters then entered cafes and shops, seized glasses, tables and chairs and renewed the struggle with the police. Another section of the rioters also attacked the police.

There was a renewal of the rioting this afternoon. The police determined to clear out the Bourse de Travail and endeavored to induce the rioters to leave in small parties, but the latter refused and threw projectiles from the windows, wounding a number of policemen. The military latter were compelled to use swords and a bloody conflict followed. The forces of the municipality finally were victorious. The perfect of police says that 45 policemen were wounded and that over 100 rioters were injured, a number of them being badly hurt. Thus far 100 arrests have been made

BACKING UP CHAMBERLAIN PREMIER DEAKIN'S SPEECH

Australian Government Prepared to Reciprocate with Joseph's Tariff Proposals

Melbourne, Victoria, Oct. 29.—Alfred Deakin, the new federal Prime Minister, in announcing the ministerial policy to a meetimng at Ballaratt, said he was prepared to reciprocate the proposals of Joseph Chamberlain, concerning the British fiscal policy.

The adoption of this policy, he said, would require that Australia grow vast quantities of wheat and increase her dairy produce. It would result in turning the tide of emigration towards the Commonwealth. The government, the Prime Minister said, would support the development of national trade. He said that the watchword should be "fiscal peace and preferential trade for white Australia."

A vote of confidence in the federal ministry was passed unanimously.

CRAZED ON WEDDING DAY

A Ceremony at Bloomington Postponed by Deranged Bridegroom

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 31—Guests who arrived at the home of Miss Elvira Irving to attend her wedding to Charles M. Morrison, of Springfield, were told that the ceremony had been indefinitely postponed owing to the sudden illness of the groom.

The most elaborate preparations had been made for the wedding and the house was tastefully garlanded. A hundred invitations had been issued.

When Morrison arrived today from Springfield his actions excited comment. He appeared at the home of his bride to be with a telescope grip containing an old suit of clothes, which he proudly exhibited to her as his wedding garments. Other actions were so plainly indicative of a disordered mind that the friends of the young man were sent for and he was taken back to Springfield for treatment.

It was stated that overwork had brought on nervous prostration. Miss Irving is prominent in social circles and an elocutionist of more than ordinary talent.

Behring Sea Catches

Victoria, B.C. Oct. 29.—Advices have been received from the Behring Sea that 19 schooners, with the exception of one vessel, took larger catches this season than last year. Five lives were lost, Mate Hall Green and two men being drowned from the Umbina, and two hunters from the Beulah May. All were whites, but other than that of Hall Green their names were not learned. Advices have been received by the sealers that the sale of skins taken off Cape Horn showed a decline of 10 per cent. below the prices secured last June.

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

YOU PAY ONLY IF CURED.

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write for It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has fourteen certificates and diplomas from colleges and medical boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own home, and so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has both the method and

DR. S. GOLDBERG.
The possessor of fourteen diplomas and certificates, who wants no money that he does not earn

the ability to do as he says, Dr S. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, vital weakness, varicocele, lost vigor, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and if you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interest of every man who suffers in this way, to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the fourteen diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Avenue, Room 233, Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

GLASGOW MUNICIPAL TELEPHONE SERVICE

Two years ago Turnbridge Wells and Glasgow were pointed to as bright examples in Municipal Ownership of telephone service. A few months ago the former abandoned the attempt at giving a satisfactory telephone service and sold their plant to the National Company. New reports are coming to hand of unsatisfactory results in Glasgow. "The Baillie," a journal published in its issue of September 9th, says:—

The position of the Glasgow Corporation Telephone Department, as disclosed by the published accounts for the last financial year, is proving a source of uneasiness to those ratepayers with a sound knowledge of finance. Nor have their fears been alleviated by the auditors' remarks, who, in issuing their report, make it perfectly plain that are not as they ought to be. They point out that no depreciation has been provided for, nor has any sum standing at the debit of preliminary and general expenses in capital account been written off out of the revenue. In the matter of the sinking fund adequate provision has not been made, although, according to the auditors, the requirements of the Act of Parliament have apparently been complied with. Up till now certain management expenses, amounting in the aggregate to no small sum, have not formed a charge against revenue. Despite all this the committee who run the telephone department have had the temerity to present the ratepayers with a financial statement showing a balance of several thousand pounds on the right side, and claiming that if the undertaking had been a joint-stock enterprise the result would have been that a dividend of 5 per cent. on the capital involved would have been paid. In this connection let it be pointed out that had the directors of a concern formed under the Companies Act put forward a balance sheet, such as the one under review, and declared a dividend, they would have laid themselves open to much the same charges as are confronting at present Mr. Whittaker Wright, of London and Finance Company fame, in which undertaking the trusting shareholders lost all they had risked.

It is greatly to be feared that instead of getting out of the tangle, the telephone department will land itself deeper into the mire, although this is a contingency apparently viewed with equanimity by those in control who, of course, have nothing to lose. It has been said that figures can be made to prove anything, and if there is one thing the balance sheet of the Corporation Telephone shows, it is that the ratepayers of Glasgow have been saddled with a white elephant as matters stand at present. Were the enterprise a success apart from its financial aspect, there might be some hope, but unfortunately the service is falling far short of what it ought to be, having regard to its formation at a period when the telephone business has been pretty well reduced to a fine art.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Because the Western Union Telegraph Company is having the usual trouble with its messenger boys in Boston the council has passed an ordinance directing the removal of every pole and wire from the public streets within sixty days. This is a good way to electioneer for socialism and anarchy later on.

Things are coming to a pretty pass when reporters actually try to interview a king. That's what was tried on King Edward the other day. And yet, after all, there is no divinity that can hedge royalty from the fierce white light that blazes from the printing press.

ABLE TO SUPPLY THE WORLD

President Thomas Shaughnessy Does Not Want Exports to Increase

Montreal, Oct. 29.—Sir Thos. Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in an interview, spoke of Canada as follows:

"We have enough coal and iron untouched to supply the markets of the world. Canada's position is very different from twenty years ago. She is considering the future. Thousands upon thousands of American citizens have come into this territory during the past year. Canada must shortly determine upon a new policy.

"We do not want our imports to increase.

"Some say that the imperial preference to keep trade within the Empire will give the best results. Others urge that the creation of home markets will be of most value, which would be accomplished by placing a duty on imports, to build up our manufactures and consume our products at home.

"A remaining policy would have Canada enter a reciprocal arrangement with the United States, endeavoring to get for our products the best prices as raw materials. Canada has been forced to use some American coal, but from Montreal to the coast and from the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific we can not only meet our own requirements for coal, but can supply the United States with better coal at better prices than prevail in the United States.

"By the present arrangement we both buy and sell coal, and both nations are paying duty on large amounts yearly. This ought to be corrected with fair reciprocity, with disadvantages to neither. We have more territory than they, but only one-tenth of the population. We desire to live along the 3,000 miles of frontier in the greatest amity and friendship."

Behring Sea Catches

Victoria, B.C. Oct. 29.—Advices have been received from the Behring Sea that 19 schooners, with the exception of one vessel, took larger catches this season than last year. Five lives were lost, Mate Hall Green and two men being drowned from the Umbina, and two hunters from the Beulah May. All were whites, but other than that of Hall Green their names were not learned. Advices have been received by the sealers that the sale of skins taken off Cape Horn showed a decline of 10 per cent. below the prices secured last June.

A Dangerous Disease

Owing to its tendency to spread to all parts of the system, Catarrh should be checked in its incipient stages

Catarrh commences generally with a slight cold, and because slight, it is often neglected. But the seed that (the idea sown) brings forth a dangerous harvest,—perhaps it is the harvest of consumption, which is the harvest of death.

Better spend a few moments each day inhaling Catarrhozone, an aromatic, antiseptic remedy that is breathed in through the mouth, and, after permeating all the respiratory organs, is slowly exhaled through the nostrils.

The immediate effect of Catarrhozone is magical—so prompt and efficient. Relief is instantaneous, throat and nose cleared in a few moments by the penetrating vapor from the inhaler. Ferrozone, taken in conjunction with Catarrhozone, purifies the blood, cleanses it of all poisons, and builds up the system so that Catarrh cannot exist.

You are sure to receive lasting benefit from Catarrhozone if bothered by Catarrh in any part of the system. It is highly recommended for Bronchitis, Asthma, and Lung Trouble, and used for Coughs and Colds in the head it has no equal.

Remember that Catarrhozone is both a local and constitutional treatment, and is warranted under all circumstances to give satisfaction. Money refunded if it fails.

THE MAN IN THE STREET

Toronto, Oct. 30, 1903.

There has been little of interest to write about lately, consequently I omitted my usual budget last week. The stockmarkets, locally, have been very uninteresting, and with the exception of having to chronicle more losses, there is nothing to tell. Northern Navigation shares sold as low as 103 1-2 this week, a drop of about 30 points from the same period last year. This stock pays ten per cent. per annum and at the present price yields about ten to the investor. Various excuses are given for the big decline in the shares, but there is no logic in any of them. In conversation with a director of the Company yesterday the "Times" was informed that there was absolutely no truth in the story circulated that there would be a cut in the dividend. In fact the earnings for the present season are much ahead of last year, when the Company declared its usual dividend and carried to "Rest Account" a good round sum. The unfortunates who have been carrying the stock all the way from 60 to 70 points above the present market price feel rather discouraged, however, over the slump. Some of them think the directors might have come to the rescue. By purchasing a few hundred they could easily have saved the market.

In my humble opinion the broking business in Canadian securities has received such a blow as will take it years to recover from. The fact is, the speculative public is now out of the market to stay, simply because it has lost all its money. Consequently more attention is being paid to the "scalping" of American stocks. With all the facilities offered in Toronto by the numerous representatives of American broking houses it is easy to understand why one is tempted to buy stocks on as low as one point margin and with no interest to pay. Here you can get in and out of a stock in an hour. You can limit your profits or losses and you do not have to worry over the night as many Torontonians have been doing during the year.

A broker told me the other day that I was wrong in stating that seats on the Toronto Exchange would sell as low as $10,000. The highest price paid was $18,000. I offered to bet him a cigar that what I stated in the "Times" was true. At the present time of writing I am informed that there are no less than three seats for sale and I feel certain that if $25,000 was offered for this job lot a bargain might be made. As previously stated in this column $18,000 was paid for the last seat sold.

The bears are scarce in Toronto. Had it been otherwise many fortunes would have been made during the past year. Investors and speculators here have all made money on the long side of the market. Now, however, when it is probably too late, they have turned and see nothing but blue ruin ahead. In conversation with the financial editor of a leading morning paper, I was surprised to find him a rampant "bear." He, however, has been consistent. His column was never given over to the bull side during the depression. He looks for serious trouble in the American markets. A fight between Capital and Labor in the States, is imminent, he says, and gave as an illustration the fact that many factories employing thousands of workers had decided to close down pending this labor war, which, he says, may be precipitated any time.

The brightest of stock-brokers in Canada is Rodolphe Forget of the firm of L. J. Forget & Co., Montreal. "Rodolphe," as he is known to me, is a young French Canadian, not yet having reached the age of forty. His opinion is daily much sought after. He can "bull" or "bear" the market at his will. He is prominently connected as director with all the leading industrial Companies in Montreal and he is as fluent in English and French, although twenty years ago the former language was almost entirely unknown to him. "What is Rodolphe going to do today?" is the query one hears around St. Francois Xavier street in Montreal, every morning before the opening of the Exchange. In truth he makes the quotations. He is well-liked, has many friends among both nationalities and is a real good fellow. To follow his advice means invariably that you will be on the winning side. I know him well, knew him when he first came on St. Francois Xavier street and one would have to travel far to meet as bright and intelligent a mind as my friend Rodolphe is possessed of. He is "game" in all his dealings and strictly upright and honest in his transactions. He is generous to a fault, and many of his friends have reason to bless him for the helping hand he has so often extended. He is now a millionaire, and it looks as if he will be several times over a millionaire before many years. The following is from a Toronto paper of yesterday: "A writer in Montreal discussing the recent episode where Mr. Rodolphe Forget's timely buying is said to have averted a panic on the Montreal Stock Exchange, digs up this one to match it. He says: "This reminds one of a similar incident which occurred on the Montreal Stock Exchange some time ago. Then, as last week there was a panic brewing and Mr. Forget stepped upon the scene. One of the biggest brokers on the street was evidently bent on cleaning out everything he had. It was a hundred Richelieu and then a couple of hundred Montreal Street, and so on through the list. Mr. Forget stood there buying every share offered. It made no difference what it was. Finally the broker in question exhausted his supply. "Anything more to sell?" queried Mr. Forget, on his face a broad grin. "No," said the scared broker. "I'll give you $1.50 for your shirt," sang out Forget, and a laugh went round which the brokers have not forgotten even to this day.

Among the prominent visitors in the city, registered at the King Edward Hotel, was Mr. Charles Farrell, son of the late Alderman William Farrell, of Montreal. Mr. Farrell, although a young man, has travelled a great deal. He is an Artist by profession and has been studying lately in Europe and especially in London and Paris. He has just returned from Paris and intends opening a studio in Toronto. Mr. Farrell confines himself to portrait and figure work and judging from the samples of his work I have seen, Mr. Farrell has a bright future before him. The copies which he made of Rembrandt's pictures in the Louvre attracted considerable attention in Paris last year.

Mr. Farrell started the "burnt" work fad or etching on skins and wood in New York a year or two ago, which fad still exists throughout the Continent. He has already received several commissions from prominent Torontonians.

A short time ago Mr. Farrell presented a young lady with a piece of his burnt work which was exhibited as her work and took the first prize. Mr. Farrell thinks this a good joke.

The Mutual Stock & Commission Company which has opened finely appointed offices at the Corner of Victoria and Adelaide streets, seems to be doing a big business. Their manager, Mr. Anderson is evidently a hustler, judging from the clientele he has already secured. The Company charges no interest for carrying deals, and this is a great attraction to the habitues of local Wall street. The firm accepts as small trades as ten shares of stock, or 1,000 bushels of grain which can be bought on one point margin. This is a great attraction to the street and it seems little wonder that the firm's offices are daily crowded to overflowing. On investigation "The Man on the Street" learned that this Company had a sufficiently large deposit in one of the local banks to guarantee its clients payment for any profits they might make.

After extreme weakness buy stocks.

Let profits run; limit all losses.

Begin to buy when prices are dull and weak.

Learn to take a loss quickly.

When there is much excitement, and high prices for everything, the market should be sold for a good turn.

After advancing markets, and prices waver lower prices will come.

When prices close weak, without support, a rally will be in order next morning.

When prices close strong after an all day's advance, the next move is generally downward.

When you purchase, and the trade goes in your favor, follow it up; but when the last purchase goes against you, close up the transaction and take your profits on all the other trades.

When a profit is made on either side of the market, don't let it disappear, but give a stop loss order, so as not to have a loss after a profit has been in sight.

All orders are good only for the day given except "Open" or "Stop Orders," in which case they will be filled any day afterwards when the market permits, unless cancelled.

Nine out of every ten men have been guilty of transgression against nature in their youth. Nature never excuses, no matter how young, thoughtless or ignorant he may be. The punishment and suffering corresponds with the crime. The only escape from its ruinous results is proper scientific treatment to counteract its effects. The DRAINS, either by nightly losses, or secretly through the urine, must be stopped—the NERVES must be built up and invigorated, the blood must be purified, the SEXUAL ORGANS must be vitalized and developed, the BRAIN must be nourished. Our New Method Treatment provides all these requirements. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers disappear; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and sexual systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. The various organs become natural and manly. We invite all the afflicted to call and consult us confidentially and free of charge. Cures Guaranteed or no Pay. EGBERT CHAMBERLAIN, Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.	NEW YORK

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house or sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5
More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them ar—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tulloch, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Erwin D Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now a clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

Polonium, the Latest Scientific Sensation.

The wonder of radium is still before us; and now up comes a new element—at least new from the newspaper standpoint. As a matter of fact, says "Current Literature," it is quite as old as radium, having been discovered almost at the same time and by the same persons—Professor and Madame Curie. Like radium, it is a constituent of pitchblende and has many characteristics similar to that element. The cause of the present interest in polonium is due largely to certain experiments recently conducted by Prof. W. Markwald before the Chemical Congress at Berlin. Since then the papers have been taken up with articles making all manner of claims for the new element, the most persistent of which is that it will cure blindness. Concerning this element "Electricity" says:—

Scientists as yet understand too little of the marvelous properties of this new element to venture more than vague predictions of what spheres of future usefulness it may fill, but it is not improbable that it may be found to perform the present functions of the so-called Roentgen or X-rays far more powerfully and without the somewhat cumbrous apparatus now essential to their use. In a much higher degree even than radium it possesses the property of shining in the dark, and although it is known that actual particles infinitesimally small are being shot out from it continually—a fact which is proved by magnetic experiments—this strange substance does not seem to exhaust itself nor to lose its luminous power with the passage of time. Here, therefore, is a hint, at least, of the future possibility of a constant and brilliant illuminant generated without heat or combustion.

Polonium is more valuable than radium, and Professor Curie himself, who has a chemically pure specimen of radium not larger than a buckshot and weighing less than half a grain, would not sell it for $20,000.

At the meeting in Berlin, Professor Markwald exhibited a bit of polonium weighing 15-100 of a grain, which was produced from two tons of uranium at a cost of $75. He then proceeded to give a marvelous exhibition of the powers of his speck of polonium. It intercepted a strong current of electricity passing through the air from the generator to the receiver, the air ceasing to be a conductor for the flashes. The room was then darkened, and pieces of barium platinum, and zinc-blende, placed near the polonium, glowed with a bright greenish light. There is no doubt that the discovery of polonium is a most valuable one, although no one can say as yet how it can be adapted to practical use.

Harder than Matrimony.

Like matrimony, flirting is harder than it looks. If one understands the art there is no more enjoyable method of whiling away an hour than by flirting. There are two kinds of flirts—men and women. The latter are the worse. To start a flirtation: Talk of wasted chances to a married woman, be cynical with a debutante, pious with an actress, and risque with a churchwoman.

Have a past. The young man with a Past is a young man with a future, in flirting. Use the "Rapt Gaze." You will have to practice this before your mirror. Then there is the "Blase Face," the "Ennui Yawn," and the "Innocent Eye." Be very careful how and when you employ these. If, for instance, you are flirting with an expert, and try the "Rapt Gaze," you will be classed by her as an amateur. It is well to hint at dark tragedies in your life. In short, the whole secret of successful flirting is to arouse a woman's curiosity, and never satisfy it.

If a widow should tell you you resemble her dead husband, bow and retire. You are up against it. Don't get the reputation of being gauche and for saying malapropos things by discussing marriage with women who are married.

Do not ask a woman if you may kiss her. This is not done in Society. That is, such a request is never made.

The voice is very important. A well groomed voice is half the battle in the conservatory. Practice modulations and "thrills." Don't attempt to flirt at dinner with a Golf Girl. At that stage her roast is much more interesting than you are. Wait till she is through. She's through when she sighs.

Flirting is like boxing—dangerous when one party to it is unskilled. Be careful, or a flirtation, innocently entered into, may lead you into an engagement. These hints are for men; women need none.—Ex.

A Parisian Swindle.

A great traveler remarks that the Parisian swindler is the subtlest and the most indomitable one in the world. A friend of his the other day was strolling through a fashionable and expensive French shop. A woman entered, and proceeded to purchase a very costly frock, and meanwhile a well-dressed man lingered at the doorway, as though waiting for her. The woman, her purchase concluded, counted a roll of bank notes and advanced to the cashier's desk, holding them in her hand. Then, all of a sudden, the man rushed upon her. "You wretch!" he exclaimed, "didn't I tell you that you shouldn't have that frock?" And he slapped her upon the cheek, tore the bank notes from her hand, and stalked out of the shop. The woman fainted. It was ten minutes before she was brought to. On her recovery the manager of the place said, regretfully: "We are sorry, madam, for this occurrence. Your husband——"

"My husband! That was not my husband," the woman cried. "I never saw the man in my life before. He is a thief!"

She Crushed Him.

"Cassandra," sighs our hero, "there is something within me that thrills me to the innermost recesses of my soul. I must tell you of the haunting heaviness, of the doubt, the dread, the pain that fills me——"

"Percival," titters our heroine, "have you been eating green apples?"—"Judge."

Too Plebeian.

"So you have decided to get another physician." "I have," answered Mrs. Cumrox; "the idea of his prescribing flaxseed tea and mustard plasters for people as rich as we are!"—Washington "Star."

The most gifted of all women composers was Clara Schumann; yet shortly before her marriage she frankly wrote in her diary: "I used to think I had talent for creating, but I have changed my mind. Women should not wish to compose; not one has ever succeeded. To suppose that I was destined to be an exception would be an arrogant assumption, which I made formerly, but only because my father prompted me."

Who Owns The Liberty Bell?

Quite a controversy is raging around one of the most precious relics of American history—the "Liberty Bell," that rang out the proclamation of national independence. This bell, as all the world knows, is hung in the belfry of Independence Hall, Philadelphia; but lately it has been taken from its place and exhibited in Boston, Charleston and other cities. Incensed by what is regarded as the undignified exposure of the relic to the dangers of these "junketing trips," three ladies, members of an old Philadelphia family, now make the claim that the bell is their private property. Their announcement, says the Philadelphia "Evening Telegraph," "comes with a sudden shock to the people of Philadelphia." The same paper continues:—

"It is doubtful if the claim which has been put forth could be sustained in a court of law, and certainly the city would resist it to the uttermost, if it should be so seriously advanced as to take the shape of a demand for the surrender of the custody of the bell. That, however, the claimants declare, is not their purpose; all that they desire is that the sacred relic and emblem of our national independence shall not again be exposed to the vicissitudes attending the carting of it around the country for exhibition purposes, even when the cultivation of patriotic sentiment is the underlying motive. If the alleged owners of the bell should succeed in establishing their claim so far as to prevent it from being taken on another councilmanic junket, they would deserve and receive the hearty thanks of the vast majority of Philadelphians.

"The basis of the claim to private ownership of the relic is at least a plausible one. It is declared by the claimants that the councils which bargained with their ancestor for the casting of the Liberty Bell's successor put such a light valuation on the relic that they agreed to let it go to the bell-founder as old metal, in consideration of an abatement of his bill to the amount of $400. The person who thereby became its lawful owner might have treated it as junk by breaking it up and throwing the fragments into the melting-pot; but he was more patriotic than the City Fathers of that day, and permitted the bell to remain in the custody of the city, confident that it would in due time be appreciated at its true value.

"From that day to this the claim to private ownership has been in abeyance, and City Solicitor Kinsey expresses the opinion that, even if the foundation of the original claim should be recognised, the Bell has become the absolute property of the city of Philadelphia by prescription. Whether or not this view would be upheld by the courts can only be ascertained by the test of litigation. An appeal to the courts may possibly be made, if councils should grant the request of the St. Louis Fair managers to have the Liberty Bell carted across the country to become one of the side attractions of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition next year.

Wasted Moments.

Next to his prayers, the most regular and unfailing duty that old Mr. Snipes performed was the winding-up of his clock.

As he explained to his chums, "That clock is the pride of my life. For thirty five years, man and boy, have I wound him up every night nigh upon ten o'clock, and always before eleven. I couldn't sleep without doing it; I'd as soon, or sooner, go without my food than miss doing of it."

It was quite a mania with him, and his good wife, sharing his pride in the timepiece, naturally aided his madness on the one theme.

One evening they had a new acquaintance to supper, who happened to be a watchmaker.

"Excuse me a minute," said Mr Snipes, at ten-thirty, "while I wind up the clock."

The jeweler looked at it. "That's rather a nice clock," he said.

"I should think it is," cried Mr Snipes. "It's the pride of my heart. So it is of yours, ain't it, wifey?"

"That it is," said his complacent spouse.

"Man and boy," went on Mr. Snipes commencing his usual story, "man and boy for thirty-five years have I wound up that clock every night regular between ten and eleven——"

"Every night?" struck in the jeweler

"Ay, man, every night!" echoed Mr Snipes.

"Well, of all the born idiots!" returned the other. "Why, how many weeks of your life have you wasted? It's an eight-day clock!"

His Forte.

The seven-year old pride of the family had concluded his recitation of "The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck," and the fond mother, turning with dignified complacency to the unnerved visitor, remarked:

"And I have been assured by really eminent judges, Mr. Marterdum, that he closely approaches Sir Henry Irving in dramatic style, without, however, that great actor's offensive mannerisms."

"I am not surprised to hear it!" assented the victimized one, with a strained smile.

"Mabel, also," continued the matron, blandly indicating a six-year-old mite of flaxen-haired precocity, "plays exquisitely. Her rendering of 'In My Cottage Near a Wood,' with variations, is not dissimilar in touch and feeling to Paderwiski at his best—as you shall presently determine; while Egbert, yonder (get your slate and pencil ready, darling), though barely turned four, draws engines and railway lines in a manner suggestive of Academy honors at no very distant future. They all have their fortes, you see! In fact, most people have, when you come to think of it. What is your forte, Mr. Marterdum?"

"Mine, madam?" gasped the wretched listener. "Mine? Oh, I—I run!"

And he suited the action to the word.

A Question of Gender.

While he was being shown about Chicago by the Mayor of the city, a French visitor expressed his thanks, and added, "But I am sorry so to cockroach on your time." "Oh," answered the Mayor, "do not think of that. But you do not mean cockroach, Monsieur; you mean encroach." "Oh, is it? I see—a difference in gender," (the visitor supposing he ought to have said hen-croach).

The common fruit tree sprayer used by orchadists is a much more convenient way to destroy lice on cattle than it is to apply lice killers by hand. A hose with a fine nozzle, which will throw a very fine spray, is the best, but its point should be held close to the skin. Two or three applications may be needed, as some of the lice may be in the egg and not be destroyed by the first application.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jercme mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is new offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

Purchase the Treasury Stock of The Drake Mining Drainage and Tunnel Transportation Co.
OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 100 to 600 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,300 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale 500,000 shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at 50 cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

Active and experienced agents wanted to sell said Preferred Treasury stock on commission

THE ROSE OF THE RING

He had held the light for her as far as be could, longing to accompany her to her door, and to render her the assistance she seemed so sorely to need.

Once or twice her steps had faltered, and she had stood clinging to the baluster as though unable to go on.

At last, the faltering footsteps had ceased, and he knew she had retired into the darkness of her own chamber.

His face was graver than usual as he made his way slowly upstairs.

He was puzzled about Gretchen, and troubled as well.

Why had she gone out into the grounds after the house had been shut for the night, and all the inmates supposed to be in bed?

"She might have felt the want of air," he reasoned, "and have stolen out when Sir Felix no longer required her attendance.

She was young and of an impetuous disposition; what more natural than that she should throw discretion to the winds, and disregard all consequences?

Yet he could not unburden his memory of those agonizing cries, and the condition in which he had found her.

"I am making mountains out of molehills," he thought, pushing aside his darker suspicions, "a shadow may have frightened her. Girls are so easily scared, and they never have presence of mind to do more than shriek and faint."

Then to himself he argued that Gretchen was not the kind of girl he had described.

She had gone calmly through terrifying scenes with Sir Felix, displaying a strength of nerve of which few would have been capable.

Marc went to bed with his mind in an unsettled state.

He had made no attempt to go on with his reading.

The books no longer interested him. All his thoughts were concentrated on Gretchen.

After breakfast, the next morning, he went into the studio, intending to make some progress with his pictures.

The day was fine, and the light good enough for him to hope that Gretchen would favor him with an early sitting, but after the incident of the night he had strong doubts as to whether she would put in an appearance.

He had scarcely seated himself at his easel, however, before Gretchen entered, and came towards him.

He rose to greet her.

The words he would have uttered [illegible] his lips, so awful was the change on her face since last she [illegible] for the picture.

If she had been made of stone, she could not have seemed more colorless.

Deep, grey circles shadowed her eyes, such shadows as come to marble features when the sun is set, and there was a look on her face as though she had passed the night on a rack of torture.

"I am afraid you are not well enough to sit for me this morning," he said, his voice betraying the compassion he could not help feeling for her. "Let me give you a chair."

She raised her hand with a gesture that seemed to entreat silence.

"I wish to tell you I have changed my mind about the picture you are painting for me."

"The bride?" he questioned, as she broke off, and glanced at the veiled face of the portrait.

"It must be painted without the wedding-ring."

"I understand. The bride before she is led to the altar."

A convulsion of agony passed over Gretchen's face.

How could she tell him all the picture should imply?

Her first impulse had been to destroy the portrait she had intended as such a welcome surprise for Frank, to seize one of Marc's brushes, and wipe out the smiling features that mocked at her misery.

During the long night another thought had come to her; the picture might serve a different purpose.

Mastering the revulsion of feeling that had swept over her, she draped herself in the veil, and put the orange-blossoms on her head.

Marc watched her, much as he would have watched a somnambulist, not daring to speak lest he should break the spell of sleep, and strike madness to the brain of the dreamer.

How white, how ghost-like she was; the bride of despair and death rather than of love and beauty.

"Sir Felix was asking about the other picture," he said, as he mixed some fresh color. "He wants to see how it is progressing."

"There will be no other picture," she answered in a voice from which all the music had gone. "This one will be for Sir Felix."

Marc looked up from his colors, trying to read in her face an explanation of her words.

He found none.

In silence he went on with his work, afraid to trust himself often to glance at Gretchen, so changed was she from the bride he had taken such pains to paint.

She spent barely half-an-hour in the studio.

Seized with a sudden restlessness, she tore off the veil, and crushed the orange-blossoms, flinging them from her as though each bud had concealed a poisonous asp.

Marc gazed at her, but did not speak; there was a mad, far-away look in her eyes, that forbade him to make his presence felt to her.

She was not thinking of him or of the picture.

With a moan she pressed her hands to her temples, and made her way from the room.

He laid down his brush, and kept his eyes toward the open doorway through which she had disappeared.

Then he rose, and going to the door, looked along the corridor.

She was nowhere within sight, and not so much as a footfall echoed on his ears.

He went back and gazed at the picture—the picture with the smiling lips, and the glory of love in the deep eyes.

"What has changed her?" he asked himself. "What can have happened last night?"

Between him and the picture there seemed to rise the sorrow-stricken face of Gretchen, as he had seen it a few seconds ago.

So, he thought, must Ariadne have looked when she awoke from her love-dream to find herself deserted by Theseus—alone, on a desolate shore, with the waves carrying him forever away from her.

It was true.

She was suffering as Ariadne had suffered, only there was in Gretchen's life a sharper sting, a heavier burden, and her soul grew sick when she contemplated the days that lay before her.

* * * * * *

A daring purpose had settled itself in Gretchen's mind.

The knowledge of what was yet to come lay heavy in her breast.

There would be a time when her secret would cost her more than the sacrifice she had been so ready to make for Frank's sake.

What would have been a dawning joy to the wife was a thought of horror to the cast-away, who had no husband's love—no husband's name—to shield her.

She did not look forward to any sign of repentance from Frank.

(To be continued.)

ROAR OF HUZZAAS GREETED SPEAKER

Wild and Delirious Demonstration in Streets of Liverpool

London, Oct. 29. — Mr. Chamberlain made two more speeches at Liverpool yesterday and the enthusiasm was even more striking than on the previous day. During a luncheon given by the Lord Mayor thousands of people assembled under the windows, and from the street the roar of their huzzahs frequently drowned the speaker's voice. When he dealt with the complicated statistics of food prices those in the street broke into wild and delirious demonstratoins, while the assembly in the hall kept a deep silence, hanging on every word.

Combatting Lord Goschen, Mr. Chamberlain declared that extra prices to the consumer bore no real proportion to the amount of taxes. Figures were the only illustrations to an argument, and he had been looking at the figures and had come totally to a different conclusion to that of Lord Goschen.

Appealed to Gladstone.

He appealed past Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Sir William Harcourt, and Mr. Ritchie to a Chancellor greater than all. Gladstone, who said: 'If you want to do the working classes the maximum amount of good you should operate upon the articles which give them the maximum of employment."

At a second meeting before the Conservative Workingmen's Association Mr. Chamberlain asked what was the use for a weaver at Halifax to nominally receive a high rate of wages when actually there was no work three days of the week? What use was it for the Lancashire operative to be credited on paper with higher wages than the German or French millhand, when long periods of short time occur, and raw materials are rendered unprocurable by the market manipulations of American speculators?

Free trade was responsible for the the failure of raw cotton.

Had England learned wisdom from the events of the famine 40 years ago she would have taken steps for the encouragement of the cotton industry in India or the West Indies. There was too much trusting to luck with the British Empire and its industries.

No Great Harm.

He reminded his audience that the experiment of protection could do no great harm. Other States had proved that protection did not mean disaster. British exports, not German or American, had declined under foreign protection, and a protected industry could undersell free trade. How else was it possible to explain when American manufactured exports to England rose, between 1890 to 1902, from £10,200,000 to about £21,000,000, while British manufactured exports to the United States fell from £29,000,000 to £19,467,000? The time must come when there would come a cycle of bad trade, and then the things he dreaded might be counteracted by the influence of the working classes. He hoped to seize the first opportunity to alter the system under which this was possible.

The doctrine of a tax for revenue, he said, was justifiable, but he condemned the theory that benefited the whole contry and advanced imperial ideas as preposterous.

WOULD RECONSIDER.

London, Oct. 29.—Right Hon. W. H. Long, president of the Local Government Board, speaking last night at Trowbridge, said the change recommended by the Government must be made the fiscal policy, as the only means to secure the return of imperial prosperity.

The Council of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce has declared in favor of a rearrangement of the fiscal system.

The Liverpool Steamship Owners' Association has passed a resolution in favor of a reconsideration of the law and conditions affecting the shipping and commerce of Great Britain.

The Chief Secretary for Ireland, Mr. Wyndham, speaking at Dover last night said that unless England was prepared to lose her prestige, she could not afford to see Canada dominated by American capital.

AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY
FOR BOTH LARGE AND SMALL INVESTORS

Owing to valuable Patents having been granted this Company, we are desirous of extending our business to the Dominion of Canada. Owing to the Customs duties, the extra cost in transportation and the numerous expenses attached, and the delays in deliveries in shipping goods from one country to another, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a factory in the Dominion, that we may be in a position to meet the immediate wants of the business.

The articles that we make from our Patent Fabric are too numerous to mention, and it is not necessary that we go into the details of the merits of our goods, as they are already in use to a large extent and have no equal. Our goods are covered by several patents, and the profit on the goods is large, averaging from 25 to 100 per cent, thus affording the company large revenue to meet all its obligations

In order to secure funds to equip a plant in the Dominion of Canada we will offer to the people of Canada $100,000 of our Bonds paying ten per cent. interest per annum.

Experience has shown that stocks based upon sound industrial enterprises have never been equalled from the standpoint of legitimate profit. For instance, a few hundred dollars invested in the Bell Telephone Company's stock in the beginning of the enterprise now commands thousands of dollars, after having yielded large dividends annually. Of course opportunities for such profitable investments do not present themselves every day, and it is also very true that a vast amount of capital has been misdirected in the endeavor to exploit inventions and enterprises which shrewd and far seeing investors should have recognized as impractical. But as regards this enterprise even the most conservative must admit it has possibilities of development which are almost incalculable and which have already been demonstrated in a practical manner. We have no speculative elements—this is a sound business proposition, and the patents which we own are worth several million dollars, as there can only be one fabric of this kind and that is ours.

All the above facts are simple statements of the truth and can be fully substantiated to the satisfaction of all investors.

The business is no experiment, the incorporators of this Company have made it their business for a great many months past and understand all the details, the prospects are therefore bright, and brighter than those of many other opportunities.

This Company is not a promotors company, every dollar goes to enhance the value of the property and business and increase the capacity. There is nothing speculative in this proposition, the enterprises are undertaken for industrial purposes only to make profits by the operation and development of the business.

Considering that the enterprise is already upon an established basis with a certainty of profitable future expansion, we feel warranted in the assertion that this is an attractive proposition to investors whether large or small.

The price of these Bonds are one dollar each, and will be issued in any number wanted. With every purchaser of each five Bonds we will give as a bonus, one share of stock of the Company, the par value of which is five dollars per share, thus assuring interest on the investment, and with the stock which is bound to increase you will have for nothing. These Bonds will be issued for five years. Persons desiring to avail themselves of this opportunity want to send their remittance at once.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 168 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

New York, Oct. 30—The trade in the stock market today was dull and narrow; room traders did the bulk of the business and for the most part their operations were of the scalping variety. The London market was dull. The monetary situation was the subject of bearish comment in consequence of the heavy loss of banks through sub-treasury operations. The labor news was conflicting while the railroad advices without special feature. The general market continued quiet and narrow in the latter part of the day; the general feeling on the close was mixed but in view of the continued bullish news of some of the room traders, many interests were inclined to express confident views regarding the future.

New York, Oct. 30—We expect selling of Penna., Atch. Un. Pac., and New York Central. The holidays of Tuesday next will check any disposition to buy and the dominant interests in the market are not opposed to an extension of the bear interest. Weakness in the industrial issues will also show with liquidation in Car Foundry, P.R.S., U.S.Q., and A S R; The talent to a man almost is arranged on the short side and the ostensible reason for the aggressiveness is that money will probably be somewhat more snug. There is an utter disregard of the probabilities of gold imports within a short time. There is a big short interest in St. Paul; this stock under any circumstances will not recede appreciably. Atch. should be bought on any dip, the dividend of two per cent. will come off on Thursday next. Leather common is a good gamble around eight.

The bull element is less confident of its position. There has been a good deal of currency moved to Chicago and New Orleans this week on account of crop movements but it is regarded as natural. The railroad news is of the same character as heretofore, there are good increases for the month of September, but the statement for the third week of October and for the fourth week show smaller increases as compared with last year.

Chicago, Oct. 30—There was heavy Argentine shipments of wheat, the total for the year to date being the subject of much bearing comment. The Northwest movement showed an increasing tendency; the cables were indifferent; the late market was rather nervous and on the close there was a mixed feeling. The corn market was still dull, but the fact that many prominent trading interests were bearish served to keep the buying down to a rather small limit. The crop news was bearing; in the main the country offerings were fair. The professional element was in control of the market during the greater part of the day and there were orders for this account on both sides. The foreign advices were bearish. The market for oats was without special feature.

HELD UP BY TAMMANY

New York Brewers Assessed for Campaign Funds

New York, Oct. 29.—"Money talks," continued to be the dominant note of the city campaign yesterday. Larger and larger grew the election day fund of the tiger. Brighter and brighter grew the smile of Tammany. Tammany made a demand on the brewing interests of the city for a fund of $35,000. At a meeting where the brewers decided to comply there were objections by three members of the Brewers' Board of Trade. These were overruled. The brewers will tax themselves one-third of one cent a barrel on their total output for a year, and this output is more than seven million barrels.

There was an unsuccessful attempt yesterday to get action in the Board of Aldermen on the franchise of the New York and Port Chester Railroad, and the statement was made last night by an officer of the company that the failure was due to a flat refusal of the company to be blackmailed by members of the board who are members of Tammany Hall.

To Leave New York

New York, Oct. 29.—Dr. Dowie has decided to end his campaign in New York one week earlier than originally planned, according to a notice posted at Madison Square Garden yesterday. This was an announcement by General Superintendent of Transportation Peters, "that all excursions from New York to Zion City will leave on Monday."

It is said that Dowie will remain some days after the army leaves.

BIG OIL BOOM IN KENTUCKY AND TENNESSSE

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 30—The Kentucky and Tennessee oil field is attracting wide attention of oil men of experience and means, as well as that of foreign capital. It is believed by old men that this will become the richest oil field in America. Kentucky and Tennessee have been turning out high grades of oil for more than twenty years, but the work has been carried on so quietly that but few in the outside world knew that an oil field existed in this section. More than forty years ago a well was drilled near Burkesville, Cumberland County, Kentucky, for the purpose of finding salt water to be used in the manufacture of salt. Instead of brine they struck oil at a depth of less than three hundred feet. This well flowed for years, and it is estimated to have wasted fifty thousand barrels of oil. (See Encyclopedia Brittanica 18th Vol. under the head of "Petroleum.")

The production in this new district is steadily increasing with great activity, operators desire to get as big a production as possible before the price of crude oil advances to $2.00 per barrel, which is sure to come before long, owing to the decreasing of oil products in the Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana oil fields.

At this rate of increase it will not be long until the Kentucky and Tennessee field will contribute largely to make up for the decreasing production in the older fields. On the whole, the oil developments in Kentucky and Tennessee have resulted in great good as far as industry is concerned. towns have doubled in size, and owners have realized a great deal by leasing their lands, and capitalists have come to make the business centres their permanent headquarters.

There has never been a time when the output could not have been increased if the requisite capital and energy had been devoted to this end. Now it has become necessary, and greater activity than ever is being manifested by the operators in this new field.

The Standard Oil Company is spending millions in laying the foundation of the most complete and gigantic pipe line ever laid in any section. This shows that they have faith in Kentucky and Tennessee as the coming oil-producing field. The American Oil Company is one of the successful operators that has just entered this field, and realizing the importance of the future of the oil industry they have secured over 2,000 acres of the best territory along the line of transportation. They will put down well after well as fast as money and men can complete them.

The American Oil Company presents to conservative investors a clean, straight businesslike opportunity to become interested in a genuine oil industry as distinguished from a mere stock-selling scheme.

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director o' the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masteo, auditor of the M. & P. & S R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100-foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Cold Mining Co. is to make some money, "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure-house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

A limited number of shares of this really first class proposition may be obtained on application to PETERBOROUGH BROKERAGE CO., Fiscal Agents, Peterborough, or J. J. BRANDON, Fenelon Falls; W. GALLON, Apsley; G. B. HILLIARD, Lakefield, or GEO. H. BROWN, Chemong

There is Nothing on Earth

That Shows as much Profit for Work Done and—Money Spent as an OIL WELL.

A gold mine needs continual digging, but an oil well, if it does not flow of its own accord, needs to be pumped, and it supplies the fuel to run the pump.

Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars, yes, Millions, have been made in the Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana oil fields, but these fields are on the decline, and the eyes of the world are turning to the Kentucky and Tennessee fields, where a mighty development has begun. Today Kentucky and Tennessee have over 500 producing wells, and is pumping thousands of barrels of oil. Money is flowing into the field from eastern financial centres as well as from the capital of Europe. It is believed by oil men that this will become the greatest oil field in America.

The Standard Oil Company is spending millions of dollars in laying the foundations of the most gigantic pipe line ever laid in any section. This shows that they have faith in Kentucky and Tennessee as the coming oil-producing section of America.

The American Oil Co.

Is one of the successful Companies operating over 2,000 acres of proven oil land in Kentucky and Tennessee located along the line of transportation. To push the wells and complete the development of this vast property, the Company offers 50,000 shares of treasury stock at 5 cents per share. This low offer is but for a short time, and may be withdrawn without further notice.

DO YOU FEEL SEEDY?

If You are Nervous, Depressed, Sleepless, and Suffer from Sick Stomach, Headache, Constipation and Indigestion, You need a Good Tonic like Ferrozone to Build Up the System.

Thousands are in this dreadful condition, only half alive, unable to stand the strain of work and worry. There is no sense or reason in trying to be comfortable with the idea that it will pass off, and that you are going to be better soon. Unless the system is cleansed of the impurities that poison the blood, you will never be well.

The best remedy is Ferrozone. It achieves marvellous results in chronic wasting diseases, nervous prostration, faulty nutrition, heart disease and stomach troubles.

Ferrozone promotes healthy digestion which results in all food being assimilated. Nutrition is vastly improved, the blood grows rich and red and gives stability to the entire system, the store of nerve energy and force increases daily by the use of Ferrozone. The process of waste is arrested, and in its place a rebuilding of the whole system takes place.

Diseased conditions cannot exist where Ferrozone is used. It attacks disease at its very foundation, and by keeping the body well nourished and supplied with strong blood and a powerful nervous organization prevents and keeps away all manner of sickness.

There is no blood builder, nerve tonic and strength producer that can equal Ferrozone, and few people are so well that could derive great benefit from its use. It is valuable in Nervous Dyspepsia, Anaemia, Weakness, Impure Blood, Bronchitis, Neuralgia and Rheumatism. It is prepared in the form of a chocolate coated tablet and is both pleasant and convenient to use.

Ferrozone produces that high standard of health so much desired by everyone. It brings back the rosy tint to the pale cheeks of the Anaemic girls and women. It puts grace and elasticity into their movements, gives lustre and brightness to the eye, and symmetry and roundness to the form. It gives a man new strength and energy with which to pursue his daily toil, and can be relied upon at all times to benefit and give perfect satisfaction.

You can't invest half a dollar to better advantage than in a box of Ferrozone. Your druggist has it, or it will be mailed to your address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Mr. Owens Funeral

The remains of the late Mr. Henry Owens were interred yesterday in the Little Lake cemetery, the funeral being a large one. It was attended by the Masonic brethren, of which society the deceased was an esteemed member. Rev. J. P. Wilson conducted the burial service. The bearers were Messrs. G. I. Roesel, H. Rush, R. F. Morrow, J. Green, W. H. Hill and H. Winch.

In Case of Fire

A fire drill has been instituted in the public schools of the town, so that in case of fire a panic may be prevented. In this connection we might refer to the remarks once made by the President of the Lime Juice Club, who said: "When a fire occurs I want every member to line up and follow me out." This is good advice, and may be worthy of imitation by the teachers who have undertaken the task of guarding life in the schools of the town.

Better Locks and Valves

Col. Hughes is aiming to have Fenelon Falls and Bobcaygeon locks improved. In the House at Ottawa recently he directed the attention of the Minister to the fact that the system of letting water in and out of locks is very tedious, speaking of the minor canals, and not of the main waterways. It is very easy to adopt a much easy more expeditious mode of opening and shutting the gates than is now in force. It is believed that the Government will take steps to put the most improved system of valves and gates, owing to Col. Hughes' action.

DEATH OF CHARLES LEGROS.

Was Found Dead in His Bed on Friday Morning

The community was shocked on Friday morning when it was learned that Mr. Charles Legros, the well known tobacconist and barber, was found dead in his bed. He had been a subject of heart disease, and his demise was attributed to this disease.

Mr. Legros was 48 years of age, and had been a resident of Peterborough for 25 years. He leaves to mourn his demise two sons and two daughters.

The funeral will take place this morning from the residence, George street, to St. Peter's cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

AN INTERESTING WEDDING

Mr. A. Percival MacLean Weds Miss Marion I. Hall

On Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock the residence of Mr. Robert Hall, of His Majesty's Customs, 341 Rubidge street, was the scene of a very interesting social event, when his second daughter, Miss Marion Isabelle, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Alexander Percival MacLean. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Torrance, assisted by Rev. J. A. Wilson, in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends.

The bride was attired in white crepe de chene over white taffeta, and wore the conventional bridal veil and orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. As the bride entered the drawing-room on the arm of her father, Mrs. Chas. McCaul Hume, of Toronto, sang Lohengrin's Bridal Hymn, "Faithful and True." Miss Jennie Hall, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore a gown of white organdie with point d'esprit, and carried a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. T. W. MacLean, of Stratford.

A handsome cabinet of silver from the Geo. Matthews Company was among the many beautiful presents received.

The happy young couple left on the evening train for a tur through Maritime Provinces, and on their return will reside at Homewood avenue.

The reception given in Montreal by the church wardens and congregation of Christ Church Cathedral, in honor of the vicar, Rev. Dr. Symonds, and Mrs. Symonds; and the Rev. H. Temple Stannage Boyle, assistant minister, and Mrs. Boyle, was a largely attended and most enjoyable affair. The Synod Hall, where the reception was held, was handsomely decorated with flags and bunting, and the refreshment tables were prettily arranged with vases of crimson carnations. As the guests entered they were received by the Vicar and Mrs. Symonds, and Rev. H. T. S. Boyle and Mrs. Boyle. Mrs. Symonds was gowned in green, and wore a white hat and Mrs. Boyle was in gray voile, with a white box, and black velvet hat. Both ladies carried boquets of roses. During the evening the orchestra played several selections.

His Grace Archbishop Bond, in his few words of welcome to Dr. Symonds and Rev. Mr. Boyle, referred to the latter's marriage, saying that it would make him all the more popular with the congregation, and for this he congratulated him. He congratulated the people of Christ Church Cathedral in having such a vicar and assistant minister. His Grace said that the diocese of Montreal was a singularly social one, and full of friendship, and into this harmonious circle he most heartily welcomed both Dr. and Mrs. Symonds and Rev. Mr. Boyle and Mrs. Boyle.

Bishop Carmichael seconded the Archbishop's hearty welcome, and also extended a cordial welcome to Dr. Symonds on behalf of the clergy of the diocese. As for the congregation, His Lordship said he could only say that they were wisely directed when they chose their new vicar, and he hoped sympathy would always exist between the congregation and the vicar.

Rev. Dr. Symonds said, in reply, that he sincerely hoped the congregation would continue to give him the support he required. He was convinced that his was the age when people had to work, and there was something in the church for every one to do.

Rev. Mr. Boyle said that he flattered himself that he was chiefly instrumental in getting Dr. Symonds to come to Christ Church Cathedral, and for this he considered great credit was due him. He also expressed his thanks for the many kind words of the Archbishop, and his appreciation of the friendship of the congregation.

PERSONAL MENTION

Movements of the People—What They are Doing and Saying.

—Mr. Tom Eastwood, Buckhorn, was in town yesterday.

—Miss Eva McCrae, of Brantford, is visiting friends in town.

—Miss Edith Nicholl, of Norwood, is spending a few days with friends in town.

—Mrs. Munroe, of Midland, accompanied by her young son, Alfred, returned home after visiting Mrs. G. Learmouth, town, and friends in Warsaw.

—Mr. J. H. McClelland returned Saturday from Wellington, and reports that his son, Mr. W. G. McClelland is doing nicely, and will soon be able to return to Peterborough.

—At the Provincial Sunday School Convention, held at Smith's Falls, Dr. Harrison, of Keene, was elected as Vice-President of the Provincial Association.

—The engagement is announced in Ottawa of Miss Jessie White, daughter of the late Hon. Thomas White and Mrs. White, to Mr. G. Jarvis, manager of the Arnprior branch of the Bank of Ottawa.

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

—Mr. Bradburn is having China Hall block painted, which will add greatly to its appearance.

—The little child who was so badly burned on Thursday, in Ashburnham, is doing nicely today, and will recover.

—The Times has had an enquiry as to what has become of the Retail Merchants Association.

—The annual harvest dinner in connection with All Saints' church will be held in the Forester's hall on Thursday evening, November 5th.

—The committee appointed to make preliminary arrangements for the house to house visitation met in the Y.M.C.A. last night and completed details of the work.

—Through a mistake we stated yesterday that the child who accidentally drank lye was the daughter of Mr. Fred. Nelson, whereas it should have read Mr. A. M. Nelson. The little one, though not yet out of danger, is doing well.

—While operating a lathe at the Electric Works a few days ago, Mr. George Mead had the misfortune to fracture the small bone of his arm. He felt considerable pain, but worked on for two days when he was forced to go to a doctor, and was surprised to find that a bone had been broken. He will be laid up for some days.

—Beaverton Express—Several local gentlemen are interesting themselves in the introduction of a machine for the manufacture of cardboard from peat moss which promises excellent results. The process is an Austrian one. A test of the peat moss taken from the large Brock swamp west of Cannington, as well as from the Holland river was made at the Thorah Brick & Tile Company yards Wednesday.

—Fenelon Falls Star—As the morning train was coming south on Wednesday a brake dropped just after the train passed Kinmount junction, and the wheels being clogged, the train fell off the track. Three cattle cars were badly smashed, and the cattle were obliged to be removed by means of the roof. Four sheep and one cow were killed, and a number badly injured. The cattle were the property of Messrs. McDougall, Brandon & Austin, but the loss will, of course, fall on the railroad company. A wrecking train went north about 9 a.m., with a derrick and other needed apparatus, and a gang of men to get the train righted. The regular got down about 11.30 a.m., and the train from the south came in about 12.45 p.m. Neither brought mail, however, and the 2.45 a.m. took the mail north leaving us minus mail till the next morning.

LOVE

Often leads to poverty. No real woman ever sold her heart for the luxuries of life. But many a woman who has gladly faced poverty for the man she loved, may well doubt her wisdom when pain becomes the mate of poverty. If she were rich, she thinks, she could find a way of cure.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is within the reach of every one. It lifts the burden of pain which weighs down those who suffer from womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"You have my heartfelt thanks for your kind [illegible] to me," writes Mrs. [illegible] "Was troubled with catarrh of uterus for over a year. The doctors said I would have to go through an operation, but I commenced to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' also his 'Lotion Tablets' and 'Antiseptic and Healing Suppositories.' Now I am completely cured, after using six bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicines. I am glad to say his medicine has made me a new woman."

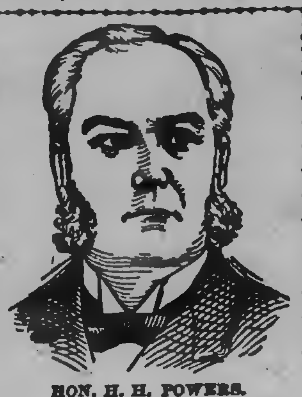
Weak and sick women, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are easy and pleasant to take. A most effective laxative.

A FAMILY REMEDY.

Pe-ru-na in Use in Thousands of Homes.

Congressman H. Henry Powers, of Vermont, writes from Morrisville, Vt.:



HON. H. H. POWERS.

"Peruna I have used in my family with success. I can recommend it as an excellent family remedy and very good for coughs, colds and catarrhal affections."—H. Henry Powers.

John L. Burnett, Member of Congress, Seventh Alabama District, writes:

"I take pleasure in testifying to the merits of your Peruna. At the solicitation of a friend my wife used it, and it improved her condition generally. It is a remarkable remedy. I can cheerfully recommend Peruna as a good, substantial tonic, and a very good catarrh remedy."

Pe-ru-na Cures Catarrh.

Half the ills of life are due to catarrh and catarrhal derangements. Peruna is the only internal, systemic catarrh remedy known to the medical profession.

Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Peruna is not a guess nor an experiment—it is an absolute, scientific certainty. Peruna has no substitutes—no rivals. Insist upon having Peruna.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

ROBLIN TALKS ON MANY SUBJECTS WESTERN CONDITIONS SATISFACTORY

He visits Montreal and is Well Received

THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC ROAD.

Manitoba Backs Up Chamberlain.

CITY OF MONTREAL, FROM THE HARBOUR.

Montreal, Nov. 1—Hon. R. P. Roblin, Premier of Manitoba, has reached the city. This is Mr. Roblin's first visit Montreal since his great victory in the Provincial elections and at the Windsor today he chatted freely of matters effecting the Prairie Province and the conditions that exist there at the present time.

"Manitoba is enjoying a period of great prosperity," said Mr. Roblin, "and the growing time is on us. In all departments, financial, commercial and agricultural, the outlook is more promising than even the most optimistic Manitobian imagined a few years ago. There is no semblance of a boom; we are sailing before the wind of prosperity with our canvas fully spread.

"What of the railway situation in Manitoba?" asked the reporter.

"I am glad to say that for the first time in my twenty-six years in Manitoba there is no suggestion that could be made to either of the railroad companies that would improve the situation. I can say without egotism, that this pleasing nified their approval of that policy at the Provincial Government of which I am the Premier. The people of Manitoba signified their a roval of that policy at the recent elections, by again returning us to power. The railway policy we have adopted has been fairly and gracefully accepted by the companies operating in the province, and the results this year show that over $1,000,000 has been saved to the people of the province in freight rates. I can safely say that this state of affairs has been accepted by the people of Manitoba, with a satisfaction that has never been equalled. The grain is being moved promptly on both lines. There is no congestion and this is being much appreciated by the farmers and business men. I repeat; the railway situation in the Province of Manitoba is eminently satisfactory."

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC PROJECT.

"Is there much interest being taken in the Grand Trunk Pacific project of the Federal Government?"

Mr. Roblin smiled, "There isn't enough interest taken in the Grand Trunk Pacific west of Lake Superior to permit of any opinion being formed. The people of the West never believed for one moment that it was the real intention of the Government to build the line from Winnipeg to Moncton—that is they did not consider the eastern section of the line was worthy of the slightest attention. If they do undertake to build, however, and try to pay for it by the sale of public lands in the North-West, then there will be an arousal of public interest, and the party responsible will be asked to explain and justify such a course of action. At the present time and under the present circumstances the people of the West either smile at the Grand Trunk Pacific project, or they pay no attention whatever to it."

While Mr. Roblin was speaking of the Grand Trunk Pacific, Mr. R. L. Borden crossed the floor of the rotunda.

"What is the feeling in Manitoba and the North-West regarding the Conservative leader?" enquired the reporter.

"There is no more popular man west of Lake Superior than Mr. Borden," was the reply. "He has won his way into the affections of the people of Manitoba and the West to a degree that cannot be expressed. His visit to the West won him many friends and the grasp he had of public affairs, coupled with his practical transportation policy and fight for provincial autonomy in the North-West combined to make him a most popular leader. Mr. Borden has the full confidence of the West, and when the time comes for the fight, when ever that may be, Mr. Borden will have convincing proof of that confidence. We are ready for the political fray and do not expect to come out second best."

ARE FEELING DISAPPOINTED.

"Is there any feeling in Manitoba in regard to the Alaskan boundary award?"

"There is no other feeling than one of disappointment. I am convinced that criticism of the award comes from people who never spent five minutes reading the data and studying the maps, consequently there can be no other feeling other than disappointment at not getting what we wanted. I think, however, it was a mistake on the part of the Dominion Government not to have insisted that the findings of the commission should be subject to the ratification of Parliament."

"What is the opinion of Manitoba concerning the preferential trade proposals of Mr. Chamberlain?"

"We in the Prairie Province are taking the keenest interest in Mr. Chamberlain's crusade for the closer binding of the colonies to the Mother Country. On a public platform over a year ago I expressed the opinion that some such policy was absolutely necessary if we were to ensure the sam degree of loyalty and patriotism among the varied personalities and creeds that are rapidly filling the North-West. We have a large number of settlers who do not speak our language, and have had no reason heretofore to respect the British flag, and, therefore, to make them good loyal Canadians, it is necessary that some system of preferential trade should be adopted whereby our cereals and agricultural products should obtain a preference in the British markets. We in the West, therefore, wish Mr. Chamberlain every success.

"And the American invasion of the West, what of that?"

"Nothing in it," was the laconic reply of Manitoba's Premier. "The men from the United States who have taken up land in the West make splendid settlers, and in time good Canadian citizens."

In conclusion, Mr. Roblin said that his visit to the East at this time was not of any public significance. He was merely taking his usual trip in the fall.

SMACK ON THE FACE A FITTING ANSWER.

Patronizing Way of British Papers is Sublime Impertinence to Canada

London, November 1.—The Saturday Review says: "We are amazed, though if we were Canadians we might be annoyed, at the smug, patronizing way almost every newspaper in the Kingdom is telling Canada, as though she were a child, not to mind the Alaska boundary decision. A smack on the face is a fitting answer for such journalists thus addressing a great nation. It is really amazing. Canada is to be resigned because her loss has removed a cause of friction between the United States and the Empire. Were it a question of Canada herself belonging to the United States, we doubtless would have entrusted it to a commission, and Canada being awarded to the United States, the Times would still be congratulating itself upon the fact that a great cause of friction with the United States had been removed."

London, Oct. 31.—It is freely hinted that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach is prepared to take office with Mr. Balfour, and that this attitude is likely to force the Duke of Devonshire to speak plainly concerning Mr. Balfour's action in regard to the Cabinet and the position the free trade Unionists should adopt.

Of 64 members of Parliament claimed by the Free Food League only 42 are forthcoming.

The Somerset Chamber of Commerce at a large meeting yesterday, carried a resolution that the time had arrived for consideration of the fiscal policy of the Empire with a view to strengthening the bond of union with the colonies, and providing means of resisting hostile foreign tariffs.

The Express publishes a long list of British manufacturers who have been compelled to emigrate by the protective tariffs of foreign countries.

Lord Morely, speaking at Plympton, said that if the Government would state a concrete case for retaliation, the House of Commons would adopt it. If there were any chance for a zollverein with the colonies it was worth a great sacrifice.

COULD NOT STAND IT.

Lord Portsmouth, addressing the Liberals at Winchester, contended that to protect manufacturers and agriculture was unfair.

They could not tax the foreigner 15 shillings a quarter on corn, which was equivalent to a tax of six shillings a pound. The laborers earnings could not stand it.

The Standard, referring to the reception at the Colonial Office yesterday, says the colonies do not wish to be directed from London at all, and would prove extremely recalcitrant to more effective control, but since Mr. Chamberlain's proposals require this, it is certain that such semi-detached relations are at an end.

The News boils with indignation at the insult to Lord Goschen, he having been invited by the Dinner Committee of the Liverpool Conservative Club to a banquet and accepted. The newly formed club declined to endorse the request, and the dinner is declared off.

LAY OFF 7000 MEN.

Labour Leaders Fearful of What will Happen

Chicago, Nov. 1—In addition to the 450 marble workers locked out, the thousands out on strike and the 1,200 steel-workers and 1,000 brickmakers laid off in Cook county, it was reported yesterday that the International Harvester Company was about to cut the force in its big Chicago branches to the extent of 7,000 men.

With this to add to the thousands of other workers in various crafts already idle in the city and with rumors from many quarters that thousands will soon be dropped from the pay rolls in various other institutions workers are greatly excited and a general shutdown of mills is feared.

Leaders Fear for Unions.

The latest report has caused considerable alarm among organized labor leaders, who struggled to organize the working forces of the International Harvester Company last summer. While fearing widespread hardship in case of this big cut in the working force, the leaders are also fearful that it will spell disaster for the unions and many will drop from the ranks on account of the expense.

The persistent rumors in railroad circles that thousands of men are to be dropped next month, which is supported by the fact that several thousands have already been laid off in different localities, gives the workingmen further cause for alarm. Though this is the season of the year when working forces are cut in many trades, the thoughtful labor men believe this year will bring an unusual slump in the labor market.

Tax on Members Reduced.

Because of this many trade organizations are considering cutting down the organization per capita tax. The teamsters and Building Trades' council have already ordered the tax reduced to relieve the members of the union from expense as much as possible and avert desertions from their ranks.

One reason for the present cutting of forces is a lack of trade, according to manufacturers, and this excuse is supported by mechanics, who know that business with the steel mills especially is slack. The Crane company is now running its Jefferson street factory only five days a week and eight hours a day.

ANOTHER ELLEN STONE CASE

Bulgarian Insurgents Planned to Take a Rich American

Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 1—Sarafoff's insurgents a few weeks ago were considering a plan to capture Charles R. Crane, the Chicago millionaire and hold him in the hope of inducing the United States to interfere in the Macedonian crisis. The plot was abandoned on the urgent representation of Dr. Tatarcheff chief of the inner insurgent council, that it would cause the Macedonians the loss of the sympathy of the world.

Accompanied by Prof. Milyoukov, of the University of Chicago, Mr. Crane spent several weeks in Bulgaria, and it is understood became a strong Slavophile. General Petroff, the Premier, Col. Savoff, the Minister of War, and other notables received him frequently. When it was noised about that the Chicagoian besides his wealth, was intimate with President Roosevelt, ex-President Cleveland and other influential Americans, the insurgents proposed to capture him on the occasion of one of his journeys to the Rila Monastery, near the frontier, where the country swarms with bands, and the hills are inaccessible. Mr. Crane, when advised of the plot, laughed unconcernedly.

Chicago Packers' Strike Spreads

Chicago, Nov. 2—Packing house canners walked out yesterday, joining the striking sausage makers, and increasing the number of idle men at the stock yards to 2,400. There are 16 other branches of organized labor in the packing houses yet to make demands, and more than 23,000 employes are said to stand ready to support the strikers.

Will Stop the Trains

Plattsburg, N.Y., Nov. 2.—The new York Central Railroad officials at Malone have received notification from the Canadian Customs officials at Ottawa that it is their intention in the near future to stop all passenger trains entering Canada at the frontier for examination by customs officials. No reason is given for a change from the present regulations, which provide for inspection while the trains are running at usual speed.

—The unfavorable weather on Saturday prevented a large market.

A Hopeless Task

London, Nov. 2—An astonishing message comes to the Manchester Guardian today from its New York correspondent who is supposed to be in close touch with official quarters at Washington. The despatch says it is recognized among American public men that Canada's bitterness over the Alaska award presents an opportunity for American statesmanship, and adds: "This might seek first to ingratiate itself with Canada by offering favorable terms of trade, and later press for advantages of political union. A majority of Americans always expect Canada to apply for annexation sooner or later. Many think recent events give a distinct fillip to the movement of continental union. The greatest obstacle is short-sighted American protectionism."

ELECTIONS IN JANUARY NOW BEING CONSIDERED

Premier Laurier Said to Favor Immediate Appeal to the People

Montreal, Nov. 2—Sir Wilfrid Laurier who passed through this city on Saturday on his way to his home in Athabaskaville, is said to have indicated that Parliament would probably be dissolved and the elections brought on immediately after the New Year. The Premier was seen at the Windsor Hotel by a Times representative. When asked in regard to the above, the Premier would make no statement. The matter will no doubt be decided in a few days. If the Premier's health permits the elections will take place, and if he does not feel strong enough after a few day's rest to enter into a winter campaign, the elections will be postponed until June, and a short session held after the new year.

Sir Wilfrid looks exceedingly well, considering that he has just finished eight months of almost continual toil.

At a gathering of Conservative leaders on Saturday, which was attended by Mr. R. L. Borden and Premier Roblin, of Manitoba, the situation was discussed. The opinion prevails that the elections will be on after the new year.

RUSSIANS ARE SLAUGHTERED

Robber Tribesmen Massacre Steamer's Crew and Defeat Guards

St. Petersburg, Nov. 2—The robber Chunchus tribesmen who recently intrenched themselves at Bodone, a town on the Sungacha river, Manchuria, had previously attacked a Russian cargo steamer at a station on the Manchurian railway near Bodone. They massacred the entire crew and then attacked the Russian railroad guards, killing forty five. Further reinforcements have been ordered from Harbin to Bodone to dislodge the Chunchus.

TUNNEL UNDER THE HUDSON

Workmen Completing Passage Way for Trolley Cars to New York

New York, Nov. 2—The first tunnel under North river is completed from the New Jersey shore to within seventy-five feet of the New York shore. The Manhattan terminal will be in the block bounded by Christopher, Tenth, Hudson and Greenwich streets. It is expected that trolley cars will be operated in the tunnel by next April.

The tunnel is not large enough for railroad trains to traverse.

Shifts of thirteen men working three hours at a shift will press the work to completion night and day.

A HARD CRACK

Carrie Nation Says Dowie is "A Dreadful Liar."

New York, Nov. 1—Mrs. Carrie Nation has sent a second letter to John Alexander Dowie, challenging him to prove his assertion that he is Elijah III., and declaring if he would accept her challenge to debate his declaration in public, she would pay for a hall and give him $500. Mrs. Nation, after quoting several passages of Scripture to prove that the self-styled Elijah III. is just plain J. A. Dowie, ends her letter as follows: "This last verse proves you, John Alexander Dowie alleged Elijah III., restorer, a fraud and such a dreadful liar. At all my meetings I invite people to ask questions and am always glad to have them do so. On the other hand, you throttle discussion in abuse and vituperation."

Dowie has not replied to Mrs. Nation's letters.

AN IMMENSE SHIPMENT

Largest Bill of Lading in Annals of C.P.R.

Montreal, Nov. 2—In the transport of machinery from Lawrence, Mass., to Munining, Mich., the C.P.R. has just made the largest bill of lading concerning any one single shipment.

The machinery was consigned by Messrs J. H. Horne and Sons Company, of Lawrence, Mass., and was delivered to the C.P.R. at Newport. Thence it was carried over the line of that company, a distance of 730 miles, to Munising, Mich.

The train consisted of 24 flat cars and ten box cars, 34 cars in all—the tonnage of which was 350 tons dead freight—and was handled in one section with two engines.

This is the largest individual shipment of machinery, or, it may be said, of any product, out of the Nwe England from one consignor to one consignee.

BENEFITS GERMANS AND BELGIANS

That is Chief Result of Canada's Present Preference

AGENCIES ARE OPENED.

In England to Counteract This and Secure Material for Tariff Revision

London, Oct. Nov. 2—It is understood that the action of the Canadian Government in appointing Canadian commercial agents at Leeds, Hull and Manchester, in addition to the existing agent at Birmingham, is not alone due to a desire to stimulate Anglo-Canadian trade. Evidence has for some time been accumulating quietly at Ottawa that the preferential tariff is being wantonly abused by many British manufacturers and agents, who are obtaining the preference in cases where far less than 25 per cent. of British labor has been put into their exports. In fact Canada's preferential tariff now operates very largely in favor of German and Belgian manufacturers, who use British houses as a mere agency channel.

The Canadian Government intend to watch and check this fraud, and also to collect evidence in view of a revision of the Canadian tariff.

DOMINION IS SOLVING THE EMPIRE'S PROBLEM

She Leads the Van in Arranging Preference Duties With Sister Colonies

London, Oct. 31.—Sir Gilbert Parker, referring to the Canadian preference to South Africa, said: "We have heard for years about free trade within the Empire being the solution of Imperial Federation. Canada has taken the first step in that direction. She first solved the question of commercial union by uniting Provinces with conflicting tariff systems. Three years ago she attempted to secure a preferential tariff with Australia by sending Sir William Mulock there for that purpose. It failed for the moment, but that she is working in the right lines is evidenced by Premier Deakin's manifesto. Now she has turned to another quarter of the Empire with a fresh offer.

"I am amazed that British newspapers have said nothing about the offer to South Africa. Frankly, I doubt if they grasp its tremendous significance. It makes one proud of his native land that in the progress of the Empire she leads the van. Canada has often been an inspiration to the center."

PROFOUND IMPORTANCE.

Earl Beauchamp said: "Canada's step is of profound importance. As an ex-Governor-General of New South Wales, I am deeply interested in every feature of the movement."

London, Oct. 31.—There has been no end of declamation and argument since Mr. Chamberlain's speeches in Glasgow, Greenock and Liverpool, but his appeals have not been effectively answered. Mr. Asquith has summed up the case with the trained talent of an advocate, but he has not broken the force of Mr. Chamberlain's argument that England is not holding the same relative position as an exporting and manufacturing nation which she occupied thirty years ago, in comparison with her rivals. Mr. Asquith is a close reasoner and has a quick eye for detecting flaws in an adversary's argument; yet, like Mr. James Bryce, he talks high above the heads of the working people. Lord Spencer has been equally unconvincing with his platitudes about prosperity under free trade. Mr. Lloyd George has been fairly humorous in ridiculing Mr. Chamberlain's plea for "dear food and cheap offal," three Dukes and a pig" in place of "three acres and a cow," and the conversion of the United Kingdom into a "bacon-curing establishment"; but he has not answered the essential argument that foreigners especially Americans and Germans, were getting a portion of England's share in the world's trade, and that the commerce of the United Kingdom was not increasing as it should in order to support adequately the greatly enlarged population. Sir Henry Fowler has subjected the protectionists proposals to various tests, and assumed with comfortable optimism that the workingmen have steadier employment, better wages, a higher standard of living and cheaper supplies of food and clothing in England than on the Continent—he is shrewd enough to avoid making comparisons with America—and he has also charged Mr. Chamberlain with seeking to bribe the loyal colonies and to break up the Empire. Neither Sir Henry Fowler, nor Mr. Ritchie has answered Mr. Chamberlain's arguments that foreign raiders are depriving the British workmen of employment, and that consolidation of the Empire by means of preferential tariffs is a policy of supreme importance.

Indeed until Lord Rosebery appeared on the platform at Sheffield, the most effective criticism of Mr. Chamberlain's speeches in Scotland has come from Mr. Winston Churchill. He has ridiculed the idea that everybody will gain and nobody lose by the proposed fiscal changes, and described Mr. Chamberlain as a quack and cure-all.

CHAMBERLAIN REVISES SPEECH.

Mr. Chamberlain has revised his Glasgow speech, of Oct. 6th, for the National Review. The only alteration in the speech is that Mr. Chamberlain's original statement that the duty average of ten per cent. would give the Exchequer £9,000,000 a year has been changed in the revised version to read "might be nearer £15,000,000 if we accept the Board of Trade estimate of £184,000,000 as the value of imports of manufactured and partly manufactured goods."

"BRITISH GOODS FOR BRITISHERS.

In his Newcastle speech Mr. Chamberlain said with regard to colonial trade: "We would go to our friends and kinsmen and say, 'Gentlemen, we think in regard to the future, it is high time that John Bull and sons entered into partnership.'" A number of city business men, acting upon this suggestion, have formed a syndicate to trade exclusively in manufactured goods, foodstuffs and raw materials produced within the limits of the British Empire. "British goods for Britishers," is the password of the new undertaking. Subsidiary limited companies will be formed in all of the colonies, and each will send a director to London.

THE FLOW OF ORATORY.

The Right Hon. Andrew Graham Murray, Secretary for Scotland, speaking last night, said it was part of the declared policy of Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Balfour that any fiscal changes should not take place until after the general elections. If the Liberals came into power there would be a revival of the policy of harrassing each trade, and in their interests he thought the Government should be sustained.

Mr. J. A. Jacoby, Liberal M.P. for Mid-Derbyshire, speaking at Bolton yesterday, said he favored putting an end to the dumping into Britain of bounty-fed manufactured goods which seriously interfered with the British markets.

General Sports

In one of the fastest and closest games of basketball ever played between two local teams, the Athletics (whites) turned down the champion Harriers team Saturday evening at the Y.M.C.A. before a fairly large crowd of spectators to the tune of 25 to 22.

The Athletics lacked practice, and were not in as good condition as the Harriers.

The teams were as follows:

Athletics (25)—W Cavanag, (captain), Geo. Robertson, forwards; H. Dunford, centre; E. Dillon, T. Glover, backs.

Harriers (22)—W. Campbell, (captain), W. Richardson, backs; J. Laing, centre; W. Maguire, R. Dobbin, forwards.

The second game between the Arrows and Alerts was a walk over for the Arrows, as the Alert's defence men left their checks uncovered, and they scored at will, the final score being 40 to 20 in favor of the Arrows.

The teams were as follows:

Arrows (40) — Hodgson, Gillespie, backs; Richardson, center; Gillespie, Fitzpatrick, forwards.

Alerts (20) — G. Morgan, Caniff, forwards; Hall, center; Howson, Renton, backs.

Games next Saturday:
Arrows vs. Athletic (Blues) 8 p.m.
Brownies vs. Alerts, 9 p.m.

RUGBY

The Victorias, of Toronto, defeated Peterborough on Saturday afternoon by a score of 3 to 1.

Varsity defeated Queens.

The Tigers of Hamilton, defeated the Torontos by a score of 28 to 0.

IN RAILWAY CIRCLES.

Grand Trunk Aggression is Looked For Following a Victory

THE CANADIAN NORTHERN.

Northern Officials Declare They Will Reach the Sea First

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—The Grand Trunk Pacific has created a stir in railroad circles, for the reason that the Grand Trunk proper has been making extensive improvements in the last two or three years, and more than ordinary results are looked for in passenger and freight traffic.

Officials of the Grand Trunk have been watching with the greatest interest the deliberations of Parliament in connection with the Pacific extension project, and now that the official sanction of the plan has been given it is thought probable the system will take aggressive action in branching out for business along its present lines.

In the meantime the Canadian Northern Railroad has been built for the amount of its bonds, approximately $12,000 a mile, so its fixed charges are only about $470 per mile. The purposes of its projectors was to reach the Pacific coast, and their plans were matured before and during the time Parliament was discussing the advisability of authorizing the Grand Trunk Pacific project.

At the close of the present year the Canadian Northern had under operation approximately 1,350 miles of road, from Port Arthur, Ont., to Winnipeg, tapping the wheat field in the Canadian North-West. The mileage is exclusive of the eastern terminus of the Canadian Northern, the Great Northern Railway of Canada, now operating between Hawkesbury and Quebec. In addition 500 miles are now under construction.

When it was announced by the Grand Trunk that its transcontinental line would bebuilt immediately, the projectors of the Canadian Northern decided to suspend operations for the present so far as their line to the Pacific coast was concerned. Their policy will be one of gradual extension to the west, building on the main line whenever conditions warrant, and constructing branch lines in the wheat districts. When the main line reaches the Rocky mountains the transmountain section to tidewater will be completed at once, and officials of the system say they feel sure their road will reach the ocean before the Grand Trunk Pacific does. Officials of the other system, located in Chicago, declare otherwise, however.

FINANCES OF NORTHERN STRONG.

The Canadian Northern is strong financially, the guaranty by the Dominion Government of the interest on its 4 per cent. bonds making it possible to float the securities on the English market at a little below par.

The first annual report of the Canadian Northern for the fiscal year ending June 30, shows:

Gross	$2,449,000
Operating expenses	1,589,300
Net	869,300
Charges	637,400
Surplus	222,900

Since June 30 gross earnings have been fully 70 per cent. greater than the corresponding period a year ago, for practically the same mileage.

TREATY-MAKING POWER

The Montreal Witness, discussing Canada's claim to the treaty-making power, which was first put forward by Hon. E. Blake, says:—"Since this claim has been advanced it has been always more or less acted on and in some matters Canada has been given a very free hand. But we must admit that we have never been able to understand how any further claim could be made. It would simply be impossible for the country whose power is depended on for the enforcement of agreements to give carte blanche to any one else to threaten the use of that power. However much it may be consulted and however little referred to, it is only a sense of a power in the background that sets any limit to diplomatic demands. There are matters, such as reciprocity treaties, where the question is simply how much each will surrender for a stipulated return from which the question of power is, to say the least, remote; but most differences between countries involve disputes as to rights and privileges and, as to these, power is till now the only arbiter. Under such conditions the demand of a dependency to make its own treaties implies a readiness on its part to enforce them by means at its own disposal.

LORD ALVERSTONE'S POSITION

C. E. L. has addressed the following cogent letter to the press:—

"If one felt disposed to draw strong conclusions from slight premises one might fear that a certain spirit of fatuousness was coming over our people. First, we have the outburst of feeling in respect to the result of the Alaska arbitration, and now we hear it suggested that Canada should petition the Imperial Parliament for power to make her own treaties. The fatuity of the latter suggestion, unless it be intended as a prelude to independence, needs no comment. The fatuity of the former may not lie quite so obviously on the surface of things; but in fact the feeling that has been manifested in some quarters regarding the Alaskan award reminds one of nothing so much as a long-forgotten joke in Punch. Two workmen are pictured, discussing the result of some trade dispute, and one says to the other: "I say, Bill, call this arbitration? Why, they've given it ag'in us!'

Of all these hasty critics of Lord Alverstone and the award, does anybody suppose that one in five hundred has ever read the treaty that was the subject of interpretation? Most certainly, not one can have by any possibility have examined the evidence, maps, surveys, and arguments presented to the Board of Commissioners. People talk—some, perhaps, who ought to know better—about Canada's interests having always been sacrificed by British diplomacy. Yet one may say with much certainty that there is not a single man in Canada who has ever examined in their entirety the evidence maps, plans, surveys, and what not upon which the Ashburton Treaty, or other past diplomatic settlements were based. What we do know for certain is that we have a Motherland with the noblest record and the grandest history of any country in the world, and that she has showered benefits upon us from the day that the first sod was turned in British Canada, and is extending them to us to-day. These facts, however, are not enough, apparently, to induce some people to extend to her even moderate charity in making their judgments and framing their denunciations. But it will be said our own commissioner, Mr. Aylesworth, over his signature, has declared his opinion that Lord Alverstone did not arrive at his conclusions upon judicial considerations. If this language is correctly reported it is indeed excusable for the public to conclude that Mr. Aylesworth means that Lord Alverstone has deliberately given his decision upon other than judicial grounds. Probably Mr. Aylesworth means nothing of the sort, but only that in his opinion judicial consideration of the evidence submitted should have led Lord Alverstone to a different conclusion. If he means the other thing, all one can say is that it is a most unwarrantable insult to a very distinguished man. It is quite unwarrantable, because, as an old English judge of the fourteenth century says, "Even the Devil himself cannot tell what is in the heart of man." Neither Mr. Aylesworth nor anybody else, can possibly tell what was the process of mental reasoning by way of which Lord Alverstone, arrived at his conclusion. It is an insult, because it implies that Lord Alverstone in a treacherous and underhand way, while pretending to decide the question in a judicial manner, in reality disregarded his oath, and allowed his mind to be turned by alien considerations. But anyone who understands the first thing about the traditions of the British bench, or the principles of English gentlemen, will know that it would have been as possible for Lord Alverstone to steal Mr. Aylesworth's watch, as to do anything of this sort. For a man of his stamp there are no such things as moral impossibilities.

"But at any rate it may be said Mr. Aylesworth himself arrived at a different conclusion. There is not the slightest excuse for anybody to imply that Mr. Aylesworth did not arrive at his conclusions honestly and conscientiously, any more than there is to imply the same of Lord Alverstone. At the same time, Lord Alverstone, as Sir Richard Webster, was one of the leading counsel in the Behring Sea arbitration, and in his position as official leader of the English bar, and now Lord Chief Justice of England is entirely familiar with the kind of matter which was before him in his character as President of the Alaskan Commission. But to write in this spirit is not Canadian! What is it to be a Canadian? To be staunch and true, to be a loyal and law-abiding citizen of the Empire—that is to be Canadian. To be querulously suspicious of the motives of the Motherland, to indulge in aspirations which are incompatible with Imperial unity—that is not, and never will be, Canadian. A few years ago it was called "Knownothingism.'

GROWTH OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

That the Christian Science cult is gradually extending its work and that it is meeting greater success than was anticipated by many of its well wishers, was shown by the recent meeting in Boston of four hundred teachers of the faith as set forth by Mother Eddy. The gathering, the first of the kind ever held, decided that the instructors shall hold annual conventions in alternate order at Boston, Chicago and New York city. During the discussion of matters appertaining to Christian Science, it was decided that the work should be extended in Canada, Germany and Great Britain, with a view to strengthening unifying the cult.

During the past few years, the followers of Christian Science have, through their quiet and earnest efforts, partly disarmed prejudices against their faith. While the public is not disposed to subject the Christian Scientists to prosecutions in any form, the demand that children shall not be denied medical attendance, if such attendance is required, will be insisted upon; and from all accounts, there will be no opposition to such demands.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

A loaf of bread has been on exhibition at Mark Lane, which was the result of a record-breaking experiment at Blockley, England. At 8.30 o'clock one morning Messrs. Taylor & Sons of the Sheaf House farm, Blockley, started to cut a field of wheat. As fast as the sheaves were cut they were started to the granary, and there threshed and winnowed. These operations took six and one-half minutes. Thence the wheat was taken to the mill of J. H. Painton, and their ground and dressed in five and one-half minutes. At the adjacent bakehouse the flour was made into dough and moulded into cakes and loaves. Seven small loaves were taken from the oven at 9 o'clock—thirty minutes from the time the wheat was standing uncut. The larger loaves were finished in forty minutes. One was sent to the King and others were presented to Lady Northwick and Lord Redesdale.

WANTS A SAFEGUARD FOR RAW MATERIAL

Canada Does Not Want Preference Which Would Injure Great Britain

London, Oct. 29.—Mr. Holland, M.P., speaking at a meeting of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, contended that the Manchester free traders in the Commercial Congress in Canada were not likely to find themselves in the majority. The Canadian delegates could hardly be expected to object to having a substantial preference given their wares in the British market, if the preference was offered. If they had chosen to bring forward a resolution stipulating for such treatment they could easily have carried it. If the Manchester delegates had proposed such a resolution in the Manchester Chamber they would have been hopelessly beaten. They, therefore, tried to get the sense of the resolution embodied in other words, and the resolution carried by the Congress. They succeeded, which he thought secured the city's industry.

SAFEGUARD NEEDED.

"This district," he said, "should be safeguarded in regard to the taxation of our raw material." Mr. Holland declared that since he had returned from Canada he had a clear conviction in mind that no preference was desired by the Canadians if it could be shown that a giving of the preference would in any degree injure the Mother Country. It was clear that the Canadian manufacturers meant to protect their own market for the home producer. The preferences already given were chiefly valuable as a proof of Canadian good will towards the Mother Country, and on that ground they are to be neither underrated nor despised.

SUITS HIS CUSTOMERS.

Vossische Zeitung, Berlin, says: "The reason why German trade is able to enter successfully into competition with English trade is because the German knows better how to adapt itself to foreign tastes. It suits Mr. Chamberlain's purpose better to describe the vigorous and rapid growth of the German trade as a direct consequence of an organized system of premiums and State subsidies, and to pass over the really decisive factor."

AUSTRALIA AGREES.

Australia anticipates that Mr. Chamberlain will be successful in his campaign if he will submit definite proposals to the colonies regarding the particular classes of goods to be exported from Great Britain on which a preference is desirable. The Commonwealth Government believes that Mr. Chamberlain's policy is a good one for Australia, and that it will attract a needed white population and increase Australia's production a thousandfold.

HAVEN FOR IMMIGRANTS.

A very interesting article in the Commercial Intelligence, by Mr. Griffiths, secretary for Lord Strathcona, points out the great many advantages Canada holds out to emigrants.

MUST WAKE UP.

Mr. T. R. Clougher, formerly of Toronto, writing also in the same journal, in an interesting article, points out that if the English manufacturers wish a share in the Canadian trade they must pay more attention to catering to the tastes and peculiarities of their customers.

CHAMBERLAIN SPEECHES.

This morning's press comments on Mr. Chamberlain's speech yesterday at Birmingham say that he gave the wage-earners very much to think about and to talk over, and that with a good deal of what Mr. Chamberlain said there will be on their part a cordial agreement.

STILL MYSTIFIED.

The Yorkshire Daily Observer says the protectionist case, as further unfolded by Mr. Chamberlain, gains neither in interest nor cogency.

The Manchester Courier says: "Half the battle originated by Mr. Chamberlain is won."

The Manchester Guardian says: "Mr. Chamberlain was not arguing. He was simply telling us."

IS VERY CONFIDENT.

Mr. Chamberlain today, before leaving Liverpool, declared himself more confident than ever of success. He did not think he had accomplished as much as he had found out. He was bound to win.

SHIFTY AND FAILING.

Mr. W. J. Bengough, of Toronto, concluded his series of lectures last night at Fulham. He had a large audience, which vigorously applauded his reference to the Canadians' part in the South African war. Mr. Bengough, interviewed, expressed a doubt whether Mr. Chamberlain would carry his policy, owing to his shifty and failing answers on certain points.

INVITED COLONIES.

The agents-general of the colonies have been invited by the French Senators and Deputies to accompany the Commercial Committee of the House of Commons on their visit to Paris on November 25 next. About 150 members of Parliament have accepted the invitation.

The Correct Attitude.

A collision has occurred.

The driver of the motor applies his brake and comes to a full stop and an easy, half-turned attitude of interrogation.

The companion of the injured pedestrian stoops over the insensible form and makes a brief yet searching examination.

Then, cap in hand, he approaches the vibrating car, and simply says:—

"On behalf of my friend, who has dislocated his vertebrae, fractured his tibia, sprained his ankle, and is evidently suffering from concussion of the brain, I beg to offer you my humble apologies."

And the motorist, with a haughty inclination of the head, accepts the explanation and immediately proceeds to resume on his wild career.

For such is the rule of the road.

Sympathetic.

Young wife (rather nervously)—Oh, cook, I must really speak to you. Your master is always complaining: One day it is the soup, the second day it is the fish, the third day it is the joint—in fact, it is always something or other. Cook (with feeling)—Well, mum, I'm truly sorry for you. It must be quite awful to live with a gentleman of that sort.—"Punch."

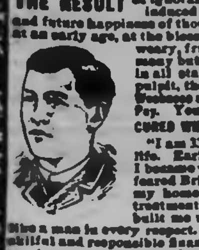
SINFUL HABITS IN YOUTH
MAKE NERVOUS, WEAK, DISEASED MEN.



THE RESULT of ignorance and folly in youth, overexertion of mind and body induced by lust and exposure are constantly wrecking the lives and future happiness of thousands of promising young men. Some fade and wither at an early age, at the blossom of manhood, while others are forced to drag out a weary, fruitless and melancholy existence. Others reach matrimony but find no solace or comfort there. The victims are found in all stations of life—the farm, the office, the workshop, the pulpit, the trades and the professions. Nervous Debility and Seminal Weakness are guaranteed cured by our New Method Treatment or No Pay. You run no risk. 25 years in Detroit. Bank security.

CURED WHEN ALL ELSE FAILED. No names used without written consent.

"I am 33 years of age and married. When young I led a gay life. Early indiscretions and later excesses made trouble for me. I became weak and nervous. My kidneys became affected and I feared Bright's Disease. Married Life was unsatisfactory and my home unhappy. I tried everything—all failed till I took treatment from Drs. Kennedy & Kergan. Their New Method built me up mentally, physically and sexually. I feel and act like a man in every respect. They treated me six years ago. They are honest, skilful and responsible financially, so why patronize Quacks and Fakirs when you can be cured by reliable doctors."—W. A. Belton.

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house of sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to-day.

A limited amount of the Stock is new offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

Purchase the Treasury Stock of The Drake Mining Drainage and Tunnel Transportation Co.

OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 150 to 600 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,300 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale [illegible] shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at [illegible] cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

Active and experienced agents wanted to sell said Preferred Treasury stock on commission

THE ROSE OF THE RING

His was not a nature to relent, and, once having made up his mind to a course of action, she knew she would not swerve from his plans.

Sordid ambition had overcome all the most tender impulses of his nature, and his higher aims had sunk beneath the temptation of gold.

He would never come back to her.

She had rejected, with scorn, the only terms he had offered, had let him go from her in wrath.

And now all hopes of a reconciliation was at an end.

CHAPTER XI.

What wonder that Gretchen was driven to the utmost depths of despair when reflecting over her harsh fate!

She had done nothing to merit so evil a return of her love.

Bitterest of all was the remembrance of the insult Frank had offered her, and she could not tear the sting of his words from her heart.

Surely the consciousness of her love should have made him pause before condemning her to the lot of the most fallen on God's earth.

Gretchen's whole being revolted against this last thought.

She shrank from that time when she should stand stripped of her fair fame, when her pride should be lowered to the dust, and she herself be a subject only for scorn.

"It cannot be! It shall not be!" she exclaimed, passionately, when she was locked in her own room, where no human eye could penetrate and witness her emotions.

"Frank has played me false, but the world shall not know my shame. I will not be the outcast, the jeer, the scoff of everyone I meet! There is one way by which I can save myself—that I will take at any cost!"

To her frenzied mind it seemed there was not a day to be lost, and she brought all her influence to bear upon Sir Felix in her effort to carry out the plan she had formed.

She was no longer the silent, pale nurse, fulfilling her self-imposed task, while her heart was far away with her husband.

Under the hollows of her eyes her cheeks glowed with a feverish flush. The eyes themselves were full of lustre, and the great hope of her life rested with the invalid from whose side during the long, dull days she was scarcely an hour absent.

"I have not seen your picture yet," he remarked one day, when he had been leaning back in his chair, watching her as she moved about the room, putting everything in order. "How is it progressing?"

"Very well, indeed," she answered, lightly. "Mr. Wilberforce is a clever artist. I am sure you will be pleased with his work."

"I should like to see it," he replied. "I have made the request several times to him; but he appears to have the bump of obstinacy largely developed."

He chuckled, amused at his own wit. Of late, there was often a smile on his face.

Unconsciously, he submitted to the charm of Gretchen's presence, and, hour by hour, she was gaining over him an influence that would soon bind him in her power.

A stronger man could not have resisted such fascinations as she exercised over him, and Sir Felix would have been less than human if he had not allowed himself to be vanquished by her beauty.

She went over to him now, and seated herself on a hassock at his feet, letting her white hand rest on the arm of his chair.

"Shall I tell you why Mr. Wilberforce does not show you the picture?" she asked, her voice almost caressing in its softness.

"Yes; at present I am at a loss to account for his conduct."

"Are you sure—quite sure, you will not be angry with me?" th's with a charming look of appeal into his face.

"Angry! Could I be angry with you?"

"I feared you might be. I am only a dependent in your house, and I had no right to express a wish that was at variance with my master's orders."

These words from Gretchen—Gretchen who had submitted to no mastery save that of love!

The shaft told.

Sir Felix bent over her, his eyes kindling as he gazed into her upturned face.

"I hope I have never seemed to you as a master," he said, all the peevishness gone from his tones. "I am in every way indebted to you. Whatever wish you have, I will see that it is carried out—so long as it is not the wish to leave me."

"Would you be sorry if I were to go away?" she asked, her eyes full of a strange earnestness.

"Nothing could recompense me for your loss," he said, a sudden fear dawning upon him that her words might herald her speedy departure. "But for you I should have lost all hold upon life, and—what is still worse to contemplate—reason. If you were to leave me I should sink into the old abject state. You are the one gleam of sunshine in my existence. Without you everything about me would seem as dark as the grave."

Gretchen let her head droop until her chin rested on her breast.

She did not want him to see the look of triumph his words had brought to her face; and to Sir Felix her attitude passed for one of tender humility—of sorrow at thought of an intended farewell.

"You will be kind to me, Gretchen?" he murmured, laying his fingers lightly on her hand as it rested on his chair. "I am a lonely man with nobody to care for me. I might as well be dead as shut up here by myself."

"I thought you liked being alone?"

"I did—until you came. I don't want anybody but you; but you I cannot give up."

"Why?"

"Because I am helpless and wretched, and you are the staff of my life."

"I am helpless and wretched, too," Gretchen said, the pentup bitterness breaking out in her voice. "I have nobody to care for me—nobody to be glad because I live, or to be sorry if I should die. I am the most desolate creature on earth. I am without kith or kin—without anything that makes life dear."

His fingers closed tenderly over her hand.

"I wish I could surround you with the love you so miss. You are so young, so beautiful; fate ought to deal gently with you."

Gretchen sighed.

Then, thrusting down those bitter memories, she asked—

"What fate would you choose for me?"

"That which would make you happiest."

"Name it."

"Marriage."

She looked up into his wrinkled face.

"You are not happy," she said, in a low voice. "Yet—you had a wife once."

His hand dropped away from her; a livid hue crept over his features.

"How do you know?" he exclaimed, huskily. "Who told you I possessed a wife once!"

(To be continued.)

A Revival of Roque.

An outdoor game for old men has showed a marked revival in popularity this year in the United States. Roque is its name, and it is interesting and gentle. Croquet is the parent of the word roque. Take away from the term croquet its first letter and its last, and the term roque remains. In like manner, take away from the game of croquet its foolishness and its inaccuracies, and the game of roque is left, say the roque experts.

Roque is a game as scientific as billiards, but its rules resemble croquet's rules. There is a peg, like a croquet peg, at each end of the court; there are nine wickets, like croquet wickets, set in a regular croquetlike pattern; there are balls to shoot through the wickets; just as in croquet, and there are mallets; like croquet mallets, wherewith to hit these balls. But the roque court is as firm and smooth as a billiard table, and its boundaries are of rubber, so that balls may carom from them as from a billiard table's cushions. The balls themselves are solid rubber. The wickets, of bright steel, are only one-quarter of an inch broader at their base than the balls that must be shot through them. The short mallets are tipped with rubber and bound with brass or silver, and the material used in their making is rosewood or Turkish boxwood or lignum vitae or amaranth.

Roque, in a word, is croquet, but croquet perfected, croquet made scientific. Rare is the skill that its disciples acquire, and admirable are the improvements that the game makes in their health.

It is interesting to consider the care with which a roque court is made. The soil first is dug out to a level about two feet below the one which the court will ultimately have. A base is then made of big stones and cinders, and on this base layers of smaller and smaller stones are set, until finally there is a top layer of fine gravel. The gravel is covered with a four-inch coat of richest, purest clay, and after this has been mathematically levelled, and rolled to a bricklike firmness, it is sanded with a tiny sifting of white sea sand. The court's dimensions are seventy-two by thirty-six feet, and its boundaries of wood have rubber cushions, shaped like pool or billiard-table cushions, which present to the ball a sharp edge, so that it will rebound from them briskly. The court is rolled daily, first with a heavy, and afterward with a light, roller. It is daily watered and sanded, and after every game the ground about the wickets is levelled with a pinewood levelling board.

Fireflies for Sale.

In Japan there are established firms of firefly dealers, each employing sixty or seventy catchers, and exporting their catch chiefly to the large cities where fireflies are in adjunct to all grades of social festivity, from the private garden parties of nobles to an evening at a cheap tea garden. Sometimes they are kept caged, sometimes released in swarms in presence of the guests.

The firefly-hunter starts forth at sunset with a long bomboo pole and a bag of mosquito-netting. On reaching a suitable growth of willows near water, he makes ready his net and strikes the branches twinkling with the insects, with his pole. This jars them to the ground, where they are easily gathered up. But it must be done very rapidly, before they recover themselves enough to fly. So the skilled catcher, sparing no time to put them at once into the bag, uses both hands to pick them up, and tosses them lightly into his mouth, where he holds them unharmed till he can hold no more, and only then transfers them to the bag.

He works thus till about two o'clock in the morning, when the insects leave the trees for the dewy soil. He then changes his method. He brushes the surface of the ground with a light broom to startle the insects into light; then he gathers them as before. An expert has been known to gather three thousand in a night.

Besides being a business, firefly-catching is a sport. Little girls pursue it with their fans, boys with wands to which a wisp of yarn is fastened, and they sing an old folk-rhyme as they follow the glistening insects:—

"Firefly, come! firefly, come! with your lantern-light,
All the boys of Seiki are wanting you to-night."

Nor do the elders disdain to join the sport. They also organize festival parties to visit certain spots, long known and famous, to witness the beautiful spectacles of the fireflies swarming. Special trains, carrying thousands of visitors, are run during the season to Uji, the most renowned, to behold the Hotara-Kassen, or Firefly Battle.

Myriads of fireflies hovering over a gentle river so swarm and cling together that they appear at one time like a luminous cloud, again like a great ball of sparks. Cloud or ball, the wonder soon breaks, and thousands of the fallen insects drift with the stream, while new swarms form, reform and sparkle continuously above the water. So marvellous is the sight that a Japanese poet wrote:—

Do I see only fireflies drifting with the current, or is the night itself drifting, with all its swarming stars?

AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY
FOR BOTH LARGE AND SMALL INVESTORS

Owing to valuable Patents having been granted this Company, we are desirous of extending our business to the Dominion of Canada. Owing to the Customs duties, the extra cost in transportation and the numerous expenses attached, and the delays in deliveries in shipping goods from one country to another, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a factory in the Dominion, that we may be in a position to meet the immediate wants of the business.

The articles that we make from our Patent Fabric are too numerous to mention, and it is not necessary that we go into the details of the merits of our goods, as they are already in use to a large extent and have no equal. Our goods are covered by several patents, and the profit on the goods is large, averaging from 25 to 100 per cent, thus affording the company large revenue to meet all its obligations.

In order to secure funds to equip a plant in the Dominion of Canada we will offer to the people of Canada $100,000 of our Bonds paying ten per cent. interest per annum.

Experience has shown that stocks based upon sound industrial enterprises have never been equalled from the standpoint of legitimate profit. For instance, a few hundred dollars invested in the Bell Telephone Company's stock in the beginning of the enterprise now commands thousands of dollars, after having yielded large dividends annually. Of course opportunities for such profitable investments do not present themselves every day, and it is also very true that a vast amount of capital has been misdirected in the endeavor to exploit inventions and enterprises which shrewd and far seeing investors should have recognized as impractical. But as regards this enterprise even the most conservative must admit it has possibilities of development which are almost incalculable and which have already been demonstrated in a practical manner. We have no speculative elements—this is a sound business proposition, and the patents which we own are worth several million dollars, as there can only be one fabric of this kind and that is ours.

All the above facts are simple statements of the truth and can be fully substantiated to the satisfaction of all investors.

The business is no experiment, the incorporators of this Company have made it their business for a great many months past and understand all the details, the prospects are therefore bright, and brighter than those of many other opportunities.

This Company is not a promotors company, every dollar goes to enhance the value of the property and business and increase the capacity. There is nothing speculative in this proposition, the enterprises are undertaken for industrial purposes only to make profits by the operation and development of the business.

Considering that the enterprise is already upon an established basis with a certainty of profitable future expansion, we feel warranted in the assertion that this is an attractive proposition to investors whether large or small.

The price of these Bonds are one dollar each, and will be issued in any number wanted. With every purchaser of each five Bonds we will give as a bonus, one share of stock of the Company, the par value of which is five dollars per share, thus assuring interest on the investment, and with the stock which is bound to increase you will have for nothing. These Bonds will be issued for five years. Persons desiring to avail themselves of this opportunity want to send their remittance at once.

COPETE MINING CO.

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5
More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tulloch, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Erwin D Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now a clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

SUSPECTED HIS WIFE OF POISONING CHILD

Interesting Case in Montreal Resulting in Separation of Man and Wife

Montreal, Oct. 30.—Justice Hall, in giving a dissenting opinion in the case of Dame Kavanagh v. McCrory to-day, in the Court of King's Bench, in appeal used some forcible language regarding the sacredness of the marriage tie. The Superior Court granted a separation as to bed and board. Justice Hall wished to reverse the decision.

"We have been in the habit," he said, "of maintaining a high tone with regard to the marriage tie in this country, and to ridicule our neighbors in the United States for the facility with which they grant divorces. Incompatibility of temper is often given as a reason, and it gives rise to a smile of derision on our part. In this case, I believe the principal incident the charge of poisoning, made under great excitement, and passing almost unperceived at the moment, is altogether too trivial to justify so far-reaching decision as the separation of the parties, the liquidation of the estate, and the transferring of the custody of the little girl to her mother.

"One of the principal means by which the sacredness of the marriage tie is preserved in this country is the feeling that the parties are joined together for better or for worse. If the courts interfere on the least pretext, such as I regard this one, the disrupt families, the state of affairs will be no better than in the United States, but far worse."

Justice Bosse, giving the opinion of the majority of the court, pointed out that there had been trouble between the parties over money matters even before their marriage, and that things had been gradually growing worse. Scenes were enacted every day, until at last the parties were living almost as strangers in one house. The husband shut himself up in his room, and the wife forbade the servants from waiting on him. Then came the charge of poisoning. The son of the parties had died a few days previously, when one evening, returning home, the father found his daughter very ill. He ran for a doctor, and, telling him that he believed it was a case of slow poisoning, searched the house, making particular search of the plaintiff's room.

The insult was so great that it was impossible to ask the wife to remain with a man who treated her thus. Had this been the only incident, it might have been possible to arrange matters, but this was only the climax of a series of quarrels, bickerings and disagreements, which had not ended with the poisoning charge, but were shown to have continued up to and after the institution of the action.

Chief Justice Sir Alexander Lacoste said that the charge brought by the husband was the most serious that could be brought against a mother, and no woman should be forced to remain with a man who would make such a charge.

THE COLONIAL MARKET WILL BE LIMITED

Australia Has Three Objections to the Preference Retaliaton Policy

London, Oct. 30.—The colors of the Fifty-third Regiment, now belonging to the First Shropshire Light Infantry, are to be offered at auction to-morrow in Edinburgh. These colors were presented to the regiment in 1774, two years before its sailing to Canada to form part of Gen. Burgoyne's force for the relief of Canada, then besieged by the Americans under Gen. Arnold.

Hon. Elihu Root, United States ex-Secretary for War, and member of the Alaska Boundary Commission, when interviewed by the Canadian Associated Press representative, expressed his gladness that the agony was over. He was well satisfied with the result of the tribunal's deliberations, and that a conclusion had been reached after so much time and labor had been expended. He hoped the Canadians did not feel as bitter over the result as had been reported.

THREE PREFERENCE OBJECTIONS.

Australian objections to the proposed policy of preference and retaliation are first that the preference to agriculture and dairy produce would not materially and permanently benefit Australia; second, that a retaliatory tariff would limit the colonial foreign markets; and thirdly, that a reciprocal tariff granted by Australia would injure Australian local industries.

DISPROPORTIONATE VIEW.

Mr. Beckett, M.P., addressing a large meeting, said that if Mr. Chamberlain meant £2,500,000 has to make all the difference between union or separation of the Empire, they were taking a disproportionate view of the things which bound or separated the Empire. They were not going to render the colonies loyal by a paltry bribe of £2,500,000, if they were disposed to be disloyal without it.

MALCOLM WITHDRAWN.

Ian Malcolm, M.P., has ceased to belong to the Free Food League on account of the recent manifesto not having afforded Mr. Balfour such wholehearted support as has been enrolled by the vote of the Sheffield conference.

YUKON RAILWAY REPORT.

At the White Pass Yukon Railway meeting to-day the chairman announced that a balance of £75,000 stood to the credit of the profit and loss account. The directors proposed to declare a further and final dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. This was due to the competition of the American company. Referring to the Alaska decision the chairman regretted it, but did not think that the reciprocal arrangements between the American and British portions of the road would be disturbed. There was some talk of an all-Canadian road, but even were it built their road would always secure the largest share of the traffic. This report was adopted.

LYTTELTON RECEIVED.

Colonial Secretary Alfred Lyttelton, at the Colonial Office, to-day received the Agents-General of the colonies, Lord Strathcona introducing them. The reception was quite private. Lord Milner was present.

To-morrow the Outlook, speaking on "Empire Breaking," will say: "Lord Alverstone is content to receive the plaudits of the Peace Society, and of every spokesman of the United States for his magnanimity, knowing full well that as long as the accusation against him remains unrebutted he wins his foreign applause at the expense of the first of the King's colonies. It is easy to be magnanimous with some one else's property, and Alverstone's silence compels the Canadians to believe that this is exactly what has been."

Odd Origin of Sea Terms.

How many people imagine that that familiar word "admiral" is anything but a thorough English word? Probably the last origin any would give it is Eastern. Yet its derivation is simply "Emir el Bagh," which is Arabic for Lord of the Sea.

There is hardly a language that we have not put under contribution for sea terms. The names of the various officers of a ship illustrate this most vividly.

"Captain" comes straight from the Latin "caput," a head; but "mate" owes nothing to any dead language. The word is almost identical with the Icelandic "mati," which means a companion or equal. The derivation of "coxswain" would never be suspected. Coxswain was originally the man who pulled the after oar of the captain's boat, then known as a cock boat. "Cock boat" is a corruption of the word "coracle," and, as most people know, the coracle is a small round boat used for fishing on some of the Welsh rivers, such as the Wye and Usk. So coxswain comes to us from the Welsh. Other languages are also pressed into the service.

"Commodore" is simply the Italian "Commandatore," or commander, and "naval cadet" was originally the French "capdet," which, going a step further back, has the same origin as the word captain. The reason of this apparent anomaly is that originally all naval cadets were younger sons of noble families, who served as privates previous to obtaining their commission.

There was never such a person as "Davy Jones," though we frequently hear of his locker. One ought to talk of "Duffy Jonah's locker." "Duffy" is the West Indian negro term for spirit or ghost, while "Jonah" refers to the prophet of that name.

"Dog watch" is another curious case of a term gradually corrupted out of its original form. Originally it was "Dodge watch," so described because it lasts only two instead of the usual four hours, and thus makes it possible that the same men shall not be on duty every day during the same hours. "Dog watches," so called, are from 4 to 6 and 6 to 8 in the evening.

Sailors call meat "junk." It is not a complimentary term, for junk is nautical for a rope's end. Some 3,000 years ago ropes were made out of bullrushes, for which the Latin word is "juncus."

Nowadays we talk of "port" and "starboard." Originally it was "larboard" and "starboard." Starboard has nothing to do with stars. It is really "steor board," Anglo-Saxon for "steer side," because in old galleys steered by an oar the oar was fixed somewhat to the righthand side of the stern, and the helmsman held the inboard portion in his right hand. As for "larboard," it is probably a corruption of lower board, the larboard side being originally considered inferior to the other.

"Sheet anchor" is the name given to the largest anchor carried by a vessel. It is almost as complete a corruption as "dog watch." "Sheet anchor" is really "shote" anchor, so called because it can, from its great weight, be easily shot out in case of emergency.

Again, "jury mast" has nothing directly to do with a law court jury, though both have come from the same original word, "jour," the French for day. Jury mast thus means a mast put up temporarily—for a day—just as jury in the legal term implies a tribunal summoned for a short period only.

The Annual Kansas Wail.

From Kansas comes the same old story that has been enacted and re-enacted every succeeding summer for forty-six years:—

July 6th—Hot—still hotter—no rain—corn shooting—hot winds—no rain—everything burning up—grass all gone—howling hot winds—no rain—earth cracking open—cattle starving—stock ponds gone dry—driving cattle six miles to water—prairies ready to burn—everything gone—hotter and dryer—farmers cutting up corn—gizzards of the cat-fish in the bottom of the Walnut baked to a seal brown.

August 1st—Will have to organize an aid society—not enough stuff in the country to winter a calf.

September 10th—Corn looks better—it lives—has a few nubbins—prairie grass a ton to the acre—cattle rolling fat.

September 30th—Two and three ears of corn to the stalk—step-ladders to pick the ears—thirty and forty and sixty bushels to the acre—money wanted—to buy cattle—to eat up the tremendous corn crop—stockmen gone to Colorado, Texas, and New Mexico hunting cattle to feed. More corn—more grass—more cattle.

Thanksgiving—Everybody wallowing in wealth—more farms—more land—more pianos—more carriages—better homes—more girls and boys off to the colleges—more money to loan at lowest rates of interest, and there you have it, and besides, it's all true—every word of it.—"El Dorado Republican."

A New Armada Story.

The late Duke of Argyll set his heart on dredging Tobermory Bay, Scotland, in search of the wreck of the Spanish Armada ship, "Admiral of Florence," blown up there in 1588. About a hundred years ago various relics were recovered, but since then no real effort has been made to solve the secrets which the sea has kept so well. The present Duke has now taken the matter in hand. He has made arrangements with a Glasgow captain; and a well-known diver is making a preliminary search. This has been, so far, successful. A bronze cannon, five feet long, bearing the Aragon arms, and the date, 1583, has been landed, together with a pistol and sword so encrusted with rust as to appear mere shapeless masses. There is, therefore, ample evidence that the "Admiral of Florence," or all that remains of her, really rests below the waters of the harbor. This ship bore one of the treasure chests of the Armada, and thousands of Spanish doubloons are believed to lie among her debris. If the treasure should be hit upon, as it well may be, the old Duke's convictions will be amply justified, and yet another page will be added to the romance of the Armada story.

Lawyer—I must know the whole truth before I can successfully defend you. Have you told me everything? Prisoner—Yes, everything; 'cept where I hid the money, and I want that for myself.—Glasgow "Evening Times."

Miss Homely—I find this balm excellent for preserving the face. Miss Cynic—But why do you wish to preserve your face?

YOUR MONEY WORKS WHILE YOU SLEEP

Our famous corps of track sharps are up at break of day "clocking" the horses in their morning tryouts and while you sleep they spot the winners that bring you steady income.—Our method puts you on a level with the most successful plungers of the American turf.—We operate for you for 25 per cent. of weekly earnings.—We win only when you win.—Results obtained really "beyond dreams of avarice."

Again we scored heavily for all of our clients last month. Again we landed the money and landed it in chunks. Three years of organization, with the best facilities that money and brains can procure to make our service of picking and backing winners at the horse races the most accurate and profitable in the land, has had its natural sequence, and each week our showing demonstrates a good profit for every client.

How $50 netted $201.75 in less than a month.

Here is a complete statement, showing the result of a $10 play on each horse given in our "Discretionary Series" during October. (Note: A capital to begin with of $50 is required by us, as a matter of conservatism, to make a $10 play on each horse that is considered by us a good betting proposition.)

The above showing is no improvement over that of September, and is not remarkable, since we have excelled it time and time again during the past three years of our uninterrupted operations. Good as it is, however, we are confident we will make it "look sick" by comparison with the showing we are going to make at the meeting of 100 days which begins at New Orleans this month.

WE PICK THE WINNERS

The system we employ to locate winners is identical with that used by "Pittsburg Phil," John A. Drake, John Gates, W. Langdon, Joe Yeager, and other famous plungers who win hundreds of thousands on the turf every year, and it proves just as successful.

We gather our information of prospective winners through a force of expert horsemen who hold a watch on the horses in their early-morning trials, and in that way learn which are ready to win.

The money that is played into the game by persistent losers, such as the large mass of uninformed players are bound to be, goes into the pockets of the big operators, of which the Maxim & Gay Co. representing a large clientele, stands at the head. The work of the Maxim & Gay Co. is to place the general public on a level with the winning plungers, and our success in this accomplishment has made us famous on two continents.

We do business only on the great racetracks of the U. S. We number among our clients some of the best known sportsmen, financiers and merchants in the country. Investment on the turf is now deemed as legitimate as any other high-class form of speculation. The present high standard to which racing has been brought, and the absolutely good faith in which turf affairs are conducted under the auspices of the Jockey Club in the East, and the Western Jockey Club in the West, has inspired millionaire capitalists and business men all over the country with as much confidence in racing as in the stock, grain, and cotton markets, and this is one reason why transactions in the betting rings now rival in magnitude those of the stock, cotton, and grain exchanges.

Another reason for the rapid growth of turf speculation in popular favor, is the rapidity with which all transactions are wound up. The speculator makes his investment at the racetrack in the afternoon through us and receives a notification by mail, in a letter guaranteed to bear a postmark earlier than the race is run, of just what horses are to be backed for his account. By the next mail he is informed of the result of that day's operations, and he learns quickly just where he stands. At the end of each week he receives a complete statement of his account with a money order for his profits, less 25 per cent., which we deduct as our fee.

This gives a wholesome tone to legitimate turf speculation which cannot be found in the more or less involved transactions of the big exchanges, and this is why turfmen live more comfortably and live longer than do men whose involved transactions are on their minds, day and night, for weeks and sometimes for months at a stretch.

OUR CLIENTS WON A MILLION DOLLARS

As it is well known that our client have collectively won as much as a million dollars at a single race meeting, it is sometimes asked: "Why do not Maxim & Gay simply sit down and back their own selections, instead of running a considerable clerical force and spending large sums in advertising in newspapers throughout the country?"

The answer is simple enough if one stops to consider the situation. Maxim & Gay, by dint of energy, ability, organization, capital and advertising, have secured an enormous clientele, which means the command of immense capital. If we can pick winners for this immense number of investors, our profits are larger than if we played our own money only, for on a basis of 25 per cent. of winnings, which we charge for information and commission, one man out of every four of our customers is practically betting for us. The proof that this plan works for the benefit of the public as well is that they win three weeks out of four and our books show that no customer who stuck to us for two months ever failed to get well ahead of the game, while not a few of those who now own winning stables of race horses and who are cutting an important figure on the turf, began the game as mere novices, playing our selections through us.

The principle upon which we operate is such that we must of necessity do the best we can for you. Our income, as pointed out, is derived solely from a percentage of the winnings of our clients, and if we cannot make you win, our entire income is cut off. That we have been successful in making our clients win, is amply proven by the fact that we have prospered for upward of three years, while imitators, pursuing more economical and less businesslike methods have gone under by the score. Noting the success that was being achieved by Maxim & Gay, scores of "get-rich-quick" operators tried to break into the field successfully occupied by the older and more responsible firm, but it did not take the press and public long to discriminate between the legitimate and the illegitimate, and as a result we have continued to flourish uninterruptedly while in the ranks of our rivals there have been scores of enterprises initiated, only to end in failure.

A Few of Hundreds of Recent Endorsements of the Press

CINCINNATI COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE, March 1, 1903

Maxim & Gay, who have been so successful in selecting winners at the New Orleans races, are in a class by themselves and have no relation in their system of operation to the "get-rich-quick" schemes that have recently gone to pieces disastrously to those who patronized them. Maxim & Gay do not guarantee their clients profits nor against losses, but merely play the money of their subscribers and deduct a fixed percentage from winnings for placing the commissions. This point is made clear in all their announcements. What they guarantee to do is to confidentially handle all money forwarded them and place it on the races just as if it were their own. They have in their employ as "clockers" the most expert judges of track work in the country, and there is not a horse at the New Orleans meeting that they have not a record of. The information collected in this way is used to the benefit of their subscribers, and its reliable character is attested by the numerous winners they have picked in the past two weeks.

Maxim & Gay are the pioneers in this line of investment or speculation; they have been established three years; they conduct their business on straightforward business lines; their methods have been thoroughly investigated and are entirely different from those pursued by the "get-rich-quick" schemes, so called, which were but recently closed by the authorities. The transactions of Maxim & Gay are legal in every sense, and they do exactly what they advertise to do, that is, play the money of their subscribers on the horses they judge will win, and they usually win. Prompt and proper accounting is made of the result, but they guarantee no fixed profits, those who have continuously patronized them have not been losers.

ST. PAUL DISPATCH, February 28, 1903

An investigation of the methods of the Maxim & Gay Co. shows them to be conducting their business on straightforward business lines. They have been established nearly three years. They do not guarantee clients profits or against loss, but merely place subscribers' money on judgment of experts, charging a fee for information and deduct a fixed percentage from winnings for placing the commissions. They are the pioneers in this line of investment or speculation.

N. Y. MORNING TELEGRAPH, February 23, 1903.

Since the incorporation of the Maxim & Gay Co., the casual racegoer can possess himself of as much if not more knowledge of the comparative merits of the horses, and their chances of success, as the "regular" who burns the midnight oil studying from charts. He can secure through this company, which is incorporated under the laws of New York State, the expert knowledge and expert judgment of an experienced combination of horsemen whose duty it is to find out for him such things concerning the horses as he could not possibly find out for himself, unless he devoted his entire time and attention to the business. Even then, to do so well, he would have to possess a peculiar talent and be specially fitted by experience and natural ability.

CINCINNATI TIMES-STAR, March 2, 1903.

The Maxim & Gay Company, well-known purveyors of turf information, should not be confounded with "get rich quick" turf investment or concerns of similar character. They have been established nearly three years. They place subscribers' money on judgment of their experts, and deduct a fixed percentage from winnings for placing the commissions. They are the Napoleons in this line of investment or speculation.

MEMPHIS EVENING SCIMITAR, March 2, 1903

The advertisements that appear from time to time in the columns of various newspapers with reference to the turf plan of Maxim & Gay Company tell a story entirely different from the exploits of the defunct "get-rich-quick" concerns.

The Maxim & Gay Company transact business thoroughly and solely on business principles.

JOIN OUR WINNING ARMY

The greatest race meeting in the history of the South begins at New Orleans within a fortnight. In magnitude it will eclipse all other turf gatherings of the past. The Crescent City Jockey Club knows this to be a banner year and has prepared for it. So have we. If there are more horses at the New Orleans racetrack than ever gathered there before, we have more expert "clockers" and handicappers than we ever employed at any other meeting. They cannot make the game too big for us to handle. We move with the times.

If you want to get aboard our Discretionary series, at New Orleans, in which we play daily those and only those horses we think A1 betting propositions, with the privilege of not playing any horses at all on days when we consider conditions unpropitious, fill out the following blank and forward your remittance to us at New Orleans as soon as you can. Play will be begun on the first day of the meeting, if your money reaches us in time; otherwise, we will begin play the first day it reaches us after the meeting has begun. Money should be sent by bank draft, express money order, or currency in registered letter. Uncertified checks are not accepted.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 166 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

New York, Oct. 31—Erie boiler makers and helpers strike and all shops are closed until Nov. 4th. Firm demand for bonds of highest class. 35 roads for September show average net increase of 30.24 per cent; 114 roads for August show average net increase of 16.30 per cent.; 4 roads for third week of October show average gross increase 5.51 per cent.

Bradstreet says cooler weather has stimulated the retail trade quite generally throughout the country. Dun's industrial activity has increased somewhat, many plants resuming and others preparing to reopen Monday. Union Pacific officials say there is no indication of falling off in east bound or west bound freight. Banks lost to interior on currency movements $15,340,000, Friday's sales of stocks was the lowest record this year. Indications point to early return of currency from interior, and movement from south has already started. 13 industrials decline .39; 20 active railroads advance 93.

Sentiment over night was bearish, but traders will wait for a time on the bank statement before taking a decided stand, and many are disposed to look for a more favorable exhibit through the medium of a loan reduction that is indicated by the heavy loss in cash for the week. There is a great deal of bear talk on U.S.K. and there will doubtless be selling of this and other industrials today. No matter how bad the statement may be there is no expectation of any material declines in railway stocks and good support in orders are in the market not far below the existing levels. In view of the holiday in London on Monday and New York on Tuesday there will be no inducement to trade before the middle of the week. London early market extremely dull and stocks about parity without closing. London will do very little in our market.

London parity traders are rather hopeful that the bank statement will make a very sorry showing, there will be, however, no such cash loss as preliminary figures indicate. There is buying of bonds and higher prices are certain efforts are being made to settle copper way. Buy A.C.P. conservatively; buy T.C.I around 28 for a turn

A LADY MACBETH IN IT

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach Denies Inconsistency

London, Oct. 30.—Earl Beauchamp, who is slated for Governor-General of Canada if the Liberals win at the general elections, speaking at Islington at a Liberal meeting, said that the Liberals were not fighting Balfour, but a Lady Macbeth behind the scenes. That the colonies threatened to leave the Empire unless they were given a cash bonus was damning proof of the incapacity of Mr. Chamberlain.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, asked by the Free Food League whether he did not think that his presence on the same platform as the Prime Minister at a Unionist meeting was not altogether consistent with his position as a leading member of the league, replied that he was unable to see any inconsistency, but declined to make any statement for publication.

Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain concluded their visit to Liverpool by a visit to the University and the Royal Southern Hospital. The students went wild with enthusiasm, and, vociferously cheering, swarmed around Mr. Chamberland and blocked his escape. The patients raised a cheer, and sang "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Mr Chamberlain will remain in Highbury this week, preparing for the great demonstration at Birmingham on Wednesday next.

Lord Strathcona, Canadian High Commissioner, has accepted the nomination to the Chancellorship of Aberdeen University. Andrew Carnegie declined it in favor of Lord Strathcona.

Lord Rosebery has withdrawn his candidacy for the Chancellorship of Oxford University.

MADE A CONFESSION

Kent Farmer Said to Have Sworn that he Fed His Wife Powdered Glass

Ridgetown, Ont., Oct. 30.—At the trial of Wesley Simpson of Morpeth, who was committed on a charge of attempting to kill his wife by giving her powdered glass, the following remarkable confession, sworn to on October 15, before a Blenheim lawyer, was put in as evidence.

"I, J. Wesley Simpson, of the Township of Howard, in the County of Kent, make the following statement, that I have on different occasions made attempts upon the life of my wife, Rachael Simpson, by giving, and attempting to give, her ground glass, and that the first attempts were made at the instigation and with the assistance of one Stella Hayes, as a result of improper intimacy between myself and the said Stella Hayes. I desire now to renounce all my former desires as above, and do hereby solemnly promise that hereafter and for the reminder of natural life I will live faithfully and truly towards my said wife, and as a true husband ought to do.

"J. Wesley Simpson.

"Witness: R. L. Gosnell.

"Blenheim, October 15, 1903."

It was stated that the confession was made with the object of keeping the wife from having her husband arrested, and that he has since been repeating the dose.

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non-assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore, There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100-foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Co. is to make some money. "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure-house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third; No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise. Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense. If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

A limited number of shares of this really first class proposition may be obtained on application to PETERBOROUGH BROKERAGE CO, Fiscal Agents, Peterborough, or J. J. BRANDON, Fenelon Falls; W. GALLON, Apsley; G. B. HILLIARD, Lakefield, or GEO. H. BROWN, Chemong.

THREE UNDOUBTED BARGAINS

A placer and two quartz claims;

Two partially developed quartz claims;

One-quarter section patented land adjoining above;

All located in the Susanville Mining District, Eastern Oregon. Will be sold together or separately. Total price, $9,000.

We consider this group of properties to be unusually promising as a heavy producing mine joins a portion of the land, and near-by placer grounds are showing up very rich.

There is Nothing on Earth

That Shows as much Profit for Work Done and—Money Spent as an OIL WELL.

A gold mine needs continual digging, but an oil well, if it does not flow of its own accord, needs to be pumped, and it supplies the fuel to run the pump.

Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars, yes, Millions, have been made in the Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana oil fields, but these fields are on the decline, and the eyes of the world are turning to the Kentucky and Tennessee fields, where a mighty development has begun Today Kentucky and Tennessee have over 500 producing wells, and is pumping thousands of barrels of oil. Money is flowing into the field from eastern financial centres as well as from the capital of Europe. It is believed by oil men that this will become the greatest oil field in America.

The Standard Oil Company is spending millions of dollars in laying the foundations of the most gigantic pipe line ever laid in any section. This shows that they have faith in Kentucky and Tennessee as the coming oil-producing section of America.

The American Oil Co.

Is one of the successful Companies operating over 3,000 acres of proven oil land in Kentucky and Tennessee located along the line of transportation. To push the wells and complete the development of this vast property, the Company offers 50,000 shares of treasury stock at 5 cents per share. This low offer is but for a short time, and may be withdrawn without further notice.

Lindsay's P. M. Resigns

Mr. Wm. Steers, Police Magistrate of Lindsay, has tendered his resignation to the Attorney-General. Magistrate Steers had some trouble with Mayor Southeram of Lindsay about the insufficiency of the local police force, which, he says, was responsible for the escape of a prisoner from the Police Court lately. Not being given much encouragement by the Mayor, he tendered his resignation, which is now in the hands of the Attorney-General.

Virulent Scarlet Fever

It is feared that a virulent form of scarlet fever has broken out in town. On Thursday last Mrs. John Swer was stricken with the disease, and was removed to Nicholls Hospital. She died on Saturday morning. Her two daughters are now ill. It is said the disease was contracted while washing clothes from a house in which the disease existed. It is needless to say that our efficient Medical Health Officer has taken every means to prevent the spread of the disease.

Two Brain Twisters

Here are a couple of brain twisters that have been sent to The Times; they may help to keep you wide awake on Sunday if the sermon is too long and too dull:

"A man is twice the age his wife was when he was the age that she is now. When she reaches his present age their combined years will be 100. Find the age of each.

"Mary is 24 years old. Mary is twice as old as Ann was when Mary was as old as Ann is now. How old is Ann?"

Danny Simmons' Success

Our old friend Danny Simons is scoring a success as a comedian. An Ohio paper says: "Those who saw Danny Simons as Sim Lazarus in the Black Flag at the Grand Monday night were tickled from the soles of their feet to their hat bands. Simons is as jolly a comedian as ever appeared at the Grand. He is, to use a slang expression, almost the whole show. Were the other people as amusing as Simons, Barnum's big circus would be forced out of business. No clown ever made people laugh more heartily than Danny Simons, prince of Hebrew impersonators and "tickler" of the masses."

A Coming Event

Much credit is due the Ladies Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. for providing an entertainment of such rare merit as that which is to take place in the Opera House on the evening of November 19th, for which the following artists have been engaged: Mr. Harold Jarvis, tenor; Mr. Owen Smiley, entertainer; Miss Alice Dean, solo violiniste, and Mr. W. Spencer Jones, pianist. Mr. Jarvis will be heard in new selections; Mr. Smiley is always delightful; Miss Dean is a brilliant performer, and will accompany on the violin Mr. Jarvis, while Mr. Jones is a performer of recognized ability and merit. Further announcements will be made later in these columns.

A young man was charged with assaulting Constable McGinty. Now a man who would injure Charlie is not fit to be at large. He was fined $2 and costs—$5.75 in all.

MAHER GOT OFF

He was Charged with Stealing a Sum of Money

At the County Police Court, before Judge Edmison, Thos. Maher, of Downeyville, Emily Township, was charged with stealing $118 from Martin Rickey. After hearing the evidence, on Friday, the Magistrate reserved judgment until Saturday, when he let Maher off on suspended sentence, and taxed him the costs. $20 in all.

CAN'T GET BARRELS

Apple Shippers Delayed and Good Apples are Cheap

Good apples are very cheap, and one reason is that the growers cannot get barrels. The demand for the best of hand-picked and hand-packed apples is very large and the barrel men have not been able to meet the demands upon them. All through the fruit region the apples are still piled up in the orchards that ought to be packed and on their way to the seaports. The weather has been most favorable, but a severe frost is apt to come at any time now, and the growers want to get their fruit off the ground.

On Saturday apples in bags were plentiful, ranging in price from 40c. a bag up.

MAXIM AND GUY COMPANY

Remarkable Success of Their Methods on the Track

Elsewhere will be found the announcement of the Maxim & Gay Company, which tells its own story. This Company has a record for success in selecting winning horses, that is really wonderful. Their clients everywhere have made large profits, and their business naturally is increasing by leaps and bounds. While the Company cannot guarantee profits to their clients, nor against losses, they bring their long experience and judgment into play with wonderful successful results. They charge a percentage to their clients from winnings. They handle all money forwarded to them as carefully and prudently as if it was their own.

This progressive Company has a record of every horse of note in their circuits, and this information is used for the benefit of their clients.

As purveyors of the turf Maxim & Gay Co. are a success. They are now entering the Canadian field, and we bespeak for them a liberal patronage. The Company is entirely responsible, and all money entrusted to them will be wisely and prudently placed, with long odds in favor of success.

—Mr. C. W. Ball, of the Ontario Bank staff, Montreal, son of Mr. F. B. Ball, of town, has for the past week been laid up with an attack of typhoid fever and was removed to the Western Hospital in that city. His many friends in Peterborough will hope for his speedy recovery.

DEDICATION FESTIVAL

Observed at St. John's Last Night. All Saints' Day

Yesterday was the anniversary of the dedication of St. John's church, in commemoration of which, following established custom, a Dedication Festival was observed. The evening service was of the bright and cheerful nature, while the choral parts of the service, to the accompaniment of an orchestra under the direction of the choir master, Mr. Glindon, was of a specially pleasing and festival character. The anthem, "Worship the King," was beautifully rendered by St. John's excellent choir, the solo part being taken by Miss Ruth Dawson.

The day being that set apart by the church in memory of All Saints', the Rector, Rev. J. C. Davidson, very appropriately chose for his text St. Paul's call to the people of Rome to be saints, and earnestly exhorted his hearers to take that call to themselves, and live a life as distinctly noble and as distinctly religious as the state unto which it shall please God to call them will allow. In conclusion, the reverend gentleman touchingly referred to those who in bygone years had lived their lives and accomplished their work in the old church and parish of St. John's.

The Dedication Festival will be again observed next Sunday, when Rev. F. H. Tandy, M.A., will preach at both morning and evening services.

St. John's was first dedicated 67 years ago, and re-opened after complete renovation on November 1st, 1882.

The offering at both services yesterday will be devoted to the parochial enterprise of building a rectory, for which there had previously been subscribed $1,486.61.

A CATHEDRAL WEDDING

Nuptials of Miss Cordelia De Lepiante and Prof. Masson

On Saturday morning St. Peter's cathedral was the scene of a very interesting social event, when Mademoiselle Cordelia De Lepiante, eldest daughter of Mr. N. T. De Lepiante, 49 Lock street, was united in marriage to Eugene Masson, Professor of French at Toronto University. Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, of Ennismore, tied the nuptial knot, in the presence of a number of invited guests. The bride was attended by her sister, Mademoiselle Elminda, while the groom was supported by Mr. V. R. Heptler, of Montreal. The bride was becomingly attired in silk, wage with handsome trimmings of chiffon and rosette, and white hat to match. She carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses. Her sister was also beautifully attired in a gown of silk, and carried pink roses.

The large number of beautiful presents testified to the high esteem in which the bride is held by her many friends. Amongst the presents was a check from her father for a substantial sum of money.

After the ceremony the party drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served.

The happy couple left on the 11.45 Grand Trunk express for Toronto, where they will reside at 93 St. Joseph street, carrying with them the hearty good wishes of their many Peterborough friends.

A VERY SAD CASE

Rev. J. McKee McLennan, Rector of Norwood, Tells a Sad Story

The following letter addressed to the Secretary of the National Sanitarium Association, Toronto, under date of Oct. 21, from the rectory, Norwood, Ont., and signed by Rev. J. McKee McLennan, one of the foremost Anglican ministers of the Province, needs no comment of ours. It reads: "I desire to secure the admission into the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst, of a young woman, a member of my parish. The case is a very sad one, and if help can at once be given a promising life can be saved. Three years ago the mother died of consumption. Since that time it has been my painful duty to bury two of the sons with the same disease. Now Annie, aged about seventeen, and a boy of fourteen are all that remain of the family. The poor girl has been up in Muskoka, boarding at a private house, waiting to be admitted. She returned home last week, and within twenty-four hours of her return her father dropped dead in his buggy while driving into Norwood. The case is surely one that must appeal to the sympathies of everyone, and yet, I fear, only one of the many that are constantly coming under our notice."

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

—The Town Council will meet this evening.

—The hunting season opens to-day. Johnny get your gun.

—Game Warden McWilliams has issued over 100 hunters' licenses.

—The North Star brought up a large quantity of apples from Rice Lake ports on Saturday.

—The favorite places of interest on Sunday are the lift lock and the Cereal Company's dam.

—There was a whole car load of fun at the Hallowe'en entertainment at the Y.M.C.A. Saturday night.

—The death occurred at the Barnardo Home on Saturday of Ellen Stokes, aged sixteen years. The funeral will take place to-day.

—A very successful practice of "Pinafore" was held on Saturday at St. John's church school room. 75 children were present.

—The House to House Visitation committee will meet in the Y.M.C.A. Hall Tuesdays and Fridays. A chairman has been appointed for each ward. Work is expected to begin next week.

—The water is so low in the river that the Rainbow is unable to make the locks, having to land her passengers and cargo near Crawford's Grove. The steamer North Star stuck fast near the locks on Saturday, and was delayed over an hour.

—The funeral of the late Charles Fortune Legros took place Saturday morning from the family residence, George street, to St. Peter's cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery. The bearers were: Messrs. H. LeBrun, M. Henry, P. Clunan, R. Gordon, H. Phelan and C. Wilhelmy. Rev. Father McColl officiated at the church, and Rev. Father John O'Brien at the cemetery.

Irish Landlord

London, Nov. 1—The duke of Manchester has intimated his preparedness to negotiate with his tenants for the sale of his Irish estates. He says he has no intention of severing connection with Tanderagee castle, County Armagh, but he considers that the amicable relations which have always existed between landlord and tenant there will be further cemented by the sale of the estate on an equitable basis.

THE BUGLER'S CHEST

Is well expanded. He uses his lungs to their fullest capacity. People in ordinary do not use much over half their lung power. The unused lung surface becomes inert, and offers a prepared ground for the attack of the germs of consumption. There is no need to warn people of the danger of consumption, but warning is constantly needed not to neglect the first symptoms of diseased lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures obstinate coughs, bronchitis, bleeding lungs, and other conditions which, if neglected or unskilfully treated, find a fatal termination in consumption. It is entirely free from opiates and narcotics.

"About three years ago I was taken with a bad cough, vomiting and spitting blood," writes Mr. B. J. Robinson, of Spring Garden, W. Va. "I tried many remedies; nothing seemed to help me till I commenced using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. After using ten bottles and four vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets,' I commenced to improve. My case seemed to be almost a hopeless one. Doctors pronounced it ulcer of the lungs. I was sick nearly two years—part of the time bedfast. Was given up to die by all. I thought it would be impossible for me to live over night at one time. I haven't spit any blood now for more than twelve months, and worked on the farm all last summer. It was Dr. Pierce's medicines that cured me."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach.

VETERANS WILL ORGANIZE

To Secure Pensions and Provide a Home

Toronto, Nov. 2—As a result of the regrettable circumstances in connection with the death of the late John Gilbert at the House of Industry, a movement has been set on foot to organize the veterans' societies both in Canada and in the United States for the protection of their mutual interests.

Mr. John Nunn, first president, and now chaplain of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association, formed in this city seventeen years ago, yesterday received a letter from Secretary John Gardner, of the Hamilton veterans, expressing their sympathy with the deceased relatives at the unfortunate circumstances of the body having fallen into the hands of the medical students for dissection. Secretary Gardner asks the co-operation of the Toronto Association to form an international union of all the veterans' societies to obtain pensions for Canadian soldiers, and for the erection of a home so that the aged servants of the country may be taken care of without having to go to charitable institutions.

Letters will be forwarded to all the veteran organizations in Canada, and the Grand Army of the Republic will also be asked to interest themselves in the movement.

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January, 24th, 1903.

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 11 years. I have tried several doctors and they done my no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peake Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 412 Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes: "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

Peter D. McFadyen, Riverdale, P.E.I., writes: "I am very busy, but just drop a line to say I highly recommend your catarrh cure. It has done grand work for me. I am so much better."

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $100 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

BIG LABOR RIOTS AT NIAGARA FALLS, THE POLICE FORCE ARE POWERLESS.

Labourers Struck Against a Reduction of About Twenty-Five Per Cent. Soon Caused Serious Riots

All Work on Power Plants Suspended by Terrorism, Police Are Powerless

Lobal Militia May be Ordered Out To Preserve Peace

As the Strikers are All Well Armed With Weapons

From Our Own Correspondent

Niagara Falls, Ont.,2—The entire power construction works from Table Rock to Dufferin Islands are tied up by a strike of Laborers, which began this morning at seven o'clock. About 800 men are out, Italians, Poles, and Hungarians and negroes principally.

Two riots have occurred, and the park and Ontario police are powerless in the face of such a mob.

The strike is caused by a reduction of 25 per cent. in wages by the contractors.

The works of the Canadian, Niagara, the Ontario and Toronto Power Companies are paralyzed.

Davis' men were the first to quit. They were joined by a mob of the Niagara Construction Company's men, and marched down the street picking up recruits in scores from other works.

At Dawson & Riley's work, on the Canadian Niagara wheel pit, they found nearly the whole force at work. Without hesitation, they began to shower stones down into the pit, and the men had to flee for their lives. In a short time the work was practically tied up.

The mob went all over the works and, with the exception of a few engineers, carpenters and the men in the machine shops every man went out. Many of them did not want to strike, but joined the mob through fear.

At 11 o'clock a mob of several hundred men gathered at Dufferin Islands, closely watched by a force of police. The mob shows no signs of trouble, and there is nothing doing to annoy them.

Manager Paine has appealed to the Reeve of Stamford Township, in which the works are situated, to swear in a large force of special police. It is known that there are a large number of revolvers in the mob, and every man has a club or a knife.

It is not improbable that the local companies of the 44th Regiment will be called out before night.

Two Yukon Brides' Novel Honeymoon, Crews of Stranded Steamers at Dawson

Dawson City, Nov. 3—Clarke Robbins, fitted a light draught scow up as a house boat at White Pass, and brought Mayor McLennan and sixteen other passengers, including two bridal couples, to Dawson in five days with the ice drift.

The steamers Zealandian and Wilbur Crimmins arrived today. They brought twenty-two passengers, twenty-five sacks of mail, mostly United States, and thirty tons of provisions. The Crimmins will try to get back through the ice to White Horse, although the river channel is narrowing.

Bif steamer loads of Dawson passengers have arrived safely at White Horse. The steamer Crimmins starts up the river this morning, and will help the steamers which are stranded. The big steamer Victorian is afloat, and may come down to Dawson. Two scows heavily loaded with animals and food arrived last night with the ice-drift. The weather is mild. The crews of the stranded lower river steamers are arziving heze. The walked along the shore ice.

NEW RACE DISCOVERED IN AUSTRALIA

Receive Party of White Explorers with Much Cordiality

VERY KIND AND GENTLE

Peaceful in Disposition and Exceedingly Simple in Their Customs

London, Nov. 3—The days of Australian exploration are not yet at an end, for a couple of scientists from Queensland and New South Wales, respectively, have just ascertained the existence of a people in the far north who had never previously seen a white man. The discoverers were Dr. Roth, the Queensland protector of northern aborigines, who is, perhaps, more familiar with aboriginal life and charactert han is any other individual in the commonwealth, and Charles Hedley, the conchologist of the Sydney museum. They were making a scientific tour of the Gulf of Carpentaria and of the Wesley archipelago at the southern end of the gulf. Mornington island, which has an area of 10 by 40 miles, was discovered by Captain Matthew Flinders in 1802 while surveying and mapping out the gulf, but he does not appear to have landed on it. Since that time the island has been known only by name. It is not an inviting place for the settler, the soil being poor, with extensive tracts of marshy country. There is plenty of bush and coarse forest, and this affords shelter to a large number of kangaroos and other animals, which furnish a plentiful supply of food for the islanders.

An Interesting Race.

Dr. Roth and Mr. Hedley experienced no difficulty in effecting a landing and found the islanders, scientifically speaking, an interesting people, their modes of living and general characteristics showing that they had been separated from the mainland natives for many generations. With one exception, an aboriginal who had visited the shores of the gulf, none of the islanders had ever seen a white man, and the use of clothing, however scanty, was unknown to both sexes alike. The visitors, together with some "tame" blacks—that is, natives who have been educated at the mission station in northern Queensland and elsewhere—remained on the island three days, employing the "tame" blacks as guides and scouts, and it was speedily learned that the latter could converse in a fashion with the islanders, whose language was a dialectical version of that of the gulf natives. Great caution had to be observed by the visitors, who were always armed, the islanders having spears and a few boomerangs, but always running away as the white man advanced. At last, however, a couple of the islanders were induced to make friends with the two explorers, whom they regarded with a stolid gaze, as if their unexpected appearance was an everyday occurrence. This seeming indifference is an aboriginal characteristic. Their assumed indifference vanished the moment that Dr. Roth and Mr. Hedley lighted their pipes. They stared in bewilderment, and according to the "tame boys," declared that the white man were burning their mouths.

Fire-Making Surprised Them.

They were equally astonished when a match was used for lighting a fire, and a "billy" employed for boiling water. Mr. Hedley distributed among them a number of penny whistles which he had brought from Sydney, and soon the bush began to be filled with sounds to which it had previously been a stranger.

The islanders, who form a race new to ethnologists, are supposed to be a retrograde type, or else a more primitive type of the ordinary Australian aboriginal. They do not make huts, as the natives do, but simply collect heaps of grass and sleep on the bare ground to the leeward of them. Articles which have to be carried from one place to another are wrapped in bark, the use of baskets being unknown, as is that of canoes, the water craft employed being rudely constructed rafts, consisting each of a couple of logs with some light seaweed, propelled by branches as paddles. Compared with the natives on the mainland, the natives seem far behind in a knowledge of even the rudest aboriginal appliances. They have, however, a stringent system of tribal calssification, intended to represent different degrees of relationship and to assist in preventing too close intermar-

ITALY NOT LIKEEY TO BE INVOLVED IN TROUBLE

a the Far East Despite Triple Alliance, the To Curb the Russian Admiral Alexieff

Paris, Nov. 3—Enquiry in diplomatic quarters here confirms the report in a recent despatch from a Berlin correspondent to the effect that Italy is not inclined to enter into any trouble that may arise from a dispute between the triple and dual alliance. It is known in Paris that important diplomatic sub-agreements have been made, but much caution has been displayed in discussing the matter.

"This question was more than broached during the King of Italy's visit," said a Frenchman who enjoys the most confidential relations with the Quai d'Orsay—French Foreign Office—"but publication at this time would do great harm. The overture came from France, but though no formal agreement on the subject was reached it is possible that Italians were very ready to listen."

In all this most two things at least are clear. In the first place, Delcasse's well known persuasive powers have been exercised to bring to bear the weight of a pacific dual alliance against the enterprising spirit of Admiral Alexieff, who is considered too rash, even in St. Petersburg. In the second place, it is also known that Montono Ichiro, the Japanese Minister here, has been in close communication with the French Foreign Office since Count Lamsdorff's arrival, with the object of effecting an arbitration of the conflict. These two facts has been ascertained on too good authority to admit of doubt.

HELP ON A REVOLUTION

American Capitalists Furnish Necessary Money for War

WILL OVERTHROW THE GOVERNMENT

General Jiminez Promises Rich Concessions to Those Who Join Him

Washington, Nov. 3—The campaign which is being waged by the rebels in Santo Domingo is accepted by the state department officials as an indication that General Jiminez, the revolutionary leader, who is trying to gain the presidential seat, profited in more ways than one by his recent visit to the United States.

General Jiminez surrendered the presidency the General Wosy Gil about six months ago and immediately came to this country to try to raise a fund with which to launch a new revolution. The activity with which he is acting and the fact that his troops seem to be well supplied with minutions of war, make it appear that his success in securing American financial backing fully equaled his hopes.

Backers Promised Rich Concessions.

A syndicate which is furnishing his fighting fund is believed to be composed of New York and Washing capitalists, who have had considerable experience in backing South American revolutions.

If Jiminez wins out and is again made president, as now seems probable, his backers will be rewarded with a note against the new government for several times the amount of their investment, which may some time be collected in whole or in part, and with rich concessions worth many times the fund they have contributed for the overthrow of President Wos y Gil. The promised concessions of rich mineral and timber land and exclusive trading privileges, formed the bait which caused the syndicate to open its purse strings.

Make Fortunes From Revolutions.

The same men, two of whom are New York financiers of national reputation, have gione into similar schemes before. Their winnings in the way of rich concessions have more than offset their losses and they are always ready to contribute some of their millions to the overthrow of a South or Central American government if the chances of success and promises of reward are sufficiently alluring.

General Jiminez studied American army methods while he was in Washington, and it is believed took a number of former petty officers and enlisted men back with him under the promise of rich rewards to form the nucleus of his revolutionary force, and drill the troops in modern tactics and discipline.

EFFORT TO SETTLE EASTERN DISPUTE, ATTITUDE OF JAPAN, RUSSIA'S NAVY

Disinfection by the Use of Steam

WRITTEN SPECIALLY FOR THE TIMES

IN the course of the increasing scope of the work of the engineer many things formerly assumed to be entirely without his domain have come into its limits. Among these may be noted the employment of steam, either saturated or super-heated, for the purpose of destroying disease germs in materials supposed to be infected and yet of sufficient value to be worth saving. Thus the wholesale destruction of clothing, bedding, blankets, and similar articles which have been exposed to possible infection, might work great hardship or loss to the owners, and while the public welfare will not permit mistaken leniency, a harmless yet effective system of sterilization becomes most important. The recent affair concerning infected Army blankets which were conveyed from South Africa to England, to the great risk of public health, is an example of the necessity for a simple, effective, and convenient method of sterilization and disinfection applicable to such cases.

The use of steam for purposes of disinfection is by no means new, but the conditions under which it may be most effectively employed are so well set forth in a paper in a recent issue of the Gesundhites-Ingenieur, by Drs. Kister and Weichardt, of the Government Hygienic Institute at Hamburg, that some abstract and review of it is here given.

The serious use of steam for purposes of disinfection may be credited to Koch, whose researches in 1881 demonstrated that a current of saturated steam was a simple, effective, and economical method of destroying the germs of disease. These experiments showed that germs which required three hours' exposure to dry air at a temperature of 140° C. for their destruction, were effectually killed in ten minutes in a current of saturated steam. Later experiments by Von Esmarch have proved that a full exposure of ten to twelve minutes to the action of steam at atmospheric pressure is sufficint to destroy all but the most resistent germs, only certain saprophytes requiring a longer exposure, and all germs of infectious diseases being killed by the shorter exposure.

Under these circumstances the use of steam for purposes of disinfection demands serious attention. Since nearly all the scientific experiments have been made upon a laboratory scale only, it is important that the constructive and operative details of the method when applied upon a large scale should be considered, and it is here that the work of the engineer joins the investigations of the phsician and the biologist. Thus many of the articles to be disinfected are of large size, such as mattresses, bedding, and the like, and the economy of the method depends to a great extent upon the ability to treat large quantities of material effectively at one time, so that a large chamber, to all parts of which the steam shall have free and complete access, is essential in practice. Since many materials would suffer injury by subjection to moisture, it has been found desirable to give the articles a preliminary heating by some dry method in order to prevent excessive condensation, while a subsequent warming and drying is sometimes also desirable. It is only natural that under these conditions the use of dry, superheated steam should have been suggested, and, under the assumption that the sterilization is effected solely by the heat, superheated steam would appear to offer advantages over saturated steam for the purpose in view. The investigations of Von Esmarch, however, have demonstrated that superheated steam is not so effective as saturated steam, and upon examination the reasons for this apparent anomaly will be apparent.

While it is true that the destruction of the germs is caused by the heat, the effectiveness of the operation is largely dependent upon the thoroughness with which the steam is brought into contact with every part of the infected material. The penetration of the steam into the pores and between the interstices of substances and fabrics is materially assisted by the slight condensation which takes place of the steam which first enters. The entrapped air is thus gradually removed and replaced by fresh steam, while superheated steam, acting in many respects like highly heated dry air, proves less effective simply because it does not get into intimate contact with the infectious matter. The effective replacement of the air by the steam is also facilitated by the preliminary heating of the objects to be treated, since the expansion of the air drives much of it out of the spaces into which the steam should enter. When the objects to be disinfected are not injured by moisture, the most effective method is to subject them to a preliminary moistening, either by means of a spray or by a current of moist air, this insuring a condensation of the following steam in the pores, and a consequent thorough penetration of the steam, It is altogether possible that the best effect may be produced by a preliminary moistening, followed by superheated steam, the high heat of the latter being effectively introduced into the pores of the infected articles.

Russia Makes a Peaceful Move Through France

To Effect a Settlement With Japan

Paris, Nov. 3—The Gaulois this morning affirms that French diplomacy proposes, at Count Lamsdorff's request, to exercise co-jointly with Great Britain, a firm, though friendly pressure on the Japanese Government for the purpose of obtaining a speedy and amicable settlement of the differences between Japan and Russia. The Gaulois further says that M. Lamsdorff, in exchange for M. Delcasse's promise of support in the Balkan question, has undertaken that Russia shall morally support France in negotiations concerning questions pending in Africa. The paper finally declares though under reserve, that the two Ministers have discussed a certain plan concerning Abyssinia in the carrying out of which Italy, France and England will each play an active part.

ATTITUDE OF JAPAAN.

London, Nov. 3—The Morning Post today says it understands that Japan is by no means prepared to acquiesce in the suggestion that she give Russia a free hand in Manchuria in exchange for a Japanese free hand in Corea. The reason given, says the Morning Post, is that Corean independence has already been secured by convention, while Manchuria was restored to China by Japan at the instigation of European powers.

CZAR'S NAVAL BUDGET.

Berlin, Nov. 3—A despatch from St. Petersburg says the Russian Government has decided to increase the ordinary naval budget by seven million dollars for the purpose of strengthening the fleet, as well as $1,500,000 for the bettering of fortifications at Port Arthur.

ENTERPRISING VICEROY.

Paris Nov. 3—The Echo states that it understands that Count Lamsdorff, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs in his talk with M. Delcasse, the French Foreign Minister, showed a disposition to admit the importance of using all the pacific influence of the Franco-Russian alliance to restrain the enterprising spirit of Admiral Alexieff, the Russian Viceroy of the Far East. The bellicose tendencies of Alexieff are said to be regarded by the Russian chancellory with far more apprehension than the warlike preparations of Japan.

Darmstadt, Nov. 3—The correspondent of the Rhenish Westphalian Gazette at Wiesbaden, telegraphs that Count Von Buelow, the German Chancellor, and Count Lamsdorff, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs will meet and confer on questions of the near and far east, at the same time that the Czar and Kaiser will meet at that place.

ANOTHER AMERICAN DUCHESS

Duke of Norfolk Seeks Hand of Miss Gladys Deacon

London, Nov. 3—Though Miss Gladys Deacon contradicts the resuscitated report of her engagement to duke of Norfolk, those who are in a position to know say there is more than a rumor in the story. Last season she refused the duke, but he has been persistent and was lately in Paris on a visit at Little House, Versailles, where the Deacons live

The duke always declared that as long as his son lived he would never marry. Now, however, that young Lord Arundel is a year dead, the duke may be likely to renounce his lonely life, and no more delightful wife could be found than Miss Deacon. The Duke saw a great deal of her last year at Chudleigh, when she was a guest of Lady Clifford, who chaperoned her so long in England. While there she was greatly impressed with the middle-aged nobleman with the endless knowledge, and he allowed himself to be entertained in a way which he found eminently fascinating and very different from his humdrum every-day life. The duke is acknowledged to be the head of English Catholics, and Miss Deacon is also a devout Catholic and very charitable. Miss Deacon is an idealist and romantic, and could not, perhaps, take suddenly to the notion of a middle-aged spouse, but that she is considering the question at the present time is perfectly true.

CHAMBERLAIN HAS NO DESIRE TO DICTATE.

To The Colonies in Regard to Their Trade Relations---Has Been Misunderstood

London, Nov. 3.—A significant omission is made in Mr. Chamberlain's revised edition of his Glasgow speech. The passage, in which he was thought to suggest that the colonies might agree to not start new industries, permitting British manufacturers to occupy the field, is entirely deleted.

I understand the omission was made, not because Mr. Chamberlain changed his mind, but because the passage was entirely misinterpreted. Mr. Chamberlain's position is that the whole preferential policy must be one for negotiation between the British and Colonial Ministers, in order to arrive at a fair give-and-take arrangement. The last thing he desired would be to attempt to dictate,

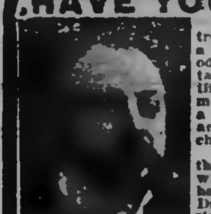
HAVE YOU CHRONIC AILMENT?



Recognized as the oldest established and most reliable specialist.

In the course of his practice as specialist in the treatment of chronic ailments, Dr. Goldberg has evolved a system of his own, which is a positive cure. His method differs widely from the old fashioned system as taught in colleges, and yet is along the strictest scientific principles, with this exception, that where the old methods took months and sometimes years to bring about a cure, his latest method does it in a few weeks and cures are thorough, permanent and reliable. The curing of chronic diseases has been his specialty for years.

He will cure you quicker than any other specialist in the world. There are thousands in this broad land today who are healthy and happy, who once suffered as you perhaps now suffer, and who owe their present well-being to Dr. Goldberg's Latest Method Treatment. If you are sick it is only natural for you to want to be well. Before you decide definitely on the doctor to intrust your case call or write to Dr. Goldberg and find out all about his Latest Method of curing chronic diseases without pain and permanently. It will cost you nothing to learn the particulars and it will in no way put you under obligations to him.

If it is inconvenient for you to call in person write the doctor and he will explain his method to you just the same, free. Do not delay; promptness is certainty.

Each Time You Call You See Dr. Goldberg Personally or each time you write it receives his personal attention, and remember he is the only specialist who allows the patient to pay when cured. You need pay nothing until a complete cure has been made.

PETERBOROUGH, NOVEMBER 3, 1903

AGRICULTURAL PRODUCT

The latest bulletin of the Dominion census is devoted to statistics concerning agriculture in Ontario. Some of the figures may impress the importance of Ontario's farming interest.

The total value of farm property in 1901 is returned as having been not far short of one thousand million dollars. The exact figure was $921,166,731, of which 58 per cent. was land value, 23 per cent. buildings, 6 per cent. implements and machinery, and 13 per cent. live stock.

In 1900 the value of the Ontario harvest, and other agricultural, horticultural and live stock product, was just under two hundred million —(192,366,-393).

Since that every harvest has been better than the previous one, so that Ontario's annual agricultural product is now certainly not less than $250,-000,000. This is new wealth each year —all of it that is not consumed as food in Ontario itself, to keep things going. It comes out of the ground. It is not largely a turn-over as a manufactured product is, where often merely one form of material is turned into another. The agricultural product is all a net addition to the wealth or working power of the people.

In these two hundred and fifty million dollar harvest can be seen reasons why this is a growing time with Canada.

AMERICAN VIEW OF CANADA

Canada need not be down-hearted even under such a solar plexus blow as the Alaska Boundary decision. Hear what the Insurance Advocate says: Canada has found herself. She has struck a Lou Dillon gait and licked creation in the rate of export trade increase during the past ten years, Japan following a close second, and the United States away behind Japan. With a population of some thousands less than the State of Pennsylvania, Canada's per capita export trade now exceeds that of any other country with the exception of the Netherlands. The yielding ripeness of her virgin breast has been tickled, and gods, men, and all Flanders, may now the life-giving office long engage. Her pastures glow beyond even Nature warm; the mine, the quarry teem with human form. For long years her modesty has been as candle to her merit; she lay, as it were, in the gloomy calm of idle vacancy, glancing the while to Captains of Industry, otherwise wheedled, the bashful virgin's sidelong looks of love. They came, they saw, they conquered, they wooed her as the lion wooes his bride. They fired each art, reproved each dull delay; and now the land of skies bluer than Italy, the land where at once the snowflake reposes and grapes as of Eschol fruiten in their season, is marching on. Peace! that leaven which saves the whole lump—the Scotch— the sanest government under heaven, and over all, the smile of God, will are the present generation of babes and sucklings taste of death, place Canada regnant among the nations. To quote Edmund Burke: "She has that action and counteraction which, in the natural and in the political world, from the reciprocal struggle of discordant powers draws out the harmony of the universe."

PERSONAL CLEANLINESS

Children should be taught in school that spitting is not only vulgar and unclean but unhealthful. The salivary secretion in normal quality and quantity is intended by nature for a necessary and benign purpose.

Teachers should not only instruct children against spitting, they should daily inculcate other habits of decorum; such, for instance as performing in private all acts essential to personal cleanliness.

There are "swell" people who do not hesitate to excavate dirt from their finger nails in public with a jackknife.

There are fashionable women who spoil the digestion of more refined people by tooth-picking in public.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

"Profit" Dowie pays more attention to the bank book than to the good Book.

One of the causes of the labor troubles in the shoe trade at Quebec, says the Montreal Gazette, is a rule of the union which subjects a member to a penalty if he does more than a fixed amount of work in a week. "It is a rule that robs both the employer and the good man and one that neither the good man nor employer should have to submit to. The prize of success is not won by loafing, whether such loafing in voluntary or enforced."

The only known survivor of the battle of Waterloo has just died at the little Kentish village of Rolvenden. Mrs. Barbara Moon, who was ninety-two years of age, was the daughter of a color-sergeant of the Third Battalion, Rifle Brigade who took part in the battles of Badajos, Salamanca, and Waterloo. He died two years after Waterloo, from the effects of a wound inflicted by a nine-pound shot. Mrs. Moon was born at Gibraltar in 1811, and was baptized at Malta. She was present at the battles of Quatre Bras and Waterloo, and, although only four years of age at the time, could in later life remember having ridden in a wagon with her mother across the field of Waterloo after the battle.

Whatever be the truth of the matter, there is at all events, nothing surprising in the reported further defections from the Morgan shipping combine. It was heavily handicapped from the start with an excess of water stock. In New York that stock has declined in value greatly since January. In that month the common stock sold at 17 and preferred is quoted at 49 1-4. At present the preferred is quoted at less than the common was sold for in January, while the common is offered as low as four in the regular lots. These conditions give color and may have given rise to the rumors current in Britain of impending changes and reorganization on new lines. The enormous decline in the market value of the stocks is quoted by the shipping men there as bearing out views expressed by them at the time the merger was accomplished. There was a limit, they said, to the capacity of management in any one concern for a business so vast and intricate as that contemplated by the Morgan shipping combine. Even under one flag and one government, the difficulties would be enormous, but when it is sought to create an international trust, those difficulties become too formidable an addition to the dead weight of overcapitalization. The suspicion and dislike with which the shipping combine was regarded in Britain from the start, had much to do, no doubt, with the failure that has apparently overtaken it.

BRAIN POWER

HOW IT MAY BE STRENGTHENED AND INCREASED

The brain is a great nerve battery that presides over all the powers and impulses of the human body.

Very frequently as a result of poor blood, it becomes enfeebled, and a general weakness of the entire system follows.

No remedy possesses the marvelous brain strengthening power that Ferrozone has demonstrated in thousands of cases.

It contains an abundance of phosphates and iron which are essential in the formation of red, vitalizing blood, and in this way supplies the brain with extra power to perform its numerous and important duties.

Ferrozone is the best preparation for brain workers, and those inclined to a sedentary life. It improves the appetite, insures good digestion, regulates the bowels, and helps the stomach to do its work.

Lawyers, ministers, and those whose occupation entails much thinking and brain labor, will find Ferrozone of immense value, because of its power to stimulate mental activity. Students who take Ferrozone regularly, find it not only clears the brain and makes it more receptive, but makes them strong in body as well as mind.

A medical student of Toronto University, who has proved the good qualities of Ferrozone says: "On my study table there is always a place for Ferrozone. I find by keeping my digestion in perfect order, and maintaining a splendid appetite, it enables me to accomplish a great deal of hard work. I consider Ferrozone at the same time food for the brain, the blood and the nerves and can highly recommend it."

Very few are so strong and healthy that a course of Ferrozone would not benefit. It is good for the young and old alike, and is prepared in convenient tablet form, price per box 50cts., sold by all druggists and N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE GROUND GLASS CASE

Wesley Simpson Gives His Side of the Dispute

Ridgetown, Ont., Oct. 31.—Wesley J. Simpson, the Morpeth farmer who was committed on a charge preferred by his wife that he administered powdered glass to her, and whose sworn confession of the crime was produced at the trail, declares emphatically that the charge is utterly groundless, and is due to the peculiar hallucinations of his wife, to quiet whom he appended his name to the extraordinary document. Simpson says the trouble between them commenced at Orillia fully six years ago, when during the illness of his wife, a girl named Stella Hayes worked for them about a month. One day the girl brought a jar of fruit to the table to serve. Mrs. Simpson noticed that the glass jar was cracked, and ordered the girl to throw it out, saying the broken glass might get into the fruit and make it dangerous to eat. Simpson declares that since that time, perhaps owing to the peculiar nature of her illness, his wife has from time to time accused him of giving her broken glass, declaring that Stella Hayes has been following them about, keeping up an undue intimacy with him.

Constable Conn, of Morpeth, was engaged by Mrs. Simpson to look for Stella Hayes, whom she declared to be prowling about the house, making signals to her husband. Conn, who was furnished with a minute decription of Stella, the clothes she was wearing etc., scoured the neighborhood for trace of such a person, but in vain.

LET CANADA ANNEX STATES

Mr. Carnegie Thinks America Could Then Annex England

New York, Oct. 31—Andrew Carnegie, who with his wife and daughter returned from Europe yesterday, referring to the Alaskan boundary decision, said: "It cannot be called a victory for this country, because the other side had a very poor case. I am satisfied that Lord Alverstone could not have decided differently. I hope the outcome of this will be that the Anglo-Celtic race will get together. We ought not to go on as a divided race. Canada should merge, —no, Canada should annex the United States as Scotland did England. Yes, let Canada annex the United States, and we'll look after the Mother Country afterwards. I can tell you one thing. If Senators Lodge and Turner had done for England what they have accomplished for the United States in this matter, and were returning home to England, they would have met with the greatest reception in the harbor that you can imagine. The country would have opened its heart to them."

DEFEAT MONEY SHARKS

Railway About to Open Co-Operative Stores

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Officers and employes of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway have hit upon a new way to defeat the money sharks and at the same time benefit the transportation men and reduce the number of demands for higher wages. The plan is to open at divisional headquarters along the lines of the system co-operative stores, from which goods of all kinds, from groceries to horses and carriages, will be sold to employes at cost.

For six months officials of the company and employes have been working upon the plans to better the condition of the men, and a start has been made by the incorporation of the Home Supply Company, under the laws of Indiana, and the first store of the company has just been opened at Elkhart, Ind., the headquarters of the Chicago division.

At this point nearly 3,000 employes of the Lake Shore road make their homes, the big shops being located there.

The Armenian Murder

Boston, Oct. 31.—Peter Krikorian, supposed to be connected with the Sagouni murder, was arraigned to-day. Peter Kueghian, editor of Young Armenia, volunteered information that Krikorian is head of a London Central Committee of Armenians, and claimed that Krikorian ordered the murder of Kureghian, and attempted personally to assassinate him several months ago, when the latter was editing a paper in London.

In Earnest Then.

"I have noticed," said the off-hand philosopher, "that a woman will get a golf dress when she has no intention to play golf." "That's so," agreed the man with the incandescent whiskers. "And," continued the off-hand philosopher, "she will get a ball gown when she cares nothing about dancing, and a tennis dress when she wouldn't play tennis for fear she will freckle, and a bathing suit when she has no thought of going into the water, and a riding habit when the very thought of climbing on a horse gives her the chills, and ——" "Yes," interrupted the man with the incandescent whiskers; "but when she gets a wedding dress she means business. Ever notice that?"—"Judge."

An Irishman entered a country inn and called for a glass of the best Irish whiskey. After being supplied he drank it, and was about to walk out when the following conversation took place:

Landlord—Here, sir, you haven't paid for that whiskey you ordered.

Irishman—What's that you say?

Landlord—I said you haven't paid for that whiskey you ordered.

Irishman—Did you pay for it?

Landlord—Of course I did.

Irishman—Well, thin, what's the good of both of us paying for it?—"Tit-Bits."

I treated with a dozen doctors, who all promised to cure me. They got my money and I still had the disease. I had given up hope when a friend advised me to consult Drs. K. & K., who had cured him. Without any confidence I called on them, and Dr. Kennedy agreed to cure me or no pay. After taking the New Method Treatment for six weeks I felt like a new man. The drains ceased, wormy veins disappeared, nerves grew stronger, hair stopped falling out, urine became clear and my sexual organs vitalized. Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house or sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is new offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

GOLD——$80,000,000——GOLD

—It you want to make a GOLD DIVIDEND PAYING INVESTMENT—

Purchase the Treasury Stock of The Drake Mining Drainage and Tunnel Transportation Co.
OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than $80,000,000 in Gold.

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 150 to 450 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,300 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale 250,000 shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable

Active and experienced agents wanted to sell said Preferred Treasury stock on commission

THE ROSE OF THE RING

She gave a soft little laugh, and clasped both her hands on the arm of his chair, inclining towards him so that her head almost rested against his breast.

"I have heard it from your own lips," she replied. "Sometimes when you have been asleep; sometimes in your waking moments. You had a wife—and she is dead!"

"Yes," he said, the old dreariness returning to him, "she is dead! She died years ago. Everything is changed since then; I am changed; I do not belong to that banished past."

"It is best to forget," Gretchen said, her voice assuming its gentler tones. "Perhaps one day you will have another wife who will recompense you for the loneliness you have endured all these years."

"Another wife?"

"One who will share your title. You owe that duty to your ancestors, Sir Felix; not to die without an heir."

"Not to die without an heir?" he repeated, and then lapsed into silence—that still, vacant silence which seemed to denote a wandering mind.

Presently his gaze came back to Gretchen, sitting at his feet with clasped hands and upraised face, her full, tempting lips so near his own that they seemed to woo his caress.

The meaning of her words broke gradually upon his mind, dazzling his senses, making him feel as though he were some strange being apart from himself.

He was under a spell.

Her beauty, her soft tones, and tender glances had cast a witchcraft about him.

Everything else in the room grew indistinct to his sight; he saw only Gretchen; and a delirium closely allied to the passion of love swept over him, stirring the pulses of the heart to which love had been so long dead.

He laid his trembling hand on her head then with a murmured sound of rapture, he laid his withered lips full on her mouth.

It was though in that kiss, the fire of youth had returned to him.

Every fibre of his nature thrilled to this newly-awakened fervor, and he gathered her to him as one who has a right to guard the prize he knows to be his.

"Gretchen," he murmured, "is it to be as you say? Can you give yourself to me?"

She shuddered.

More loathsome to her than the venomous breath of an adder was the touch of his lips.

Her heart rose in fierce hatred against him, and she longed to strike the face so near her own, to beat back the lips that had profaned the love she had given Frank as from wife to husband.

And it was Frank who had driven her to this extremity!

Frank who had torn all that was gentle from her heart, leaving her mad with despair, and capable of base and cruel purposes.

"I give myself to you—yes! yes!" she cried, her face white and wild in its agony. "Take me, I am yours; make me your wife, and I will be as the light of your eyes, as the sun of your winter. Let me bear your name, and I will watch over every hour of your life—until death shall claim you!"

In her eagerness she had seized his arm.

Sir Felix gazed at her, entranced.

Her beauty seemed, to him, divine.

His feeble intellect held but the one thought—that she was his!

Folding her in his arms, he bent forward, and laid his sunken cheek against her brow.

"You shall be my wife," he said, his tones growing weaker. "You shall bear my title, and reign queen of my home. I will give you everything I possess; everything shall be yours, Gretchen—everything."

His voice became rambling and indistinct.

His face sank heavily against her own, and when, after a few moments, she rose, and placed him back in his chair, he was half unconscious.

A cold, sick horror crept over her as she gazed down at him, and shudder after shudder ran through her frame.

Had she not still loved Frank, union with Sir Felix would not have been so repugnant.

As it was, her soul revolted against this marriage, which was of her own seeking.

To escape one evil, she was binding herself over to a darker torture.

She wanted Sir Felix to give her the safe-guard of his name, and thought nothing of the deceit; her hatred of him was to intense to allow any feeling of remorse to come between her and the plans she had formed.

She had suffered so cruelly, she would have looked on unmoved if the whole world had endured torment for her sake.

She left Sir Felix in that state of torpor, brought on through exhaustion of nervous power, and went downstairs, hoping to find Marc.

She met him at the foot of the staircase.

He had heard her footsteps, and had hurried from one of the rooms, longing to look upon the beautiful face, whose mystery, it seemed, he would never read.

Pausing at the foot of the stairs, she waited for him to approach.

"I have news for you," she said, with a suddenness that startled him, "strange news. Sir Felix has asked me to be his wife."

"And you?" Marc responded, feeling as though an icy hand had gripped his heart. "You refused?"

"No. It is my wish to become his wife. I have consented to the marriage."

"I am sorry," Marc said. "More sorry than I can tell you."

"You say that as though you pitied me."

"So I do," he replied, too frank to make any attempt to disguise his feelings. "He is failing in physical and mental strength. I do not know what happiness you will find with him."

"I do not look for happiness," she answered. "To marry Sir Felix is not the worst fate that could fall to me."

"What sort of existence will you lead cooped up in this dreary place with a decrepit man, whose eccentricity leads him to the verge of imbecility?"

A cloud gathered in Gretchen's eyes.

"You are speaking of my future husband!" she exclaimed, coldly. "I beg you to be careful as to what terms you use in connection with Sir Felix. He is not mad; he is in full possession of his faculties, and with a wife—ill-mated to him as she may seem—he will have new interests in life, and give up the gloomy habits he has formed."

"Then I am to congratulate you?" Marc said, a chill smile coming to his lips, while his eyes looked into hers with an expression she could not define.

"As you please. In a few days I shall be the wife of Sir Felix. I have no wish to be disappointed of my bridegroom."

There was an unmistakable tone of mockery in her voice.

Under the Ice.

Captain Joseph La Barge, one of the early pilots of the Missouri River, was noted for his courage and daring. In the winter of 1834 he experienced the following adventure, which is recorded in the "History of Steamboat Navigation on the Missouri River," by Mr. H. M. Chittenden. He had occasion to cross the river, which was frozen deep. There was a path across, which ran between two large air-holes through the ice. The weather was extremely cold, and a blizzard had already begun.

Captain La Barge wrapped himself in a blanket coat, held tight to his body by a belt, and was armed with a rifle, tomahawk and knife. He felt confident of crossing all right, for the distance was short, and he knew the way so well that he felt as if he could follow it blindfolded. In fact, that was practically his situation, for the wind drove the snow into his face so violently that it was impossible to look ahead. Getting his bearings as well as he could, he started on a slow run in face of the blinding storm.

It was in any case a reckless performance, considering the existence of the air-holes near the path; but La Barge was not given to fearing future dangers, and forged boldly ahead. For once his confidence deceived him. All of a sudden he plunged headlong into the river.

He instantly realized that he was in one of the air-holes, but which one? If it was the lower one he was certainly lost, for the swift current had borne him under the ice before he came to the surface. If it was the upper hole, he might float to the lower.

He soon rose to the surface and bumped the overlying ice. Sinking and rising again, he bumped the ice a second time. The limit of endurance was almost reached, when suddenly his head emerged into the open air. Spreading out his hands, he caught the edge of the ice. He held on until he could draw his knife, which he plunged into the ice far enough to give him something to pull against, and after much severe and perilous exertion drew himself out. He had stuck to his rifle all the time without realizing the fact, and came out as fully armed as when he went in.

But now a new peril awaited him. The storm was at its height, the cold intense, and his clothing was drenched through. The bath which he had received had not chilled him much, for the water was warmer than the air outside, and his exertions would have kept him warm anyway, but out in the wind the chances were that he would freeze if he did not quickly reach a fire. Hastily recovering his bearings, he set out anew, and had the good fortune to reach the post without further trouble.

A Water Contest.

A story in which a pointer's loyalty, persistence and foolhardiness are mixed in about equal proportions is quoted below from the New York "Sun." Pointers are not naturally good water dogs but some of the breed, as sportsmen know, come near perfection, and such an exception is a dog owned by a Texan named Burleson.

One night Mr. Burleson shot a wild goose which was flying over to its night retreat in a salt bay. The bird was wing tipped, came down on a long slant and fell into a tank a quarter of a mile out. The dog did not notice it.

The next morning Mr. Burleson was walking over the prairie with the dog and found the bird quietly swimming in a pond not more than a quarter of an acre in extent, but deep. It was in perfect condition, except for its slight wound, a large gander, and very powerful.

The dog recognized instantly that it was a wounded bird, and plunged in without a word of command. For a little while the gander kept out of the way, but it was finally penned in a corner. Then it dived, went under the dog and came up five yards away.

The dog resumed the chase, and the unequal contest was kept up for a quarter of an hour. The dog dived time after time, but of course could not catch its active adversary. Soon it was swimming with its nostrils barely out of water, and once or twice they went under. It was deaf to all commands. Its final drowning was only a matter of minutes.

Mr. Burleson had no gun. As a last recourse he gathered a little pile of stones from the edge of the pond and began hurling them at the gander. Finally, by chance, he struck it on the back near the base of the neck and stunned it for a moment. In that moment the dog closed and grasped it.

The dog was so tired that it could do nothing with the bird, but its hold kept its head out of water while the gander thrashed it with its wings. The battling pair, the distressful snortings of the dog mingled with the hoarse calls of the gander, fought their way to within ten feet of the bank, and Mr. Burleson jumped in. The water came to his armpits when he reached them, but he grabbed the gander, took the dog in one hand and the bird in the other, and brought them ashore. The pointer was too exhausted to stand, but fell on the pebbly shore and lay there panting.

AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY
FOR BOTH LARGE AND SMALL INVESTORS

Owing to valuable Patents having been granted this Company, we are desirous of extending our business to the Dominion of Canada. Owing to the Customs duties, the extra cost in transportation and the numerous expenses attached, and the delays in deliveries in shipping goods from one country to another, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a factory in the Dominion, that we may be in a position to meet the immediate wants of the business

The articles that we make from our Patent Fabric are too numerous to mention, and it is not necessary that we go into the details of the merits of our goods, as they are already in use to a large extent and have no equal. Our goods are covered by several patents, and the profit on the goods is large, averaging from 25 to 100 per cent, thus affording the company large revenue to meet all its obligations

In order to secure funds to equip a plant in the Dominion of Canada we will offer to the people of Canada $100,000 of our Bonds paying ten per cent. interest per annum.

Experience has shown that stocks based upon sound industrial enterprises have never been equalled from the standpoint of legitimate profit. For instance, a few hundred dollars invested in the Bell Telephone Company's stock in the beginning of the enterprise now commands thousands of dollars, after having yielded large dividends annually. Of course opportunities for such profitable investments do not present themselves every day, and it is also very true that a vast amount of capital has been misdirected in the endeavor to exploit inventions and enterprises which shrewd and far seeing investors should have recognized as impractical. But as regards this enterprise even the most conservative must admit it has possibilities of development which are almost incalculable and which have already been demonstrated in a practical manner. We have no speculative elements—this is a sound business proposition, and the patents which we own are worth several million dollars, as there can only be one fabric of this kind and that is ours.

All the above facts are simple statements of the truth and can be fully substantiated to the satisfaction of all investors.

The business is no experiment, the incorporators of this Company have made it their business for a great many months past and understand all the details, the prospects are therefore bright, and brighter than those of many other opportunities.

This Company is not a promotors company, every dollar goes to enhance the value of the property and business and increase the capacity. There is nothing speculative in this proposition, the enterprises are undertaken for industrial purposes only to make profits by the operation and development of the business.

Considering that the enterprise is already upon an established basis with a certainty of profitable future expansion, we feel warranted in the assertion that this is an attractive proposition to investors whether large or small.

The price of these Bonds are one dollar each, and will be issued in any number wanted. With every purchaser of each five Bonds we will give as a bonus, one share of stock of the Company, the par value of which is five dollars per share, thus assuring interest on the investment, and with the stock which is bound to increase you will have for nothing. These Bonds will be issued for five years. Persons desiring to avail themselves of this opportunity want to send their remittance at once.

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them ar—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tulloch, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Erwin D Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now a clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

A Mouse Mill.

Thrift is generally acknowledged to be one of the leading characteristics of the natives of Fifeshire, and it never was more forcibly exemplified than in the person of David Hatton, a native of Dunfermline, who actually proved that even mice, those acknowledged pests of mankind, could be made not only to earn their own living, but also to yield a respectable income to their owners, says the "Scotsman."

About the year 1820 this gentleman actually erected a small mill at Dunfermline for the manufacture of thread—a mill worked entirely by mice. It was while visiting Perth prison in 1812 that Mr. Hatton first conceived this remarkable idea of utilizing mouse power. In an old pamphlet of the time, "The Curiosity Coffee Room," he gave an account of the way in which the idea dawned on him.

"In the summer of the year 1812," he wrote, "I had occasion to be in Perth, and when inspecting the toys and trinkets that were manufactured by the French prisoners in the depot there my attention was involuntarily attracted by a little toy house with a wheel in the gable of it that was running rapidly round, impelled by the insignificant gravity of a common house mouse. For a shilling I purchased house, mouse and wheel. Inclosing it in a handkerchief, on my journey homeward I was compelled to contemplate its favorite amusement. But how to apply half-ounce power, which is the weight of a mouse, to a useful purpose was the difficulty. At length the manufacturing of sewing thread seemed the most practicable."

Mr. Hatton had one mouse that ran the amazing distance of eighteen miles a day, but he proved that an ordinary mouse could run ten and one-half miles on an average. A halfpenny's worth of oatmeal was sufficient for its support for thirty-five days, during which it ran 786 half miles. He had actually two mice constantly employed in the making of sewing thread for more than a year. The mouse threadmill was so constructed that the common house mouse was enabled to make atonement to society for past offences by twisting, twining, and reeling from 100 to 120 threads a day, Sundays not excepted.

To perform this task the little pedestrian had to run ten and one-half miles, and this journey it performed with ease every day. A halfpenny's worth of oatmeal served one of these threadmill culprits for the long period of five weeks. In that time it made 3,350 threads of twenty-five inches, and as a penny was paid to women for every hank made in the ordinary way, the mouse, at that rate, earned 9 pence every six weeks, just one farthing a day, or 7 shillings and 6 pence a year. Taking 6 pence off for board and allowing 1 shilling for machinery, there was clear yearly profit from each mouse of 6 shillings.

Mr. Hatton firmly intended to apply for the loan of the old empty cathedral in Dunfermline, which would have held, he calculated, ten thousand mouse mills, sufficient room being left for keepers and some hundreds of spectators. Death, however, overtook the inventor before his marvelous project could be carried out.

Hugging an Illusion.

The newspaper editors and very special correspondents, who have lately been discussing Papal possibilities with such owlish gravity, must have felt rather sheep when the news came that Giuseppe Sarto, whom they had never even heard of, had been elected as the two hundred and sixty-fourth Pope, under the name of Pius the Tenth—a name, by the way, endued with no particular odor of sanctity by its last Papal possessor. But the new Pius seems to be a man of character. "Cultured," "religious," "mild-mannered," "pious," "a country mouse," "quiet," "kind hearted," "liberal," "timid"—these are some of the epithets applied to the late Patriarch of Venice and new Pope of Rome. The same authorities, however, deny him political shrewdness, diplomatic craft, and executive ability. They predict that he will be not a statesmanly but a "religious" Pontiff.

All interest at this time, of course, centers on the policy of Pius with reference to the Italian Government. It is already clear that it will differ in no vital particular from that of Leo the Thirteenth. The new Pontiff is even quoted as saying significantly: "My first pleasure will be to explore the gardens which now confine my little world. Heigh ho! How I shall miss my long country tramps—and the sea!" This, if authentic, shows plainly enough that Pius, like Leo, will be "a prisoner in the Vatican." Doubtless, however, as the despatches indicate, his personal liking for the King and Queen, especially the latter, will make the relations between Quirinal and Vatican smoother and more amicable than heretofore.

It is not an altogether admirable policy this, that the Pope is about to continue into the twentieth century. He himself cuts not a very dignified figure. He is "an alien and an enemy in the most Catholic country of Europe." A play monarch in a toy monarchy, playing at ruling a few score soldiers and servants—a man of supposed intelligence, shutting his eyes to fact, and hugging fast an illusion—deaf to common sense, but with ears open to moss-grown tradition—mediaeval in the midst of modernity—nursing a grievance, and longing for the impossible—such is the Pontifex Maximus, scarcely more impressive than that noble person named Fitz-James, who lays claim to the throne of England as a lineal descendant of the Young Pretender. The temporal power of the Pope can never be won back; should Italy cede back the Papal States, the Pope could not rule them; they were ill-ruled when they were his. Yet the moldering institution of Papal sovereignty clings desperately to the last vestige of its vanished power, ever hoping, denying, as it were, the sun at noon.—"Argonaut."

Who Are the Battenbergs?

Of the many millions of people ruled by King Edward it is very doubtful whether more than one or two hundred have a clear idea of the size of England's royal family, taking into account the descendants of King George III.'s three sons, the Dukes of Kent, Cumberland and Cambridge. To the great majority of people it is a complete puzzle. Even in Victorian times there were numbers of persons in this country absorbed to such an extent in minding their own business and that of their near neighbors that, though instinctively loyal to their good Queen, and well content to be her subjects, they could never remember the names of Her Majesty's children beyond the first three—the Princess Royal, the Prince of Wales and Prince Alfred.

As for Queen Victoria's grandchildren, especially those whose fathers were foreign princes, the average Briton "gave it up" if asked where the Hessians or Christians came from, and whether any one of them had a chance of the English crown. As regards the young Battenbergs, a disposition prevails to-day to class all of them as belonging to Princess Beatrice whom many benighted creatures imagine to be the mother of Princess Alice, lately betrothed to Prince Andrew of Greece.

In reality there are two Battenberg sets—three sons and one daughter, the children of the late Prince Henry and our late Queen's youngest daughter; and two sons and two daughters, the children of Prince Louis and Princess Victoria of Hesse, the latter being one of Queen Victoria's foreign granddaughters. To this second group does Princess Alice of Battenberg belong; and Princess Beatrice, instead of being her mamma, is her great-aunt and aunt-in-law combined. The interesting young people included in the two families are really German Highnesses of but minor degree; but the great affection felt for them by our late Queen seems to class them among "the rest of the royal family" prayed for in England's Established Church, and most people wish them well, even though hazy over their real names and titles.

So far, only one of Queen Victoria's great-granddaughters is married—Princess Feodora of Saxe-Meiningen, who became Princess Henry XXX. of Reuss in 1898, when she was nineteen years of age. Her mother, Princess Charlotte of Prussia, was younger—aged seventeen years and seven months—when she married the hereditary Prince of Saxe-Meiningen, being anxious, so it was said, to escape from the arbitrary control of her maternal parent, the then German Crown Princess, afterwards the Empress Frederick—who, in her turn, had become a bride about two months after her seventeenth birthday.

The first of the Victorian "Four Generations" pictures represented our late Queen with these descendants, the eldest daughter, granddaughter and great granddaughter; and sentimental folk to whom this group appealed were somewhat disappointed that the venerable sovereign passed away without figuring in a five-generation tableau.

Princess Alice of England, Queen Victoria's second daughter, was not hurried to the hymeneal altar so early as her elder sister, being more than nineteen years of age when she became Princess Louis of Hesse. Her eldest daughter Victoria, was twenty-one at the time she married Prince Louis of Battenberg; and Princess Alice of Battenberg is now eighteen, and may have to wait a while before becoming a bride, her fiance being a king's younger son, with no definite income of his own.

No photograph could be taken of these four generations—Queen Victoria Alice Grand Duchess of Hesse, Victoria Princess Louis of Battenberg and Princess Alice of Battenberg—for our late sovereign's second daughter died before her eldest child was sixteen, and saw none of her family settled in life. England would probably have seen little or nothing of any Battenbergs had not the death of the Grand Duchess Alice obliged Queen Victoria to take special interest in the motherless grandchildren at Darmstadt and their German relations, with the result that this morganatic branch of the Hessian line obtained her Majesty's favorable notice and a good place in her match-making books.

Society Notes from Bookville.

(A suggestion for the various literary periodicals.)

Miss Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall is visiting her cousin, Chlorinda Wildairs. In face, figure and manner the young cousins are so much alike that even their parents can scarcely tell them apart. Another member of the family, who is strikingly like them, is the young girl known as "The Maid-at-Arms," who made her debut last season. Miss Vernon and Miss Wildairs have been out longer.

"The Virginian," whose name nobody seems to know, is at the Waldorf with Percy Bines. Young Bines is reported to have dropped a cool million or two of his large fortune recently in a Wall street deal.

Mrs. Wiggs, long prominent in the "Cabbage Patch set" of Louisville, is in town, and has been taken up enthusiastically by the women's clubs. Mrs. Wiggs has achieved an original reputation by entering a profession hitherto monopolized by the uglier sex—that of soap-box philosopher.

Friends of Richard Carvel are much concerned at his long absence. Three or four years ago he was the most prominent and popular man in Bookville society. Several months ago he disappeared suddenly, and the most searching enquiry has thus far failed to reveal his whereabouts.

Society awaits with intense interest the approaching debut of the youngest of the beautiful Allen girls, daughters of James Lane Allen. I hear that she is by all odds the most beautiful, the most winning and the cleverest of these famous sisters, and I predict that she will have a tremendous success.

Sic transit gloria! The death of Richard Harding Van Bibber, obscurely chronicled in the daily papers, made no impression on the younger generation. But people with long memories can recall when Dick Van Bibber was one of the most talked-of men in Bookville, the butt for all the jokes of one-half of society, the object of riotous adoration to the other half. Van Bibber scarcely deserved either. He was a man of some real cleverness and many harmless eccentricities, such as his fondness for shirtwaists and his firm belief that he was the social paragon of his day. It is many years since he dropped into obscurity, and most of his old friends imagined that he was long since dead.

Chicago Packers' Strike Spreads

Chicago, Nov. 2—Packing house canners walked out yesterday, joining the striking sausage makers, and increasing the number of idle men at the stock yards to 2,400. There are 10 other branches of organized labor in the packing houses yet to make demands, and more than 22,000 employed are said to stand ready to support the strikers.

YOUR MONEY WORKS WHILE YOU SLEEP

Our famous corps of track sharps are up at break of day, "clocking" the horses in their morning tryouts and while you sleep they spot the winners that bring you steady income.—Our method puts you on a level with the most successful plungers of the American turf.—We operate for you for 25 per cent. of weekly earnings.—We win only when you win.—Results obtained really "beyond dreams of avarice."

Again we scored heavily for all of our clients last month. Again we landed the money and landed it in chunks. Three years of organization, with the best facilities that money and brains can procure to make our service of picking and backing winners at the horse races the most accurate and profitable in the land, has had its natural sequence, and each week our showing demonstrates a good profit for every client.

How $50 netted $201.75 in less than a month.

Here is a complete statement, showing the result of a $10 play on each horse given in our "Discretionary Series" during October. (Note: A capital to begin with of $50 is required by us, as a matter of conservatism, to make a $10 play on each horse that is considered by us a good betting proposition.)

The above showing is no improvement over that of September, and is not remarkable, since we have excelled it time and time again during the past three years of our uninterrupted operations. Good as it is, however, we are confident we will make it "look sick" by comparison with the showing we are going to make at the meeting of 100 days which begins at New Orleans this month.

WE PICK THE WINNERS

The system we employ to locate winners is identical with that used by "Pittsburg Phil," John A. Drake, John Gates, W. Langdon, Joe Yeager, and other famous plungers who win hundreds of thousands on the turf every year, and it proves just as successful.

We gather our information of prospective winners through a force of expert horsemen who hold a watch on the horses in their early-morning trials, and in that way learn which are ready to win.

The money that is played into the game by persistent losers, such as the large mass of uninformed players are, bound to be, goes into the pockets of the big operators, of which the Maxim & Gay Co. representing a large clientele, stands at the head. The work of the Maxim & Gay Co. is to place the general public on a level with the winning plungers, and our success in this accomplishment has made us famous on two continents.

We do business only on the great racetracks of the U. S. We number among our clients some of the best known sportsmen, financiers and merchants in the country. Investment on the turf is now deemed as legitimate as any other high-class form of speculation. The present high standard to which racing has been brought, and the absolutely good faith in which turf affairs are conducted under the auspices of the Jockey Club in the East, and the Western Jockey Club in the West, has inspired millionaire capitalists and business men all over the country with as much confidence in racing as in the stock, grain, and cotton markets, and this is one reason why transactions in the betting rings now rival in magnitude those of the stock, cotton, and grain exchanges.

Another reason for the rapid growth of turf speculation in popular favor, is the rapidity with which all transactions are wound up. The speculator makes his investment at the racetrack in the afternoon through us and receives a notification by mail, in a letter guaranteed to bear a postmark earlier than the race is run, of just what horses are to be backed for his account. By the next mail he is informed of the result of that day's operations, and he learns quickly just where he stands. At the end of each week he receives a complete statement of his account with a money order for his profits, less 25 per cent., which we deduct as our fee.

This gives a wholesome tone to legitimate turf speculation which cannot be found in the more or less involved transactions of the big exchanges, and this is why turfmen live more comfortably and live longer than do men whose involved transactions are on their minds, day and night, for weeks and sometimes for months at a stretch.

OUR CLIENTS WON A MILLION DOLLARS

As it is well known that our client have collectively won as much as a million dollars at a single race meeting, it is sometimes asked: "Why do not Maxim & Gay simply sit down and back their own selections, instead of running a considerable clerical force and spending large sums in advertising in newspapers throughout the country?"

The answer is simple enough if one stops to consider the situation. Maxim & Gay, by dint of energy, ability, organization, capital and advertising, have secured an enormous clientele, which means the command of immense capital. If we can pick winners for this immense number of investors, our profits are larger than if we played our own money only, for on a basis of 25 per cent. of winnings, which we charge for information and commission, one man out of every four of our customers is practically betting for us. The proof that this plan works for the benefit of the public as well is that they win three weeks out of four and our books show that no customer who stuck to us for two months ever failed to get well ahead of the game, while not a few of them who now own winning stables of race horses and who are cutting an important figure on the turf, began the game as mere novices, playing our selections through us.

The principle upon which we operate is such that we must of necessity do the best we can for you. Our income, as pointed out, is derived solely from a percentage of the winnings of our clients, and if we cannot make you win, our entire income is cut off. That we have been successful in making our clients win, is amply proven by the fact that we have prospered for upward of three years, while imitators, pursuing more economical and less businesslike methods have gone under by the score. Noting the success that was being achieved by Maxim & Gay, scores of "get-rich-quick" operators tried to break into the field successfully occupied by the older and more responsible form, but it did not take the press and public long to discriminate between the legitimate and the illegitimate, and as a result we have continued to flourish uninterruptedly while in the ranks of our rivals there have been scores of enterprises initiated, only to end in failure.

A Few of Hundreds of Recent Endorsements of the Press

CINCINNATI COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE, March 1, 1903

Maxim & Gay, who have been so successful in selecting winners at the New Orleans races, are in a class by themselves and have no relation in their system of operation to the "get-rich-quick" schemes that have recently gone to pieces disastrously to those who patronized them. Maxim & Gay do not guarantee their clients profits nor against losses, but merely play the money of their subscribers and deduct a fixed percentage from winnings for placing the commissions. This point is made clear in all their announcements. What they guarantee to do is to confidentially handle all money forwarded them and place it on the races just as if it were their own. They have in their employ as "clockers" the most expert judges of track work in the country, and there is not a horse at the New Orleans meeting that they have not a record of. The information collected in this way is used to the benefit of their subscribers, and its reliable character is attested by the numerous winners they have picked in the past two weeks.

Maxim & Gay are the pioneers in this line of investment or speculation. they have been established three years; they conduct their business on straightforward business lines; their methods have been thoroughly investigated and are entirely different from those pursued by the "get-rich-quick" schemes, so called, which were but recently closed by the authorities. The transactions of Maxim & Gay are legal in every sense, and they do exactly what they advertise to do, that is, play the money of their subscribers on the horses they judge will win, and they usually win. Prompt and proper accounting is made of the result, but they guarantee no fixed profits, those who have continuously patronized them have not been losers.

ST. PAUL DISPATCH, February 28, 1903

An investigation of the methods of the Maxim & Gay Co. shows them to be conducting their business on straightforward business lines. They have been established nearly three years. They do not guarantee clients profits or against loss, but merely place subscribers' money on judgment of experts, charging a fee for information and deduct a fixed percentage from winnings for placing the commissions. They are the pioneers in this line of investment or speculation

N. Y. MORNING TELEGRAPH, February 23, 1903.

Since the incorporation of the Maxim & Gay Co., the casual racegoer can possess himself of as much if not more knowledge of the comparative merits of the horses, and their chances of success, as the "regular" who burns the midnight oil studying form charts. He can secure through this company, which is incorporated under the laws of New York State, the expert knowledge and expert judgment of an experienced combination of horsemen whose duty it is to find out for him such things concerning the horses as he could not possibly find out for himself, unless he devoted his entire time and attention to the business. Even then, to do so well, he would have to possess a peculiar talent and be specially fitted by experience and natural ability.

CINCINNATI TIMES-STAR, March 2, 1903.

The Maxim & Gay Company, well-known purveyors of turf information, should not be confounded with "get rich quick" turf investment or concerns of similar character. They have been established nearly three years. They place subscribers money on judgment of their experts, and deduct a fixed percentage from winnings for placing the commissions. They are the Napoleons in this line of investment or speculation.

MEMPHIS EVENING SCIMITAR, March 2, 1903

The advertisements that appear from time to time in the columns of various newspapers with reference to the turf plan of Maxim & Gay Company tell a story entirely different from the exploits of the defunct "get-rich-quick" concerns.

The Maxim & Gay Company transact business thoroughly and solely on business principles.

JOIN OUR WINNING ARMY

The greatest race meeting in the history of the South begins at New Orleans within a fortnight. In magnitude it will eclipse all other turf gatherings of the past. The Crescent City Jockey Club knows this to be a banner year and has prepared for it. So have we. If there are more horses at the New Orleans racetrack than ever gathered there before, we have more expert "clockers" and handicappers than we ever employed at any other meeting. They cannot make the game too big for us to handle. We move with the times.

If you want to get aboard our Discretionary series, at New Orleans, in which we play daily those and only those horses we think A1 betting propositions, with the privilege of not playing any horses at all on days when we consider conditions unpropitious, fill out the following blank and forward your remittance to us at New Orleans as soon as you can. Play will be begun on the first day of the meeting, if your money reaches us in time; otherwise, we will begin play the first day it reaches us after the meeting has begun. ALL-BRITISH COTTON SUPPLY

The Empire May be Independent of United States

London, Oct. 31.—Sir Alfred Jones, K.C.M.G., a leading Liverpool merchant, and president of the Chamber of Commerce of that city, foresees the day when America will cease to supply Lancashire with cotton, and when the United States may even have to look to West Africa for her needs.

Sir Alfred Jones, in an interview with a Manchester correspondent, said: "For three years I have been studying this question of producing cotton. America will soon want all the cotton she grows. Her population is increasing, and her consumption of cotton is increasing in proportion. About seven years ago America produced, say, 7,000,000 bales of cotton, and Great Britain took half of it. Now America produces 11,000,000 bales, and Great Britain takes no more than she did ten years ago. This is a fact that startled me, and showed me that it was absolutely necessary we should stir and make some effort to provide a supply of cotton from other sources.

"I got seed from America, and sent it out to all the colonies. Then the British Cotton Growing Association was started, and the result of the Association's work has been far more satisfactory than even I anticipated. The whole of the West African colonies and the West Indies have been made to take a deep interest in the question of raising cotton and are working exceedingly well.

"Mr. Chamberlain, as usual, afforded us every facility, even to the extent of carrying cotton free of charge on the railways, and the Elder-Dempster lines are carrying it across the seas to England gratuitously.

"Up to the present the cotton has been coming unginned, but gins have now been erected in all the colonies, and we have received word that all cotton was being ginned."

Another Liar Loose

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—The authorities here have not heard of a fracas among the Doukhobors at Yorkton, and Mr. J. Obed Smith, Commissioner of Immigration, knows nothing about it. The likelihood therefore, is that the yarn sent out of a fight having taken place in which three Doukhobors were killed is a baseless fabrication. Mr. Smith recommends to the Department of the Interior that the correspondent responsible for the story be punished.

A Delusion in Washington

London, Oct. 31.—An astonishing message comes to the Manchester Guardian from its New York correspondent, who is supposed to be in close touch with official quarters at Washington. The despatch says it is recognized among American public men that Canada's bitterness over the Alaskan award presents an opportunity for American statesmanship, and adds;

"This might be the first to ingratiate itself with Canada by offering favorable terms of trade, and later press for advantages of political union. A majority of Americans always expect Canada to apply for annexation sooner or later. Many think recent events give a distinct fillip to the movement of continental union. The greatest obstacle is short-sighted American protectionism."

A False Rumor

London, Oct. 31.—It is denied in well-informed quarters that the schooner which George L. Watson is designing is intended for King Edward. It is suggested that it is more probable that the owner is Emperor William himself. Mr. Watson declines to confirm or deny the latter report.

Wants Imperial Council

London, Oct. 31.—The Spectator says: "We would be sorry to think that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's proposal that Canada should have the treaty-making power, even if seriously made, in any way points to a desire for separation." The Spectator suggests an Imperial Council putting such vital Imperial matters above the plane of ordinary local politics.

TO DEAL WITH LABOR

International Organization Has Been Formed

Chicago, Oct. 31.—With the election of D. M. Parry, of Illinois, as president, the formation of an organization to be known as "The Citizens' Industrial Association of America," was completed last night. The organization is national in scope, and includes representative manufacturers, tradesmen, others employers of labor, local general organizations, and Citizens' Alliance, having among other things as its object the dealing with the labor problem in all its phases. Delegates from 57 cities including several in Canada, were present, and at the concluding session all details of the plan of carrying on and extending the work of the organization were completed. A convention of the association will be held in Indianapolis next February.

Resolutions adopted refer to the strained relations between employer and employe, and their bad effect on business conditions, demand ample protection for all seeking to earn a livelihood, and continued in part:

"In carrying on a firm and uncompromising contest with the abuses of unions, as now constituted and conducted, at the same time acknowledging the free right of workmen to combine, and willing that the combination when rightly constituted and conducted may prove highly useful, we earnestly desire to act, and believe we are acting, in the true interests of workingmen themselves."

A Proposition of Special Merit to be Offered Canadian Investors

STONY PASS MINING CO.
SILVERTON, COLO.

has appointed a local Canadian Fiscal Agent, in the person of Messrs, Thomas Patterson & Son, brokers, who will make an announcement in a day or two that will interest the investors of Canada. It is proposed to send a representative from Canada to visit the mines and property of the company, and report thereon so as to prove beyond doubt its splendid worth. The proposition is one that will bear the closest investigation. The company is splendidly officered by men of honor and business integrity, known throughout the country for their high character and business ability.

A meeting being arranged to take place at an early date, when those who propose to invest in the Company's stock will have the privilege of selecting one the number to visit the mines.

Further particulars may be had on applying to W. H. ROBERTSON, Times Office, Peterborough, Ont.

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non-assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H. N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate. They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but [illegible] been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp [illegible] at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100-foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G. Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Cold Mining Co. is to make some money. "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders. That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure-house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise. Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense. If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

A limited number of shares of this really first class proposition may be obtained on application to PETERBOROUGH BROKERAGE CO, Fiscal Agents, Peterborough, or J. J. BRANDON, Fenelon Falls; W. GALLON, Apsley; G. B. HILLIARD, Lakefield, or GEO. H. BROWN, Chemong.

THREE UNDOUBTED BARGAINS

A placer and two quartz claims;
Two partially developed quartz claims;
One-quarter section patented land adjoining above;
All located in the Susanville Mining District, Eastern Oregon. Will be sold together or separately. Total price, $9,000.

We consider this group of properties to be unusually promising as a heavy producing mine joins a portion of the land, and near-by placer grounds are showing up very rich.

Act quickly, if at all interested.

There is Nothing on Earth That Shows as much Profit for Work Done and—Money Spent as an OIL WELL.

A gold mine needs continual digging, but an oil well, if it does not flow of its own accord, needs to be pumped, and it supplies the fuel to run the pump.

Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars, yes, Millions, have been made in the Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana oil fields, but these fields are on the decline, and the eyes of the world are turning to the Kentucky and Tennessee fields, where a mighty development has begun. Today Kentucky and Tennessee have over 500 producing wells, and is pumping thousands of barrels of oil. Money is flowing into the field from eastern financial centres as well as from the capital of Europe. It is believed by oil men that this will become the greatest oil field in America.

The Standard Oil Company is spending millions of dollars in laying the foundations of the most gigantic pipe line ever laid in any section. This shows that they have faith in Kentucky and Tennessee as the coming oil-producing section of America.

The American Oil Co.

Is one of the successful Companies operating over 2,000 acres of proven oil land in Kentucky and Tennessee located along the line of transportation. To push the wells and complete the development of this vast property, the Company offers 50,000 shares of treasury stock at 5 cents per share. This low offer is but for a short time, and may be withdrawn without further notice.

COLDS
COUGHS, CATARRH, AND CONSUMPTION

Simply can't exist if

CATARRHOZONE

Is inhaled 4 times daily.

Catarrhozone is the most pleasant and powerful destroyer of disease germs known to science. It is inhaled at the mouth, and in traversing the air passages of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs passes over not less than 1,000 square feet of mucous surface.

The penetrating, healing vapor of Catarrhozone goes wherever the air we breathe may go, and no matter how remote the disease may be it will quickly cure it.

The bacilli of Catarrh and Consumption are expelled from the system by one day's use of Catarrhozone. Ordinary coughs and cold in the head are cured in ten minutes. Most severe cases of Asthma, Bronchitis, and Lung Trouble are relieved in a few hours.

Catarrhal Deafness, Head Noises Ringing in the Ears, can be corrected in a short time and cured by the persistent use of Catarrhozone, which is guaranteed to prove satisfactory or your money refunded. Two months' treatment complete, with liquid for recharging and hard rubber Inhaler, costs $1.00; trial size 25c. At druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A BAD BREAKDOWN

The Machinery at the Gas Works Broke—The Times Delayed.

Yesterday afternoon the engine at the gas works broke down, with the result that the supply of gas was shut off from the street mains. This at once put our typesetting machines out of business, as the metal could not be kept heated and in liquid form.

We ask our readers to bear with us under the circumstances. We were not able to operate our machines at all last night.

No Council Meeting.

There was no meeting of the Council last night, on account of the absence from town of several aldermen. Town Clerk Armstrong has accordingly placed the business in the municipal refrigerator, where it will be kept until the return of the aldermen from the hunt.

Left For Port Arthur.

Yesterday Mr. Ed. Dawson, who for many years has filled a responsible position with the Canadian Express Company here, left yerterday for Port Arthur, where he will join his brother in the large business which the latter has established there. Board of Trade Meeting.

The Board of Trade meeting called for this evening promises to be quite interesting. Principal Fessenden, of the Collegiate Institute, has been invited to speak on the "Alaskan Boundary," and Mr. James Kendry, M.P., will discuss Mr. Chamberlain's policy. Mr. J. H. Burnham will take up the navigation of the Otonabee as his theme. There should be a large attendance.

PERSONAL MENTION

Movements of the People—What They are Doing and Saying.

Mrs. Wm. Hamilton left yesterday on a visit to her daughter Mrs. A. E. Leck, Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Frost have moved from the National Hotel to No. 2 Fleming Terrace where Mrs. Frost will receive on Wednesdays.

The many friends of Mr. Frank Adams, Reeve of Ashburnham, were pleased to see him out again yesterday after his recent illness.

Cobourg Post: Mr. E. J. Salisbury has removed his household furniture from Peterborough, and taken up his residence in the old homestead on Covert street.

Globe: Mrs. George Cox gave a very large at home on Saturday afternoon at her residence in Sherbourne street. Mrs. Cox was assisted by her daughters, Mrs. Ames and Mrs. Davis in the reception of her many friends and Mrs. H. C. Cox, Mrs. E. W. Cox and Mrs. F. G. Cox were the kindest of hostesses in the tea rooms.

Mr. Charles McGill, General Manager of the Ontario Bank spent Sunday in town.

The many friends of Mr. Alex Rutherford, Ashburnham, will regret to learn that he has suffered another slight stroke of paralysis last week. He is now, we are pleased to say, doing nicely.

Mr. W. A. Stratton, K.C., spent a few days in town the guest of his mother. He left yesterday for the West, and on his return will take his departure for Europe, where he will spend the winter months in Italy. His many friends in Peterborough will be pleased to hear that he is slowly recovering.

Eastern Mines Flourishing

Globe—"Prof. W. G. Miller has returned from a tour of inspection in the Eastern Ontario mining fields, where he paid particular attention to the large mica and feldspar deposits. He reports that development work is going on briskly all over the eastern fields, and the outlook continues bright." These mines include Cordova, in Peterborough County, and the Star of the East, in which many Peterborough people hold stock.

A FOOD RESCUE

What a Physician's Wife Found Out

The wife of a well-known physician of Oakland, Cal. was brought back to health and strength by food alone at a time when she had prepared to die.

She says of her experience: "I am the wife of a physician and have suffered from catarrh of the stomach more than ten years during which time I suffered untold agonies of mind and body for I could not eat solid food and even liquid foods gave me great distress.

"I was brought at last to confront the crisis of my life. I actually made ready for my departure from friends and husband for I expected to die. When in this state I was induced to try Grape-Nuts and the wonderful effects of this food prove completely that all my trouble was due to improper feeding.

"I began to improve immediately and my weight increased until I have gained 20 pounds since I began the use of Grape-Nuts while my stomach is as sound and as well as ever it was and my husband gives all the credit for my wonderful recovery to Grape-Nuts. I have no set time for eating Grape-Nuts but just feast on it whenever I please. I wish I might tell my sisters everywhere of the marvelous health and strength giving, flesh building elements of Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

MINISTERIAL ASSOTIATION.

A Short Session Held This Morning — The Business.

There was a good attendance at the meeting of the Ministerial Association yesterday. Among the business on hand was a proposal to take up the visitation of Nichols Hospital as carried on some time ago by the Association. The scheme met with much favor, and a visiting list was drafted for November.

A SHORT SESSION

Of the Board of Education Held Last Night

The regular meeting of the Board of Education was held last night.

A number of communications were received and accounts passed.

COMMUNICATIONS

ST JOHNS' YOUNG MENS' GUILD

First Meeting of This Organization a Very Successful Affair.

Last evening the Young Men's Guild of St John's Church held their first meeting in the form of a social evening. There was a good attendance and a splendid programme was rendered. The president of the Guid Mr. W. H. Cluxton, was in the chair and the first on the program was a solo, by Mr. Jas. Bell. This was followed by a reading by Mr. Petty, and a cornet solo by Mr. Arthur Seward. Mr. Kerr was then called upon and gave a splendid essay, or rather talk, on Tennyson.

After Mr. Kerr's talk, the Rev. Mr. Davidson moved a hearty vote of thanks to the young men who had kindly contributed to the programme, especially to Mr. Kerr for his fine address. Mr. J. Comstock seconded the motion in a neat speech. After a solo by Mr. Cluxton, the evening closed by singing the National Anthem.

The next meeting of the Guild will be held on the 16th.

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

—The George Street Guild will meet this evening.

—The Board of Health will meet this evening.

—A special meeting of the ladies of All Saints' was held last night to complete arrangements for the annual dinner.

—The social and concert under the auspices of L.O.L. No. 80, in the Foresters' Hall on Thursday evening promises to be a rare treat.

—The annual harvest dinner of All Saints' Church will be held in the Foresters' Hall on the evening of Thursday, Nov. 19th.

—Owing to special request it has been decided to repeat the concert given last June by St. John's Choir. The date for the event is Friday, November 13th.

—Notwithstanding the high price for cheese, some factories will close on schedule time—the beginning of November.

—This year the deer hunting season will be short, as, since it started on November 1st and expires on the 15th, there will be three Sundays in the term and licensees may not shoot on these days.

—It costs fifty cents for a marriage license in Belleville and $1.00 for a dog tax in Kingston. But it is worth half a dollar more to be a dog in Kingston than a married man in Belleville, says the Whig.

—Mr. Alex. Bell, Victoria County, reached a hundred years of age on Saturday last. He is a great, great grandfather, something which is rare these days. The generations are as follows, Mrs. John Kennedy, daughter; Mrs.

LAYING BRICK IN WINTER

New Method by Which Obstacles to the Work May be Overcome

It will no doubt be interesting to the builders of Peterborough and elsewhere to learn the new methods by which brick may be laid in winter. It is averred that in Sweden brick laying is now carried on without interruption during the long and severe winters. It is probable that the method which makes this possible may be an old story in Canada, but we give a description of it for what it may be worth.

It has been demonstrated that bricklaying can be carried on in a temperature as low as 16 degrees Fahrenheit. lower temperatures it is necessary to heat the sand and water used in making the mortar. The heating of the water is easily accomplished, and for the sand the common arrangement consists of a circular iron tube 15 to 20 inches in diameter and from 6 to 8 feet long. This is closed at one end with bricks or an iron plate. On the top of this end there is a chimney 8 to 10 feet high and 5 to 6 inches in diameter.

The fuel, which is generally refuse wood from the building under erection, is fed in at the open or partly open end of the cylinder. This cylinder is often formed of an old boiler tube or of a piece or old iron chimney. For burning coal special grate and chimney arrangements would be necessary, but in no case need they be elaborate or expensive.

After placing this cylinder on the ground the sand is heaped on and around it to a depth of eighteen or twenty-four inches and allowed to remain till it gets hot and is taken away from where the sand is hottest and replaced by fresh sand. The mortar should be made in a room where the temperature is kept well above freezing point and regulated according to the frost to be counteracted. Generally this room is made by boarding up a part of the scaffolding, simplicity and cheapness being desirable.

In laying the bricks care should be taken to avoid shifting them after once being set in the mortar, and then old or stale mortar should never be used. Fifteen or twenty years ago, where this process is now employed, almost all building was broken off for four or five months during the winter. Today it is an exception to find it hindered more than a few days or weeks annually.

LIGHT AND DARK,

Day and night, sunshine and shadow are not more different from each other than a healthful from a sickly woman. The healthful woman carries light and sunshine with her wherever she goes.

The woman who suffers from ill-health casts a shadow on her own happiness and the happiness of others. She cannot help it. Those who suffer cannot smile and sing.

Ill-health in woman is generally traceable to disease of the delicate womanly organism. Many women have been restored to happiness by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. If there is an invalid woman, suffering from female weakness, prolapsus, or falling of womb, or from leucorrhea who has used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription without complete success Dr. Pierce would like to hear from such person—and it will be to her advantage to write as he offers, in perfect good faith, a reward of $500 for any case of the above maladies which he cannot cure.

"I feel it my duty to inform you that I had been a sufferer for many years from nervousness with all its symptoms and complications," writes Mrs. O. N. Fisher, of 1125 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. "I was constantly going to see a physician. I was induced to ask Dr. Pierce's advice. I then took five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription.' I am not now cross and irritable, and I have a good color in my face; have also gained about ten pounds in weight and one thousand of comfort, for I am a new woman once more."

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" does so to gain the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines.

riage. The origin of this system, so prevalent among all classes of Australian aboriginals, remains an unsolved mystery. Its existence on Mornington island was discovered by Dr. Roth when one of the islanders refused to speak to one of the "tame" boys because he was his "father-in-law."

Woman Like to Flirt.

Only members of the tribe belonging to the same class are allowed to marry, and much to the amusement of the two explorers they found an island woman flirting with one of the tame blacks, she having ascertained that both belonged to the same class and that she, therefore, could marry him if he were willing. Notwithstanding the rough nature of life among the islanders they looked strong and healthy, though somewhat undersized, and were apparently of a peaceful disposition. They were ignorant of the art of cultivation, their food consisting of wild fruits, fish and meat, fire being obtained by rubbing a couple of sticks together. Except their weapons and a few cooking appliances there is no personal property, almost everything being shared in common. It is probable that a second visit may be paid to the island a few months hence, when some further information respecting the islanders will be procurable, there being an opinion that further investigation will assist in throwing some light on the character of Australian aboriginal life in the past.

THE WAR CLOUD IS LESS OMINOUS, WAR POSSIBLY MAY BE AVERTED

The Situation is Still Exceedingly Grave Says London Papers

THE ATTITUDE OF THE JAPS IS FOR WAR

While the Japanese Emperor is Favorable to a Reasonable Compromise, The Russian Fleet

London, Nov. 4.—The Post says that the outlook in the far East is not so dark as to preclude all hope of peace. It is learned on reliable authority that while the Japanese nation is red hot for war, the Emperor is in favor of a reasonable compromise. The Czar has summoned Admiral Alexieff to a private conference respecting Russian policy in the Far East, and, as he is a pacific sovereign, this is an indication that the negotiations with Japan will not lead to War. His Finance Minister does not want to find the money for a campaign when enthusiasm for Russia has waned. Paris and the French people are courting the good will of England and Italy. The Macedonian proposals have been partly accepted by the Sultan, who still needs to be convinced that the Western powers are behind Austria and Russia in the demands for drastic reforms. The correspondents have been recalled from the Balkans, and it is no longer possible to obtain accurate information about Macedonia. Probably guerilla warfare will be continued on a small scale during the winter, and the reform scheme will be accepted but not carried out. The best hope for the redemption of Macedonia lies in the ultimate intervention of the principality of Bulgaria, with the moral support of the Western powers. The time is not yet come for the creation of a big Bulgaria, which will be independent of Russian control and able to hold Constantinople. Meanwhile the Czar's ministers are grateful to Lord Beaconsfield and Prince Bismarck for dividing Ignatieff's Bulgaria and restoring Macedonia to the Sultan.

Count Tisza has relieved the anxiety of the Emperor of Austria by accepting the Hungarian Premiership with the consent of the Liberal party. The Emperor has again averted a dangerous crisis by persuading the military groups to put up with a compromise. His success in preventing a shipwreck of the dual monarchy is a fresh reminder of the statesmanlike services of the safest and most useful European sovereigns.

THE SITUATION IS GRAVE.

Tokio, Nov. 4—A correspondent has received information from some of the leading diplomatic authorities showing that the gravity of the Russo-Japanese situation has not been exaggerated in cablegrams from Japan. There is prevalent, however, a strong desire in Japan to preserve peace if only that course be made possible.

It may be said that the idea of the existence of a "war party" so called in Japan is wrong, and that the Emperor, the cabinet and his advisors, are all in favor of an honorable compromise of the difficulties, but it is argued that the conflict between Russia and Japan for the mastery of the Pacific must assuredly come, and must inevitably leave a greater forthcoming conflict between Russia and the United States, unless some halting ground of Russian expansion is found. Japan is convinced that the first halting ground should be Manchuria, and, failing that, that it must be Corea.

KNELL OF EMPIRE SOUNDED.

There is undoubtedly a strong feeling in Japan that if Russia be allowed to overrun Manchuria, and also overrun Corea, the knell of the Empire will have been sounded. Thereupon while willing to compromise on a basis for the permanent open door in China, the retention of Manchuria by China as an integral part of her kingdom, and the absolute integrity of Corea, Japan is not prepared to go further.

In the outlying districts the situation is liable to get out of hand and a hostile crisis is possible at any time. In the meantime, disturbing rumors of Russian movements, following non-evacuation on the eighth of October in defiance of treaty, continue to unsettle trade.

London, November 4—Cabling from Che Foo, the correspondent of the Morning Post says the majority of Russian warships in Chinese waters are at Talienwan and Havangtao. Three Chinese cruisers left Che Foo yesterday, the correspondent goes on, for the mouth of the Yalu River; this constitutes infringement of Corean rights.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Daily Mail says he learns that the Russian Government does not expect war with Japan in any event before next spring, even should the negotiations fail.

The correspondent at Shanghai of the Daily Telegraph, says he has learned from a reliable source in Tokio, that although the negotiations between Russia and Japan continue, Japan is inflexible, and a conflict, sooner or later, is regarded as inevitable.

KILLS FOUR WITH A CORPSE

Train Smashes Burial Waggon and Coffin and Slays People

Charlotte, N.C., Nov. 4—Three men and a girl were killed and a corpse torn from its coffin by the locomotive of a south-bound passenger train on the Southern railway four miles from Concord yesterday morning. One of the dead was Miss Lulu Townsend. The others were John Key, Daniel Weaver, and Benjamin Liggit.

All the victims lived in the vicinity of the tragedy. They were in a wagon, with the corpse of Mrs. Kate Lewis and were on their way to a cemetery. The country road runs along the railroad for a considerable distance. Just before the train was abreast of the wagon the mules drawing it became unmanageable and swerved, throwing the wagon in front of the train.

The casket containing the corpse was broken to pieces and the corpse was hurled through the air with the victims.

Gallipolis, O., Nov. 4—The regular Kanawho and Michigan passenger train between Charleston, W. Va., and Gallipolis was wrecked at 7.30 7.30 this morning at Red House, W. Va. The engineer discovered a burning trestle and putting on all steam, got his train safely across, but the heat had caused the rails to spread and the engine, baggage car, and smoker turned over with the chair car at the rear of the train. The engineer, William Tourney, of Charleston was killed, and John Baker White, former secretary to ex-Governor McCorkle of West Virginia, suffered a broken leg and three fractured ribs, with serious internal injuries. Nearly every passenger on the train was badly bruised.

Wrecking trains and physicians were sent to the wreck from Gallipolis and Charleston, the injured were cared for, and the derailed cars placed on the track.

THE SUN SPOTS NOW BOTHER THE EARTH

Electric Railways Are Stopped Running

Europe Suffers from Electrical Disturbances—Greatest Trouble on Record

London, Nov. 4— Scientists attribute the recent magnetic disturbance here to sun spots. The worst affects of the phenomena appear to have been experienced in France, but Berlin was not affected and apparently neither Austria, Italy nor Denmark suffered.

In Switzerland, however, there occurred a most strange phenomena. The telephone service ceased suddenly and remained suspended for half an hour, while the telegraphs were rendered unintelligible and useless. In Geneva all the electrical street cars were brought to a sudden standstill and the unexpected cessation of the electric current caused consternation at the generating works where all efforts to discover the cause were fruitless.

The meteorological office reports a magnetic storm accompanied by aurora borealis, in several parts of Ireland and Scotland. The telegraphic disturbance was one of the most extraordinary on record. Late this morning before it was settled where the disturbance originated, although Siberia was strongly suspected, a slight seismic disturbance was reported from the Riviera.

Sir Oliver Lodge and Sir Norman Lockyer were interviewed on the matter and attributed the cause to sun spots and an increase in solar activity which would also account for the unusual wet season now being experienced.

Russia Shewing Her Hand

Pekin, Nov. 4—The Chinese Government is greatly disturbed at the re-occupation of Mukden, the capital of Manchuria, by Russian troops. The Foreign Office is appealing to friendly foreign legations for help and advice, admitting its own helplessness in the matter.

According to advices received by the Chinese Government, 1,500 Russian soldiers took possession of the buildings, barricaded the gates, and evicted the Chinese officials. There are between ten and twenty thousand Chinese troops in and about Mukden, but the Chinese commanders in Manchuria have been given imperative orders in no wise to resist the Russian Government, and to use every effort to avert collisions.

WESTERN OUTLOOK IS VERY PROMISING

Indications of Abounding Prosperity Are to be Seen Everywhere

UTILIZING FINE WEATHER.

Grain Moving Slowly Because Farmers are Anxious to Get Ploughing Done

Montreal, Nov. 4—After a tour of the Western lines of the company, covering over six weeks, Mr. W. R. MacInnes, the freight traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is once more back at the head offices of the company.

Mr. MacInnes spent a considerable time in Winnipeg, preparing the new grain schedule, and then traversed the entire route to Vancouver and Victoria, making numerous stops.

In reply to queries, Mr. MacInnes said that the contemplated retrenchments by the Canadian Pacific Railway has no connection with lack of business in the North-West.

"Possessing weather such as we have here today," said Mr. MacInnes, "the farmers have naturally been more anxious to do their plowing than they were to ship grain. If the plowing can be done before the land hardens, that will mean an increased acreage next year. As it is, however, the receipts of grain at the interior elevators are now coming up and will shortly approximate those of 1902.

"The storage capacity of the elevators in Manitoba and the North-West Territories, taking in both the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian Northern is now about 40,000,000 bushels, which, must be accepted as equal to any demands likely to be made in that particular."

BRITISH COLUMBIA CONDITIONS.

Mr. MacInnes announces that the conditions in lumbering and in mining circles in British Columbia have vastly improved. There are now twenty-one mills in operation along the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, supplying lumber for use on forms throughout the North-West. A number of new mines have been located in the Kootenay, but it is yet too soon to venture an opinion regarding their worth.

"After a careful enquiry into every branch of industry in the West," concluded Mr. MacInnes, "One is safe in saying that the outlook was never more promising. Indications of abounding prosperity are to be found on every hand."

Miner Had Leg Torn Off

Sydney, N.S., Nov. 3—Chas. Dickinson, a miner in No. 2 colliery, had one of his legs completely torn off by falling stone and coal, besides sustaining other injuries. He will live.

KILLED BY INDIANS

Sheriff in Wyoming and One Officer Shot by Sioux

Newcastle, Wyo., Nov. 4.—Sheriff W. H. Miller of Weston County, and one of his posse, are dead as a result of a fight with twelve wagonloads of Sioux Indians, three miles below Beaver Dam, on Lightning Creek, Converse County, and Rosebud agencies in South Dakota, and were violating the game laws of the state.

In a second battle with the Indians, Sunday afternoon, near the scene of the first, ten Indians were killed and eleven captured. None of the posse was killed in the second fight. There were about 75 Sioux in the band of Indians. It is estimated that 500 men are scouring the country in search of the remaining Indians.

LEARN OF PLOT TO MURDER

Armenian Revolutionists Plan to Kill Less Radical Compatriots

London, Nov. 4—A plot for the removal of four Armenian members of the huntchakist revolutionary society was arranged at a meeting of the alfarist, or physical force, faction of the society, held in New York over a month ago, and revealed to the hunchakist section by an error in sending a report of the meeting to a branch at Tilford which had seceded. Facts in regard to this plot became public yesterday. The Boston and Lausanne attempts at murder were outcomes of this plot. Sagatel Sagouni was the third man to be killed, while the fourth intended victim at present is in London and taking precautions to protect himself.

WORKMEN FIND SKELETON

They are Believed to be those of the Early French Pioneers

Vincennes, Ind., Nov. 4—The skeletons of two children and an adult were unearthed by workmen excavating for a furnace under St. Francis Xavier's Cathedral, which was erected nearly 100 years ago.

The find created much excitement, and many people visited the scene to get a glimpse of the remains that had been buried for more than a century. Thomas Richardville, an old French pioneer, who made the discovery, religiously guarded against anyone carrying away as relics any of the bones. The skeleton of one of the children was nearly perfect and had a reddish brown hair on the skull, which crumbled to dust when the skeleton was raised from the trench.

It is believed the skeletons represent children of some of the earliest French settlers of Vincennes. The larger one is probably that of a priest of the early days.

AN EMPIRE

Such is the Opinion of Daniel E. Ryan of The New York American

Daniel E. Ryan, a newspaper correspondent representing William Randolph Hearst, personally, as proprietor of The New York American and Journal, was at the press table at the banquet to Mr. Aylesworth in Toronto Monday night. He had just arrived in the city from Montreal on a visit to relatives, and hearing of the banquet dropped in to report.

Mr. Ryan is enthusiastic regarding Canada. He has traveled quite a bit through our west and says that if Canadians settled down to growing grain out there we could swamp American competition in that regard.

"You have an empire here in Canada, but you don't seem to know it," he told the World. Concerning the elections in New York to-day, Mr. Ryan fears that McClelland will come out second best.

THE BREACH GROWS WIDER THAN EVER.

The Booth Family Not as Friendly as Usual

General Ballington Booth Resents Inconsiderate Treatment Accorded Him by Salvation Army.

New York, Nov. 4—The friction between the officials of the Salvation Army in America and its offshoot, the Volunteers of America, has broken out anew, as was evinced by the refusal of the former to allow Commander Ballington Booth of the Volunteers to privately see the remains of his sister, Consul Booth-Tucker, in Carnegie Hall on Sunday. Some correspondence passed between the representatives of both bodies, but the breach is wider than ever. Edward M. Higgins, of the Salvation Army, wrote Commodore Booth, stating his willingness to make arrangements for a private view of the remains at the national headquarters. James W. Merrill, national secretary of the Volunteers, replied that "after the inconsiderate and indifferent way in which General Ballington Booth was treated yesterday at the Carnegie Music Hall it would not be wise for him to subject himself to further misunderstanding." The letter also says:

"It was furthest from their thoughts to allude to any difference between the movements of governments, and they felt that when the public was being allowed to participate in the obsequies of their sister, they, as members of the family, had some rights. He would never have gone near the Carnegie Music Hall had he not been assured over the wire by your representatives that his requests would have been respected. If this were not so, why was the condition made that Dr. Josiah Strong should not be there? General Ballington Booth was told in the hearing of Mrs. Booth that his arrangements were acceded to, all but that one point, and he immediately waived that wish in deference to the request of Miss Eva Booth and Commander Booth-Tucker. We regret this deplorable exhibition of Salvation Army spirit, and we cannot advise General Ballington Booth to be exposed to the probable repitition of disrespect that would be shown him were he today to visit the Salvation Army's own headquarters."

BOARD OF HEALTH

Meeting of the Board Yesterday Morning—Important Business

The Board of Health met yesterday morning. There were present Messrs. W. Eyres, G. Schneider, Mayor Roger, A. Parker, Dr. Burnham and Dr. McNulty.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

A lady who had three houses on Queen street, complained that her well had been ordered to be closed some time last August, as the water was said to be suspicious. She had at once applied for town water, but it could not be given to her. She asked that she be not forced to close the well until she could have the town water. There had never been any sickness of any account in that neighborhood.

Another application of a similar nature was received.

The Board decided that the wells be allowed to remain open until the town water could be put in, and that it be recommended that the water be boiled before being used for drinking purposes.

Mr. R. J. Munro, of the Munro House, was present, and stated that the well had been condemned, but the water had been used only for watering horses, there being the town water in the house. He said he could not have the water put in this fall, and would be put to a great deal of inconvenience were his well closed.

Mr. James H. O'Shea, of the Commercial House, and Mr. H. Cavanagh, of the Cavanagh House, had a case similar to Mr. Munro's.

It was moved and seconded, that provided the hotel keepers who were heard this morning, apply for water at once, they be allowed to use the water during the winter, provided the water be used for watering horses only, and that wells that have been closed be not reopened.—Carried.

It was moved and seconded that the Water Commissioners be advised of cases where the well water had been condemned and excuses for not closing such wells were given that the town water could not be secured and that the Water Commissioners be urged in the interests of public health, to supply town water as soon as possible for those who desire it. It was also included in the motion that the Town Council be advised of the difficulty of the Board in the matter, and that the chairman and Mr. Eyres be a deputation to wait upon the Water Commissioners and the Council to support these motions.

The chairman explained that a deputation had waited upon the St. Joseph's Hospital, asking them to take dipotheria cases for another year. A reply from the hospital was read to the Board. The reply stated that diphtheria patients would be accepted for another year at the hospital, provided a grant of $1,500.00 be made the hospital. For a number of years the hospital had suffered an ever increasing financial drain from its infectious department, and its limited resources were severely taxed during the epidemic last year. It was thought that were the proposition accepted the hospital burden will be so lightened as to render possible the continued admission of diphtheria cases.

It was decided to leave the matter over until another meeting, and that the hospital be asked to continue taking patients in the meantime at per diem charge, until the matter was settled.

A communication was received from the Town Engineer re certain premises which he had been requested to examine, there being reports that the plumbing was not adequate.

The Board adjourned until Monday morning, November 9th, at 9.30 o'clock.

Dies on Husband's Grave

New York, Nov. 4—On the grave of her husband in the actors' plot in Evergreen cemetery in Brooklyn, Mrs. Maude Amen, a young and pretty woman, killed herself yesterday afternoon by swallowing carbolic acid. That she was heartbroken over the death of her husband, who died about a year ago, was evident from letters written by her and found on the grave beside the body.

Jealous Man Kills Wife

Sturgis, Mich, Nov. 4—At Florence at a late hour last night C. Lamb in a jealous rage shot and instantly killed his wife, wounded his mother-in-law, Mrs. Featherstone, and escaped. Bloodhounds were put on his trail and it is believed that he will be captured tonight. He had been married only six weeks. Two weeks ago, he separated from his wife, on account of jealousy of a former admirer, who had returned from the west. Mrs. Lamb went to live with her mother and it was at her home where the shooting was done.

Negroes Flee for Lives

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 4—The trial of Will Pittman, Boss Riley, Tumps Cheesmer and John and Fletcher Windham at Troy for "white-capping" negroes disclosed that the negro churches at Antioch and Lums Crossing had been burned. Mary Clements, colored, was shot as she ran from her house at night, and the baby in her arms wounded. She had run from her home in terror after it had been riddled with bullets. Joe Browning was so badly beaten that he lingered between life and death for twenty-four hours. The Williams sawmill lost all its negro hands, who fled in fear of impending death. Altogether it is estimated that 150 negroes evacuated the country. The accused were bound over.

Unionism Among Firemen

The Fireman's Herald: — Houston, Tex., has a fireman's union, and they have been getting a dose of their own medicine that they do not like. There is a strike of street railway employes there. The firemen have free transportation over street car lines, which saves them about $9 per month car fare. They requested the labor leaders to allow them to ride during the strike, which they refused, and they had to walk, and will hereafter probably pay their fares when they do ride. Labor unions are not much of a blessing to firemen when it compels them to pay $9 per month for care fare to and from meals, which they previously did not have to pay.

CONSERVATION OF WATER IN THE BACK LAKES.

To be Asked for from the Dominion Government, So the Board of Trade Decided Last Night

The Board of Trade met in regular session last night, when there were present D. Hughes-Charles in the chair; R. Eardley Wilmot, R. E. Wood, J. Hampden Burnham, D. W. Dumble, Miles Hamilton, E. J. Patterson, F. J. Toker, C. Fessenden, J. Alexr. Culverwell, Peter Campbell, and a large number of citizens who are not members of the Board.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed.

A telegram was received from James Kendry, M.P., expressing his regret at not being able to be present as contemplated.

The President here drew attention to the questions before the Board, viz.: "Conserving the Water in the Back Lakes," "Preferential Tariff," and the "Alaskan Boundary Award." He incidentally remarked that the delay in opening the Trent Valley Canal was deterring industries from locating in Peterborough. Before taking up the main business, however, he called upon Messrs. Burnham and Dumble to report on their attendance at the great Chambers of Commerce Congress at Montreal.

Mr. D. W. Dumble replied that he had very little to report, for he and his colleague found that through an oversight no place had been assigned delegates from Peterborough, and the position in which they were finally located absolutely prevented them from hearing one word that was said. He thought however, that the growing opinion of Canadians was that now we are starting to manufacture our own raw productions, we should take advantage of the skill and intelligence nature has endowed us with, and develop into an independent nation, still retaining, however, our allegiance to the Mother Country. But we must not stultify ourselves for the sake of building up any other country. Any fiscal arrangement must be such as will not sacrifice our manufacturing and commercial interests. Free Trade is only an ideal so far as Canada is concerned, for we have to live upon a revenue. He was pleased to see British subjects were being educated up to an idea of commercial union, which will in the future develop into national unity, and the world may as well understand that there are nor annexationists in this country. (Applause).

Mr. J. Hampden Burnham said that the committe struck at the great Congress to report on different schemes for imperial union absolutely could not agree, and the Congress broke up without doing any better than saying "God Save the King." The actual result of the whole thing was "We were, and we finished as we were." The man from Yorkshire could not understand the delegate from Liverpool, and the man from Yorkshire expressed himself like a native of another country. Still they all said that if some scheme for Imperial union were brought forward they would be pleased to listen to it.

LACK OF WATER.

The President here called for discussion on the need of conserving water in the back lakes. He remarked that the water in the river is so low that unless something is done manufacturing interests will seriously suffer. Some thorough system of controlling the lakes feeding the Otonabee should be insisted on. Mr. Stuart, of the American Cereal Co., has personally taken the matter in hand, and sent Mr. Stevenson, in company with Mr. Rogers, the Government Engineer, to investigate matters at the lakes. The latter, of course, is acting in his offcial capacity, and will report to the Government.

D. W. Dumble moved, seconded by R. Fair, that in the manufacturing interests on the Trent waters, and the interests of navigation, it be urgently demanded that a large and constant flow of water be preserved on the Trent River, (in the upper reaches named the Otonabee); that an intelligent control of the feed waters of the back lakes by the dams would effect this end, and the Ontario and Ottawa Governments are respectfully, but urgently, requested to secure such control and oversight of the dams on the back waters as will secure a larger and more constant flow of water in the dry season.

Mr. T. F. Matthews moved, seconded by Mr. Miles Hamilton, That a deputation, consisting of delegates from the Town and County Councils, Board of Trade, and manufacturers on the Trent waters, wait upon the Ontario and Dominion Governments, to secure their efforts to complete a system which will secure better preservation and a more uniform flow of water in the Trent River.

Both the above resolutions were carried, as the result of the following discussion:

Mr. Bloomfield, of Lakefield, remarked that he was at his island in Stony Lake when the first shortage of water occurred. This was occasioned through removing the stop logs to allow of a drive of logs to pass down on the way to Lake Ontario, the water was not raised again on the plea that it was needed for the industries in Peterborough. In his opinion, the water has not been controlled as well as it might have been; there is practically no control of it higher up than Coboconk. There are a great number of lakes 15 miles north of Burleigh, and their water should be conserved; they are partly under control of the local Government and of the Dominion Government, and it appears that nothing can be done unless these waters are placed under the jurisdiction of one Government, with a capable man in charge. The lakes could be raised generally a few feet with but very little damage to anyone's property. The Dominion Government should be asked to repair all the rotten dams on the smaller lakes, and adopt a thorough system of control. The water seems to have been run off recklessly of late, whereas had it been properly conserved there would have been a much better supply.

Mr. E. J. Patterson said that industries are very badly handicapped for want of water, and the Town and County Councils and the Board of Trade should send delegates to Ottawa, urging that steps be taken to properly regulate the flow of water. The Canadian General's dam is running short, and the Cereal Works is also suffering. If this state of things is allowed to continue there will soon be a shortage at the water works. He had been officially informed that there is sufficient water in the lakes for all purposes if properly controlled; under existing conditions, however, if the Trent Valley Canal is operated next year he doubts very much if any mill in Peterborough will be able to run. The old dams on the back lakes could be repaired at a cost of $100,000, and this the Government should be asked to undertake at once, and adopt a proper system of conservation and control.

Mr. D. W. Dumble remarked that the life of this community as a manufacturing one, and the navigation of the river, depends on these back lakes of which there are some splendid rock-bound ones, with narrow outlets, which might be readily controlled. Lumber men and others, it appears, open up the dams just as they please. One mill owner on Indian River deliberately cut the stop logs at Stony Lake in two to get water to his mill. The building of the Cereal Company's new dam opened people's eyes somewhat, for when no water was running over the old dam, sufficient was escaping beneath it to run a mill. Such is the case with the old dams on the back lakes; they are rotting away.

Mr. R. E. Wood explained that the Government Engineer had only control of the waters from Balsam Lake down. These lakes could be conveniently raised a few feet, but the waters in Haliburton and north Peterborough lakes might be raised as high as 12 or 15 feet, and could be controlled by a few dams.

Mr. R. R. Hall here remarked that the deputation which went to Ottawa on this question found that both Mr. Mulock and Mr. Blair both look upon the matter as being of local interest only. He thought the industrial phase of the question should be left alone, and an appeal made to the Government in the interests of navigation, as the water coming down for that purpose could also be utilized by the mills. The Ontario Government have control of 32 dams and, if properly looked after, would conserve a sufficiency of water for all purposes. We have flowing down the river 500,000 cubic feet of water a minute two or three months in the year, and this is reduced to 50,000 or 70,000 cubic feet the remainder of the time. If this were properly distributed, what an advantage it would be to the town.

Mr. Dumble replied that the Dominion Government recently took over certain waters for navigable purposes. Technically speaking they can only spend money in this direction, in the interests of navigation, although indirectly interested in the demands of manufactories. We simply want importunity, and plenty of it, even if we have to bring Gamey here to do it.

Mr. J. Alexr. Culverwell, at this juncture remarked that Mr. Patterson had stated that the Canadian General are short of power, and also the Cereal Works, and that should the canal be in operation next year, the mills would cease running. Mr Culverwell took issue with Mr. Patterson, and claimed that there is plenty of water to operate both canal and factories. We learn from experience in the Erie Canal that each lockage takes 15 minutes; and supposing that 25 boats lock through the Trent Valley Canal each day, such operation would take but 55 cubic feet of water per second, which is but a small proportion of the flow estimated by Mr.

THE NEW YORK ELECTIONS SETH LOW DEFEATED

George B. McClellan Elected Mayor of Greater New York by About 70,000 Plurality

New York, Nov. 3.—After a remarkable campaign, in which there was united against him nearly all the newspapers and practically every minister of the different religions in the city, Geo. B. McClellan, son of the Federal war general, was today elected for Mayor of Greater New York, over Seth Low, fusionist, the present Mayor, by the large plurality of about 70,000. Low's plurality two years ago was 32,000.

In Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Iowa, the Republican ticket has been successful.

THE ROOT OF THE TROUBLE.

It is by no means improbable that an explanation will be forthcoming as to Lord Alverstone's apparent sacrifice of Canada's rights in the Alaska Boundary question sufficiently plausible to make anything but its open acceptance an insult to all those ideas of the stainlessness of British justice and the impartiality of the British judiciary which Canada has always shared with the rest of the Empire. The longer-sighted among Canadians, too, will be found not lacking in sympathy with the idea that it is essential sometimes to sacrifice the immediate interests of one portion of the Empire for the good of the whole.

But a perception of these facts, while no doubt it will do much to raise a body of conservative opinion in opposition to the loud-mouthed expressions of the more rabid part of our population, should not blind us to the significant truth that, underlying all the froth and excitement produced by the disappointing award, there is a deep-seated conviction in this country that Great Britain's diplomacy becomes weak-kneed when it has to deal with the United States. The reasons from which this popular fancy has been evolved may be explained away, but the conviction remains as strong as ever, the result, perhaps, not so much of reasoning as intuition. That it is something degenerated than the mere ebullience of a youthful nation contemptuous of a mother country's age is proved by the fact that it is held largely by the most imperialistic among us, by British born residents in Canada, by descendants of the staunchest U. E. Loyalists. It may be shown hereafter that Lord Alverstone acted from a strictly judicial stand point; it may even be realized that the Canadian commissioners were no less biased than the American; the fact remains that the great majoroty of Canadians firmly believe that the claims and preferences of the United States rank higher in the parent-nation's eyes than their own. And Canadians, who live next door to him, believe they understand Uncle Sam much better than John Bull can possibly do.

Now, Canada's lack of confidence in the perspicacity of Great Britain may be rightly or wrongly based; but in cannot fail, unless remedied, to work disastrously in the the future relations between the two countries. Therefore, let us implore the motherland to learn to know us better, and at closer range, to understand our feelings and aspirations, to mix with us more in our play and in our work. Then will be the day when the average Briton's knowledge of the colonies shall have become no longer a word for laughter or contempt.

STEAM WAGONS.

The steam wagon, as a substitute for the truck or dray, drawn by horses, is apparently on the way to rapid adoption in England. A writer in the current issue of Cassier's Magazine describes its uses and advantages.

He tells us that many of the London municipal corporations have successfully experimented with such wagons. They use them for collecting refuse, for watering the street, and at times, incidentally to other uses, even for sweeping the streets. The war departments of both England and Germany have experimented with them for the carriage of regimental supplies. Among private users the brewers and coal dealers have found them well adapted to their purposes, while the wholesale merchants with heavy goods to move are looking upon them with favor.

The writer argues—his figures are of course based on English conditions — that while the steam wagon costs practically as much as a horse and van equipment of the same capacity, it can be operated for half the expense. A steam wagon that can perform the work of three two-horse drays can be bought, he says, for about $3,250. Three drays at $325, seven horses (one to be held in reserve) at $300, and six sets of harness at $40, would come to about the same figure. The annual expense of the horse system he figures at $3,750, and the annual expense of the steam system at only $1,750, including in both cases, interest, depreciation and repairs.

About 1,200 steam wagons of many different types, are already in use, and the capacity of the factories is engaged in almost every instance well into the future. Great Britain admits the advantage that other countries have gained over her in the manufacture of automobiles for pleasure purposes, but in the matter of steam wagons, she claims to hold the front rank.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Why should consumption and pneumonia devastate this country, when all out of doors if filled with pure, invigorating, healing fresh air? Give the lungs a chance.

It is said that truth is found at the bottom of the well, but it has been recently found at the bottom of Manilla bay by the American contractor who bought the hulks of the Spanish fleet so gloriously demolished to Admiral Dewey after that celebrated adjournment for breakfast. The irrefutable evidence of the hulks themselves, which have now been raised, goes to show that not one of them sustained a shot between wind and water, but were sunk by their panicky crews by the unpicturesque but effective method of opening the deep-sea stop cocks.

An old and respected citizen has sacrificed the accumulations of a lifetime to repair the wrong done by a reckless son, now a fugitive from justice, and in his declining years is forced to seek a home in distant parts, where he can easier live down the bitter experience; and a devoted wife in St. Louis, whose husband lies at the point of death as the result of exposures affecting his integrity, is sacrificing all of her rich possessions in an attempt to right the wrongs he has been guilty of. And yet there are people who go right on through life, apparently oblivious to the eternal truth that the consequence of man's wrongdoing falls more heavily on the innocent than on the guilty.

GRAND COUNTESS AT THE WASH TUB

Danghter of General of the Brigade In the Army

Wife of Count De Francqueville Lost Her Money and is in Want.

Paris, Nov. 2—Paris possesses a blanchisseuse, or washerwoman, who is a countess and the goddaughter of no less a person than the late duc D'Aumale, who was also godfather and uncle of the late Prince Henri D'Orleans.

Paragraphs to this effect have appeared in the press without locating or naming the countess, but the correspondent found her before an ironing-board at 11 Rue Lecluse, a narrow street in the poor quarter of Mont Martre, near the Place Clichy.

Laundry is Tiny.

Her laundry comprises a room possibly six yards square, with appurtenances pitiably inadequate. The countess, a refined and dignified little woman, wore a dark apron and black stockings. She wore glasses and suffering was written upon without obliterating the nobility of her features. When the correspondent offered the noble washerwoman his card, simultaneously explaining his mission, she said:

"No, no, I can't be interviewed. It's impossible. My two assistants have already left me on learning my identity. They are of the people and said mockingly, 'We cannot think of working beside such a grand dame.' Then the landlord came, and I was forced to borrow $2 to pay the balance of a month's rent," said the poor countess, tears rising in her eyes.

Grants an Interview.

She was assured that the correspondent wanted her story for America only. The countess invited the correspondent to take the solitary chair.

"Not while you stand, countess," replied the correspondent.

"Don't treat me as a countess," she answered. "I am only a poor washerwoman and a very miserable one."

As a compromise both stood.

"I am the countess de Francqueville, daughter of a general of brigade in the French army in Africa," she said. "Father was promoted from colonel by Napoleon III and on several occasions saved the life of the duc d'Aumale. From gratitude the duc become my godfather. I was born at sea off Algiers, my mother dying at my birth. My husband, the count de Francqueville was my cousin german and our names were the same before marriage. My huband committed suicide twenty years ago, after losing a large sum at baccarat.

Was Once Rich.

"Once I had $40,00 income from property left by my father, but I lost my fortune in the Roussel & Meyer banking failure. While the duc lived he made liberal provision for me personally, but in his will, instead of leaving me a modest pension, he left me a sum involving millions. His relatives refused payment, and I lack funds to fight in the courts.

"I have tried many things in my struggle for life, even sewing rabbit skins. Then I decided to try a laundry, getting this little place on credit. But now the story is out, and I am undone, deserted by my assistants and my credit gone. Before this I could make nearly $4 weekly, after paying my two women, but, worst of all, the duc's name is dragged into this miserable store."

Turning to hide her tears, the poor noblewoman pretended to occupy herself with her work. Ganling composure, the countess explained that the duc de Chartres, brother of D'Aumale, the duc de Nemours and the other ducal nephews, including the duc d'Orleans, pretender to the crown, are still such a power in France that no leading lawyer would dare to undertake to fight her case honestly.

Fears the Pretender.

"If I ever push my claim I shall leave France and go to England during the trial. I am fearful of what might befall me. In this same quarter lives an old servant of the duc, to whom he left a pension of 6,000 francs yearly. The heirs even refused to pay this. His wife died of chagrin, and he is now a concierge."

The countess is apparently 48 years old. The duc D'Aymale left the Chantilly estate, valued at many millions to the state, a large sum to his brother, the duc de Chartres, and provided for his newphews, leaving the bulk to the duc d'Orleans.

Several other well known public men in Paris appeared familiar with the matter but affirmed abruptly that the affair partook of the nature of "submerged diplomacy" which is no food for mere public babes. The Qiau d'Orsay seems at present to hide some diplomatic intrigue. The officials from M. Delcasse down go around with a mysterious hurried pre-occupied air.

The Physician as a Gambler.

The physician is generally considered to be rather a poor business man, and his history in Toronto compels us to assert that he is not a good gambler. The historian tells us that all peoples, of all shades and colors, gamble, but the biggest plunger of the lot is the Anglo-Saxon, "because of his superb vital lifeforce." We incline chiefly to three forms: horses, cards and stock margins. The gambler at the Woodbine has a good time for a couple of weeks, has his ups and downs, and, of course, comes out short at the end of the races. He doesn't mind, however, if he has had lots of fun, and he goes to work with the laudable aim of saving something for the next races. Card gambling is less healthy. The player works at night in a room which becomes close and stuffy, and generally smokes and drinks too much. Neither of these forms of gambling is considered correct; neither meets with the approval of the clergy.

Stock gambling is really the only form that is eminently respectable. Here the doctor can work shoulder to shoulder with the preacher, the elder, the church warden, the class leader, the widow and orphan, or the fellow who has the widow's and orphan's money. We understand that the preacher is more scientific in his methods than the innocent doctor, and becomes therefore the shrewder speculator; he knows more about selling short. We learn from experts that in stock margin gambling it is more satisfactory to sell what you haven't got than to buy what you don't get.

Of course, in the long run, the large dealers capture the pots. They then become great philanthropists, pillars of churches, and by common consent occupy the highest seats in the synagogue. Occasionally, however, even the topnotchers come to grief, but strong influences come to their rescue. The press loudly proclaims that they are men of undoubted integrity. The banks help them in various ways and assume an "attitude" that has a "reassuring effect." In troublous times things sometimes become unhinged, but gradually "stability" comes. This is well explained in a certain instance in one of the leading papers as follows: "The cause making for stability is the fact that many weak holders have been wiped out, and their places taken by strong interests, fully able to protect themselves." The devil may take care of the small holders, the press, the banks, and the people in high places don't bother much about them.

Stock fever has been endemic among the physicians of Toronto for the last twenty-five years. Our profession furnishes a fine share of the "small dealers" who are necessary for the game. Duffin's Creek, Hogs' Hollow and Mimico stocks are put on the market at a suitable time. They may mean nothing, but for gambling purposes they answer very well for a while. The nothing is intermingled with the substantial in a very ingenious way. Whether one is buying 10 per cent. of nothing or of something he is in any case getting nothing. The physician who gets his tip, buys and sells shrewdly, and increases a capital of one or two hundred to five hundred or a thousand dollars within a year is for a time the happiest man who walks our streets. There have been many of them during the last five years, but he is generally sadder and wiser to-day. After careful consideration and consultation with those who know we tender the following advice to the clever and ambitious young physician: Don't be a clam start at once; play the game like a man, you will be more apt to be closed out soon.—"Canadian Practitioner and Review."

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure the gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house or sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

RED ROSE TEA A NAME THAT IS A GUARANTEE OF QUALITY

(Concluded from yesterday)

A BY-WAY TO FORTUNE

Creomley Wood sported at dusk—they had little to fear now from Ned Foster, the poacher. Yet, if in some places age, decay and death had sown their desolation, in others the signs of new work and progress appeared: a school, a public-house, a railway, marked their different aspects. It was from the nearest station on this line that I found myself trudging one dark night. The season was a rainy one, I remember; the day, like many of its fellows, showery, and though it was fine when I left the little platform, the clouds now threatened an outburst at any moment. I am not a timid man, yet many times in that walk through the wet, muddy lanes I glanced over my shoulders uneasily into the darkness. I fancied continually that I caught the sound of footsteps at a measured distance behind me; pausing to listen, there was nothing but a tremulous rustling of leaves before the rain. About a mile from home I reached a field-path, in crossing which a considerable saving in time and labor could be effected by those who knew it well enough to travel by night. After a moment's hesitation—for the nervous feeling still had a grip of my mind—a few large spots of rain urged me to immediate decision; so, leaving the road, I pushed on at a swinging stride along the lonely footpath. Down came the rain in heavy thunder-drops. Recalling thankfully that my way led by the ruined poacher's cottage, I quickened pace and neared the four bare walls at a run. Had I gone inside there would have been more shelter, but the darkness of the interior looked so blank and eerie that I merely crouched under the outside masonry, comforting myself with the thought that the shower would probably be as short as it was fierce. I might have stood there five minutes, when a noise, the clink of a nailed boot on stone, startled me. Peering in through an opening where two of the walls had gaped apart, I saw, to my astonishment, a faint light shining. This speck, growing larger and brighter, resolved itself into a candle flickering from a nook of the dilapidated fireplace; beside it, as if waiting for the feeble wick to gather force, stood two men. A tangled mass of creepers drooped across the gap in the sides of the cottage, and enabled me to watch intently their movements without much risk of being observed; for which, when the light fell more strongly on them, I felt very grateful, as their appearance did not invite confidence. Beyond this one mutual trait, they were types of men as unlike as possible. The nearest to me was of small build, unmistakably Jewish in countenance, and dressed in shabby smart clothes, from which he now scraped recent mud-splashes carefully; the other had a powerful frame, a hard, worn face, wild eyes, and unkempt grizzled hair. He looked like some ragged outcast, and carried, I noticed with alarm, a short iron bar. This man stood shading his eyes with one hand, whilst he gazed round the deserted home.

"To come to this!" he said in a hoarse voice.

There was a long silence, broken at length by the other. "Hold up, my friend; you learnt what to expect," he said, flicking himself with a red silk handkerchief.

"They told me that she was dead; they told me the old house was fallen; but could a man a' believed this?—trees growing from the hearth; beasts of the field treading through it as they will." His voice rose in pitch at each word.

"Hush! somebody might hear us, my friend; you know we have got better work on hand to-night than crying over spilt milk." He spoke with a cunning power in his voice.

"Ay, you're right, my lad," cried the elder man, his voice changing at once; "that's all gone and done with. I've paid the price—fifteen years of hell, and this"—he waved his hand round the ruins—"but it's my turn at last. Such sparklers, my lad, such sparklers!"

"Now you are talking like a man should," approved the other, nodding his head, "so let's get to business; that fool in front of us on the road has delayed it more than enough already."

This was the home-coming of Ned Foster, and thus I chanced to be a spectator of the sequel to the great diamond robbery.

At the Jew's last request, Ned Foster now took a step forward, then stared round the four tumble down walls in a vacant, bewildered fashion.

"Well, what's the matter now?" asked the Jew in a querulous tone.

"It is all so broken down, there's no trace even of the stairs. I can't fix the spot."

His companion bit his lips in vexation, but replied in the same cool, even manner: "Come, pull yourself together, friend; this is no way of doing business. You buried them under a flag at the bottom of the stairs, you say?"

The returned convict nodded.

"Can you remember where these stairs stood?"

"Between the two rooms about here, I think." He walked two-thirds down the cottage and hesitated.

"Well, then, one room must have been much larger than the other," said the little man, closing his eyes shrewdly.

"No, they were both about the same size; leastways this was a bit the biggest," replied Ned Foster, pointing helplessly to the smaller third of the interior which he had marked as cut off by the stairs. From his dazed expression it was plain to me that his memory had almost entirely given way. The Jew jumped up in a sudden paroxysm of rage. "You fool," he shrieked, "if the stairs are where you have placed them, how can that be the largest room?"

There was a long pause while Ned Foster rubbed his forehead despondently, and the other paced up and down to regain composure.

"Come, this is no way of doing business, friend," again said the Jew. He scanned the convict's face long and thoughtfully, after which he started the most extraordinary cross-examination I have ever heard, putting one question after another, and perceiving the coming answer so rapidly that the man before him had not time to form his words ere he anticipated them and passed to another query. They ran something after this: "Now, friend," in a sharp voice, "which room did you live in? which room did you see the light in of nights when you came home from work? This, you say," as they walked to the end of the cottage indicated. "Now where did you have your table? In the middle of the room?—right, friend. When you sat at your supper, were you near the fire? About a yard and a half off, was it? Very well, then, we may put one side of the table here." He marked the distance off from the old hearth by a stone. "How broad was this table? A little over a yard, you think, friend." He again placed a stone to mark it. "Now was there anything between this side of the table and the wall? A dresser where your wife kept her crockery?—good. Could you pass easily between this dresser and the table? Yes. Well, we will give it this much, and, adding a yard for the width, it will bring the wall here," placing another stone.

So, after similar measurements in all directions and innumerable questions, a complete ground-plan of the cottage was obtained, and finally a certain spot located under which the Jew confidently asserted was the particular flag-stone they required.

The consternation of the convict had now left him; a feverish eagerness prevailed in its stead, and he fell to the excavation of earth and fallen masonry, which had accumulated to some depth over the stone floor of the cottage. It was heavy work, and the single tool they had was of little assistance to them; so, unwilling as he seemed to be, the worker was soon compelled to relinquish the task to his companion, who continued it in a much more leisurely style. Ned Foster now squatted down, holding the candle, and presently, when his breath had returned, spoke again:

"When I remember all I've gone through for these diamonds and how little you've done, it makes me wonder how I ever came to share 'em with you," he said, musing gloomily.

The Jew straightened his back for a moment as he replied contemptuously: "You—what can you do without me, friend? Get caught over the first stones; get a shilling where I can give you a pound. Where would you have been just now if not for me?" He spat as if disgusted, and resumed his work. The convict continued to mumble and wink at the candle till he spoke aloud once more:

"I don't go back on taking you in; it's only—only——"

"Only what, friend?"

"Only, if you should try to cheat me over them, my lad," his voice going very low, "nothing could save you or hide you from me or keep me off you. I've waited fifteen years for these, I'd wait fifty for you. I'd have your blood if I followed you to——"

"Come, friend, what's the good of going into all this?" interrupted the Jew: "it's not business, I say." He spoke soothingly, but the gleam of his black eyes flashed to where I stood.

Presently, when they had dug down about two feet, I caught the ring of iron on the flags.

"Let me come down to it now, do you hear?" shouted the elder man so eagerly as almost to threaten.

"Just as you please, friend," was the cool reply; "you could have done it all if you liked. Have we hit the right flagstone?"

Ned Foster nodded—he seemed too full for speech—and began to use the bar as a lever, for which purpose it had evidently been brought. The stone was soon pried up, and going down on his knees he burrowed in the earth underneath with his hands. First he drew out a rust-eaten gun-barrel; then a bundle of game-wires, the rotting pegs still dangling from them; after that the gun stock, and a steel gin or two. On each of these coming to light they laughed excitedly; but a long, anxious silence followed as he searched for something lying still deeper. It was a strange scene: the two men in this desolated house, through which the candle shed a quivering light, throwing up vividly the dark alert features of the Jew who held it whilst it imparted an odd, fantastic appearance to the other's bent figure, half hidden in the earth; the whole framed by the outside darkness and the stillness of night, for the rain had long ceased.

Suddenly Ned Foster sprung up with a cry, grasping a battered tin shot-flask. I could hear the rattle of hard objects inside. His senses seemed to leave him and he ran to a corner by himself, clutching the canister to his body, as if afraid the air might rob him of his treasure. The Jew's face had flushed, too, in the first moment, but he sneered now at his companion's frenzy, and without a word started to push the earth and flagstone into the hole. Meanwhile the convict, recovering somewhat from his overpowering emotion, knelt down where the earth was smooth, and pulling a dirty rag from his pocket, spread it out before him; then he twisted the top from the shot-flask, and poured the diamonds gloatingly one by one on the rag. Every now and again I caught a sparkle as the candle-flame trembled in the air. This sight overcame the apparent indifference of the Jew, for he drew near and watched the little heap grow slowly larger with a fascinated gaze.

"How many more have you got there, friend?" he asked almost in a whisper, as the other paused and looked up in his face.

"More—twice as many—three times as many." He shook the flask and laughed.

I don't think that the past fifteen years and the ruin they had brought with them weighed on the convict's mind at that moment. The man standing knelt down beside him, and, taking a few stones in his hand, examined them with the air of an expert, the other eyeing him suspiciously.

A long, a very long pause ensued. At length the Jew regained his feet. As he turned, I was almost startled into an exclamation that must have betrayed me, his features had such a ghastly expression. He took two or three hasty turns up and down, and pulling a bottle from his coat, gulped down the contents like a man with a fever thirst on him. Ned Foster's eyes never shifted, but still no word was uttered.

"Friend," said the Jew at length, "do you know what share of those stones I want?"

There was no reply.

"I don't want one, not one; you can keep 'em all," he snarled, showing his teeth.

Still no answer, but the convict ran his hand through the stones; it seemed as if he failed to understand the words spoken to him.

"I am counted a good judge by my friends in the trade," continued the Jew, "and I think if you sell them well—very well, mind—they will about pay your fare to London. I shall try and find the way back myself. Don't ever come near me again. I might—I might do you harm, my friend." He stepped out into the darkness with the most venomous contortion in his face human creature ever bore. As for Ned Foster, he took not the slightest notice, but continued to play with the spurious gems, uttering at intervals a low, gleeful laugh.

I comprehended then how Squire Venne had managed to pay his debts, and enable his wife still to wear diamonds, if only of paste.

Thus ended Omega, the final scene of this tragedy; what remains is of the simplest. In one of Squire Venne's almshouses lived for a few years a broken old man, oblivious of all—name, birthplace, career—whose sole remaining impulse was to guard and surreptitiously play with a handful of paste diamonds. To the day of his death none save the squire, himself an aged man, and the writer, recognized in him Ned Foster, the ex-convict. He lies buried by his faithful wife, Martha.

Byways to fortune, easier traveling, shorter though they may seem than the high road, "the straight way and the true," along which slow and honest folk plod, generally turn out very rough and tortuous paths indeed, their wayfarers often losing themselves in a valley, windy at the mouth, and ending in a great darkness.

COPETE MINING CO.

27 William Street, New York

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tulloch, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Erwin D Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.[illegible] a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

YOUR MONEY WORKS WHILE YOU SLEEP

Our famous corps of track sharps are up at break of day, "clocking" the horses in their morning tryouts and while you sleep they spot the winners that bring you steady income.—Our method puts you on a level with the most successful plungers of the American turf.—We operate for you for 25 per cent. of weekly earnings.—We win only when you win.—Results obtained really "beyond dreams of avarice."

Again we scored heavily for all of our clients last month. Again we landed the money and landed it in chunks. Three years of organization, with the best facilities that money and brains can procure to make our service of picking and backing winners at the horse races the most accurate and profitable in the land, has had its natural sequence, and each week our showing demonstrates a good profit for every client.

How $50 netted $201.75 in less than a month.

Here is a complete statement, showing the result of a $10 play on each horse given in our "Discretionary Series" during October. (Note: A capital to begin with of $50 is required by us, as a matter of conservatism, to make a $10 play on each horse that is considered by us a good betting proposition.)

The above showing is no improvement over that of September, and is not remarkable, since we have excelled it time and time again during the past three years of our uninterrupted operations. Good as it is, however, we are confident we will make it "look sick" by comparison with the showing we are going to make at the meeting of 100 days which begins at New Orleans this month.

WE PICK THE WINNERS

The system we employ to locate winners is identical with that used by "Pittsburg Phil," John A. Drake, John Gates, W. Langdon, Joe Yeager, and other famous plungers who win hundreds of thousands on the turf every year, and it proves just as successful.

We gather our information of prospective winners through a force of expert horsemen who hold a watch on the horses in their early-morning trials, and in that way learn which are ready to win.

The money that is played into the game by persistent losers, such as the large mass of uninformed players are, bound to be, goes into the pockets of the big operators, of which the Maxim & Gay Co. representing a large clientele, stands at the head. The work of the Maxim & Gay Co. is to place the general public on a level with the winning plungers, and our success in this accomplishment has made us famous on two continents.

We do business only on the great racetracks of the U. S. We number among our clients some of the best known sportsmen, financiers and merchants in the country. Investment on the turf is now classed as legitimate as any other high-class form of speculation. The present high standard to which racing has been brought, and the absolutely good faith in which turf affairs are conducted under the auspices of the Jockey Club in the East, and the Western Jockey Club in the West, has inspired millionaire capitalists and business men all over the country with as much confidence in racing as in the stock, grain, and cotton markets, and this is one reason why transactions in the betting rings now rival in magnitude those of the stock, cotton, and grain exchanges.

Another reason for the rapid growth of turf speculation in popular favor, is the rapidity with which all transactions are wound up. The speculator makes his investment at the racetrack in the afternoon through us and receives a notification by mail, in a letter guaranteed to bear a postmark earlier than the race is run, of just what horses are to be backed for his account. By the next mail he is informed of the result of that day's operations, and he learns quickly just where he stands. At the end of each week he receives a complete statement of his account with a money order for his profits, less 25 per cent., which we deduct as our fee.

This gives a wholesome tone to legitimate turf speculation which cannot be found in the more or less involved transactions of the big exchanges, and this is why turfmen live more comfortably and live longer than do men whose involved transactions are on their minds day and night, for weeks and sometimes for months at a stretch.

OUR CLIENTS WON A MILLION DOLLARS

As it is well known that our client have collectively won as much as a million dollars at a single race meeting, it is sometimes asked: "Why do not Maxim & Gay simply sit down and back their own selections, instead of running a considerable clerical force and spending large sums in advertising in newspapers throughout the country?"

The answer is simple enough if one stops to consider the situation. Maxim & Gay, by dint of energy, ability, organization, capital and advertising, have secured an enormous clientele, which assures the command of immense capital. If we can pick winners for this immense number of investors, our profits are larger than if we played our own money only, for on a basis of 25 per cent. of winnings, which we charge for information and commission, one man out of every four of our customers is practically betting for us. The proof that this plan works for the benefit of the public as well as that they win three weeks out of four and our books show that no customer who stuck to us for two months ever failed to get well ahead of the game, while not a few of those who now own winning stables of race horses and who are cutting an important figure on the turf, began the game as mere novices, playing our selections through us.

The principle upon which we operate is such that we must of necessity do the best we can for you. Our income, as pointed out, is derived solely from a percentage of the winnings of our clients, and if we cannot make you win, our entire income is cut off. That we have been successful in making our clients win, is amply proven by the fact that we have prospered for upward of three years, while imitators, pursuing more economical and less businesslike methods have gone under by the score. Noting the success that was being achieved by Maxim & Gay, scores of "get-rich-quick" operators tried to break into the field successfully occupied by the older and more responsible form, but it did not take the press and public long to discriminate between the legitimate and the illegitimate, and as a result we have continued to flourish uninterruptedly while in the ranks of our rivals there have been scores of enterprises initiated, only to end in failure.

A Few of Hundreds of Recent Endorsements of the Press

CINCINNATI COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE, March 1, 1903

Maxim & Gay, who have been so successful in selecting winners at the New Orleans races, are in a class by themselves and have no relation in their system of operation to the "get-rich-quick" schemes that have recently gone to pieces disastrously to those who patronized them. Maxim & Gay do not guarantee their clients profits nor against losses, but merely play the money of their subscribers and deduct a fixed percentage from winnings for placing the commissions. This point is made clear in all their announcements. What they guarantee to do is to confidentially handle all money forwarded them and place it on the races just as if it were their own. They have in their employ as "clockers" the most expert judges of track work in the country, and there is not a horse at the New Orleans meeting that they have not a record of. The information collected in this way is used to the benefit of their subscribers, and its reliable character is attested by the numerous winners they have picked in the past two weeks.

Maxim & Gay are the pioneers in this line of investment or speculation; they have been established three years; they conduct their business on straightforward business lines; their methods have been thoroughly investigated and are entirely different from those pursued by the "get-rich-quick" schemes, so called, which were but recently closed by the authorities. The transactions of Maxim & Gay are legal in every sense, and they do exactly what they advertise to do, that is, play the money of their subscribers on the horses they judge will win, and they usually win. Prompt and proper accounting is made of the result, but they guarantee no fixed profits, those who have continuously patronized them have not been losers.

ST. PAUL DISPATCH, February 28, 1903

An investigation of the methods of the Maxim & Gay Co. shows them to be conducting their business on straightforward business lines. They have been established nearly three years. They do not guarantee clients profits or against loss, but merely place subscribers' money on judgment of experts, charging a fee for information and deduct a fixed percentage from winnings for placing the commissions. They are the pioneers in this line of investment or speculation.

N. Y. MORNING TELEGRAPH, February 22, 1903.

Since the incorporation of the Maxim & Gay Co., the casual racegoer can possess himself of as much if not more knowledge of the comparative merits of the horses, and their chances of success, as the "regular" who burns the midnight oil studying from charts. He can secure through this company, which is incorporated under the laws of New York State, the expert knowledge and expert judgment of an experienced combination of horsemen whose duty it is to find out for him such things concerning the horses as he could not possibly find out for himself, unless he devoted his entire time and attention to the business. Even then, to do so well, he would have to possess a peculiar talent and be specially fitted by experience and natural ability.

CINCINNATI TIMES-STAR, March 3, 1903.

The Maxim & Gay Company, well-known purveyors of turf information, should not be confounded with "get rich quick" turf investment or concerns of similar character. They have been established nearly three years. They place subscribers money on judgment of their experts, and deduct a fixed percentage from winnings for placing the commissions. They are the Napoleons in this line of investment or speculation.

MEMPHIS EVENING SCIMITAR, March 2, 1903

The advertisements that appear from time to time in the columns of various newspapers with reference to the turf plan of Maxim & Gay Company tell a story entirely different from the exploits of the defunct "get-rich-quick" concerns.

The Maxim & Gay Company transact business thoroughly and solely on business principles.

JOIN OUR WINNING ARMY

The greatest race meeting in the history of the South begins at New Orleans within a fortnight. In magnitude it will eclipse all other turf gatherings of the past. The Crescent City Jockey Club knows this to be a banner year and has prepared for it. So have we. If there are more horses at the New Orleans racetrack than ever gathered there before, we have more expert "clockers" and handicappers than we ever employed at any other meeting. They cannot make the game too big for us to handle. We move with the times.

If you want to get aboard our discretionary series, at New Orleans, in which we play daily those and only those horses we think A1 betting propositions, with the privilege of not playing any horses at all on days when we consider conditions unpropitious, fill out the following blank and forward your remittance to us at New Orleans as soon as you can. Play will be begun on the first day of the meeting, if your money reaches us in time; otherwise, we will begin play the first day it reaches us after the meeting has begun. Money should be sent by bank draft, express money order, or currency in registered letter. Uncertified checks are not accepted.

TO MAXIM & GAY CO. (Incorp.), 928 Canal St., New Orleans, La.

In accordance with the terms of your ad. in the Peterborough (Can.) Times, I enclose .... Dollars. Please bet for me daily .... Dollars on each selection of your Discretionary Series at the New Orleans races. You agree to send me every day, in a letter postmarked before the races are run, the names of the horses which will be played for my account that afternoon and to send me statement and check weekly for profits, less 25 per cent. of winnings. Post odds are guaranteed as published in the New Orleans Morning Newspapers. My account is subject to withdrawal in full on demand.

Black Hills Copper Company
LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is new offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

Purchase the Treasury Stock of The Drake Mining Drainage and Tunnel Transportation Co.
OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 150 to 450 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,300 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale 200,000 shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at 20 cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

Active and experienced agents wanted to sell said Preferred Treasury stock on commission

Prospectus can be had on application. Persons desirous of purchasing stock can do so by remitting to the Company by Draft, P. O. or Express Money Order, payable to the order of

THE ROSE OF THE RING

It struck on Marc's ears, mystifying him, checking the words he would have uttered in return.

He could not speak.

He bowed his head, and drew slightly on one side, allowing her to pass.

The next moment he heard a door close between her and himself.

And then, was it a sob—a moan—that echoed out to him from the room in which she had taken refuge?

He moved towards the closed door his heart beating rapidly.

Then, suddenly, he paused, remembering how little right he had to follow h—

His heart seemed to grow as heavy as lead.

A sense of loss swept over him.

And he realised what, until this moment, he had never suspected.

He loved Gretchen.

And the man upstairs had won her for his wife.

She was selling herself to him for his title—for his wealth.

How else would she have consented to such a bondage?

Marc longed to go to her now, and to implore her to forego this marriage

A sense of honor alone kept him from carrying out this impulse. She had chosen, and he had no right to turn her from that choice.

He was disappointed—keenly, bitterly disappointed. Gretchen had seemed beyond anything of this kind—he could have pictured her going through fire and water for anyone she loved, dooming herself to the worst torture, so long as her suffering could have been borne with glory; but to sell herself for sordid wealth, to bind herself to such a life!

His eyes grew fierce as he thought of her, and he paced up and down the hall, his broad shoulders bent, like those of a man who has bowed beneath some heavy blow.

Would we have held his peace and stood aloof, could he have seen Gretchen while these thoughts were coursing through his brain?

She had locked the door, and had flung herself on the floor, her face buried on her outstretched arms, her form quivering with the anguish she was enduring.

How she loathed herself now for her deceit! She crushed her lips against the floor, trying to efface the pollution of that detested caress.

She could not reconcile herself to the fact that she was not Frank's wife. It seemed to her she was doing him some hideous wrong, and a sense of guilt, of burning shame, rushed over her, as she thought of the man she loved, and to whom she had plighted her troth in all purity of soul.

"It is done! It is done!" she wailed. "Pray Heaven we may never meet again—you and I, Frank, whom God hath joined. Oh, Frank—Frank! Why were you so false? This is worse than death!"

When they broke into the room later, she was lying there unconscious, her face pressed upon the floor, her hair dishevelled, her fingers twined in the soft tresses with the madness of despair.

CHAPTER XII.

Frequently as Marc's thoughts wandered to Rosalie, the idea of writing to her did not once occur to him.

It did not dawn upon his mind that she would be anxiously awaiting news of him, or might in any way need his assistance.

To Rosalie the period of his absence seemed an eternity, and, as the days wore on, bringing no news of him, she grew pale and listless, and no longer took interest in what was going on around her.

She hated walking out by herself, and the hours she spent at the window, looking into the street, only helped to depress her, showing her her own loneliness.

Other people seemed so happy in their homes; young wives with their little children, or girls of her own age with loving parents to watch over them

She felt like one cut off from the life on which she gazed.

She had no memory of a father's love or a mother's care, and all the devotions Mrs. West lavished upon her could not recompense her for what she had missed.

The monotony of her life wearied her.

She felt tied down by invisible bonds that weighed hourly upon her, and from which there was no possibility of an escape.

If she could only have gone where Marc was, she would have been happy, content with any drudgery, so that she could now and then hear his voice, and win a smile all for herself.

One chill evening, Mrs. West came into the room, and found her standing at the window in the old dejected attitude.

It had been raining, and the window-panes were too blurred for the girl to see anything of what was passing outside.

She was gazing into vacancy, and, noticing this, Mrs. West laid her hand on the girl's shoulder, and broke into a hearty laugh.

"Dreaming again?" she said. "I'd give more than a penny to know your thoughts. What were you thinking about, my pretty?"

"I was thinking of Mr. Wilberforce."

"And with tears in your eyes, too! Well, it's no more than could be expected. I don't suppose we shall ever see him again. He's found a home somewhere else, and has forgotten all about you and me. He may even be getting married for all we know, and he'd want a better place than this for his wife."

"I would give so much to see him again!" Rosalie exclaimed, pressing her forehead against the window-pane to hide her tears. "He said he would come back, and that he would never forget me. Do you think he has forgotten—so soon?"

"So soon? He's been away a long time now, and I doubt if we shall ever set eyes on him again. I wish he'd never left us. It isn't often anybody as good as he was is come across."

"He said he would not forget me," Rosaline went on, keeping up the old refrain. "I look for him every day, and every day I am disappointed. If he would only write and let me know when he will come back!"

"Write, your dearie? he would not think of such a thing. What are we to him that he should take notice of us after he's gone?"

Rosaline knew what the words implied, and flashed round angry eyes.

"Why was I born to such a life?" she exclaimed, her nature rising in rebellion against the strain put upon her. "I want to be free. I want to be rich and honored! Why should I be less to Mr. Wilberforce than the greatest lady in the land? If it is because I am of lowly birth, I would I had never been born! I cannot live this life; I would as soon be bound, hand and foot, and flung into life-long imprisonment."

Mrs. West looked at the girl in silence, pained beyond measure at this return for her devotion.

It was the first time Rosaline had uttered any complaint against her lot; and overcome by this burst of ingratitude [illegible] broke into tears.

Sheep Need Salt.

A test of the value of salt for sheep has recently been made in France. Three lots were treated alike as to food and care; one lot was given no salt; one had half an ounce per day, and the third had three-fourths of an ounce per day. Those having the half-ounce per day made a gain of 4½ pounds over those having no salt, and nearly as much over those having three-fourths of an ounce. Those having salt made 134 pounds more wool than those having no salt. There were twelve sheep in each lot.

Co-operative Testing of Dairy Herds Wanted.

Last winter the Dominion Department of Agriculture called attention to the co-operative system of testing dairy herds which prevails in Denmark, and recommended the establishment of a somewhat similar system among Canadian farmers. At the present time dairymen are finding it almost impossible to get milkers, and it seems more necessary than ever before that they should not waste time feeding and milking inferior cows. That the time is opportune for concerted action to improve the standard of our dairy herds can scarcely be doubted. A recent letter from Mr. Dan. Drummond of the Department of Agriculture tells of the feeling in Quebec in regard to this question. He mentions several breeders in the neighborhood of Danville who are very anxious to have a system of records of production established, and kept under reliable supervision. These breeders are giving up the keeping of private records, because, as they say, of the fact that such records are satisfactory only to themselves, and are so easily falsified that buyers put no confidence in them. If any system could be devised under which the records would be recognized as official and reliable, the breeders mentioned would be quite willing to assist in making it a success. Mr. Drummond continues:—"This is a live question all through the Province where I have met breeders. At St. Liboire I met the Secretary of their Farmers' Club, who told me that they had just concluded their competition for the best milch cows; that is, the cows giving the largest amount of milk in twenty-four hours, at home, and under supervision. They had thirteen cows in the competition, the best giving 62 pounds, and the poorest 42 pounds, of milk in the day, a showing very creditable to the French-Canadian farmers of that district."—Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Making Veals on Skim Milk.

One of the important by-products of the dairy farm is the skim milk, if the farmer will but study how to use it in the most economical manner. A large proportion of the calves among creamery patrons are sold when a few days old for a trifling sum. Yet these men have all the means at hand to make a handsome profit out of the skim milk by feeding it to the male valves, and turning them at 5 to 6 weeks of age for veals.

A Massachusetts farmer describes how he does it in a recent communication to The American Cultivator. He says:—

"It does not seem to be generally known that first-class veals can be made on a basis of sweet skim milk. Yet a great many calves reach the market and bring high prices, although never fed a quart of whole milk after the first day or two of their lives. These calves, if properly grown, look as well as any. Butchers say there is not so much internal fat, and the calf is therefore not quite so heavy as the whole milk calf, but he brings the same price, at least in the markets of towns and small cities. The writer last summer sold calves which brought the going price in the local market, 6½ cents live weight, and averaged about $9.90 value at five weeks, but were fed practically nothing but sweet skimmed or separated milk, to which was added a handful of fine wheat flour for each gallon. It was reckoned that the skim milk so used, brought about two cents per quart. The flour cost about thirty cents per calf. Flour, being fine and starchy, is mixed easily with milk and is much better than anything else. Other farmers in the vicinity use extra fine ground corn meal, fine feed, oat meal, etc., but with less satisfaction. The main points are to have the milk sweet and plenty of it at fairly regular hours, and to give the calf nearly, but not quite, all he will drink. One feed a day from the cow during the last week is a help, but is not usually necessary. It is important to have plenty of dry bedding to save warmth, as a skim-fed calf has no fat to waste keeping his body warm. Pails should be rinsed after every feed to avoid disease.

That point about dry bedding is very important. It is much harder to provide for this with male valves, but it will pay richly to see that it is done. In all of our calf-raising we have considered this point of keeping the little animal dry and clean as one of the highest importance.—"Hoard's Dairyman."

AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY
FOR BOTH LARGE AND SMALL INVESTORS

Owing to valuable Patents having been granted this Company, we are desirous of extending our business to the Dominion of Canada. Owing to the Customs duties, the extra cost in transportation and the numerous expenses attached, and the delays in deliveries in shipping goods from one country to another, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a factory in the Dominion, that we may be in a position to meet the immediate wants of the business

The articles that we make from our Patent Fabric are too numerous to mention, and it is not necessary that we go into the details of the merits of our goods, as they are already in use to a large extent and have no equal. Our goods are covered by several patents, and the profit on the goods is large, averaging from 25 to 100 per cent, thus affording the company large revenue to meet all its obligations

In order to secure funds to equip a plant in the Dominion of Canada we will offer to the people of Canada $100,000 of our Bonds paying ten per cent. interest per annum.

Experience has shown that stocks based upon sound industrial enterprises have never been equalled from the standpoint of legitimate profit. For instance, a few hundred dollars invested in the Bell Telephone Company's stock in the beginning of the enterprise now commands thousands of dollars, after having yielded large dividends annually. Of course opportunities for such profitable investments do not present themselves every day, and it is also very true that a vast amount of capital has been misdirected in the endeavor to exploit inventions and enterprises which shrewd and far seeing investors should have recognized as impractical. But as regards this enterprise even the most conservative must admit it has possibilities of development which are almost incalculable and which have already been demonstrated in a practical manner. We have no speculative elements—this is a sound business proposition, and the patents which we own are worth several million dollars, as there can only be one fabric of this kind and that is ours.

All the above facts are simple statements of the truth and can be fully substantiated to the satisfaction of all investors.

The business is no experiment, the incorporators of this Company have made it their business for a great many months past and understand all the details, the prospects are therefore bright, and brighter than those of many other opportunities.

This Company is not a promotors company, every dollar goes to enhance the value of the property and business and increase the capacity. There is nothing speculative in this proposition, the enterprises are undertaken for industrial purposes only to make profits by the operation and development of the business.

Considering that the enterprise is already upon an established basis with a certainty of profitable future expansion, we feel warranted in the assertion that this is an attractive proposition to investors whether large or small.

The price of these Bonds are one dollar each, and will be issued in any number wanted. With every purchaser of each five Bonds we will give as a bonus, one share of stock of the Company, the par value of which is five dollars per share, thus assuring interest on the investment, and with the stock which is bound to increase you will have for nothing. These Bonds will be issued for five years. Persons desiring to avail themselves of this opportunity want to send their remittance at once.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 166 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

New York, Nov. 4—The market will be dull and uninteresting until after the elections are over and nothing can be said to warrant one side or the other of the run of values. On the other hand the bank statement turned out to be better than anticipated and this will mean cheaper money rates. The position of the market has not materially changed and anyone who felt confidence in the outlook a week ago has no reason for altering his opinion now. A bull market has never yet been checked by a money market arising from legitimate causes; one reason why the market is disliked now is that there seems to be more manipulation which is always the beginning of every market movement.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 4—There was a strong movement in the December option Saturday and there is therefore some basis for the talk in circulation that the elevator concerns are in with the bulls on December wheat. Armour is believed to have sold a part of his line. The shorts in December are believed to have been pretty well cleaned out, but in the May option there is still a substantial interest on the bear side. There is a moderate cash business and exports are looking up. The corn market was without special feature. The country movement is still rather mixed, but the weather map is favorable and it is expected that before long there will be some new corn moving. An improvement in export demand is needed at this time to sustain a bullish position.

New Version of an Old Story.

Leopold de Rothschild, in his speech as chairman of the Newspaper Press Fund dinner in London the other day, demolished the tradition about the way in which his grandfather obtained advance news of the victory at Waterloo. According to the current story, which even the "Encyclopaedia Britannica" repeats Nathan Mayer Rothschild was present at the battle, and hurried back to London as soon as he saw it was decided, getting there some hours before the news became known, and making enormous profits by buying up stocks. His grandson told the newspaper men that "the accurate story would appeal to them as journalists, viz., that the news came through the medium of a small Dutch newspaper. The news was published in a single line: 'Great victory of the English at Waterloo.' His grandfather, who was the owner of some ships, told his captains that whenever they went anywhere they were always to bring him the latest newspapers. One of these trusted captains arrived with a paper announcing the great victory. His grandfather, who believed, as they all did now, in the accuracy of all newspapers, immediately took the news to the Treasury, and gave the information to Lord Liverpool. He did not tell him how he knew it, and his news was scouted because the intelligence had arrived of the defeat of the English troops on the previous day."

How Nordica Stood Up for Duss.

Atlantic City society is excited over a snub administered by Mme. Nordica and Edouard de Reszke, who appeared there the other day in concert. It occurred to several leaders that it would be a nice thing to entertain the singers. The details were worked out by Mrs. Wilfred Lawson Peel, and Frank Weldon, acting for Mrs. Peel, issued invitations to Mme. Nordica and M. de Reszke. The singers accepted, and elaborate preparations were made for the affair. Society people were on hand to meet the artists, but they did not appear, or send excuses. When the guests realized the situation, they were thoroughly disgusted and chagrined. It appears that when Mme. Nordica and M. de Reszke accepted the invitations they supposed that John S. Duss, with whose band they are traveling, had also been invited. When they learned that Mr. Duss had not been invited, they resolved not to go.

Moving Again

Cobourg Post—Now that the double track is completed the Grand Trunk Railway company, it is said, have again turned their attention to the proposed branch line running northward from a point near "Hamilton House," to a point north of Port Hope, making a direct connection with their system at Lindsay and Midland. It is reported that engineers have been on the scene during the past week and that construction will commence early in the spring. Should this change take place the portion of the Midland running into Port Hope will be abandoned so far as through freight is concerned. At present the company is greatly in need of such a branch to relieve the Grand Junction which is heavily taken with through traffic.

HAS CHANGED ATTITUDE

Andrew Carnegie is Now Anxious to Please Canada

London, Nov. 3—Andrew Carnegie is not quite so thick-skinned as is imagined. At all events he is showing an eager desire to make friends with Canada after his recent caustic Canadian criticisms. Not alone has the withdrawn from the election of Chancellor of Aberdeen University in favor of Lord Strathcona, but has made an emphatic appeal that the university nominate Lord Strathcona unanimously and give him the highest honors.

Looking Ahead.

"I have been thinking," remarked a thoughtful looking man to a chance acquaintance—"I have been thinking what I shall put my boy to when he is old enough.

"At present I am a little uncertain whether it would not be wise to let him finish his education in Germany, so that he might have the advantage of a continental training and the chances of acquiring another language besides his own. Otherwise I should probably send him to some technical school here, for I am a great believer in handicrafts. My wife talks of giving him a university education, but I don't know. It rather unfits a fellow for anything but a professional career, and they say that all the professions are overcrowded."

The other man agreed.

"Better let him learn a good trade," he said; "electrical engineering or something of that kind. But, by the way, how old is he?"

"Well," replied the anxious parent, "I'm looking ahead a little, of course—he's three months old to-day."

A Proposition of Special Merit to be Offered Canadian Investors

STONY PASS MINING CO.

SILVERTON, COLO.

has appointed a local Canadian Fiscal Agent, in the person of Messrs. Thomas Patterson & Son, brokers, who will make an announcement in a day or two that will interest the investors of Canada. It is proposed to send a representative from Canada to visit the mines and property of the company, and report thereon so as to prove beyond doubt its splendid worth. The proposition is one that will bear the closest investigation. The company is splendidly officered by men of honor and business integrity, known throughout the country for their high character and business ability.

A meeting is being arranged to take place at an early date, when those who propose to invest in the Company's stock will have the privilege of selecting one the number to visit the mines.

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100 foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Cold Mining Co. is to make some money. "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure-house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50,000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

A limited number of shares of this really first class proposition may be obtained on application to PETERBOROUGH BROKERAGE CO, Fiscal Agents, Peterborough, or J. J. BRANDON, Fenelon Falls; W. GALLON, Apsley; G. B. HILLIARD, Lakefield, or GEO. H. BROWN, Chemong

There is Nothing on Earth

That Shows as much Profit for Work Done and Money Spent as an OIL WELL

A gold mine needs continual digging, but an oil well, if it does not flow of its own accord, needs to be pumped, and it supplies the fuel to run the pump.

Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars, yes, Millions, have been made in the Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana oil fields, but these fields are on the decline, and the eyes of the world are turning to the Kentucky and Tennessee fields, where a mighty development has begun. Today Kentucky and Tennessee have over 500 producing wells, and is pumping thousands of barrels of oil. Money is flowing into the field from eastern financial centres as well as from the capital of Europe. It is believed by oil men that this will become the greatest oil field in America.

The Standard Oil Company is spending millions of dollars in laying the foundations of the most gigantic pipe line ever laid in any section. This shows that they have faith in Kentucky and Tennessee as the coming oil-producing section of America.

The American Oil Co.

Is one of the successful Companies operating over 2,000 acres of proven oil land in Kentucky and Tennessee located along the line of transportation. To push the wells and complete the development of this vast property, the Company offers 50,000 shares of treasury stock at 5 cents per share. This low offer is but for a short time, and may be withdrawn without further notice.

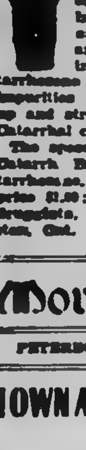
CATARRHOZONE

Rev. D. K. Smith of White Head N. S was cured of Catarrh by CATARRHOZONE.

The following statement coming from one of Nova Scotia's prominent churchmen carries conviction of the fact that Catarrhozone is all right.

"For years I tried all the advertised remedies for Catarrh, but was unable to get relief until I used Catarrhozone. Before I had used the Inhaler half an hour my nostrils became free and clear so that I could breathe easily through them. In one day Catarrhozone helped me immensely, stopped my coughing and hawking and cured a dull pain that was continually over my eyes. I have great pleasure in recommending Catarrhozone. I have proved it the best remedy for Catarrh and diseases of the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes."



There is certainly no remedy that is so well spoken of by the clergy as Catarrhozone and this can be accounted for by the fact that it gives perfect satisfaction.

It is the only remedy that reaches all diseased parts and gives quick relief without bad after effects. Catarrhozone contains no cocaine nor morphine. It is nature's own remedy, soothing and healing, and pleases everybody that uses it.

Catarrhozone is a local and constitutional treatment. The Inhaler clears the air passages, stops the headache, and Ferrozone Tablets that are included in every complete Catarrhozone outfit, never fail to drive impurities from the blood. This builds up and strengthens the system so that Catarrhal conditions cannot exist.

The speediest cure for Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Bronchitis and Asthma is Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment, price $1.00; small size, 25 cents; at druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A PAINFUL ACCIDENT

Mrs. Robert McWhinnie and Daughter Thrown from Rig

A very unfortunate accident occurred yesterday afternoon by which Mrs. Robert McWhinnie was severely injured. It appears that she and her daughter were driving in the neighborhood of the Cordage Works, when their horse took fright at a passing train. The rig was upset, and both occupants were thrown out. Mrs. McWhinnie alighted on her head, which was severely bruised and she was picked up in a semi-conscious condition. The Dan Spence ambulance was summoned and conveyed her to her home at 190 London street, wher Dr. McNulty attended her.

At a late hour last night Mrs. McWhinnie was resting very easy. Her injuries are not considered serious.

HIGH COURT SITTINGS

A Light Docket—Only Two Cases Before the Court

The non-jury sittings of the High Court of Justice opened yesterday at the Court House, Mr. Justice MacMahon presiding.

There were two cases, the first being Mrs. A. Yelland and Mr. W. G. Yelland, executors of the will of the late Dr. Yelland, against Wm. Irwin, W. Shepard and R. R. Hall, Irwin and Shepard being trustees of a timber syndicate. Mrs. Yelland claimed that her husband had a twentieth interest in the timber limit, which latter was sold to the trustees for $40,000. After this transaction a defendant visited Mrs. Yelland and induced her to sell her husband's interests for $1,200, not telling her of the sale of the timber limit.

Mrs. Yelland claimed $2,200, the sum which she would have realized.

D. W. Dumble for the plaintiffs, W. R. Riddell, Toronto, for R. R. Hall, and Hall & Hayes for Messrs. Irwin and Shepard.

The other case was that of Stratton vs. Donohue over a promissory note for $2,500. Judgment in favor of the plaintiff, A. H. Stratton.

LIKED HIS "NIP."

Not a Whiskey but a Coffee Drinker

Give coffee half a chance and with some people it sets its grip hard and fast. "Up to a couple of years ago," says a business man of Brooklyn, N.Y., "I was as constant a coffee drinker as it was possible to be, indeed my craving for coffee was equal to that of a drunkard for his regular "nip" and the effect of the coffee drug upon my system was indeed deplorable.

"My skin lacked its natural color, my features were pinched and my nerves were shattered to such an extent as to render me very irritable. I also suffered from palpitation of the heart.

"It was while in this condition I read an article about Postum Food Coffee and concluded to try it. It was not long before Postum had entirely destroyed my raging passion for coffee, and in a short time I had entirely given up coffee for delicious Postum.

"The change that followed was so extraordinary I am unable to describe it. Suffice it to say, however, that all my troubles have disappeared. I am my original happy self again, and on the whole the soothing and pleasant effects produced by a cup of Postum make me feel as though I have been 'landed at another station.'

"Not long ago I converted one of my friends to Postum and he is now as loud in its praise as I am." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The Board of Trade

Hall. He thought it a serious matter to slander the canal for the sake of a few power owners. There are other people to be considered, citizens paying taxes. Of course there are some manufacturers who pay taxes also, and there are some who do not, but I don't find them here tonight. It has been admitted that the cost of repairing those rotten dams at the back lakes would be $100,000, and you are going to send a deputation to Ottawa to ask the Government to assume that expenditure, incur the risk of damages for flooding of property and take over some of the waters. If certain people want power let them go to the Government like honest men and rent the power now lying idle, but do not send a deputation to jolly the Ministers at Ottawa into spending money on dams on the plea that it is for navigable purposes. This deputation should be sent for a larger purpose than that of power, it should go with a view to securing the immediate completion of the canal through to Lake Ontario, in the interests of tax paying people, of the whole district along its course, and in the interests of Canada and even of the Empire.

PREFERENTIAL TRADE.

Mr. E. J. Toker moved, seconded by Mr. J. W. Garvin, That whereas Canada has voluntarily granted preferential tariff for British goods, and at the last Colonial Conference asked for reciprocal treatment, offering thereupon to increase the present preference.

Therefore be it resolved that in the opinion of the meeting the bonds of the British Empire would be materially strengthened, and the union of the various parts of His Majesty's Dominion greatly consolidated by the adoption of a commercial policy such as was outlined by the Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain at Glasgow on the 6th of October, with his subsequent amplifications and explanations, and that the Board of Trade of the Town of Peterborough accepts and supports that policy.—Carried.

BOUNDARY AWARD

Mr. C. Fessenden gave a very lucid review of the Alaskan Boundary trouble, and concluded with the remark that we should accept the award without too much grumbling, and above all things refrain from crying out that we have been sacrificed by the Mother Country. No doubt the British Government and the Washington executive were equally anxious to have this trouble removed, and the American Commissioners had given up several thousand square miles of land claimed by their country. He was sorry the Canadian counsel could not agree with the decision of Lord Alverstone, who must have been if anything, prejudiced in Canada's favor.

Mr. Dumble took strong exception to Lord Alverstone's ruling, and thought he must have yielded to the suggestions of the British Government to preserve peace at any price.

Mr. A. P. Poussette didnot think any small lawyer, like those in Peterborough for instance, sufficiently versed in the facts to place his judgment against that of the greatest lawyer in Great Britain. He—Mr. Poussette—accepted the judgment of Lord Alverstone as being the correct one.

facturers who pay taxes also, andthere Told by Mr. Culverwell after the Board of Trade Conservation of Water meeting:

"What would you say? What would you say?" said the voluble prophet of woe, "were I to tell you that in a short space of time all the water in the Otonabee will be dried up."

"I would say," said the patient man, "Go thou and do likewise."

TO THE SUFFERING.

The following testimonial may be read with interest to sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:

January, 20th, 1902.

Dear Sirs,—I notice your advt. in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I feel it my duty to tell you that I was induced to try it as I had been afflicted with skin trouble in my hands for 11 years. I have tried several doctors and they done my no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails used to come off. You can use my name if you wish.

Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peaks Station, P.E.I.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh is also one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily in receipt of letters telling how much they have done for the afflicted. Miss Sarah Hill, 411 Front Street, Traverse City, Mich., writes: "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure; send me another dollar's worth."

COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication was received from Mayor Roger regarding municipal union and asking that the Council take some action, for if anything were to be done before the new year, it should be done at once. The Council had considered this matter at their last meeting, when action was taken regarding it.

Mr. C. Newell asked that a sufficient sum be taken off her taxes to pay for the glass which was broken by the young people of the village without the least cause. This matter was not dealt with, as the Council did not consider themselves responsible.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were presented.

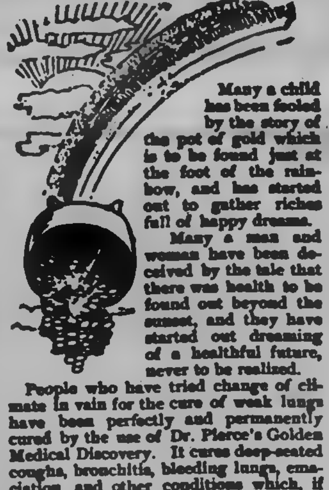
T. B. Manicco for charity	$ 10.00
Dr. Amys, quarter-year salary ...	12,50
Peterborough Light & Power Co. for street lighting......	162,50
Peterborough Light & Power Co. for gas......	60

Upon motion of Mr. Gibbs, seconded by Mr. Gibbs, the accounts were ordered to be paid.—Carried.

A petition signed by Mr. Frank Adams and a large number of residents and non-residents of the village, was read. The petitioners asked that a certain area of land in Ashburnham be drained by the construction of certain waterways, or, in short, that the course of the creek be changed so as to enter the Otonabee River at Wilson street, instead of where it now enters it. After the matter was given some consideration, Mr. Gibbs moved, seconded by Mr. Hourigan, that the matter be left over until another meeting.—Carried.

A special meeting will likely be called to consider the matter.

Upon motion, the Council adjourned.



Many a child has been fooled by the story of the pot of gold which is to be found just at the foot of the rainbow, and has started out to gather riches full of happy dreams.

Many a man and woman have been deceived by the tale that there was health to be found out beyond the sunset, and they have started out dreaming of a healthful future, never to be realized.

People who have tried change of climate in vain for the cure of weak lungs have been perfectly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures deep-seated coughs, bronchitis, bleeding lungs, emaciation, and other conditions which, if neglected or unskilfully treated, find a fatal end in consumption.

"Last spring I had a severe attack of pneumonia which left me with a very bad cough, and also left my lungs in a very bad condition," writes John M. Russell, Esq., of Brent, Cherokee Nat., Ind. Ty. "I had no appetite and was so weak I could scarcely walk. My breast was all sore with running sores. I got two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which I believe saved my life. I cannot express my gratitude to you. I am able now to do very good work."

Any substitute offered as "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery" is a shadow of that medicine. There are cures behind every claim made for the "Discovery," which no "just as good" medicine can show.

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a book containing 1008 pages, is given away. Send 31 one-cent stamps, for expense of customs and mailing only, for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for the volume bound in cloth. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Awfully Sudden Death

Intelligence reached town of the awfully sudden death of Mr. W. Philip, formerly of Peterborough, which sad event occurred at the Toronto General Hospital, where he had gone to be operated on for an abcess. The operation had been successfully performed, and the young man was walking out of the building when he dropped dead, the cause of his death being given as heart failure. The news of his death will come as a great shock to many of his friends here, with whom he was very popular. His father, Mr. R. Philip, who now resides in Manitoba, formerly conducted the business now owned by Mr. S. A. Oke, George street.

—Mr. K. G. Lech and County Constable Cochrane paid a visit to Stony Lake on Monday in search of a canoe which had been stolen from Mr. Lech a year ago. The canoe was recovered.

—A meeting of the chairmen and secretaries of the different wards in connection with the house to house visitation will be held on Thursday, and not Tuesday evening as previously announced. Owing to the Mark Guy Pearce lecture on Friday evening, the meeting of the canvassers will be held next week. A more definite announcement will be made later.

Lieut. Peary, the Great Explorer, Tells of the Possibility of the Pole

DIFFERENCE BETWEEN NORTH AND SOUTH POLE

He Thinks the Haven will be Reached on His Next Trip North, The Mysterious 260 Miles

Washington, Nov. 5— Lieut. Robert E. Peary, United States navy, in an address before the National Geographic Society of this city, discussed plans for his next expedition to the North Pole. He said that the possible routes to the north pole have dwindled to three, and in his own personal opinion to only two.

He advocated the Smith Sound, or American route," that is, along the west coast of Greenland to the North of Kennedy Sound, thence to a still higher latitude than that reached by the Alert off Grant Land. The other two routes were the drift method adopted by Nansen, and the so-called Franz Joseph Land route.

Regarding the former, Lieut. Peary said that for four or five years at least ship and people must be but a helpless bit of flotsam entirely at the mercy of the ice in which they are drifting, and practically unable to control their own fortunes or contribute by their efforts to success.

"Presumably," he said, "Nansen and Sverdrup are advocates of this route, yet neither has, to my knowledge, expressed a desire to repeat the experience of the Fram's voyage. Bernier is reported as contemplating a repetition of the voyage.

"Abruzzi's is the only expedition by the Franz Josef route that has pushed beyond the northern limit of the Franz Josef Archipelago. He, however, uncompromisingly advocates the Smith Sound route."

"In disagreeing with the opinion of the president of the Royal Geographical Society of London, after Nansen's voyage, "that we have practically reached the North Pole and know all that is necessary to know about it," Lieut. Peary said:

WE DO NOT KNOW.

"Two hundred and sixty miles from the pole is a long way from the actual attainments of the pole, and to assert that the secret of the pole has been penetrated and the veil lifted at that range, and that the economics of the polar basis have been revealed, when 1,000,000 square miles of it have not been trodden by human foot or seen by human eye, is an enthusiastic view.

"The existence of land anywhere between the northern shores of Grant Land and the pole would so greatly simplify my work and reduce its difficulties that I do not let myself dwell upon it. But the possibility is there; an isolated island continent, an arctic Atlantic, with a fauna and flora of its own, with one day and one night in the year, lying there through the blinding days and opaque nights of countless geologic ages, as completely isolated from the world as if it were on Mars.

"Think of the satisfaction of lifting such a land out of the heart of the Polar Sea with the stars and stripes of 'Old Glory.' Think of writing upon that land some name to endure indelibly until that day when 'the heavens shall wither like a scroll,' to show forever that we own the top of the earth. Believe me, there is room yet in this prosaic world for a new sensation.

"My statement that the north pole is the last great geographical prize which the earth has to offer has also been critised in some quarters, and it is claimed that it is nonsense to say that the north pole is a greater prize than the south pole. I repeat, advisedly that the north pole is the last great geographical prize which this earth has to offer.

"That the particular mathematical point of the north pole possesses greater interest or value than the south pole is not asserted, but the northpole is that apex of the earth which is in the centre of the hemisphere of civilization. The north pole has been sought by man for nearly four centuries; the south pole for less than a century.

"The north pole has a striking place in history, in literature, in poetry, in romance; it has been the subject of infinite speculation, and finally when the north pole has been attained, the attainment of the south pole will follow naturally and rapidly and will attract much less attention.

SOUTH AND NORTH.

"In this connection it is well to note also a popular misconception —namely, that the attainment of the south pole is more difficult than the attainment of the north pole. This is not so.

"In spite of the close approximation to the north pole be recent expeditions, the actual attainment of the north pole is a very different proposition from the attainment of the south pole, and much more difficult. The conditions are almost diametrically opposite.

"In the case of the north pole it is a polar sea which must be traversed and conquered. In the case of the south pole it is a polar land which must be traversed and conquered.

"In the light of recent explorations the region about the south pole offers facilities for the realization of the favorite popular ideas of attaining the pole—namely, the colonization method, the method of relay stations short distances apart, connected by wire, etc.

"The attainment of the north pole means the ability to so refine and perfect one's equipment, supplies, and party as to be able to cover a distance of 500 miles each way without coaches and without support from the country and to cover this distance in a time limit of three or at most three and one-half months."

Lieut. Peary pleaded for immediate financing for the expedition from private source. He urged that an expedition which in his opinion in all probability would secure the pole can be fitted out for two years at a cost of $150,000 the only expensive item being a powerful ship to push him to the northern shore of Grant Land.

LAURIER'S DEMAND RE TREATY MAKING

English Press Discusses It From Varying View Points

PRIVY COUNCIL DECISION

Lord Lindley Gives Judgment in Canadian Case---Competition of Canadian Cheese

London, Nov. 5—The Daily News referring to the Alaskan decision and the feeling in Canada, says Laurier, the Premier of Imperialism will soon begin to take the place vacated by Paul Kruger. Suppose Laurier's demand for treaty-making power really took shape and swept Canada off its feet, would the prospect be so dreadful? It would be after all, only one more step in the long process, not of separation, but of detachment. Why should Laurier have to hand over the Alaska question to the tender mercies of Lord Alverstone, an admirable judge but a notorious political partisan. Canada has very distinctly told us she holds herself free to help us in any Imperial quarrel. We should have to say the same to Canada. If we thought her right, we should lend her the arm of the Empire. If not, we should just warn her and then hold aloof. What if history should one day repeat itself in another form."

The Liverpool Mercury, referring to Canada's disaffection re the Alaskan decision says: "What an amount of irritation has been set up cannot be accurately determined, nor is it possible to prophesy whether the sense of annoyance will after a hot fit pass away, or will lead to a permanent consequence of a serious nature. It cannot be denied, however, that present indications are not reassuring in character. All these manifestations of temper that now dominate Canada are sufficiently alarming, but they are aggravated by the attitude ascribed to Sir Wilfrid Laurier." The Mercury asks: "What would happen if Canada had the power Laurier asks of treatymaking Presumably Canada would appeal to the Mother Country, but it is monstrous to suppose armaments paid almost entirely by the money of British taxpayers can be placed at the disposal of any colony which has wrongs to avenge."

The St. James Gazette styles Mr. Aylesworth's speech at the Toronto banquet "conciliatory."

The Evening Globe calls it "patriotic."

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "The new Canadian stamp is a more artistic production than we have the privilege of sticking on our daily letters. The presentment of the King's portrait gives the youth of the Dominion a far better idea of their Imperial ruler than the decapitated head which floats in space on the British stamp."

A letter in the Westminster Gazette denies that the Cheshire cheese trade is ruined by Canadian competition, as claimed by some writers, but says that the only cheese making ruined by Canadian imports is the making of a wholly inferior class of cheese.

Lord Lindley in delivering the Privy Council judgment in the case of the loan Trust Company versus Gauthier, said: "The Canadian law to mortgage is totally different from English law to mortgage, and if there is no debt there is no hypothecate." The appeal was dismissed, the appelants to pay costs. Decision was reserved in the case of the Attorney-General of British Columbia versus Ostram.

WILL NOT LEAVE CANADA

Commissioner Eva Booth will not Succeed Consul Booth Tucker

Toronto, Nov. 5—A report from New York that Field Commissioner Eva Booth, of this city, would succeed her sister, the late Mrs. Booth-Tucker, as consul of the Salvation Army in the United States, was denied at the Toronto headquarters yesterday. One official declared the idea absurd. Miss Booth, as commissioner in Canada, holds as high a position as the one of consul, and it is not at all probable that she will leave her present field of work.

The Murderers of Barron

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 5—It is said the detectives have a clue to the murderers of P.C. Barron.

Miss Buchanan, the hostess of Auchmar House, where young Case, the gardner's son was shot by supposed thieves whom he disturbed in the orchard, has offered $1,000 reward for the apprehension of the guilty parties.

WYOMING INDIANS ON THE WAR PATH.

They Had a Couple of Fights With a Sheriff's Posse

MANY SHOT AND KILLED

The Trouble was Caused by the Illegal Hunting of the Red Men

Newcastle, Wyoming, November 5 — Sheriff W. H. Miller, of Weston county, and one of his posse are dead, as a result of a fight with twelve wagon loads of Sioux Indians, three miles below Beaver Dam, on Lightning Creek, Converse county. The Indians were from the Pine Ridge and Rosebud agencies, in South Dakota, and were violating the game laws of the State.

The sheriff's posse rounded up the redskins on Saturday. The Sioux, who were from the Pine Ridge Agency, opened fire, and a sharp fight ensued, in which Falkenberg was instantly killed, and Sheriff Miller mortally wounded, dying an hour later. His body was brought to Newcastle by the remainder of the posse Monday morning. Members of the posse report that at least six Indians were killed and several wounded, among the latter being Chief Eagle Feather, who is being brought here a prisoner.

A new and large posse has started after the Indians, who are in the country surrounding the scene of the first fight, and another battle, it is reported, has been fought.

TEN REPORTED KILLED.

Denver, Col., Nov. 5—A special to the Times, from Luck, Wyoming, says: "In a second battle with the Indians Sunday afternoon, near the scene of the first, ten Indians were killed and eleven captured. None of the posse were killed in the second fight. There were about 75 Sioux in the band of Indians. It is estimated that five hundred men are scouring the country in search of the remaining Indians."

Washington, D.C., November 5.— The commissioner of the general land office has received a telegram from Senator Warren, of Wyoming, regarding the fatal encounter between Indians and the authorities in eastern Wyoming. The telegram says:

"Reliable information just received by Governor Chatterton reports that the Indians had been illegally hunting on Lightning Creek, forty miles from Lusk, on the north-western road. Sheriff Miller was seriously shot through the hip, by Indians, and a member of his posse, Falkenberg was killed. Three Indians were killed. The Indians are reported by Putnam, county clerk of Weston county, to be from Pine Ridge. Later information is to the effect that the Indians are Crows. The remainder of the party is at large in Wyoming, and are supposed to be headed east towards Crawfords, Neb."

The Indian officials here believe that the Indians involved are a band of Crows on their way to Pine Ridge to make a visit. It is thought that their meat supply was exhausted, and they were hunting to obtain food.

THE FIRST STEP

Towards the Construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific

Montreal, Nov. 5—General Manager Hays of the Grand Trunk Railway refused this morning to make any announcement regarding the rumor that the first step towards the construction of the G.T.P. had been accomplished by the procuration of an initial subscription of $5,000,000 toward the construction of the western section. The money, it is said, will be utilized as the deposit required by the Government, which under the contract, must be forthcoming by November 27th.

BONUS WAS CARRIED

Brockville Will Have a New Industry in the New Industry

Brockville, Ont., Nov. 5—A by-law was submitted to the ratepayers of Brockville yesterday to grant a bonus of $16,000 to Cossit Bros.' Manufacturing Company. The by-law was carried by a large majority. Cossit Bros. were for many years large manufacturers, but met with very heavy loss by the destruction of their works by fire about three years ago. The company has recently been reorganized, and will immediately begin the construction of a large agricultural implement establishment on the site of the old works.

NEGROES LYNCH NEGRO

He Had Boasted of Killing Two Negroes "Just for Fun."

Shreveport, La., November 5 —James Craddock, a negro, was lynched by an infuriated mob, composed chiefly of blacks, at Taylorstown yesterday evening. Craddock killed two innofensive colored men and fatally injured another. He split open the head of Wesley Chambers with an axe, and mutilated the body of the dying man frightfully. Then, observing Dan Washington, another negro, he crept upon him and killed him. Not satisfied with this, he went to the door of the Chambers' cabin and called Chambers' brother, Mercer, to the door. Mercer was beaten down and frightfully injured.

Craddock then boasted of his crime among negro friends and said he committed the murders "just for fun."

Craddock was captured by a small posse of white men, but a crowd of negroes took possession of him, and at once hanged him to a tree, and afterwards burned his body.

Belleville, Ill., Nov., 5—The grand jury of St. Clair county made its final report today, returning indictments against 14 persons for participating in the lynching of David Wyatt, the negro schoolteacher who shot and seriously wounded Superintendent Hertel last June. The names will not be known until after the sheriff has arrested those who are accused. More than seventy witnesses were examined. The exact nature of the offence charged is not known, but it is given out that none of those indicted are charged with murder. The cases will be set for trial at this term of court, but will probably be continued until the January term.

APPLES VERY PLENTIFUL

A Marvelous Apple Crop Throughout the United States

Halifax, N.S. Nov. 5—Of the apple crop of Nova Scotia, which this season will give 500,000 barrels for export to England, 155,000 barrels aireday have been shipped, the steamer St. John City, which sailed on Saturday taking 18,000 barrels. The remaining 350,000 barrels will be shipped between now and the middge of March, when the Australian apples begin to arrive. The average price netted by the Nova Scotia orchardists this season is $3 per barrel, which will make one and a half million dollars this year for the apple growers of this province, who are located in the counties of Kings and Annapolis.

Ottawa, Nov. 5—The conference of Canadian dairy experts to be held in the old railway committee room of the House of Commons this week will bring about forty representative experts to Ottawa, including the general instructors of the different provinces, the instructors of the dairy schools, and some of the staff of professors of Guelph College. Mr. J. A. Ruddick, chief of the dairy division of the Department of Agriculture, has drawn up a program embracing fourteen subjects for discussion.

"Countless, sunny hours.

November Canadian Magazine

The great difference between the Canadian Magazine, on the one hand, and the other leading magazines sold in this country, is the national character of the contributions and contributors. The other magazines deal with topics, especially interesting to residents of the United States or Great Britain; the Canadian Magazine discusses questions of importance to the people of this country, while its stories and poems reflect Canadian life and incident. The November, for example, discusses only Canadian topics, and every contributor is a Canadian. Margaret L. Fairbairn analyses "The Art of G. A. Reid," a leading member of the Royal Canadian Academy, and this article is illustrated with a splendid sketch from his paintings, reproduced in color. The character sketch of the month deals with George E. Drummond, the president-elect of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. Mr. E. Stewart, the Dominion Superintendent of Forestry, writes of "The Approaching Timber Famine," and advocates a national forestry policy which will preserve our timber. Edwyn Sandys writes brightly of the young quail under the heading, "Robert White, Jr." Augustus Bridle describes the different grades of "The Homes of Workingmen," as illustrated in Toronto. This is profusely illustrated. James Hannay deals with the British failure in Plattsburg in 1814, while E. B. Biggar tells something about the significance of the Centenary of the British Foreign Bible Society. The stories in this issue are by S. Frances Harrison (Seranus), Elizabeth Roberts MacDonald, Albert R. Carman, Benjamin Sulte and L. M. Montgomery. John A. Ewan in his monthly review of current events deals mainly with Mr. Chamberlain's recent political movements, while John A. Cooper discusses the workingman in his relation to the factory, city life and the interior of his home.

Mob Hangs the Wrong Man

Hamilton, O., Nov. 4—Marshall Woodruff, of Oxford, who was shot and seriously wounded a few weeks ago while attempting to arrest the Spivey brothers for creating a disturbance and for whose shooting a mob lynched Joe Spivey, declared last night that the mob had punished the wrong man. He positively asserts that it was Lou who shot him.

British Firm Wants Them Shipped to British Markets

Ottawa, Nov. 5—In a letter to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Lord Strathcona encloses a communication from Messrs. C. E. Brook and Sons, of Leadenhall Market, wherein this firm suggests, in view of the general appearance of so high prices, that it would be to the advantage of Canadian dealers to ship a fair quantity of turkeys for the Christmas market in London. Prices for English Turkeys, Messrs. Brooke and Sons say, undoubtedly will reach very high figures.

EXTENDING ITS RAMIFICATIONS

Canadian Pacific's Plans for Extension to Save Time

Montreal, Nov. 5—Apropos of the absorption of the Ottawa, Northern and Western Railway by the Canadian Pacific Railway, an Ottawa paper gives currency to the report that "the Pontiac section will be extended by way of Allumette Island to connect with the main line, thereby affecting a considerable saving in time in the running of transcontinental trains between Pembroke and Ottawa." General Manager McNicholl said this morning that something of the kind might be done in the indefinite future, but no immediate action of the kind was contemplated.

BIG LAND SALE

Nebraska Citizen Purchases 50 000 Acres in Canada

Toronto, Nov. 5 — The Saskatchewan Valley and Manitoba Land Company have sold 50,000 acres of land in the famous Saskatchewan Valley. The tract of land sold lies just west of the Canadian Northern Railway now being built. The land is in one of the most choice sections of Western Canada, and it is understood that it is to be colonized at at once by Mennonites; in fact, it was bought for a colony of them that has already been formed, as Mr. Jansen, accompanied by five prominent Mennonites has been in Western Canada for the past two weeks searching for the most favorable location for this colony.

SERVICE OF PLATE FOR "DOMINION."

Suggestion Made for Canadian Gift to New Battleship

London, November 5—It is said that progress is being made with the battleship Dominion at Vickers' yard at Barrow. The suggestion is made that Canada should follow the example of British countries, after which many armored cruisers are named, and present a service of plate for the officers' mess on the Dominion. It is said that if a prominent Canadian, a leading paper, like the Montreal Star, will take up the movement, its success is assured among sympathetic Canadians.

Silver Watch Free

The wide-awake clothing firm of Gough Bros. are offering special inducements this week to their patrons. Saturday will be their "Give Away Day," when each purchaser of $5 worth of goods will receive an elegant up-to-date silver watch free. These time pieces ARE watches, and the wonder is that the firm can afford to hand them out without price. See the display in their north window, and be convinced that in this case, as in all precedent ones, Gough Bros. are as good as their word.

A Labour Question

"What are you feeding to those hogs, my friend?" the professor asked.

"Corn, professor," the grizzled old farmer, who knew the learned gentleman by sight, replied.

"Are you feeding it wet or dry?"

"Dry."

"Don't you know if you feed it wet the hogs would digest it in one-half the time?"

"The farmer gave him a quizzical look.

"Now, see here, professor," he said, "how much do you calculate a hog's time is worth?"

THE WARSHIP BOGOTA IS SHELLING PANAMA

Colombian Government Turns Its Guns on City and United States Protests

Washington, Nov. 4.—United States Vice-Consul Ehrman, at Panama, cables the State Department under to-day's date that the Colombian Government warship Bogota is shelling the city. Eleven Chinaman have been killed. Mr. Ehrman has been instructed to protest against the bombardment.

Panama, Nov. 4.—The independence of the Isthmus was proclaimed at 6 p.m. yesterday. A large and enthusiastic crowd of all political parties assembled and marched to the headquarters of the Government troops, where Generals Tovar and Amaya, who arrived yesterday morning, were imprisoned in the name of the "Republic of Panama." The enthusiasm was immense, and at least three thousand of the men in the crowd were armed.

DESPATCHED WARSHIPS.

Washington, Nov. 4.—The following official statement was made here. "Conflicting despatches have been received from the Isthmus, indicating rather serious disturbances at both Panama and Colon. The Navy Department has despatched several vessels to those ports with directions to do everything possible to keep transit open across the Isthmus and maintain order along the line of the railroad."

HOPES FOR A CHECK TO ALL FOOLISH TALK

The St. James' Gazette Thinks Mr. Alyesworth Quieted the Alaska Excitement

London, Nov. 4.—The St. James' says: "It is to be hoped that the somewhat loose and foolish talk excited on both sides of the Atlantic by the Alaska boundary award will receive a check from the dignified and temporate speech of Mr. Aylesworth."

THE MATERIAN IS SAFE.

London, Nov. 4.—The Agent-General of British Columbia, speaking at a meeting in Westminster held in aid of the Kootenay diocese, while pointing out that the prospects of the country were unlimited, urged strongly that the spiritual interests of the people be not overlooked.

HE REMAINED FREE.

London, Nov. 4.—Mr. Pease, M.P., speaking in Darlington, said he believed he was one of the few members of Parliament who had been elected after advocating reciprocity with the colonies, and he would not pledge himself to any particular method till he knew what the colonies were prepared to offer us.

CANADA.

London, Nov. 4.—Secretary of the London Chamber of Commerce Murray, in his report dealing with his official tour of Canada, speaks enthusiastically of Canada's future, especially for her wheat producing districts. He also speaks very highly of the industrial enterprise exhibited by the Canadians, particularly in regard to electrical development.

London, Nov. 4.—It is not too much to say Englishmen were paralyzed by the news from Toronto, that the banquet to Mr. Aylesworth was to be without the Union Jack or the National Anthem, and the cabled despatches that at Mr. Aylesworth's own request these were retained caused a great sigh of relief. Mr. Aylesworth is regarded as a patriot.

The Mail says it is not surprised at Mr. Aylesworth's suggestion, and adds: "Sir Wilfrid Laurier might be showed the almost universal regret of the Empire. The result of the arbitration should be voiced by other than Canadian lips. We congratulate Canada that she has not made small political capital out of the mistake of an individual accident or incident. So long as the spirit which actuated Mr. Aylesworth is abroad there is no fear that any strange outcome will result from the modern virility and sanity of the British Empire."

Edgar Wallace calls Canada's attitude to the Empire "splendid moderation." It was so moderate out west that he wondered whether the farmers were trying to sell him a gold brick. [illegible]

Montreal, Nov. 4.—"As a firm believer in the port of Montreal as the exporting port of Canada, it is hard to understand why, with the present thirteen-foot in canals and rivers, it has not increased its grain trade to a much greater extent than it has," was the opinion expressed to a press representative by Mr. A. G. Thompson, one of the leading grain exporters.

"A careful study of the question will show that at the present time Montreal is the cheapest port from inland lakes to the seaboard there is in America. The impression that has gone abroad that Montreal has been taking trade from United States ports such as Boston, New York and Portland is an erroneous one. While this year the exports will be some millions greater than last year, they will not be so much greater than the shipments of the previous years, and the rates by the St. Lawrence route this year were cheaper than ever before."

Some of the leading Canadian steamship companies have been advised that the American companies are anxious to reenter into an agreement fixing a minimum rate for the transportation of grain to the English market. The representative of one of the largest companies told a press representative today that be considered a minimum rate was an absolute necessity if the companies are to make any profit from the grain trade. The lowest rate on which it would be feasible to agree, he thought, would be a 3-cent rate.

London, Nov. 4.—Princess Radziwill yesterday issued a writ demanding $7,000,000 from Lord Rosebery, Earl Grey, and Messrs. Alfred Beit, Dr. Jameson, L. L. Mitchell, and B. A. Hawksbury, trustees of the estate of the late Cecil Rhodes, under an agreement alleged to have been made on or about June 28, 1899, between herself and Mr. Rhodes.

This is a sequel to the sensational arrest and imprisonment of the Princess at Cape Town in 1902 on the charge of forging Rhodes' signature to bills for several thousands of pounds.

The case, which doubtless will prove sensational, is expected to lead to many exposures.

The friends of Princess Radziwill say she possesses documents of high political importance, which were suppressed during the trial at Cape Town, and which will be produced in court, dealing with South African matters, articularly with the Jameson raid and the alleged complicity of former Colonial Secretary Chamberlain therein.

The Princess' lawyers refuse to furnish particulars of her claim, but they assert that the document on which they case their claim is a regular contract in writing.

Nelson, B.C., Nov. 4.—Passengers arriving last night from the coast give details of the narrow escape of their train from destruction on Sunday night last. Shortly after leaving North Bend the train, which was crowded with passengers, ran into a big log which had rolled down from the mountain. The engineer stopped the train to see if the engine had been injured by the shock. When stopped the engine and tender were out on a high trestle over a canyon a few feet in front the Fraser River. The trainmen had partially got off when the bridge collapsed, taking with it the engine into the Fraser River. If it had not been for the log the train would have gone with the engine.

The passengers presented an address and diamond locket to the engineer and fireman for their prompt action.

Closing of a Big Mine

A startling story of a big mine's closing comes from Butte, Montana. By the shut-down of the Amalgamated Copper Company, a payroll of over $50,000 a day is cuite off in Butte. Representatives of the Company declare that by the decision rendered by Judge Clancy last Friday, the company named is practically wiped out of existence, and cannot do business in Montana. Its shareholders are prevented from receiving dividends, they say, although $1,000,000 is tied up and awaiting distribution. All the mines and smelters of the company have been ordered closed, and 15,000 workmen are thrown out of work. How long the shut-down will continue is a matter of doubt. It may take nine or ten months before the company can get a hearing before the Supreme Court.

FIRE DEPARTMENTS' UNIONS

In a quiet way the American Federation of Labor has been working to organize unions in the fire departments in the large cities in the United States and the fire commissioners are feeling uneasy at the outlook. As every man, the irresponsible as well as the responsible, has a vote over there in the selection of the city government, it is a matter of votes with the commissioners, and they act accordingly. Down in Tampa, Florida, the union firemen struck while working at a fire, and the chief was compelled to call on the bystanders to take the places of the strikers. The fire caused considerable damage, when, if it had not been for the strike, it might have been controlled. Such a condition is feared at any time should there be any trouble between the union and the commissioners or the heads of the department. In Pittsburg, Pa., an effort was made a few weeks ago to unionize the fire department, but it failed because a majority of the men refused to join. They are having some little trouble in Detroit just now. The firemen organized the James Battle club, under the guise of a social club, and it was gaining headway till it became known that it had affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and was working under a charter granted by that body. Another thing that gave it publicity was an effort made by the union to coerce members to join it. The fire department felt that it had a grievance, which the members thought could be remedied by organized effort. They wanted an increase of salary, but the most radical demand for which they were reaching was a double department, so that the men would only have to be on duty twelve hours each day. To do this would add $40,000 a month to the expenses of the department, and this the commissioners think, the taxpayers are not ready to agree to. Under the present rules each fireman has 24 days off during the year. The commissioners told the men the other day that it would be prejudicial to the best interests and discipline of the department to have the members connected with any society that might come between them and their duty to the city, and to both. There are some 600 members of the fire department in Detroit, a large majority of whom were opposed to the union. These have prevailed, and the union has returned its charter. This brings the American Federation of Labor into the ring, which demands that the fireman be allowed to organize a union. The officers of the Federation of Labor demand of the Commissioners a hearing, and the politicians who want votes at the ballot box are backing up the demand, but the commissioners say that so far as they are concerned the discussion is closed, and that the unionizing of public servants cannot be defended. The organizations of unions among the policemen has been going on for some time in the large cities.

EXTRAVAGANCE AT FUNERALS

Undoubtedly there is no more useless wasteful and foolish form of extravagance than that which takes the form of expensive funerals. The expenditure of money for silver-trimmed coffins, long lines of carriages and other outward evidences of grief is a form of ostentation which often taxes the resources of the survivors and in many cases actually impoverishes them.

It is sometimes urged in defence of this kind of extravagance and respect for the deceased. The plea is unveracious in most cases. Mortuary profusion is, in most instances, prompted by the unworthy desire "to be as good as anybody else." It is a fear of neighborly comment which impels many a family of moderate circumstances to order a funeral suitable—if suitable at all—for a millionaire.

The dread of having someone sneer at "a cheap funeral" has run into debt people who would otherwise be in comfortable circumstances. Terror of uncharitable gossip has enriched the undertakers and rendered otherwise sensible people abject slaves of a bad system.

It is encouraging to note instances of a revolt against this evil conventionality.

Professor Max Wright of Leland Stanford university, who was buried at Grand Rapids, Mich. not long ago, left instructions that he should be interred in a plain pine box, costing $2, and that the $200 which would ordinarily have been spent for his funeral, be distributed among the poor.

Dr. Gifford, of Kokomo, Ind., provided in his will that he should be buried at night in a cheap coffin, with no attendant save the undertaker.

Cremation, which is a comparatively inexpensive method of disposing of the human body, is increasing in favor. Many people are rebelling against the foolish tradition which prescribes that the relatives of the dead must impoverish themselves in order to manifest their grief. It is to be hoped that the movement will find adherents in increasing numbers.

INDIAN SUMMER DAYS

These glorious days of Indian summer come as a compensation for a June, August, July and September of a very unusual and disagreeable sort, in which the days of darkness have been many, and there has been an almost wintry chill in the atmosphere. June brought us but few of those proverbial rare days, when Heaven and earth seem in tune and nature is at her best. We have this season missed even the fervent July heats, and

"The countless, sunny hours,
"Long days, and solid banks of flowers."

which Emerson recounts as among the delights of this season, when the dog star begins those ravages which he continues into September, but of which none could complain this year when artificial fires have been needed to supply the place of that warmth which the sun had capriciously denied us. Even September, the month which the poet tells us "stands upon the earth like a goddess of might and glory," when our world is beautiful as if new born and

"There is a nameless splendor everywhere,
A wild exhilaration in the air."

Even this usually ideal month has, this year, deceived our hopes. But the sweet, calm sunshine of these bright, beautiful, November days is atoning for all the disappointments and disillusions of the few past months. As the sun rising in cloudless skies and pursuing its daily course through the soft hazy air, goes down at eventide in a pomp of crimson and golden radiance, we recall Stoddard's beautiful lines:

"The sky is a drinking cup
That was overturned of old,
And it pours in the eyes of men
Its wine of airy gold.
We drink that wine all day,
Till the last drop is drained up,
And we are lighted off to bed
With the jewels in the cup."

Hobbled Six Years

Cured in Six Weeks of Chronic Rheumatism By Ferrozone

Hundreds, aye thousands of cures have been put on the market for Rheumatism during the past few years, but a remedy with power to cure Chronic Rheumatism, Ferrozone excepted, in the estimation of Mr. Cullen, of Sturgeon Bay, does not exist.

Mr. Cullen says: "As everyone knows I have been simply tortured for years with Muscular Rheumatism, not the ordinary kind that bothers most people, but the kind that ties one up so that they can't move.

"For six years I hobbled about like a cripple, unable to move without crutches and canes. I used quantities of medicines, special baths and so forth, but they didn't help me very much.

"On the advice of a Presbyterian minister I used Ferrozone, gave it a good trial at first and when I saw it was helping, I bought six boxes and took one tablet at the close of each meal. I am perfectly cured and am today as spry as a youngster of ten. I am convinced that my recovery is entirely due to the marvellous action of Ferrozone."

Mr. Cullen's case is a fair example of the kind of cures that Ferrozone is effecting every day. In severe cases of Neuralgia, Sciatica, Rheumatism, and Lumbago, it acts with surprising alacrity, and no case is recorded where it failed.

Ferrozone cures these diseases because it is a solvent for uric acid in the blood. It removes all traces of it and other poisons from the blood in from two to ten days. Then it builds up and invigorates the system, and makes weak, sickly people strong and well enough to resist and ward off disease.

The best Rheumatism remedy that one can buy is Ferrozone. It relieves quickly and cures so perfectly that the disease never again returns. After all other remedies fail, it cures, and that is the sort of medicine you want. Ferrozone price 50c. per box, or three boxes for $1.25. Sent to your address by mail if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

SIR WILFRID'S DEMAND

English Press Discusses It From Varying View-Points

Lord Lindley Gives Judgement in the Canadian Case — Competition in Canadian Cheese

London, Nov. 5—The Daily News referring to the Alaskan decision and the feeling in Canada, says Laurier, the Premier of Imperialists will soon begin to take the place vacated by Paul Kruger. Suppose Laurier's demand for treaty-making power really took shape and swept Canada off its feet, would the prospect be so dreadful? It would be after all, only one more step in the long process, not of separation, but of detachment. Why should Laurier have to hand over the Alaska question to the tender mercies of Lord Alverstone, an admirable judge but a notorious political partisan. Canada has very distinctly told us she holds herself free to help us in any Imperial quarrel. We should have to say the same to Canada. If we thought her right, we should lend her the arm of the Empire. If not, we should just warn her and then hold aloof. What if history should one day repeat itself in another form."

The Liverpool Mercury, referring to Canada's disaffection re the Alaskan decision says: "What an amount of irritation has been set up cannot be accurately determined, nor is it possible to prophesy whether the sense of annoyance will after a hot fit pass away, or will lead to a permanent consequence of a serious nature. It cannot be denied, however, that present indications are not reassuring in character. All these manifestations of temper that now dominate Canada are sufficiently alarming, but they are aggravated by the attitude ascribed to Sir Wilfrid Laurier." The Mercury asks: "What would happen if Canada had the power Laurier asks of treatymaking. Presumably Canada would appeal to the Mother Country, but it is monstrous to suppose armaments paid almost entirely by the money of British taxpayers can be placed at the disposal of any colony which has wrongs to avenge."

The St. James' Gazette styles Mr. Aylesworth's speech at the Toronto banquet "conciliatory."

The Evening Globe calls it "patriotic."

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "The new Canadian stamp is a more artistic production than we have the privilege of sticking on our daily letters. The presentment of the King's portrait gives the youth of the Dominion a far better idea of their Imperial ruler than the decapitated head which floats in space on the British stamp."

A letter in the Westminster Gazette denies that the Cheshire cheese trade is ruined by Canadian competition, as claimed by some writers, but says that the only cheese making ruined by Canadian imports is the making of a wholly inferior class of cheese.

Lord Lindley in delivering the Privy Council judgment in the case of the Loan Trust Company versus Gauthier, said: "The Canadian law to mortgage is totally different from English law to mortgage, and if there is no debt there is no hypothecate." The appeal was dismissed, the appelants to pay costs. Decision was reserved in the case of the Attorney-General of British Columbia versus Ostram.

A Romantic Episode.

The King's visit to Paris has been marked by a singular and picturesque incident, says the "Spectator." It appears that in 1878 a chemist named Danval was accused of poisoning his wife, and that the King, then Prince of Wales, anxious to watch French procedure, attended the trial, which ended in a sentence of imprisonment for life. The Prince, who had watched the evidence for five days, was certain that justice had miscarried, and visited the convict in his cell to tell him so, and enquire if any remedy were possible. None could be found, but after twenty years' imprisonment the sentence was revised and M. Danval liberated. The kindness of the Prince in his hour of despair had made a deep impression on his mind, and when the King recently visited Paris he addressed him a letter full of gratitude for the visit paid twenty-five years before. One wonders if kings know the depth of the impression both of regard and of hatred which they can almost unconsciously make.

"What's the difference between obstinacy and firmness?" "Why, obstinacy in oneself is firmness and firmness in another is obstinacy."—Chicago "Post."

Estate agent (to laborer's son)—Here, my boy, where can I find your father? Boy—In the pig stye, sir. You'll know 'im by 'is brown 'at!—"Punch."

Barber—How will you have it cut, sir? Peppery—Both short. "Both? Hair and beard?" "No; hair and conversation."

"Who originated the remark, 'It is always the unexpected that happens?'" "I don't know," said the melancholy government attache, "but I suspect he worked in the weather bureau."—Washington "Star."

"W'y don't you put mo' hell in you' sermons, Brer Williams?" "Well, w'en I gives 'em too much er it de congregation makes sich a noise fannin' deyself, I hes ter order a recess!"—Atlanta "Constitution."

Von Quiz—What does your friend write? Verse? Novels? Tragedies? H. Kasbe—Great Scott, what do you take him for? An amateur? No, sir! He writes advertisements, of course!—New Orleans "Times-Democrat."

Ascum—How are the plans for your new house coming along? Subbubs—Splendidly. My wife has finally laid out all the closets she wants, and now all the architect's got to do is to build the house around them.—Philadelphia "Press."

Worse than the Man in the Well.

The escape from death of Captain Engellandt of the German iron sailing vessel "Erndte," news of which is reported from Dantzic, will hardly find its equal in the annals of life saving. The "Erndte" left Memel with a cargo of timber on April 16. During the next two days the vessel was exposed to a very rough sea, which kept the crew of four men at work day and night. On April 18, just as the captain had retired to his cabin, the storm suddenly became so violent that the vessel capsized. The crew were swept away and drowned, and the captain was imprisoned in the ship's hull, the hatches having been closed tightly by the sudden pressure of the water. The wreck drifted along, keel uppermost, until April 30, when it was sighted by the Norwegian steamship "Aurora" off the fishing village of Rixhoeft. The steamship immediately proceeded to secure the wreck, and while thus engaged the crew heard repeated knocks from the inside against the iron bottom. They also noticed a noise resembling a human voice crying "Help." A hole was drilled in the iron plates, and this was hardly accomplished, when a human finger appeared in the opening. Then Captain Engellandt announced himself to the astonished sailors as safe and sound within the ship's hull. He said he had food enough for three days, but during the last 24 hours had been compelled to drink sea water because the tanks were empty. The Norwegian steamship's artificers were not prepared to make the hole in the iron bottom large enough to permit of the imprisoned man's liberation, and therefore the wreck was towed to Dantzic. Here the vessel was raised, and thus ended Captain Engellandt's captivity, which lasted twelve weary days and eleven nights. The hardy seaman is none the worse for the fatigues he underwent. During the day he worked hard to make his presence inside the vessel known to passing ships, but at night he slept peacefully with the water underneath and the iron roof above.

Where Perfumes Come From.

William E. Curtis declares that ninety per cent. of the perfumery used in the world comes from what is known as the Department of Sea Alps in France, the strip of mountainous country which lies along the Mediterranean east of Marseilles. The soil, the climate, and the sloping hillsides facing the southern sun, make this a most favorable location for the cultivation of flowers, and the annual harvest is about 6,000,000 pounds of roses, 5,000,000 pounds of orange blossoms, 2,000,000 pounds of carnations, 1,000,000 pounds of violets, 9,000,000 pounds of lilies, 600,000 pounds of tube roses, and other flowers in proportion. These flowers are mostly raised by peasants, who own small farms and do their own work. They sell their crop of flowers to the agents of Paris perfumery manufacturers, and train-loads are shipped to that city every night during the season, just as milk from the Western farms is shipped to the creameries. When there is an abundant harvest, the buyers will pay six cents a pound for rose leaves, seven cents for orange blossoms, twenty-five cents for jasmines, fifty cents for violets, and similar rates for other flowers. After the day's harvest is done, the flowers are dumped upon tables or benches and the stems are nipped close, but the leaves that protect the blossoms are allowed to remain, because otherwise they wilt quickly, and freshness is desirable. Each leaf contains only a particle of oil, and it takes a great many particles to make an ounce. It requires 22,000 pounds of rose leaves, or 5,000,000 single blossoms, to make one pound of rose oil, and 40,000 pounds of violets, or 12,000,000 flowers, to make a pound of the oil; and one may judge of the enormous amount of flowers that are gathered annually for this purpose when it is known that the perfumers of Paris consume nearly a million pounds of the oil of flowers every year.

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house or sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trantwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trantwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000

PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is new offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

Purchase the Treasury Stock of The Drake Mining Drainage and Tunnel Transportation Co.

OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than $80,000,000 in Gold.

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 150 to 400 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,300 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale 300,000 shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at 50 cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

In an instant, Rosalie was moved to penitence.

Regretting her hasty words, she threw her arms round the woman' neck, and kissed away her tears.

"I am ungrateful and wicked!" she exclaimed. "Forget what I have said, my more than mother my best friend. You have been so good to me, and what have I done for you in return?"

"I would do as much again, and more, to see you happy," Mrs. West replied, drawing the girl to her heart, and kissing her. "There, there, don't fret yourself about me, my pretty. I did what I thought was best for you, and if I've failed, it's not my fault nor yours."

Rosalie had cause to regret that sad scene, and the tears she had brought to those honest eyes.

A few days later, Mrs. West was taken suddenly ill, and, after a few hours' suffering, breathed her last.

The days that followed held nothing but darkness for Rosalie.

She had communicated with Jim and his wife; but they had arrived too late to see Mrs. West alive.

The silent house, with its drawn blinds, had convinced them all was over, and there was no need to ask the question which had formed itself in their minds, before they came in view of Lilac Villa.

Jim did not stay long.

By dint of hard work and steadfast purpose, he had reached the height of his ambition.

The once needy clown was now the proprietor of a large circus, and, knowing how to please the public in every fresh venture, his efforts had met with considerable success.

He returned to Lilac Villa in time to follow his mother to her last resting place, and to hear the reading of the will.

She had left everything belonging to her to Rosaline—the lease of the house, the furniture, and a couple of hundred pounds.

Doubtless, Mrs. West had thought Rosalie would take her place as mistress of Lilac Villa, and add to the little store of money by securing tenants for the rooms set apart for that purpose.

Had any wish to this effect been expressed in the will, the girl would have faithfully acted up to it.

As it was, she found herself utterly adrift.

What was the good of the house to her?

She could not live in it alone.

Everything would remind her of the last painful event in her life—the death of her best friend—the only mother she had ever known.

"What do you intend doing?" Polly asked, stroking the girl's long hair, the bright gold of which was heightened by her black dress. "You can't stay here by yourself, and Jim said I shall have to go back with him to-night."

"And leave me by myself?" Rosalie said, shivering as she thought of the dark room upstairs, which, only a few hours ago, had held that silent form.

"Some of the neighbors might come in with you," Polly remarked, seeing the girl's dread of being alone. "I daresay you have lots of friends about, having been here all your life."

Rosalie shook her head.

"I have never mixed with the people about here. Mrs. West did not wish me to. I have no friends who would come to me."

"Not anybody?"

"No."

"I don't know what's to be done. There's the circus to attend to—everything must be going wrong without me, and I shall find affairs in a fine state when I get back. What a pity it is you didn't have another friend."

"I have had other friends, but I have lost them," Rosalie said, pressing her fingers on her eyelids to keep back the tears. "It is almost worse to have, and lose, than never to have at all."

She was half-sitting, half-crouching on a horsehair sofa placed in the darkest corner of the room.

As she spoke she leaned her head wearily against the cushion, and let her hand drop from her eyes.

"Poor child!" Polly murmured. "I'm so sorry for you. I only wish I knew what to do for your good."

Polly sighed; it seemed a cheerless home for Rosalie.

The woman's mind traveled back to the time when she had seen the little fair-haired child in Mrs. West's arms, and she remembered how she had pleaded with Jim not to be harsh towards the motherless babe.

Polly and Jim had had but one child, and that had died in infancy—a baby-girl, with flaxen hair and soft blue eyes.

She thought of her own child as she looked at Rosalie, and longed to give her the protection she knew the girl so sorely needed.

"I expect Jim'll be in again presently," Polly said, poking the fire and making it blaze. "I'll get the kettle and put it on to boil. He'll be glad of a cup of tea."

The truth was, Polly knew Rosalie had been almost entirely without food for the last few days, and she did not want to leave her until she had seen her take some nourishment.

Rosalie dragged herself to her feet and tried to throw off the sense of desolation which had weighed her down.

"I will get the tea," she said, in an aching voice, "I ought to have thought of it sooner."

Polly put her gently back upon the couch.

"I'll see to it, my dear; I know where everything's kept, and you'll be better of a rest. There, lie down, and shut your eyes; you look worn to death."

Rosalie allowed her head to droop against the cushion, and closed her eyes.

She felt tired and ill—utterly spent after what she had gone through during these days.

It seemed to soothe her to lie there, and she was comforted by the kiss Polly imprinted on her cheek before leaving her.

Left to herself, exhaustion overcame Rosalie, and she sank into a troubled sleep.

She was not awake when Jim came in. Cautioned by his wife not to make any sound, he stepped quietly into the room, and stood gazing down at the sleeper.

The blazing fire dispelled the shadows from the corner she had chosen.

The light fell on her face, and on the shining masses of her hair; and Jim had never seen anything so lovely as this young girl asleep in her sorrow.

He noted the delicate arched feet, the slender hands, the slight figure, so full of grace, and long forgotten words came back to his mind.

Would not such a beauty as hers be a new attraction to his circus?

His favorite artiste had met her death a few weeks ago through a fall from a tight-rope, and since then he had found it difficult to fill the vacancy in the programme.

He might train Rosalie so that she could take part in the performance.

Her beauty would be almost sufficient attraction, and the audience would be satisfied with a very small display of talent on her part.

A Wonderful Dog.

They were talking about the almost human intelligence exhibited by dogs on some occasions, says The Washington Star. Several anecdotes had been related of the wonderful intellect of canines, when an army officer, who is connected with the cavalry arm of the service, stepped into the ring and squared himself for a good one. He is something of a sportsman and knows a good dog when he sees one, so that his story was listened to with more than usual interest by his friends:—"It was down in Texas several years ago that I came across the greatest dog I ever saw or heard of," he said. "The animal belonged to a friend of mine and was the greatest quail dog you ever saw. We have taken that dog out day after day and he would never go wrong, and would point quail in the most unlooked-for places. One day we were walking into town from the army post where I was stationed, this friend of mine and I, and we had the dog along. As we were walking along the road carelessly a well-dressed stranger passed us. No sooner had the man passed on than the dog stuck his tail in the air, and assumed the attitude recognized as 'pointing.' It was some time before we were able to determine what he was pointing, but finally came to the determination that he was pointing the stranger, which proved to be correct. We called to the man and asked him if he had any quail about him, or if he had eaten any quail, explaining why we asked. He said he had nothing of the kind, and did not remember having eaten any for some months. Turning to my friend, I said:

"'Your old dog has gone wrong.'

"'Not a bit of it,' he replied. 'That dog is right, and I'll bet you $10 he is.'

"I did not see then how the bet was going to be settled, but took it up anyway, and we continued on to town. We went to the biggest hotel in the place to get some refreshments, and there saw the stranger we had met on the road. My friend asked the clerk who the stranger was, and the clerk pointed to the register. As soon as my friend saw the name he gave a yell and called me to come over there.

"'Give me your money, my boy. That dog knew what he was doing when he pointed that man.'

"To satisfy myself I glanced at the register, and saw the stranger's name. It was 'Robert F. Partridge!' Truly that was the most wonderful dog I ever saw or heard of."

"Say, Mister Officer, if this young lady is engaged to two fellers at onct, can she be arrested for bigamy?"—"Life."

AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY

FOR BOTH LARGE AND SMALL INVESTORS

Owing to valuable Patents having been granted this Company, we are desirous of extending our business to the Dominion of Canada. Owing to the Customs duties, the extra cost in transportation and the numerous expenses attached, and the delays in deliveries in shipping goods from one country to another, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a factory in the Dominion, that we may be in a position to meet the immediate wants of the business

The articles that we make from our Patent Fabric are too numerous to mention, and it is not necessary that we go into the details of the merits of our goods, as they are already in use to a large extent and have no equal. Our goods are covered by several patents, and the profit on the goods is large, averaging from 25 to 100 per cent, thus affording the company large revenue to meet all its obligations

In order to secure funds to equip a plant in the Dominion of Canada we will offer to the people of Canada $100,000 of our Bonds paying ten per cent. interest per annum.

Experience has shown that stocks based upon sound industrial enterprises have never been equalled from the standpoint of legitimate profit. For instance, a few hundred dollars invested in the Bell Telephone Company's stock in the beginning of the enterprise now commands thousands of dollars, after having yielded large dividends annually. Of course opportunities for such profitable investments do not present themselves every day, and it is also very true that a vast amount of capital has been misdirected in the endeavor to exploit inventions and enterprises which shrewd and far seeing investors should have recognized as impractical. But as regards this enterprise even the most conservative must admit it has possibilities of development which are almost incalculable and which have already been demonstrated in a practical manner. We have no speculative elements—this is a sound business proposition, and the patents which we own are worth several million dollars, as there can only be one fabric of this kind and that is ours.

All the above facts are simple statements of the truth and can be fully substantiated to the satisfaction of all investors.

The business is no experiment, the incorporators of this Company have made it their business for a great many months past and understand all the details, the prospects are therefore bright, and brighter than those of many other opportunities.

This Company is not a promotors company, every dollar goes to enhance the value of the property and business and increase the capacity. There is nothing speculative in this proposition, the enterprises are undertaken for industrial purposes only to make profits by the operation and development of the business.

Considering that the enterprise is already upon an established basis with a certainty of profitable future expansion, we feel warranted in the assertion that this is an attractive proposition to investors whether large or small.

The price of these Bonds are one dollar each, and will be issued in any number wanted. With every purchaser of each five Bonds we will give as a bonus, one share of stock of the Company, the par value of which is five dollars per share, thus assuring interest on the investment, and with the stock which is bound to increase you will have for nothing. These Bonds will be issued for five years. Persons desiring to avail themselves of this opportunity want to send their remittance at once.

More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tulloch, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Erwin D Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now a clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

A BY-WAY TO FORTUNE

I.

THOUGH the affair attracted much interest at the time, and many reports, some of them highly imaginative, were circulated through the district, there is, I believe, no one so competent to give a plain, substantial account as myself; for I was present at the Alpha and Omega, the first and the last scene.

"It all comes along of this new eddication," said the village cronies (we were in the fifties then). "If he hadn't a' been eddicated, he couldn't a' done it."

"Eddication" or no, the news fell like a thunderbolt on our country-side: the Squire's house broken into, his old butler wounded, and, chief of all, the famous diamonds stolen! Simple folk could scarcely realize a parallel audacity; as for our village constable, he was fathoms out of his depth even in the shallows of such a mystery. Special men came down from London for the case, and, after a month's silence, a development was arrived at.

Many years have passed—more, indeed, than I care to reckon—since that eventful afternoon, yet the memory of it still lingers with me vividly, for I was but a stripling at the time, and unused to the harsh realities of the world.

Picture to yourself an autumn day, quiet on the ear, but raw and damp to one's flesh, with little drops of water hanging from every brown leaf, and clouds of steam rising from the horses' backs, and behind them your servant, plowing alone in a far outlying field. There could be few more solitary tasks, for, the place being remote and wild, you might work there a year and a day without hearing the sound of a man's voice. At the bottom of the field ran a strip of wood about three hundred yards wide, and extending a mile or so up the valley. As I plodded slowly in the furrow, I whistled to myself for company's sake, and had thus got well into the swing of my labor, when, turning on one headland, I caught sight of three figures creeping down the field under the shelter of the opposite hedge. As they reached the spot to which my plowing led me they halted, and watched my steady progress across the field towards them. They were fine, strong men, I noted, respectably clad in sober-colored clothes. Inexperienced as I was, in their stalwart upright bearing, the squareness of their shoulders, their heavy clean-shaved jaws and fixed expression, I recognized, through the civilian attire, that most curious and at times terrible product—the disciplined man. As I drew my horses up, one, who appeared the leader, and carried, I remember, a smart little cane, which he bent before him in both hands, spoke to me.

"Farmer Hazlitt's son, I believe?" he said.

I replied that was so.

"Well, Mr. Hazlitt, your father," he continued, "down at the farm, told me you would give some information."

I was at his disposal, I said.

He kept under the hedge, and spoke in a low tone, yet the words were distinct, and his manner to the point.

"First then, is that Croomley Wood?" he asked, pointing to the lower side of the field, where the land sloped into the valley.

"Yes," I answered.

"Do you know it well?"

"As well as any person in the parish, for very few go there save the gypsies for firewood."

"How many paths are there in it?" was his next question.

"Only one."

"Could a man push through it elsewhere?"

"It is possible, of course," I said; "but you would hear him half a mile off." He appeared pleased at my answers, and nodded a sharp "Good."

"Now, where does this single path run?" starting again.

"About six yards in the wood from the bottom of this field."

"Then if I stand down there I cannot miss seeing or hearing anyone who passes through the wood?"

"No," I replied.

"And if anyone comes from that direction"—he pointed across the valley—"it will be also impossible?"

"Yes; but in that case," I added, "I should myself catch a glimpse of them from here, as the path rises almost out of the wood for a few yards at one place."

"Good," he said once more; "it is a pleasure to question you, Mr. Hazlitt. One thing more let me beg of you, and that is to oblige me by going on with your plow as if you had not seen us. A look, a word from you at a critical point might spoil one of the prettiest bits of work ever put up."

I said he might rely on me.

"If you see anything, don't see anything, but keep your horses moving," were his last rather enigmatical words.

They went, falling naturally in step and in line, down the hedge, whilst I pulled my team round for another turn, and so had my back to them till I had crossed the field. When I again faced in their direction, I saw that they were concealed at various distances along the top of the wood, and that two comrades of the same substantial build had joined them, making in all five. Journeying from headland to headland in the usual stolid fashion of men that follow the plow, I could not help fancying that I was in a manner playing the part of decoy to some unsuspecting wretch; but, reflecting it was none of my business, I persevered on my way to and fro. Thus about two hours passed. What happened then?—nothing but the crowing of a cock pheasant, answered almost immediately by a rival from another part of the wood. Had not my eye chanced to rest at that moment on the only one of the five watchers distinctly visible to me (the man whose questions I had answered) the thing would have passed me unnoticed. He (the watcher) had made himself fairly comfortable even among the dripping branches, with the smart cane stuck in the ground before him, and a short pipe in his mouth. On the first pheasant-call he put the pipe smartly in his pocket and changed his position stealthily to one of extreme readiness. So long as I faced towards the wood I could, of course, be keenly on the alert without betraying it; but in the return furrow this was impossible save by breaking my promise in looking round. I resisted the temptation till halfway across, when an uncontrollable impulse led me to drop one of the lines and thus obtain an opportunity of glancing behind me. It was the affair of a moment; it is true, but I saw the figure of a woman flitting hurriedly along the wood-path; she carried a small basket under her arm. "Martha Foster—Ned the poacher's wife," rose instinctively to my lips. Another yard and she was hidden by a thicket. I was so surprised that I made no attempt to continue plowing, but stood staring at the opening through which I had seen her. A deep and, to me, solemn silence reigned; then a startled magpie fled chattering from the branches, followed almost immediately by the shrill scream of a woman, and a yell, half rage, half defiance, so intense, so savage, that I scarcely thought it came from a man, but rather from some wild animal at bay. Scream after scream thrilled me as, leaving my team, I rushed down to the wood. At a broadening of the path three figures were struggling with a prostrate man; two others held a woman back, who clawed and shrieked like a fury; on the ground lay her basket, with the food it contained scattered and trodden in the drifts of damp, sodden leaves. There was a sharp metallic click, and the three stalwart men rose, leaving their prisoner handcuffed on his face.

"Come, missus, be reasonable," said the leader; "you'll only do him harm now."

Even she cowered before their calm, machine-like impassibility, and her cries subsided to a low moaning. They lifted Ned Foster to his feet, put their clothes, disordered and muddy from the encounter, to rights, lit their pipes, and exchanged a few words, such as: "Smart bit of business;" "Very pretty indeed;" "Glad to hear that pheasant-call," and so forth. "Now then, my lads, fall in and let's be marching," said the leader, picking up his cane.

Since his capture Ned Foster had preserved a sullen silence, but now he growled out: "What's this along of, mates?"

"Squire Venne's diamonds and wounding his butler," was the brief reply. "Come, best foot forward, or we sha'n't reach in till dark."

Before they left the fields to enter the closed-in lanes, Ned Foster turned for one last look at a white cottage standing alone in the fields across the valley, whence the woman had come bringing the food that led to his capture—the home which should know him no more. But his wife, following last and unguarded—for they had no fear of her attempting to escape—let her eyes wander neither to the right nor left, nor indeed ever lifted them from the prisoner, who with hands crossed before him, strode doggedly beside his captors.

Thus the curtain falls on Alpha, the first scene in this history. Before telling the second and final, I must pause to give a few, very few words of explanation.

Squire Venne was a gentleman of ancient family, moderate estates, and emphatic pretensions to social position. There were two things for which the Vennes had, during many years, been distinguished, both to their county friends and to our village folks — first, their chronic impecuniosity, and the straits they were often put to as a result; secondly, the famous family diamonds, which Mrs. Venne wore on every possible occasion, to the great comment of other county ladies. Many a time had financial storms arisen which threatened to swamp Squire Venne and his house for ever unless the famous jewels were sacrificed to still the troubled waters. Yet when all seemed lost through this unaccountable obstinacy, at that very moment, by some mysterious negotiations other expedients were always found; and though report often had it that at last the diamonds had been sold, with the next Hunt Ball Mrs. Venne was again the envy of her neighbors.

The surprise in the village at the capture of the poacher was very great, for it was not thought even that he was in the district, as he had set out (it was now remembered against him) with great ostentation up-country in search of work a week before the robbery, and had not been seen since. Having always been a morose, sullen man, not much pity was felt for him by his neighbors, though a distinct note of elation might be generally observed that, after all, the affair was the result of local talent.

Ned Foster was in due time tried, convicted and sentenced to be transported; the evidence of his guilt was absolutely conclusive. Martha Foster, against whom lay nothing beyond taking food to her husband, was discharged, when she returned to live alone in the old white cottage.

So far success had attended the efforts of the police, but one important feature of the case remained unsolved—the jewels had not been traced. Fragments of their mountings were found on the person of the prisoner, yet threat or promise was alike powerless to induce him to disclose his knowledge or produce any effect save a savage snarl at their impotence. The prevailing impression was that he had a confederate in some accomplished rogue, who was doubtless the designer of the whole plot, and who had undertaken the disposal of the gems. Precautions were therefore taken by the officials to keep a watch on all known channels through which such goods might be expected to pass—as I have said without result.

In spite of this fact, Squire Venne used every influence he possessed to obtain a mitigation of the sentence. It was, he said, a painful thing to him to feel a fellow-creature doomed to the horrors of transportation for those wretched jewels. This also was in vain; and so Ned Foster was buried under the shadow of the convict prison in the prime of his life, whilst the famous diamonds remained securely concealed from the world's eyes. Winter drew to summer, and summer in turn to winter, and so many times over, till people forgot the great robbery at the Hall, or, if they did recall it, were doubtful whether it happened in the year '55 or '53; and still the convict worked out his punishment, and still the diamonds glittered unseen, unknown, from their hiding-place.

II.

It is a long entr' acte to my second scene—fifteen years. In such a space changes come to even a country village. Time did not spare ours. Martha Foster had died; the close of her life was passed in solitude, half forced on her, half sought, but utter and complete. The white cottage had fallen into ruins; doors, window-frames, and later even rafters were burnt by wandering gypsies on their camp-fires; cattle sought shelter in it from rain and sun; over the hearth a stout elderberry-tree shot up, showing its branches above the four bare walls that alone remained partly intact; in the garden before the house rabbits from

YOUR MONEY WORKS WHILE YOU SLEEP

Our famous corps of track sharps are up at break of day, "clocking" the horses in their morning tryouts and while you sleep they spot the winners that bring you steady income.—Our method puts you on a level with the most successful plungers of the American turf.—We operate for you for 25 per cent. of weekly earnings.—We win only when you win.—Results obtained really "beyond dreams of avarice."

Again we scored heavily for all of our clients last month. Again we landed the money and landed it in chunks. Three years of organization, with the best facilities that money and brains can procure to make our service of picking and backing winners at the horse races the most accurate and profitable in the land, has had its natural sequence, and each week our showing demonstrates a good profit for every client.

How $50 netted $201.75 in less than a month.

Here is a complete statement, showing the result of a $10 play on each horse given in our "Discretionary Series" during October. (Note: A capital to begin with of $50 is required by us as a matter of conservatism, to make a $10 play on each horse that is considered by us a good betting proposition.)

The above showing is no improvement over that of September, and is not remarkable, since we have excelled it time and time again during the past three years of our uninterrupted operations. Good as it is, however, we are confident we will make it "look sick" by comparison with the showing we are going to make at the meeting of 100 days which begins at New Orleans this month.

WE PICK THE WINNERS

The system we employ to locate winners is identical with that used by "Pittsburg Phil," John A. Drake, John Gates, W. Langdon, Joe Yeager, and other famous plungers who win hundreds of thousands on the turf every year, and it proves just as successful.

We gather our information of prospective winners through a force of expert horsemen who hold a watch on the horses in their early-morning trials, and in that way learn which are ready to win.

The money that is played into the game by persistent losers, such as the large mass of uninformed players are, bound to be, goes into the pockets of the big operators, of which the Maxim & Gay Co. representing a large clientele, stands at the head. The work of the Maxim & Gay Co. is to place the general public on a level with the winning plungers, and our success in this accomplishment has made us famous on two continents.

We do business only on the great racetracks of the U. S. We number among our clients some of the best known sportsmen, financiers and merchants in the country. Investment on the turf is now deemed as legitimate as any other high-class form of speculation. The present high standard to which racing has been brought, and the absolutely good faith in which turf affairs are conducted under the auspices of the Jockey Club in the East, and the Western Jockey Club in the West, has inspired millionaire capitalists and business men all over the country with as much confidence in racing as in the stock, grain, and cotton markets, and this is one reason why transactions in the betting rings now rival in magnitude those of the stock, cotton, and grain exchanges.

Another reason for the rapid growth of turf speculation in popular favor, is the rapidity with which all transactions are wound up. The speculator makes his investment at the racetrack in the afternoon through us and receives a notification by mail, in a letter guaranteed to bear a postmark earlier than the race is run, of just what horses are to be backed for his account. By the next mail he is informed of the result of that day's operations, and he learns quickly just where he stands. At the end of each week he receives a complete statement of his account with a money order for his profits, less 25 per cent., which we deduct as our fee.

This gives a wholesome tone to legitimate turf speculation which cannot be found in the more or less involved transactions of the big exchanges, and this is why turfmen live more comfortably and live longer than do men whose involved transactions are on their minds, day and night, for weeks and sometimes for months at a stretch.

OUR CLIENTS WON A MILLION DOLLARS

As it is well known that our client have collectively won as much as a million dollars at a single race meeting, it is sometimes asked: "Why do not Maxim & Gay simply sit down and back their own selections, instead of running a considerable clerical force and spending large sums in advertising in newspapers throughout the country?"

The answer is simple enough if one stops to consider the situation. Maxim & Gay, by dint of energy, ability, organization, capital and advertising, have secured an enormous clientele, which assures the command of immense capital. If we can pick winners for this immense number of investors, our profits are larger than if we played our own money only, for on a basis of 25 per cent. of winnings, which we charge for information and commission, one man out of every four of our customers is practically betting for us. The proof that this plan works for the benefit of the public as well is that they win three weeks out of four and our books show that no customer who stuck to us for two months ever failed to get well ahead of the game, while not a few of those who now own winning stables of race horses and who are cutting an important figure on the turf, began the game as mere novices, playing our selections through us.

The principle upon which we operate is such that we must of necessity do the best we can for you. Our income, as pointed out, is derived solely from a percentage of the winnings of our clients, and if we cannot make you win, our entire income is cut off. That we have been successful in making our clients win, is amply proven by the fact that we have prospered for upward of three years, while imitators, pursuing more economical and less businesslike methods have gone under by the score. Noting the success that was being achieved by Maxim & Gay, scores of "get-rich-quick" operators tried to break into the field successfully occupied by the older and more responsible form, but it did not take the press and public long to discriminate between the legitimate and the illegitimate, and as a result we have continued to flourish uninterruptedly while in the ranks of our rivals there have been scores of enterprises initiated, only to end in failure.

A Few of Hundreds of Recent Endorsements of the Press

CINCINNATI COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE, March 1, 1903

Maxim & Gay, who have been so successful in selecting winners at the New Orleans races, are in a class by themselves and have no relation in their system of operation to the "get-rich-quick" schemes that have recently gone to pieces disastrously to those who patronized them. Maxim & Gay do not guarantee their clients profits nor against losses, but merely play the money of their subscribers and deduct a fixed percentage from winnings for placing the commissions. This point is made clear in all their announcements. What they guarantee to do is to confidentially handle all money forwarded them and place it on the races just as if it were their own. They have in their employ as "clockers" the most expert judges of track work in the country, and there is not a horse at the New Orleans meeting that they have not a record of. The information collected in this way is used to the benefit of their subscribers, and its reliable character is attested by the numerous winners they have picked in the past two weeks.

Maxim & Gay are the pioneers in this line of investment or speculation; they have been established three years; they conduct their business on straightforward business lines, their methods have been thoroughly investigated and are entirely different from those pursued by the "get-rich-quick" schemes, so called, which were but recently closed by the authorities. The transactions of Maxim & Gay are legal in every sense, and they do exactly what they advertise to do, that is, play the money of their subscribers on the horses they judge will win, and they usually win. Prompt and proper accounting is made of the result, but they guarantee no fixed profits, those who have continuously patronized them have not been losers.

ST. PAUL DISPATCH, February 26, 1903

An investigation of the methods of the Maxim & Gay Co. shows them to be conducting their business on straightforward business lines. They have been established nearly three years. They do not guarantee clients profits or against loss, but merely place subscribers' money on judgment of experts, charging a fee for information and deduct a fixed percentage from winnings for placing the commissions. They are the pioneers in this line of investment or speculation.

N. Y. MORNING TELEGRAPH, February 23, 1903.

Since the incorporation of the Maxim & Gay Co., the casual racegoer can possess himself of as much if not more knowledge of the comparative merits of the horses, and their chances of success, as the "regular" who burns the midnight oil studying from charts. He can secure through this company, which is incorporated under the laws of New York State, the expert knowledge and expert judgment of an experienced combination of horsemen whose duty it is to find out for him such things concerning the horses as he could not possibly find out for himself, unless he devoted his entire time and attention to the business. Even then, to do as well, he would have to possess a peculiar talent and be specially fitted by experience and natural ability.

CINCINNATI TIMES-STAR, March 2, 1903.

The Maxim & Gay Company, well-known purveyors of turf information, should not be confounded with "get rich quick" turf investment or concerns of similar character. They have been established nearly three years. They place subscribers money on judgment of their experts, and deduct a fixed percentage from winnings for placing the commissions. They are the Napoleons in this line of investment or speculation.

MEMPHIS EVENING SCIMITAR, March 2, 1903

The advertisements that appear from time to time in the columns of various newspapers with reference to the turf plan of Maxim & Gay Company tell a story entirely different from the exploits of the defunct "get-rich-quick" concerns.

The Maxim & Gay Company transact business thoroughly and solely on business principles.

JOIN OUR WINNING ARMY

The greatest race meeting in the history of the South begins at New Orleans within a fortnight. In magnitude it will eclipse all other turf gatherings of the past. The Crescent City Jockey Club knows this to be a banner year and has prepared for it. So have we. If there are more horses at the New Orleans racetrack than ever gathered there before, we have more expert "clockers" and handicappers than we ever employed at any other meeting. They cannot make the game too big for us to handle. We move with the times.

If you want to get aboard our Discretionary series, at New Orleans, in which we play daily those and only those horses we think A1 betting propositions, with the privilege of not playing any horses at all on days when we consider conditions unpropitious, fill out the following blank and forward your remittance to us at New Orleans as soon as you can. Play will be begun on the first day of the meeting, if your money reaches us in time; otherwise, we will begin play the first day it reaches us after the meeting has begun. Money should be sent by bank draft, express money order, or currency in registered letter. Uncertified checks are not accepted.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 166 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

New York, Nov. 4—The elections were about as expected, and it is figured that the stock markets will be favorable affected by the results. The money situation continues to attract the bulk of attention, but conditions in this connection are believed to be healthy as long as advices are to the effect that $3,000,000 gold has been engaged for shipment to America.

The money rates generally show less tendency to harden and in the interior funds are being more freely offered. The summary reports of the Gould lines indicate substantial conditions in the south west. The October output of anthracite shows a material falling off. Chicago and Alton shows heavy increase in operating expenses. Morgan says he is satisfied with the general situation at the present time.

Chicago, Nov. 4—The fluctuations in the grain markets were rather narrow but mostly weak wheat was sold out freely though shorts reduced their lines, The country movement of wheat continues professional and the pit elements are doing the bulk of the business. The country movement continues steady.

A Woman Who Could Shoot

A story told by the wife of a factor of the Hudson Bay Fur Trading Company shows that ability to do a thing well sometimes makes the actual doing unnecessary. The woman had been brought up in the post, where her father was chief factor, and, like all the children and women, had learned to use firearms with ease and accuracy.

My father and the men had gone away to a conference with the Indians, who had been hostile for some time, she says. They had left orders not to open the gates of the fort.

It was a blistering day and the water in the stockade grew warm. So it was suggested that someone go to the river and get a fresh pailful. My aunt agreed to go, and marched out alone with a pail in one hand and a rifle in the other.

We stood behind the loopholes of the closed gate, saw her disappear down the bank, come up again with a dripping pail of fresh water, and set it down again as if to rest. She had barely picked it up again when she stopped abruptly, gazing straight at the high grasses on the right of the path between herself and the fort. All eyes at the loopholes turned in that direction, too; and there, stealing through the grasses with their war feathers and war paint on, we saw two young marauding warriors plainly bent on mischief. They evidently knew that the men were all out and only women in the fort.

We could not possibly shoot in my aunt's defence without great risk of hitting her. If we unfastened the gate, one of the Indians could easily have forced an entrance while the other stopped her

But my aunt, instead of rushing in, set down the pail. She looked again where the Indians had now risen boldly up directly under a solitary tree.

On the topmost branch of that tree sat a "whisky-jack"—a bird of the jay family which is common round camps in the Northern woods. Quick as a flash she aimed her rifle, "picked off" that jay as coolly as if she had been at target practice, and then, as calmly lifting the pail of water, came slowly to the gate, where we received her with open arms.

As for the Indians—well, there was a flourish of greasy shoulders through the long grass, and the two braves had disappeared.

Closing of a Big Mine

A startling story of a big mine's closing comes from Butte, Montana. By the shut-down of the Amalgamated Copper Company, a payroll of over $50,000 a day is cutte off in Butte. Representatives of the Company declare that by the decision rendered by Judge Clancy last Friday, the company named is practically wiped out of existence, and cannot do business in Montana. Its shareholders are prevented from receiving dividends, they say, although $3,000,000 is tied up and awaiting distribution. All the mines and smelters of the company have been ordered closed, and 15,000 workmen are thrown out of work. How long the shut-down will continue is a matter of doubt. It may take nine or ten months before the company can get a hearing before the Supreme Court.

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H. N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100-foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G. Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Co. is to make some money. "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure-house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise. Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50 000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense. If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

A limited number of shares of this really first class proposition may be obtained on application to PETERBOROUGH BROKERAGE CO, Fiscal Agents, Peterborough, or J. J. BRANDON, Fenelon Falls; W. GALLON, Apsley; G. B. HILLIARD, Lakefield, or GEO. H. BROWN, Chemong.

THREE UNDOUBTED BARGAINS

A placer and two quartz claims;

Two partially developed quartz claims;

One-quarter section patented land adjoining above;

All located in the Susanville Mining District, Eastern Oregon. Will be sold together or separately. Total price, $9,000.

We consider this group of properties to be unusually promising as a heavy producing mine joins a portion of the land, and near-by placer grounds are showing up very rich.

There is Nothing on Earth

That Shows as much Profit for Work Done and Money Spent as an OIL WELL.

A gold mine needs continual digging, but an oil well, if it does not flow of its own accord, needs to be pumped, and it supplies the fuel to run the pump.

Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars, yes, Millions, have been made in the Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana oil fields, but these fields are on the decline, and the eyes of the world are turning to the Kentucky and Tennessee fields, where a mighty development has begun. Today Kentucky and Tennessee have over 500 producing wells, and is pumping thousands of barrels of oil. Money is flowing into the field from eastern financial centres as well as from the capital of Europe. It is believed by oil men that this will become the greatest oil field in America.

The Standard Oil Company is spending millions of dollars in laying the foundations of the most gigantic pipe line ever laid in any section. This shows that they have faith in Kentucky and Tennessee as the coming oil-producing section of America.

The American Oil Co.

Is one of the successful Companies operating over 2,000 acres of proven oil land in Kentucky and Tennessee located along the line of transportation. To push the wells and complete the development of this vast property, the Company offers 50,000 shares of treasury stock at 5 cents per share. This low offer is but for a short time, and may be withdrawn without further notice.

CATARRH

The Mother of Consumption

How this dread disease may be prevented and cured—the opinions of people who have been cured by

CATARRHOZONE

Catarrh is very often spoken of as the mother of consumption, because when neglected, it extends from its place of beginning to the bronchial tubes then deeper and deeper, till finally the disease becomes consumption of the lungs.

The safest and best remedy for any form of Catarrh is Catarrhozone. It is inhaled to all parts of the breathing organs, kills the disease, and drives it completely out of the system.

Mrs. Mary J. Whitney, of Clay Street, Topeka, Kansas, was cured of nasal catarrh, after twenty years' suffering by Catarrhozone. She says:—

"I owe to Catarrhozone an immense debt of gratitude. It cured me of Catarrh of the most disagreeable kind after doctors without number had pronounced my case incurable. My breath is pure and my respiration regular, and I do not cough any more since using Catarrhozone. It has cured me perfectly."

Another case of Chronic Catarrh that was cured quickly by Catarrhozone is that of Mr. G. S. Luce, of 1,900 Navasota Street, Austin, Texas. Mr. Luce says:

"I tried for four years to get rid of Nasal Catarrh, used salt douches, atomizers, tablets, stomach medicines, etc., but they didn't do me much good.

"Then I tried Catarrhozone, and received relief in a few hours. It cured in a week, so that I never had a recurrence of my former trouble.

Miss Winer, who resides on May Street, in Hartford, Conn., was cured of throat trouble by Catarrhozone, and speaks of her recovery in the following words.—

"Repeated colds finally resulted in a Catarrhal condition from which I suffered more or less every spring and fall. Catarrhozone was the only remedy that relieved and cured me. I recommend it."

No treatment is so good for Catarrhal affections and Bronchitis as Catarrhozone. Its success is quite unequalled in the history of medicine. It will cure you quickly and surely, and is well worth a trial. Two months' treatment guaranteed to cure, price $1.00; small size 25c Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont. Buy it to-day.

RAILWAY EXTENSION

Trains will Cross New Dam at Cereal Works

The completion of the new dam by the Cereal Company is now approaching. A line of railway will be laid over the piers, and a track will be constructed northward to Auburn, affording a magnificent siding, similar to the C.P.R. spur line. The Cereal Company will have their own shunting engine.

A gang of men and construction train are now at work near Auburn on the new sidings.

THE TRENT CANAL

Mr. J. Alexr. Culverwell is Doing Splendid Work

The Times had the pleasure of a call yesterday from Mr. J. Alexr. Culverwell, who came down from Toronto to attend the Board of Trade meeting held on Tuesday night, a report of which appeared in yesterday's issue. The town and this part of the province owe Mr. Culverwell a huge debt of gratitude for the efforts he has made and is still making to have the great national waterway completed.

Mr. Culverwell is having two different long letter articles appear in Toronto daily papers this week, and is also having a map (with voluminous information) inserted in the "Canadian Manufacturer." He says he is determined to inform the people of the benefits of the Trent Valley Canal as a national grain-carrying waterway, and thus induce the government to complete this great national work.

NEW CASH CARRIER SYSTEM

Messrs. Richard Hall & Son Have Installed Fine System

With their usual enterprise Messrs. Richard Hall & Son have installed in their new store on George street a modern system of cash carriers. The work was done by Mr. Alf. Willey, travelling lineman for the Lamson Consolidated Store Service Company, of Boston, Mass. The system is the only one of the kind in this part of Canada, the nearest city having an identical system being Montreal. The plan is a new one, and the system is operated by an electric motor. There are about 2,000 feet of steel track in the store, which includes the second story, and on this track a carrier runs, propelled by a cable, which is in continuous operation. From the furthest point in the store the carrier will reach the desk in seven seconds. 1,000 feet of cable will be used, and 2,000 feet of track, which is six feet four inches from the ground. The whole service is now in operation. A new till is also being used in connection with the system, by the adoption of which change will be made much more readily, as it is always open.

MR. A. A. BROWN IN TOWN

The President of the Great Stony Pass Company Here

Yesterday morning Mr. A. A. Brown, Silverton, Colo., arrived in town. Mr. Brown had business in Detroit and New York, and dropped off at Peterborough for a day. Mr. Robert Harrison and Mr. Thomas Patterson, of town, recently paid a visit to the mines, and will in a few days publish a statement of what they saw in that wonderful country. Several thousand extra copies will be printed and mailed to leading investors throughout the country.

Last night a few of the leading citizens met at Mr. Harrison's residence, and spent a very pleasant hour or two, and probably a very profitable time as well.

As Mr. Harrison puts it: The fabulous richness of the Stony Pass Mine can hardly be described. He says that he would not believe any one who would attempt to describe the wealth to be found there, it is so immense. Only those, like himself, who have seen it can know something of the great wealth in store for the stockholders of the Company.

Mr. Brown will be shown around town today, visiting the places of interest, and will leave for New York this evening.

Pensions for Teachers

Re the proposal to pension teachers, The Times believes that the teacher is no more entitled to a pension paid, in whole or in part, out of public money, than the corporation laborer. As a matter of fact, the school teacher is less entitled to public money than the workers in almost any other walk in life. The teacher is prepared for his or work largely at the expense of the public; they work five hours a day, during five days a week, and make holiday during two months and a half of each year. He gets his pay —and good pay, too—regularly, and his position is secure. Why, then, should he be singled out from all other workers to be the recipient of public money in the way of pension?

NICKNAMES

What the Jolly School Principal is Called

Nicknames never yet hurt a healthy man.

An Ohio lady tells a good food story. "Once years ago my sister, at that time a woman of 35, became so ill from nervous exhaustion that for two years her life was despaired of. She had suffered from dyspepsia since a girl and the nervous trouble of course aggravated that, until it became impossible for her to eat or take nourishment of any kind without intense suffering.

"Like all persons affected with nervous diseases she also suffered from insomnia and it was nothing unusual for her to sleep only three hours out of 24. All the years she had been a miserable invalid her diet consisted almost entirely of milk and eggs. Finally Grape-Nuts came upon the market and she tried this food for breakfast, four teaspoonfuls in a pint of hot milk and the change in her condition was perfectly marvelous.

"She improved at once and her face has now grown round and fat as I remembered it in girlhood and the increase in flesh has extended all over. She never was weighed while an invalid so we cannot say just how much she has gained, but it is wonderful. She now sleeps the whole night through and all the miserable weaknesses and aches in head and neck are gone. She is again well and strong and happy when it looked as though she would never have any happiness upon this earth again. All her neighbors look upon her recovery as a miracle.

The Principal of the public schools in our city is such a strong advocate of Grape-Nuts as a brain food that he has gained the nickname of 'Old Grape-Nuts' but somehow or other he is so jolly and healthy he doesn't seem to care.' Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Reserved seats 75 and 50 cents, general admission 25 cents.

Weather Notes

Strong west to north-west winds; a few scattered showers, but partly fair and turning colder.

The distracting headaches from which so many women suffer make life a daily purgatory. If men suffered with headache as women do, business would be almost at a standstill. Does not the fact that men do not suffer from these severe headaches suggest that there must be a womanly cause for them?

When the womanly organism is diseased, headache, backache, nervousness and sleeplessness are consequences which are sure to follow.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures headaches and other aches and pains by curing their cause. It establishes regularity, dries unhealthy drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It soothes pain and builds up the nerves. It transforms weak, sickly, nervous invalids into happy, healthy women. Thousands have testified to its marvelous merits.

"I took two bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and two of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and am feeling well," writes Mrs. Dan McKenzie, of Lorway Mines, Cape Breton Co., Nova Scotia. "I had uterine trouble, pain in the side and headache. After taking your medicines I got well. You may publish this or use it in any way you think best, as I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Pierce and his medicines."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

FREE. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay for customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE N.W. TERRITORIES LIKELY TO REFUSE IT

Federal Loan of $250,000 at High Interest No Compensation for Lack of Self-Government

Winnipeg, Man. Nov. 6.—A politician in the city from the West says that Premier Haultain is likely to refuse the Dominion loan of $250,000, and allow the Territories to struggle along without it. This politician says that five per cent. interest is regarded as unreasonable. Provincial autonomy is likely to be the chief issue in the Territories. At the Dominion general elections, Secord, fur trader, is likely to be selected as Frank Oliver's opponent, and R. B. Bennett will stand for the Conservatives in the Calgary district.

CANADIAN SHIPS IN THE TRADE

The Allans Threaten to Leave Liverpool for Manchester

London, November 6—The Allan officials at Liverpool threaten to transfer the Canadian cargo steamers from Liverpool to Manchester. They complain bitterly that the Mersey Docks and Harbor Board refuse sufficient accommodation, thus causing delay in docking and undocking, which their rivals do not suffer. Unless this is remedied the Allans threaten to accept the offer of the Manchester Ship Canal Company to remove cargo steamers to Manchester, whence the most cargo already comes. The threat does not apply to mail and passenger steamers.

CANADIAN PACIFIC CHANGES.

Next Tuesday's Canadian Pacific steamers will inaugurate direct sailings from Liverpool to St. John. The Canadian Pacific line has altogether made 29 sailings. Their shipments of cattle have been enormous, the Mount Temple holding the record with 1,361 head. On another occasion, the Mount Temple brought the Liverpool 1256 head of cattle and 347 sheep, with a trifling mortality, while latter she carried 1,219 head without a single loss.

ABSOLUTE HARMONY EXISTS

Hamburg, Nov. 6—Herr Ballin, Director General of the Hamburg-American Line, assured a correspondent yesterday morning that absolute harmony existed between the Morgan combine and the German lines. He stated that the forthcoming negotiations would relate to rates and other matters of interest to the ocean trust.

TELEGRAPH BY OLD BOREALIS

Expert Operators Utilize Electric Impulses of Mysterious Phenomenon

St. Paul Minn., Nov. 6—By utilizing natural electric energy O. C. Greene, superintendent of the Northern Pacific telegraph system, and Assistant Superintendent Dildine of the same department, Saturday afternoon performed the novel feat of telegraphing 560 miles without the aid of dynamo or battery.

Mr. Greene says the disturbance was the greatest since 1875. It was plainly visible to the naked eye shortly after sunset Saturday night in the form of a brilliant aurora which shot vivid points of pale green light to the earth. Each time points descended it charged the wires all over the country to such a degree that communication was stopped for a time and disturbed for many hours.

"We found," said Mr. Greene to-day, "that the electricity from the over-charged atmosphere registered twenty-three millimeters positive back to the same figures negative. A wire leading to Dickson, N.D., was cleared of all battery and other artificial current, and subjected to the atmosphere test. This line was 560 miles long and was successfully operated a number of times by using only the electricity which descended from the skies.

Paris Nov. 6—The almost complete paralysis of the telegraphic system on Saturday last is attracting the attention of numerous scientists, including Camille Flammarion, the astronomer, who attributes it to magnetic disturbances caused by huge sun spots which crossed the center meridian of the sun on Saturday. Eugene Antoinall, formerly a coworker of M. Flammarion, at Juvisy, says the disturbance was due to a storm caused by a group of sun spots 125,442 miles in length. The largest sun spot, according to M. Antoinall, was 37,200 long.

TURKEY DOES NOT LIKE THE NEW REFORM PLAN

And Serious Trouble is Now Feared.

Constantinople, November 6.—Diplomatists fear that Turkey intends to give the Powers serious trouble in connection with the attempt to Christianize the Government of Macedonia. The Sultan regards the latest Austro-Russian programme as equivalent to a proposal to terminate Ottoman rule in Macedonia except in name. He is also credited by those in close touch with him as deeply considering means to escape compliance. Some predict that if His Majesty should yield, the Moslem officials and influential private subjects of the Porte will lead a crusade against the Christians and massacre their foreign rulers. Such a catastrophe, however, is probable, since the Sultan knows that it would mean irretrievable ruin for European Turkey.

A ROYAL BETROTHAL

Stockholm, Nov. 6—Prince Gustavus Adolphus, eldest son of the Crown Prince of Norway, is about to become engaged to Princess Cecile-Augustine-Marie, of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, sister of Grand Duke Frederick Francis, and also of Princess Alexandrine-Augustine, Denmark's future Crown Princess. Princess Cecile is 17 years old and through her mother, Grand Duchess Anastasia, is related to the Russian Imperial family.

War Correspondents Start

Vancouver, B.C., November 6.—Bennet Burleigh, the doyen of British campaign reporters, and the original in one of Kipling's characters in "The Light That Failed," sailed for the Orient last evening to be ready for the impending Russo-Japanese conflict. Half a dozen other war correspondents, including Frederic Villiers, have already started from London and will be here to catch the next Canadian Pacific liner.

Peace Prevailed at the Falls Yesterday.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 5—Peace prevails in the power district, but the full military and police guard is still on duty. The cold and rain keeps the strikers in the houses playing cards and drinking, but quiet.

Most of the strikers are practically shut down on account of the rain and the soldiers are not required for advanced pickets, as yesterday.

Thirteen Italians charged with rioting and one with stabbing were removed to Welland County jail last night heavily ironed and guarded.

SOLDIERS ON THE ALERT.

Several shots were heard at Dufferin Islands at midnight. Soldiers advanced and found all quiet. The report was an attempt to shoot the lights out.

Private Sloggett, of No. 1 Company, 44th Regiment, took a fully loaded 38-calibre revolver from an Italian near the clay pits yesterday afternoon. Sloggett was a sentry on an advanced position. The Italian came on a bicycle. When halted he drew a revolver and threatened to shoot. Sloggett presented a loaded rifle, and held the Italian to the fence with his bayonet. The Italian threw down his revolver, and as Sloggett stooped to get it, jumped on the wheel and got away. An unknown man who tried to pass the sentry near the works was tickled with a bayonet and fled.

The carpenters, masons, stone-cutters, steam engineers, rock drillers and other labor unions, whose members in large numbers are engaged on the power works, are taking no action whatever in connection with the strike. The reports of action by the unions in sympathy with the strikers and similar rumors of like character, are without foundation. The union men sympathize heartily with the strikers in their fight against the decrease in pay, but have done nothing to assist them.

Public sympathy is with the men so far as the strike goes, but of course no one endorses their action in rioting and attacking other men. The idleness of so many men and departures of others will seriously affect the business of merchants in some parts of the city.

TREATED HIS WIFE VERY BRUTALLY

She is in the Hospital and May Not Recover

HUSBAND UNDER ARREST

Believed to be Under Influence of Liquor When he Assaulted Her

Montreal, Nov. 6—Mrs. John Birch, 32 years of age of 250 William Street, now lies in the Notre Dame Hospital in very critical condition as the result of a brutal attack made on her yesterday afternoon by her husband.

Mrs. Birch, who was in a more or less delirious condition all night, regained consciousness today and told Dr. Floury the medical superintendent of the institution that when she objected to a man and a woman being brought into her home yesterday afternoon, Birch became enraged and made a murderous attack upon her. He dealt her a vicious blow on the side of the head which knocked down. He then kicked her all over the room. That is all she remembers. Her face was almost beaten to a pulp and she is black and blue from head to foot. Several stitches had to be placed in a gash in the side of her head, but no bones are broken. The physicians are not yet able to say whether she is internally injured or not.

When it became known last night that the recovery of the victim was doubtful, Birch was promptly arrested, and placed behind the bars. Several officers of the Police Department visited the hospital this morning with a view of ascertaining her chances for recovery. If the unfortunate woman dies Birch will be charged with murder. Hopes are entertained for her recovery by the surgeons, but there is always a danger of blood poisoning in cases of this kind.

OFFICIAL REPORT ON TOUR OF CANADA

Secretary of the London Chamber of Commerce is Enthusiastic

RUSSIAN SETTLERS COMING

British Member of Parliament Elected After Committing Himself to Preferance Plan

London, Nov. 6—Kenrick B. Murray, secretary of the London Chamber of Commerce, in a report dealing with the official tour of Canada, speaks enthusiastically of Canada's future, especially in the wheat producing districts. He also speaks highly of the industrial enterprise exhibited by Canadians, particularly in regard to electrical development.

Mr H. Pike Pease, M.P., speaking to his constituents at Darlington, said he believed he was one of the few members who had been elected after advocating reciprocity with the colonies, but he would not pledge himself to any particular method till he knew what the colonies were prepared to offer us.

FEELING IN FRANCE.

A correspondent in France writes an interesting note to a Canadian here — "The commercial men one meets here favor Mr. Chamberlain, believing the erection of a British tariff wall will greatly increase Franco-Canadian trade."

RUSSIANS FOR THE WEST.

One hundred and twenty South Russian agriculturalists sailed yesterday by the steamer Mount Temple. They will settle in the neighborhood of Winnipeg.

AN APPEAL DISMISSED.

The appeal to the Privy Council in the case of the Grand Hotel, Caledonia Springs, versus Wilson, has been dismissed. The case of the Attorney-General of Prince Edward Island versus the Attorney-General of Canada has been listed for special leave to appeal.

The City London Police Officers will arrive in Toronto on Monday next to take back Stanley G. Rowe, who is wanted in England in connection with the alleged great Fingal frauds.

The Agent General of British Columbia, speaking at a meeting in Westminster for Kootenay diocese, while pointing out that the prospects of the country were unlimited, urged strongly that the spiritual interests of the people be not overlooked.

TAKES HIS MEDICINE

Parks Quits the Labor Movement for Ever

New York, Nov. 6—Samuel Parks in his cell at the Tombs yesterday, announced that he would resign as a walking delegate and member of the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's Union at its meeting on Friday night. He says that means he is out of the Labor movement for ever. Parks says he will not appeal from his conviction in the Tiffany case, nor will he try to escape from the penalty verdict. He is eager to serve his prison term, and is not seeking bail. "I am done," said Parks, "Nothing can [illegible] Sing Sing."

TERRITORIES EAGER FOR AUTONOMY

Premier Haultain Speaks in the Assembly on the Subject

AN UNUSUAL DOCUMENT

Mr. Bulyea Will be Asked Questions in Regard to Letter Sent Premier

Regina, N.W.T., November 6 — Something akin to a sensation was created in the Assembly yesterday afternoon, when Dr. Patrick rose and gave notice of a series of questions which had more than a local significance. It will be remembered that some little time ago a document of somewhat unusual character was fished out of a mass of papers which had been tabled in the House of Commons in response to a resolution asking for a Parliamentary return of papers in connection with provincial establishment in the territories. This document was in the form of a letter to the Prime Minister signed by a majority of the Liberal members the Assembly, practically asking for provincial organization upon purely party grounds and strongly hinting that the elevation of the Territories to provincial status would put a strong lever in the hands of the local Liberals.

Dr. Patrick stated that on Friday next he would enquire of the Commissioner of Public Works "whether under date of June 16, 1903, he addressed from the executive council, Regina, to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, a letter, advising him, among other things that he (Mr. Bulyea), had advised the Federal members representing the Territories that if the general representations made by the said Federal members to his (Sir Wilfrid Laurier's) Government were adopted, it would reasonably satisfy the general public in the territories and put his (Sir Wilfrid Laurier's) candidates in the coming election in a position in which they could 'fight with zeal,' and if so, whether the 'general representations' referred to in the said letter, as having been made by the Federal members representing the Territories, were such as might fairly be inferred from the general tenor of the speeches made by such of the said Federal representatives for the Territories as took part in the debate on the amendment to the motion to go into committee of supply in the House of Commons on October 13 last, and if such may not be fairly inferred, what were the 'general representations' referred to, and what was meant by the reference in said letter to provincial autonomy as an alternative, and was the said letter written and forwarded with the knowledge and consent of the Commissioner's colleagues on the executive committee, and whether the general tenor of the said letter was strongly approved, over the signatures of several members of the House."

Premier Haultain left no doubt as to what course he would pursue. The Legislature, he said, had declared itself over and over again, and there was no reason for any modification of the memorials passed six months ago, only that the necessities were more urgent. The duty of the House was clear. The Government would fight for the rights of the Territories, as it had in the past, and the House ought to support the claim for government on the same basis as the other provinces.

On resuming his seat, Mr. Haultain was loudly applauded.

COLONY LOOKING TOWARDS DOMINION OF CANADA

Party Led by Ex-Premier Forming in Newfoundland for Union with Dominion

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 5.—A sensation has been created here by the formation by former Premier Sir William Whiteway and former Attorney-General Donald Morrison of a political party which will appeal to the country next year on a policy having in view union with Canada.

NEARLY HALF A CENTURY

He Heard From Brother After Forty Years

Windsor, Ont., November 6—Like a message from the dead was a letter received by Joseph Samuel Edgar, a prominent shoe merchant, of Windsor from his brother, Charles Edgar, who disappeared when a young man from the old home in Quebec, and from whom he had not heard in 41 years. Charles Edgar is now in the National Soldier's Home at Milwaukee where he was traced last week by W. S. McDonald, of Columbus, Ohio, a former brush manufacturer of Windsor, and a son-in-law of Mr. Edgar. Mr. Edgar is a confirmed invalid, wrecked by hard service in the Civil War.

THE SOO INDUSTRIES

Plan of Reorganization is Making Progress

President Shields Confident That All will be Well with the Company

Philadelphia, Nov. 6.—Reports that the board of directors of the Consolidated Lake Superior Company were in nearly accord with the plan of re-organization, received official confirmation today when the announcement was made that the board, at its meeting, directed President Shields and Vice-President Sanborn to co-operate with the committee in every way possible. A statement was issued by the directors urging the stockholders "to give careful consideration to the plan for rehabilitating the company by the reorganization committee." The statement continues. "By the postponement until December 15 of the sale of the company's property, pledged to Speyer & Co., as security for loans, the stockholders are given a last opportunity to redeem their property. The plan now before the stockholders has the approval and support of this board as a practical method of reorganization. The success of this plan would place the company in a position to prosecute its varied operations with promise of satisfactory returns. It is of the utmost importance, however, that the stockholders shall act without delay to ensure the success of the reorganization. Unless this reorganization can be made effective before December 15 the stockholders must face the alternative of the sale of their property and the sacrifice of their investment." The statement is generally regarded as meaning that the big "insiders" will pay three dollars assessment and join in underwriting the ten million dollar bond issue. Such assurances, the members of the Moffly committee say, mean the success of the reorganization plan.

AMERICAN BUILDERS TO FIGHT UNIONS

Contractors Issue Call for National Convention

Chicago, Nov. 6—The Building Contractors' council of Chicago has issued a call for a meeting of contractors representing associations in all parts of the United States and Canada, for the purpose of organizing a national association of building contractors. Its purpose is largely to give stability to the building industry, which has been seriously harmed by the exactions of trade unions.

E. M. Craig, secretary of the local Building Contractors' council, who is managing the arrangements for the convention, has been in communication with the contractors in all the leading cities of the country for several months, and nearly every contractors' association of importance will be represented in the convention, which will be held Dec. 10 in Chicago.

The association will be independent of any other national association of employers or manufacturers, and it will not, in the opinion of its leaders, affiliate with the Citizens' Industrial Association of America, which was organized in this city last week. The idea of the building contractors is to deal with trade unions on the line of recognition, conciliation and arbitration. Joint trade agreements such as now exist in Chicago will be encouraged, but the sympathetic strikes will be fought, and fought hard.

Among the councils joining with the Chicago Building Contractors' council in the call for this convention are the Building Trades Employers' association, of New York, the Master Builders association of Pittsburg, the Contractors' association of Cincinnati, the Reading Builders' Exchange of Reading, Pa.; the Building Trades Exchange of Minneapolis, and the Building contractors' council of St. Louis. In the call for the convention the councils addressing the invitation declare that "the present condition of the building industry and the attitude of organized labor demand the immediate organization of these employers of the country."

Objects and Policy Outlined.

In a long appeal for support the objects of the proposed national council are set forth as follows.

To regulate conditions among building contractors.

To devise means for the better advancement of the interest of the contractor.

To secure equitable treatment in their dealings with their employes.

To encourage organization and the formation of associations of contractors.

The policy of the association toward organized labor is outlined as follows:

That the basis of the settlement of all disputes shall be conciliation and arbitration.

That the sympathetic stroke should be absolutely prohibited.

That where conditions are proper and employes' associations exist agreements be made with them.

That a uniform form of agreement be adopted, and used in making joint agreements, wages being adjusted according to local conditions.

That there shall be no restriction of the use of machinery or tools.

That there shall be no restriction of the use of any manufactured article, except prison made.

That no person shall have the right to interfere with workmen during working hours.

That the use of apprentices shall not be prohibited.

That the foreman shall be the agent of the employer.

That all workmen are at liberty to work for whomsoever they see fit.

That all employers are at liberty to employ and discharge whomsoever they see fit.

Building Operations Postponed.

The present depression in the building industry," say the Chicago contractors in their address to the various associations "is in a measure due primarily to the unusual activity of organized labor in all branches of industry.

"While more or less general in the building line, the attitude of organized labor in our manufacturing industries has had a depressing effect upon the building public, causing many building operations to be either deferred or abandoned, lest the unrest in other labor circles should extend to the building employes. These facts, together with the scarcity and high prices of some materials, have had a tendency to curtail building operations."

"The successful outcome of this project will separate the building industry from the organization movement among manufacturers and employers in other lines of business, and, while the policy to be adopted differs from the general policy of other employers' associations, the rival national associations will not clash in their negotiations with trade union."

—Havelock Light and Power Company has given an order to the Canadian General Electric Company and the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company for equipment for their power plant. It is expected that the lights will be installed in one month.

UNCLE SAM AIDS REBELS SECURING PANAMA CANAL

In Colon It is Taken for Granted That the Ditch will Now Be Dug.

Washington, Nov. 5.—It is said on good authority that the independence of Panama is coincident with the absolute need of the United States Government to get possession of the Panama Canal, and "dig the ditch" across the isthmus. No one will openly say that the United States is behind the revolt against the Colombian Government, but it is taken for granted here that the independence will be recognized by the United States, and the canal project will go through. A despatch from Colon says significantly: The general opinion is that the Isthmian canal is now assured.

REQUEST FOR RECOGNITION.

The State Department to-day received a prompt request from the representatives of the revolutionary government at Panama that the United States recognize the new State of Panama, but, pending official advices from United States consular officers at Panama, that the new government has been established and is a de facto government, the State Department declined to commit itself. However, attention was called to the fact that it is the invariable policy of the United States to deal with the de facto government in any country. This statement is taken as favorable to recognition should the Panama Government have an active existence.

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

YOU PAY ONLY IF CURED.

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write for It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has fourteen certificates and diplomas from colleges and medical boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes, and so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has both the method and

DR. S. GOLDBERG.
The possessor of fourteen diplomas and certificates, who wants no money that he does not earn the ability to do as he says, Dr. S. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, vital weakness, varicocele, lost vigor, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and if you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interest of every man who suffers in this way, to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the fourteen diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Avenue, Room 212, Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

PETERBOROUGH, NOVEMBER 6, 1903

THE NEW YORK ELECTIONS

The defeat of Mayor Lowe does not necessarily mean that the people of New York are tired of the area of comparative respectability inaugurated under his administration. It simply means that their party zeal is much stronger than their enthusiasm for moral reform. If the mayor-elect and his lieutenants are wise they will not assume that the result of the election is a license to permit the city to relapse into its former degraded condition. Rather they will regard the situation as an opportunity to prove that their party organization is not so black as it has been painted.

MAMMOTH ENGINES

The Baltimore & Ohio Railway Company is having built a 125-ton locomotive for hauling freight trains over the Alleghany mountains. The tractive power will be 50 per cent greater than that of any engine in the company's service, and it will be the heaviest engine in the world. It will have six pairs of driving wheels, and no trucks, the entire weight of the engine being utilized for adhesion to the rails. It will be built after the French design of Mallet, at least something on that principle, having a six-coupled low-pressure engine under the forward end of the boiler, the forward engine being arranged with a swinging or swivelling motion, so that the engines assume separately a radial position to curves. The three rear pairs of drivers will be operated by two high-pressure cylinders, and will be rigid, with the boiler and frames. The three forward pairs will be operated by two low-pressure cylinders and articulated or jointed, to the rear frames, arranged to move freely transversely, so as to allow freedom in passing sharp curves. The driving wheel base obtained is 30 ft. 6 in.

The Michigan Central is also ordering some mammoth locomotives. The heaviest engines on that road are 96 tons; the new engines will be 105 1-2 tons. The cylinders will measure 22 inches in diameter and the stroke will be 26 inches. Other dimensions are—Drivers, made of cast steel, 75 inches; spread, 86 inches; journals, 9 1-2 x 12 inches; trailing wheels diameter, 50 inches; the 314 boiler tubes will be 20 feet in length by 2 1-4 inches in diameter. The engine will burn soft coal. A pressure of 200 pounds to the square inch will be carried. The wheel base for the driving wheels will be 18 feet, of the total engine 33 feet 7 1-2 inches. The length over all of engine and tender will be 60 feet.

The Grand Trunk and C. P. R. are also building heavier engines than formerly finding them more economical and safer. It is a day of great things, but it is not too much to say that not many years ago railway men would have deemed such a thing as a 125 ton locomotive for ordinary service impracticable. But the improvement of ways and the march of invention seem to have made it not only practicable but desirable.

MORLEY FAVORING COLONIES' FREEDOM

Local Independence is the Key Note of a Good System

London, Nov. 4.—The Leeds Chamber of Commerce yesterday passed a resolution that the time has arrived when it is wise for this country to modify it's fiscal policy, owing to the change which has taken place in the relative manufacturing powers of the different countries of the world.

The Home Secretary, speaking last night at the annual dinner of the Herne Agricultural Association, said that though he was always desirous of tightening the bonds of union with the colonies, he believed that in a country situated upon an island, unable to grow the whole food of the people, the cost of living of the working class should not be increased.

The Berks and Oxon Chamber of Agriculture passed resolutions yesterday in favor of a reconsideration of the fiscal policy.

Cambridge University union decided in favor of an enquiry into the fiscal policy by 255 votes to 186.

Mr. John Morley, speaking at Nottingham yesterday, said the A B C of the colonial system were local independence, freedom from Downing street, and payment of their own expenses, unless necessary to defend themselves from aggression, and then Britain would spend the last shot in the locker. Protection would mean the subverting of these principles to retaliation, in which there was no finality.

Rider Haggard, speaking before the Chamber of Agriculture at London yesterday, said the Government program of retaliatory tariffs against the countries which taxed our foods, and disallowing the idea of colonial preference, meant ruin to agriculture.

The meeting broke up with cries of "Good old Chamberlain."

The Chamber of Commerce will give a consolation luncheon to Lord Goschen in return for the abandonment of the banquet of the Liverpool Conservative Club.

The Irish Times, speaking of Mr. Ian Malcolm, M.P., who is a Canadian by birth, and who lately seceded from the Free Fooders, says that foreigners like him because he is not insular and British, and for his genial wit. He is reckoned one of the Apollos of the House of Commons, is the heir to vast wealth, and has the distinction of having a party known as the Malcolmites named after him.

Education of the Blue Bloods.

The new governess, having by the passive assistance of the school-room pierglass primly patted her back hair and bestowed an admonitory twist upon the silver "Mizpah" locket adorning a particularly scraggy throat, turned affably to her two pupils, and in a prim "Miss Edgeworth" sort of manner, remarked:

"My dears, the countess having left the ordering of your course of study entirely in my hands, I purpose following the method I have hitherto pursued in the numerous highly respectable and intensely superior middle-class families it has been my privilege to educationally direct. We will therefore commence with the simplest lessons suitable for your years, your sex and station. It is now ten o'clock. Until 10.30 we will concentrate our attention upon the caligraphic art. You, Lady Blanche, will write out 'Modesty is the crown of womanhood' twenty-five times; while you, Lady Ermyntrude, will transcribe 'Virtue is life's purest pearl' in similar ratio."

Lady Blanche, aged eleven, took from her pocket an elegant bonbonniere, and choosing therefrom a marron glace with the same careful earnestness that a mature smoker betrays when selecting a cigar from a well-filled case, proceeded to daintily nibble the corners.

Then, leaning comfortably back in the low rocking-chair and crossing her long legs in a ladylike manner, she bestowed a comprehensive wink upon the more juvenile Ermyntrude, and said, pleasantly:

"My dear Miss Frumpletowser, it will be better for all parties concerned if we come to an immediate and perfectly clear understanding. You, I presume, for the sake of a certain number of spondulicks paid quarterly or annually, as the case may be, have agreed to impress upon our plastic minds certain trite items of cut-and-dried information which serve to make up, as a whole, what is termed education, whilst we—my sister and myself—as a duty we are supposed to owe to our parents, have consented to be thus impressed. So far so good. But when you speak of modesty and virtue in the—forgive me if there is anything offensive in my manner of putting it!—childish, middle-class manner to which you have, from your own admission, hitherto been accustomed, you fairly make me tired! Why, good gracious! Suppose sister Ethel had followed your first maxim, and hadn't made a dead set at the Duke of Dullborough, and dogged him all over the blessed shop, so to speak, do you imagine she would now be a duchess and a persona grata even in royal circles? Or what becomes of mother—who has been three times divorced—if your second aphorism is worth a pinch of salt? No, no! Modesty and virtue are excellent things in their proper place—which I opine to be some musty dictionary safely stowed away upon some top shelf. What we principally require is some little practice in waltz-steps and the perfecting of our French accent, the latter of which—Ermy's in particular—I frankly admit to be vile. You'll have a capital berth here when you get to know the ropes—providing, of course, that we pull together. In that little cupboard there, behind the bookcase, you'll find a bottle of cherry brandy and a box of fairly decent cigarettes, and underneath the sofa cushion is a copy of Gautier's 'Mademoiselle de Maupin,' which we prigged from mother's boudoir, and which will certainly not be missed for a day or two. Suppose we begin with a cut at that for an hour or so? There's heaps of words I can't make out, and the dictionary's such slow work!"

And as every hair upon the respectable governess's head betrayed irrepressible symptoms of standing bolt upright, she added, easily:

"I suppose even you've had a mash or two in your time? But you shall tell us all about it at your leisure. Ermy, dear, do run upstairs and fetch my puff. You'll find it between the poudre de Ninon box and my ivory-backed church-service."—English paper.

READ A TALE OF A TAILLESS MONKEY

How He Made Prisoners of Vassar Girls and Pulled Cook's Hair

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Nov. 4.—Several Vassar College students, boarders at Mrs. Richard Brittain's house, No. 13 Grand avenue, were kept prisoners today by a monkey, whose antics upset the entire neighborhood.

George Vandeburg, who keeps a saloon at No. 519 Main street, obtained a monkey from a friend in the South a year ago. Some one told Mr. Vandeburg that if the tail was removed the monkey would be cured of swinging from the gas fixtures. The tail was amputated, but instead of subduing the monkey the operation had the opposite effect.

The scoundrel began to make all sorts of trouble and finally took to drink, becoming so intemperate that it was decided to send it away.

Mr. Vandeburg this morning started with the monkey to drive to his father's farm, near the Hudson River Driving Park. When going through Grand avenue the monkey escaped and scampered to the door of Mrs. Britain's house, where he tugged viciously at the bell.

Mrs. Britain answered the bell herself, and seeing the tailless creature on the stoop, nearly swooned. Quickly closing the door, she ran back through the house, screaming, "Girls, girls, come and see the curious object at the door!"

Filled with native and scientific curiosity, four of the Vassar students rushed to the door and opened it. The monkey leapt toward them, squealing and grinning.

"He's coming! he's coming!" the girls screamed, and slammed the door and tore up stairs. It was time to go to the college. What was to be done?

Nellie Franklin, a negro cook, was summoned. Nellie went bravely to the door and stepped out on the stoop, believing that it was only an organ-grinder's assistant that was capering about the house.

No sooner had the cook appeared than the monkey seized her dress and climbed to her head in a jiffy. He pulled her hair as she leaped and yelled in terror, while the Vassar girls huddled together inside the house, speechless from fright.

The monkey, after frightening the kitchen superintendent almost into hysterics, climbed one of the posts to the verandah roof, where he grinned at the pale-faced Vassar girls.

Neighbors were attracted by the screaming of the cook, and a ladder was placed against the verandah. Then the monkey scurried up the tin ladder to the roof and make his way to the chimney top, where he sat in apparent enjoyment of the whole situation.

Mrs. Brittain sent an alarm to police headquarters, which brought no relief. Tempting offers of molasses, candy, loaf sugar, and honey, could not coax the precocious beast from the chimney top, where he was balancing himself on the extreme corner and making occasional trips to the roof and back.

Finally, one of the neighbors, Mrs. Noxon, went to an attic window just beneath the window, and by coaxing the monkey induced him to climb down to her. She had no difficulty in putting him in his crate.

REVOLTING DISCLOSURES

Children Mutilated by Greeks and Sent Out to Beg

Odessa, Nov. 4—Revolting discoveries have been made here concerning the practices of a great organization which has engaged in the business of importing Greek children, mutilating them and sending them out to beg. Children have been lured in hundreds from North, Central and East Russia by promises of remunerative positions. The tongues, eyes, faces, arms and legs of the victims have been mutilated, and in this condition they have been compelled to seek alms on the pretext that they were sufferers from Turkish barbarities in Macedonia.

THE ILLS OF WOMEN

A RELIABLE AND SAFE CURE FOR WOMANLY ILLS IS FOUND IN FERROZONE. A REMEDY THAT ALWAYS GIVES SATISFACTION AND NEVER DISAPPOINTS

If troubled with painful irregularities, dizziness, faintness, excitability, nervousness, remember there is a remedy that if regularly and persistently used, will cure all these ills. Its name is Ferrozone.

It is used by thousands of women who have experienced its great strengthening powers, and they would not be without it for ten times its price.

Ferrozone is primarily a blood maker. It drives all impurities from the crimson fluid, makes it strong and capable of supplying nourishment to the body. It quiets the nerves, banishes excitability and headache.

By taking Ferrozone regularly you can keep free from those dreadful backaches, and monthly sickness will pass off regularly and without pain or distress. Being prepared in tablet form, Ferrozone is both convenient and simple to use, and no uncertainty as to the proper quantity or dose can ever arise.

A Montreal hospital nurse who has used Ferrozone herself, and has seen also the benefit that other suffering women have derived from it, writes: "I have nursed and treated all form of female disorders, and from my personal experience, must say that Ferrozone is a remedy about which all womankind should know. It is reliable and sure, and will give prompt and satisfactory results. As a builder of muscle and tissue, I know nothing to equal Ferrozone. I have found it good to build up a weak appetite, and consider it a splendid medicine for the blood and nerves. I have no hesitancy in endorsing Ferrozone."

Don't continue to exist in a state of misery and weakness any longer. Ferrozone will make you strong and well just as it has done for thousands before you. All druggists recommend and sell Ferrozone, at 50c. a box, or 3 boxes for $1.25. Get a box to day from your druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

NOT A "CROP" RAILWAY

C. P. R.'s Ontario Business Increasing Rapidly

Montreal, Nov. 4.—"Traffic on the different lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Ontario has now been developed to such an extent that if it were to be reported separately they would show a percentage of increase in gross business almost equal to that of the Grand Trunk Railway," was the opinion expressed to a press representative today by a leading official of the Canadian Pacific.

"One great evolution that is now being effected by the management of the Canadian Pacific," he continued, "is that it has now almost ceased to be a one-crop road, less dependent on the wheat crop in the West, and better able to maintain its earnings through a period of depression in the West that may result from crop failures. The Ontario and eastern business of the company has so far this year kept pace with the increase in the busy West.

"You ask me to explain the cause of a somewhat tremendous increase in expenses. One reason might be that the company has been rushing all its works of improvement in the expectation of increased cost of labor and still further increase in the cost of material and supplies.

"The increase in expenses that is now being shown by the Canadian Pacific has been shown by all the big American railways. It is simply a case of crowding into a few months expenditure that might be spread over an entire year."

YOUR MONEY WORKS WHILE YOU SLEEP

Our famous corps of track sharps are up at break of day, "clocking" the horses in their morning tryouts and while you sleep they spot the winners that bring you steady income.—Our method puts you on a level with the most successful plungers of the American turf.—We operate for you for 25 per cent. of weekly earnings.—We win only when you win.—Results obtained really "beyond dreams of avarice."

Again we scored heavily for all of our clients last month. Again we landed the money and landed it in chunks. Three years of organization, with the best facilities that money and brains can procure to make our service of picking and backing winners at the horse races the most accurate and profitable in the land, has had its natural sequence, and each week our showing demonstrates a good profit for every client.

How $50 netted $201.75 in less than a month.

Here is a complete statement, showing the result of a $10 play on each horse given in our "Discretionary Series" during October. (Note: A capital to begin with of $50 is required by us, as a matter of conservatism, to make a $10 play on each horse that is considered by us a good betting proposition.)

The above showing is no improvement over that of September, and is not remarkable, since we have excelled it time and time again during the past three years of our uninterrupted operations. Good as it is, however, we are confident we will make it "look sick" by comparison with the showing we are going to make at the meeting of 100 days which begins at New Orleans this month.

WE PICK THE WINNERS

The system we employ to locate winners is identical with that used by "Pittsburg Phil," John A. Drake, John Gates, W. Langdon, Joe Yeager, and other famous plungers who win hundreds of thousands on the turf every year, and it proves just as successful.

We gather our information of prospective winners through a force of expert horsemen who hold a watch on the horses in their early-morning trials, and in that way learn which are ready to win.

The money that is played into the game by persistent losers, such as the large mass of uninformed players are, bound to be, goes into the pockets of the big operators, of which the Maxim & Gay Co., representing a large clientele, stands at the head. The work of the Maxim & Gay Co. is to place the general public on a level with the winning plungers, and our success in this accomplishment has made us famous on two continents.

We do business only on the great racetracks of the U. S. We number among our clients some of the best known sportsmen, financiers and merchants in the country. Investment on the turf is now deemed as legitimate as any other high-class form of speculation. The present high standard to which racing has been brought, and the absolutely good faith in which turf affairs are conducted under the auspices of the Jockey Club in the East, and the Western Jockey Club in the West, has inspired millionaire capitalists and business men all over the country with as much confidence in racing as in the stock, grain, and cotton markets, and this is one reason why transactions in the betting rings now rival in magnitude those of the stock, cotton, and grain exchanges.

Another reason for the rapid growth of turf speculation in popular favor, is the rapidity with which all transactions are wound up. The speculator makes his investment at the racetrack in the afternoon through us and receives a notification by mail, in a letter guaranteed to bear a postmark earlier than the race is run, of just what horses are to be backed for his account. By the next mail he is informed of the result of that day's operations, and he learns quickly just where he stands. At the end of each week he receives a complete statement of his account with a money order for his profits, less 25 per cent., which we deduct as our fee.

This gives a wholesome tone to legitimate turf speculation which cannot be found in the more or less involved transactions of the big exchanges, and this is why turfmen live more comfortably and live longer than do men whose involved transactions are on their minds, day and night, for weeks and sometimes for months at a stretch.

OUR CLIENTS WON A MILLION DOLLARS

As it is well known that our client have collectively won as much as a million dollars at a single race meeting, it is sometimes asked: "Why do not Maxim & Gay simply sit down and back their own selections, instead of running a considerable clerical force and spending large sums in advertising in newspapers throughout the country?"

The answer is simple enough if one stops to consider the situation. Maxim & Gay, by dint of energy, ability, organization, capital and advertising, have secured an enormous clientele, which means the command of immense capital. If we can pick winners for this immense number of investors, our profits are larger than if we played our own money only, for on a basis of 25 per cent. of winnings, which we charge for information and commission, one man out of every four of our customers is practically betting for us. The proof that this plan works for the benefit of the public as well is that they win three weeks out of four and our books show that no customer who stuck to us for two months ever failed to get well ahead of the game, while not a few of those who now own winning stables of race horses and who are cutting an important figure on the turf, began the game as mere novices, playing our selections through us.

The principle upon which we operate is such that we must of necessity do the best we can for you. Our income, as pointed out, is derived solely from a percentage of the winnings of our clients, and if we cannot make you win, our entire income is cut off. That we have been successful in making our clients win, is amply proven by the fact that we have prospered for upward of three years, while imitators, pursuing more economical and less businesslike methods have gone under by the score. Noting the success that was being achieved by Maxim & Gay, scores of "get-rich-quick" operators tried to break into the field successfully occupied by the older and more responsible form, but it did not take the press and public long to discriminate between the legitimate and the illegitimate, and as a result we have continued to flourish uninterruptedly while in the ranks of our rivals there have been scores of enterprises initiated, only to end in failure.

A Few of Hundreds of Recent Endorsements of the Press

CINCINNATI COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE, March 1, 1903

Maxim & Gay, who have been so successful in selecting winners at the New Orleans races, are in a class by themselves and have no relation in their system of operation to the "get-rich-quick" schemes that have recently gone to pieces disastrously to those who patronized them. Maxim & Gay do not guarantee their clients profits nor against losses, but merely play the money of their subscribers and deduct a fixed percentage from winnings for placing the commissions. This point is made clear in all their announcements. What they guarantee to do is to confidentially handle all money forwarded them and place it on the races just as if it were their own. They have in their employ as "clockers" the most expert judges of track work in the country, and there is not a horse at the New Orleans meeting that they have not a record of. The information collected in this way is used to the benefit of their subscribers, and its reliable character is attested by the numerous winners they have picked in the past two weeks.

Maxim & Gay are the pioneers in this line of investment or speculation; they have been established three years; they conduct their business on straightforward business lines; their methods have been thoroughly investigated and are entirely different from those pursued by the "get-rich-quick" schemes, so called, which were but recently closed by the authorities. The transactions of Maxim & Gay are legal in every sense, and they do exactly what they advertise to do, that is, play the money of their subscribers on the horses they judge will win, and they usually win. Prompt and proper accounting is made of the result, but they guarantee no fixed profits, those who have continuously patronized them have not been losers.

ST. PAUL DISPATCH, February 26, 1903

An investigation of the methods of the Maxim & Gay Co. shows them to be conducting their business on straightforward business lines. They have been established nearly three years. They do not guarantee clients profits or against loss, but merely place subscribers' money on judgment of experts, charging a fee for information and deduct a fixed percentage from winnings for placing the commissions. They are the pioneers in this line of investment or speculation.

N. Y. MORNING TELEGRAPH, February 22, 1903.

Since the incorporation of the Maxim & Gay Co., the casual racegoer can possess himself of as much if not more knowledge of the comparative merits of the horses, and their chances of success, as the "regular" who burns the midnight oil studying from charts. He can secure through this company, which is incorporated under the laws of New York State, the expert knowledge and expert judgment of an experienced combination of horsemen whose duty it is to find out for him such things concerning the horses as he could not possibly find out for himself, unless he devoted his entire time and attention to the business. Even then, to do so well, he would have to possess a peculiar talent and be specially fitted by experience and natural ability.

CINCINNATI TIMES-STAR, March 2, 1903.

The Maxim & Gay Company, well-known purveyors of turf information, should not be confounded with "get rich quick" turf investment or concerns of similar character. They have been established nearly three years. They place subscribers' money on judgment of their experts, and deduct a fixed percentage from winnings for placing the commissions. They are the pioneers in this line of investment or speculation.

MEMPHIS EVENING SCIMITAR, March 2, 1903

The advertisements that appear from time to time in the columns of various newspapers with reference to the turf plan of Maxim & Gay Company tell a story entirely different from the exploits of the defunct "get-rich-quick" concerns.

The Maxim & Gay Company transact business thoroughly and solely on business principles.

JOIN OUR WINNING ARMY

The greatest race meeting in the history of the South begins at New Orleans within a fortnight. In magnitude it will eclipse all other turf gatherings of the past. The Crescent City Jockey Club knows this to be a banner year and has prepared for it. So have we. If there are more horses at the New Orleans racetrack than ever gathered there before, we have more expert "clockers" and handicappers than we ever employed at any other meeting. They cannot make the game too big for us to handle. We move with the times.

If you want to get aboard our discretionary series, at New Orleans, in which we play daily those and only those horses we think A1 betting propositions, with the privilege of not playing any horses at all on days when we consider conditions unpropitious, fill out the following blank and forward your remittance to us at New Orleans as soon as you can. Play will be begun on the first day of the meeting, if your money reaches us in time; otherwise, we will begin play the first day it reaches us after the meeting has begun. Money should be sent by bank draft, express money order, or currency in registered letter. Uncertified checks are not accepted.

Black Hills Copper Company LIMITED

Capital Stock, $3,000,000
PAR VALUE OF SHARES, - - - - - $1.00

This Company owns, free from incumbrance, valuable Copper mines in the celebrated Jerome mineral belt of Arizona, the richest copper district in the world.

The properties belonging to this Company are located mid-way between and on the same mineral belt as the great United Verde and Iron King Mines. The geological and mineralogical formation and the ores in these mines are identical with the great mines of the district. They are being developed with modern machinery, and the work now being carried on will surely open the immense bodies of ore found in this district, which carry high values in copper, as well as considerable gold and silver.

The Stock of the Company is fully paid and non-assessable, there are no bonds or other form of indebtedness, and no preferred stock.

We firmly believe this is the safest and will prove to be the most profitable stock for investment on the market to day.

A limited amount of the Stock is new offered at FIFTY CENTS per Share. Price of Shares is subject to advance without notice.

Purchase the Treasury Stock of The Drake Mining Drainage and Tunnel Transportation Co.
OF COLORADO

The Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, par value one dollar per share. Seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of this amount is eight per cent. Preferred Treasury Stock.

The Property

Consists of nine patented, well developed mines and mill sites, situated in Gilpin County, Colorado. This county has already produced more than

$80,000,000 in Gold

The development of the property consists of many shafts sunk on ore to a depth of 150 to 400 feet, and a tunnel run a distance of 2,300 feet, not only to develop its own property, but also to unwater and furnish underground transportation for the Gregory, the Bob-Tail and other rich mines of the district.

Transportation

The Colorado & Southern Railroad passes directly in front of the mouth of the tunnel. All ore can be dumped therefrom directly into the cars, giving quick and cheap transportation to the mills. Large returns have been paid from the product of these mines.

Sale of Preferred Stock

The company desires to not only push its development work and complete its tunnel at an early day, but also erect on its own mill site at the mouth of the tunnel, proper reduction works for the treatment of its ores. For that purpose it now offers for sale 200,000 shares of its Preferred Treasury Stock at 25 cents per share reserving the right to increase the price of all unsold shares thereof at any time without notice.

The Company pledges the whole net product of its mines to pay an eight per cent annual dividend on the sum paid for such stock, before any other stock receives any dividends whatever. After such dividends has been paid, the common stock shall receive a like dividend, when the surplus fund remaining shall be distributed among the common and preferred stock, share and share alike. All stock will be issued full paid and non-assessable.

THE ROSE OF THE RING

These were his reflections as he stood looking down at her while she slept.

"I might get up some scenical effect under the title of 'Sleeping Beauty,'" he thought. "If she looks like that now, what would she be with all the circus glitter round her? Poor mother used to say the child would be a fortune in the circus, some day, and it doesn't seem as if she was far wrong."

He was still standing there looking at her, when Rosalie made a restless movement, and, with a deep sigh, opened her eyes.

She started, when she saw Jim, and raised herself to a sitting posture.

"I have been dreaming," she said, putting her hand up to her forhead, "I thought everything was as it used to be in the summer, and that I was never to be alone."

"You need not be alone unless you like," he answered. "There's a home for you with Polly and me, if you care to accept it."

"With you? But you have the circus."

"That's why I want you. You'd have a dull life here, notwithstanding the money poor mother left you, and the house, and things. Besides, they wouldn't last you for ever, and you'd find yourself without a roof over your head before you knew where you were.

"What do you say to coming out in the circus; your name shall be first on the bills, and you can queen it over all the other performers. You'll be the leading star, and everybody will crowd to see you. It will be a livelier kind of life than the one you've been used to, and everybody'll be ready to fall down and worship at your feet."

An eager look came into her eyes.

She had so often longed for such an opportunity as this: to escape the dull, uneventful life to which she had been tied all these years.

As suddenly as they had risen, her hopes fell.

She remembered that evening, long ago, when she had danced before Mr. Delington, and he had exacted from her the promise never to dance again.

"I cannot go with you," she said. "I promised never to dance, or to go on the stage."

Jim detected the disappointment in her tones, and was determined not to easily relinquish his prize.

"The circus isn't the stage," he replied, seating himself near her, the better to watch the effect of his words on the beautiful young face, "they're quite apart; and as for dancing—why, you needn't do a step if you don't want to. We don't care about dancers in the circus, a few acrobatic feats get far more applause: or something of the lion-taming business. Yes, that would do," he exclaimed, seizing at the idea, "nothing could be better. Mademoiselle Rosalie in the lion's den. That would fetch, they like something sensational."

"They—the lions?"

Jim lapsed into a smile.

"I mean the audience. I see you are a bit afraid of the lions, but they won't hurt you. They're savage-looking beasts, but when you're used to them, they're as mild as kittens."

"Are there any at the circus, now?"

"No, you'll be the first to appear with them under my management, and the performance shall be something worth seeing. We'll make it into a sort of play. Can you sing?"

"Yes."

"So much the better. We'll have a new representation of Beauty, and the Beast; and make the biggest hit that's been made in the circus-line."

"Are you sure I need not dance, and that the circus is quite apart from the stage?"

"As sure as I am of my own success. Shall I tell Polly you are coming back with us?"

Rosalie gazed wistfully round the shabby little room—the room in which she had so often sat as model for Marc.

"I cannot do anything yet," she said, her eyes filling with tears; "I am too miserable. I feel as though I could stay in this room until I die."

"We can't let you do that," he replied, in his kindest tones. "Why, there's a fortune in store for you yet. If you like, you can set the whole world raving about you."

"How?"

He took a hand-mirror from the sideboard, and held it before her face.

"There's your fortune," he said. "Your face is like an angel's, and your hair—what a lot of sovereigns it would make if it could be melted down! It is pure gold, and all waves and curls. We shan't want any powder and paint for you."

Under different circumstances this praise would have been sweet to Rosalie.

As it was, she was far too wretched to attach any importance to his words.

She thought in a vague kind of way that he might be saying these things to please her, and to rouse her from her grief.

But Jim knew what he was about, and when he took his departure that day, his wife remained with the girl, for whom he had in view so brilliant a future.

She was radiant; her eyes were like stars; her arms and neck as white as snow under the gossamer that floated about her.

Jim gazed at her in speechless admiration, and then rubbed his eyes as though he could scarcely believe his sight.

It was not only the brilliant effect of her dress that had dazzled him.

Her face was transformed; her eyes were shining with triumph; a smile of witchery was on her lips.

"Shall I do?" she asked, lifting her arms above her head, and making the gossamer float about her like tinted vapour. "I wanted my dress to be unlike anybody else's."

"Do?" he gasped. "The whole world might be searched, and nobody would be found to come up to you. You look lovely—perfectly divine!"

Rosalie gave a little laugh of satisfaction."

[illegible] own way."

"You shall have your own way in everything," he replied, his enthusiasm deepening the longer he looked at her; "give your orders just as you like, and I'll see they are carried out. We shall call you the 'Rose of the Ring.'"

"That sounds pretty," she said, the dimples playing about her face. "Have it printed on the programmes, and have them pale pink."

"Yes; I'll have it all done; and you shall have limelight as well. We won't do anything by halves. Do you know the part you have to sing?"

"Of course I do."

"I should like to hear some of it. Sing while you've got the dress on."

"I cannot; it would not sound the same as with the orchestral accompaniment."

"Well, we shall have the rehearsal to-morrow at the circus. I'll see the place is kept empty, too. No outsider shall see you till the opening night."

"Are the lions there?" she asked, looking at him with strange eagerness.

"Yes," he returned, his brows contracting. "They were a bit fierce when they arrived; but the keeper assures me they will be in their normal state to-morrow."

(To be continued.)

A Suppressed Novel.

Some ten or twelve years ago there appeared in London a book entitled "Dr. Phillips," the name of the author being given as "Frank Danby." It was a book of an exceedingly realistic character, written with extreme frankness and with intimate knowledge of a certain kind of Jewish life—that is to say, the life which is led by orthodox Jews of the well-to-do middle class. The principal character of the book is a Jewish physician of great talent who is married to a dull, fat, affectionate woman who is no companion for him, and who bears him no children. Dr. Phillips lives ostensibly the life of a popular family doctor, but all the time he is carrying on an intrigue with a beautiful Englishwoman, whom he met when she was a governess, and whom he has installed in a house of her own. This dual existence leads to complications which become more and more difficult, especially when a young Englishman of good family and of great attractiveness meets the English girl and, knowing nothing of her story, falls in love with her and proposes marriage. A friend of his in like manner falls in love with a young Jewess in the same set, and rouses the horror of her intensely orthodox parents. The book throughout is hard and cynical, but it gives some wonderfully vivid pictures of Jewish life. It became known that the author of it was a woman, and it was suspected that in Dr. Phillips she had drawn the portrait of a well-known London physician. This person was so incensed that he caused the book to be suppressed by legal means. Not long after, the novel was reprinted in this country in a cheap edition. It was seen on all the news-stands, and then of a sudden it disappeared. You could scarcely buy a copy anywhere. Just what caused this disappearance we cannot say with certainty; but some years ago in these pages we hazarded the conjecture that its suppression was due to the influence exercised by wealthy members of the Jewish community, to whom some parts of it were exceedingly offensive. A number of Jewish publications declared this supposition to be untrue, and so we let it go at that. But if you ever happen to come across a copy of "Dr. Phillips" in some second-hand book-shop, we advise you to buy it, for it is a work of exceptional interest and power, is the "Bookman's" advice.

"Frank Danby" was a literary disciple of George Moore, and for a time she was his personal friend. For some reason or other, however, the two quarrelled, and Mr. Moore had the exceedingly bad taste to attack her in the pages of the London "Saturday Review." To this attack she made a spirited reply; but she seems to have been rather disheartened by the criticism, and for several years she wrote nothing further. Later, however she published a second novel, called "A Babe in Bohemia," which passed through several editions in England, but which so far as we know, has never been republished in this country. She has now produced a novel called "Pigs in Clover," which the "Bookman" pronounces by far the most powerful and searching piece of fiction that has been published during the present year. "Frank Danby" is known in private life as Mrs. Julia Frankau. She is the wife of a wealthy London merchant, and is well known in the literary, artistic and theatrical world of the English capital, having a beautiful home in Clarges street, Mayfair, where she entertains extensively.

A Story of Queen Alexandra.

Sir James Crichton-Browne, in his "New Letters and Memorials of Jane Welsh Carlyle," tells an amusing anecdote of Her Majesty in the days when she was Princess Alexandra. Whether it is true or not, Mrs. Carlyle, writing in March, 1863, just after the wedding, evidently believed it, and she was in the way of hearing the gossip of elevated circles. When she (the Princess) was visiting our Queen after the engagement she always came to breakfast in a jacket. "My dear," said the Queen one day, "you seem very fond of jackets. How is it that you always wear a jacket?" "Well," said Princess Alexandra, "I like them; and then, you see, a jacket is so economical. You can wear different skirts with it, and I have very few gowns, having to make them all myself. My sisters and I have no lady's maid, and have been brought up to make all our own clothes. I made my own bonnet!" As our readers probably remember, Queen Alexandra, in a book of "tastes," is said to have put down millinery as her favorite amusement.

"For Outward Application Only."

"Well, Mr. Murphy, how are you to-day—better?" asked the doctor. "No, sorr, Oi'm worse—as full av pains as a windy," replied Mr. Murphy. "Worse! Did you rub that stuff I sent you well into the skin?" "Rub it into me skin? Av coorse not, sorr. Oi saw it was labelled 'Fur outward application only,' so Oi just rubbed it on me clothes."

AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY
FOR BOTH LARGE AND SMALL INVESTORS

Owing to valuable Patents having been granted this Company, we are desirous of extending our business to the Dominion of Canada. Owing to the Customs duties, the extra cost in transportation and the numerous expenses attached, and the delays in deliveries in shipping goods from one country to another, it is absolutely necessary that we should have a factory in the Dominion, that we may be in a position to meet the immediate wants of the business.

The articles that we make from our Patent Fabric are too numerous to mention, and it is not necessary that we go into the details of the merits of our goods, as they are already in use to a large extent and have no equal. Our goods are covered by several patents, and the profit on the goods is large, averaging from 25 to 100 per cent, thus affording the company large revenue to meet all its obligations

In order to secure funds to equip a plant in the Dominion of Canada we will offer to the people of Canada $100,000 of our Bonds paying ten per cent. interest per annum.

Experience has shown that stocks based upon sound industrial enterprises have never been equalled from the standpoint of legitimate profit. For instance, a few hundred dollars invested in the Bell Telephone Company's stock in the beginning of the enterprise now commands thousands of dollars, after having yielded large dividends annually. Of course opportunities for such profitable investments do not present themselves every day, and it is also very true that a vast amount of capital has been misdirected in the endeavor to exploit inventions and enterprises which shrewd and far seeing investors should have recognized as impractical. But as regards this enterprise even the most conservative must admit it has possibilities of development which are almost incalculable and which have already been demonstrated in a practical manner. We have no speculative elements—this is a sound business proposition, and the patents which we own are worth several million dollars, as there can only be one fabric of this kind and that is ours.

All the above facts are simple statements of the truth and can be fully substantiated to the satisfaction of all investors.

The business is no experiment, the incorporators of this Company have made it their business for a great many months past and understand all the details, the prospects are therefore bright, and brighter than those of many other opportunities.

This Company is not a promotors company, every dollar goes to enhance the value of the property and business and increase the capacity. There is nothing speculative in this proposition, the enterprises are undertaken for industrial purposes only to make profits by the operation and development of the business.

Considering that the enterprise is already upon an established basis with a certainty of profitable future expansion, we feel warranted in the assertion that this is an attractive proposition to investors whether large or small.

The price of these Bonds are one dollar each, and will be issued in any number wanted. With every purchaser of each five Bonds we will give as a bonus, one share of stock of the Company, the par value of which is five dollars per share, thus assuring interest on the investment, and with the stock which is bound to increase you will have for nothing. These Bonds will be issued for five years. Persons desiring to avail themselves of this opportunity want to send their remittance at once.

BUILDERS TO JOIN HANDS

American Contractors to Form a National Body

Chicago, Nov. 4.—The Building Contractors Council of this city, through E. M. Craig, its secretary, issued a call yesterday for a national convention of building contractors' councils and contractors' associations to meet in Chicago December 10, to form a national association, embracing every city, town, and hamlet in the country. Briefly, its object will be to make joint trade arrangements between contractors' councils and labor unions, to prevent strikes or lockouts, and to settle all disputes by arbitration. The recent universal depression in the building industry, which the call says is due primarily to the unusual activity of organized labor in the building crafts, is to be looked into and remedies by the national body if possible. The scarcity and high price of some building materials has had a tendency to curtail building operations, and some remedy for this condition of affairs is to be devised.

Disciplined a Doctor

London, Nov. 4.—Dr. Anderson, a house physician at Charing Cross Hospital, was yesterday fined £5 for being absent from the training of the King's Colonials. Dr. Anderson had applied twice to be discharged from his regiment on the ground of overwork at the hospital. He was arrested and marched by the police through the streets.

COPETE MINING CO.

27 William Street, New York

Capital Stock, $5,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $5

More than forty-five per cent. of the Stock is in the Treasury.

The Company has very rich and valuable properties in the Copete Mining District, in Sonora, Mexico. The properties are not only rich in copper, but so rich in gold that they were worked as gold mines by the Mexicans for more than a hundred years.

Extensive works, including a two hundred ton smelter, water works with four miles of heavy piping, and buildings and machinery appropriate to the enterprise have been erected.

The smelter in a short run produced something over $100,000.

The property has been recommended by some of the best scientists of the country. Among them are—Professor George A. Treadwell, the well known metallurgist; Professor Robert T. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey; Mr. Seymour W. Tulloch, Civil Engineer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. George Mitchell, formerly with the United Verde and Greene Consolidated; Mr. Erwin D. Treadwell, Mining Engineer and Geologist and Manager of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

The internal troubles of the company which caused it to suspend operations about fourteen months ago, have all been happily adjusted and the company has now a clear and undisputed title to all the extensive and valuable properties on which it has been working.

A portion of the Treasury stock is offered for sale—to complete the development and equipment of the property—now for a short time only at $2.50 a share. Make checks payable to the order of the company and send to 27 William Street New York.

Curious Bits of News.

There is a negro murderer named Smith out in Multnomah County, Ore., who is certainly a stickler for his prejudices. There is a strike in the county, and Smith objects to being executed on the only gallows in existence on the ground that it was built by "scabs."

The inventor of the watch is a mystery, though the place of its invention is assigned to Nuremberg. The first watches were called "Nuremberg eggs," the first part of the name showing where they were made, the second telling of their shape. It was not until the invention of the spiral spring in the fifteenth century that watches became conveniently portable, and from that time the size decreased, while the timekeeping mechanism improved.

Women are not good tippers and lack of "tips" is said to be responsible for the withdrawal of twenty waitresses from the dining-room of the Hotel Martha Washington in New York. The hotel is exclusively for women, and when it was opened last March one of the features was the Colonial dining-room on the ground floor, with twenty buxom young women in picturesque uniforms. All went well at first, but soon the guests of the Martha Washington forgot to give a dime here or a quarter there. Later on it became positively out of fashion to "tip" in the hotel; but it seems the fashion of scolding and complaining grew, at least the girls say so. Then the girls held a meeting and decided to walk out. The management of the hotel declares that the girls were discharged because the hotel wanted to try men waiters.

At a recent meeting of the Zoological Society of France Monsieur Racovitza, the naturalist of the "Belgica" expedition, declared his belief in the existence of the great "sea-serpent." He quoted with approval the views of a Dutch naturalist, Oudemans, who holds that the so-called sea-serpent is not a reptile, but a mammal belonging to the order of the pinnipeds, which includes the seals. It somewhat resembles in shape the extinct Plesiosaurus. It probably attains a length of 200 feet, the head and neck taking one-fourth of the whole, the trunk one-fourth and the tail one-half. It never approaches a coast except in pursuit of the fish on which it feeds. Monsieur Racovitza quoted the serious and circumstantial report of a French torpedo-boat commander who chased a pair of these creatures in the China Sea, and unsuccessfully fired shells at them.

A high silk hat, probably the first ever worn in the small town of Fagan, west of Houston, Tex., was responsible the other day for the death of Philip Buntz of New York, who was traveling for a Bible publishing house in the East. His attire was that of a clergyman, and when he appeared in Fagan he was the center of attraction. That night Buntz walked up to the bar in one of the saloons where the cowboys were drinking and ordered lemonade. The bartender repeated the order in a tone of voice sufficient for all in the crowded barroom to hear. One of the cowboys insulted the wearer of the silk hat. The remark was resented, and someone threw a lariat over the shining mark. Buntz showed fight and was set upon. In the melee he was struck over the head with a six shooter, suffering a fracture of the skull. He never recovered consciousness.

Specimen from Ezra Kendall.

No one has ever caught Ezra Kendall unprepared with a story. He is always ready to entertain his friends with a humorous chapter or so from his fund of reminiscences and frequently delights his audiences with them when called upon before the curtain. Here is something decidedly Kendallesque that he told one evening recently:

"I was on my way to Chicago from Baltimore, recently, in a Pullman sleeping car—oh, yes, they allow us to ride in the Pullmans now. After a good night's rest I got out of my berth early in the morning and made my way to the washroom. You know the little washroom, about so big, at the end of the car. Well, I pushed my way in with some other men and finally took my turn at one of the wash-basins.

"Just as I got my face soaped up good and well the train shot around a curve and into a tunnel, where it was dark, of course. When the train struck the curve the jar caused my face to slip out of my hands, and it landed in the hands of the man who was bending over washing away, just alongside of me. He kept on washing busily, as if nothing had happened.

"'Hold on, friend,' I said, 'that's my face you have in your hands.'

"'Is that so?' he remarked. 'Well, what's become of mine?'

"'Guess I've got it here,' said a man on the other side of him. 'I haven't said a word so far, but this face I am washing has been talking right along.'"

Hurrah!

"Stop!"

"What is your business with me, sir?"

"I have none at all; this is merely pleasure."

Thereupon, Bronkhorst Thickneck Sluggs, the famous boulder shaped half-back, who measured 3x4x6 1-2 feet, and weighed on the high side of 240 pounds, seized the haughty gentleman-chauffeur by the throat, yanked him out of his sumptuous puff-cart, thrashed the ground with him till his shoe soles flew off, filled the air full of him, and flung him into an adjacent tree-top, where he hung quivering and limp, and giving a most excellent imitation of a party who had received all that was coming to him.

"You ran over my uncle, last week, and he left every penny of his vast fortune to an orphan asylum!" said Bronkhorst Thickneck Sluggs, as he turned regretfully away.—"Town Topics."

"I wonder the Smith's baby has turned out so big." "Indeed! Why?" "Well, you know, it was brought up on condensed milk."

"When a woman wishes to retire from the world," says the Manayunk Philosopher, "she enters a nunnery. All a man has to do is to marry a famous woman." —Philadelphia "Record."

A little three-year-old miss, while her mother was trying to get her to sleep, became interested in a peculiar noise and asked what it was. "A cricket, dear," replied her mother. "Well," remarked the little lady, "he ought to get himself oiled."

The most gifted of all women composers was Clara Schumann; yet shortly before her marriage she frankly wrote in her diary: "I used to think I had talent for creating, but I have changed my mind. Women should not wish to compose; not one has ever succeeded. To suppose that I was destined to be an exception would be an arrogant assumption, which I made formerly, but only because my father prompted me."

Mainly About People.

It is related that the Dowager Empress of Russia once saw on her husband's table a document regarding a political prisoner. On the margin Alexander III. had written: "Pardon impossible; to be sent to Siberia." The Czarina took up the pen, and, striking out the semi-colon after "impossible," put it before the word. Then the endorsement read: "Pardon; impossible to be sent to Siberia." The Czar let it stand.

The late James McNeill Whistler upon a certain occasion appeared at a dinner party with no tie on. A friend of his remonstrated. "For heaven's sake, Whistler, you've forgotten your tie!" "Not at all," he returned, "not at all! Why wear a tie? My white collar rises from my white shirt, which is fastened by a gold stud. Everything simple, excellent. Why put another white on top of that? I'm much better dressed than you!"

The Rev. Sanford Olmsted, the new Episcopal Bishop of Colorado, is noted for the skill with which he can collect money for charity. He once called on a man who was well-to-do, but somewhat close. He asked for money for a worthy charity, and the man said: "I'd give something gladly, but the fact is I've only $300 by me in cash—$300 that I've put aside for my funeral." "You trust God with your soul," said Bishop Olmsted, "but you're afraid to trust Him with your funeral, eh?" This comment gained the bishop a generous contribution.

The late J. H. Shorthouse was afflicted with a terrible stammer, which he used to say was a blessing in disguise, having led him to use the pen as his great instrument of expression. There were times, however, when the stammer almost ceased, and he could talk on uninterruptedly. One very striking and touching habit grew up out of the stammer. At "family prayers" he and his wife read all the prayers together; because, if an attack of stammering came on, her gentle voice would carry on the thread till he recovered, and the knowledge of this prevented all nervousness on his part.

Here is a favorite anecdote which Abraham Lincoln was in the habit of relating: James Quarles, a distinguished lawyer of Tennessee, was one day trying a case, and after producing his evidence rested, whereupon the defence produced a witness who swore Quarles completely out of court, and a verdict was rendered accordingly. After the trial one of his friends came to him and said: "Why didn't you get that feller to swar on your side?" "I didn't know anything about him," replied Quarles. "I might have told you about him," said the friend, "for he would swar for you jest as hard as he'd swar for the other side. That's his business. Judge, that feller takes in swarrin' for a living."

Professor William Clark, D.C.L., in his very entertaining papers on "People and Places I Have Known" in the "Westminster," recalls many amusing stories of celebrities. Of Charles Kingsley, Professor Clark writes: In spite of a slight stammer, which he nearly overcame, he was popular in the pulpit and on the platform. He once lectured in Toronto, but with no great success. In seeking to stimulate the Toronto youth, he recommended every young man to make it his ambition to "have a bust in Westminster Abbey." The young gentlemen had their own notion of a "bust," and broke into fits of laughter, which were redoubled when Mr. Kingsley repeated with still greater emphasis—"I say a bust in Westminster Abbey."

Soon after J. M. Barrie leaped into fame, the editors of three London journals for which he had done a good deal of work determined to give a dinner in his honor. Mr. Barrie accepted the invitation, and in due course the three knights of the pen and scissors and their distinguished guest sat down together. The hosts, knowing their contributor only by his work, fully anticipated a "feast of reason and a flow of soul." However, the soup and fish were consumed without a word from Mr. Barrie, or at least, with nothing beyond noncommittal grunts. Despite frantic efforts to lure him into conversation, it was not until he rose to put on his coat that he made the first and last remark that he uttered during the evening: "Weel, this is the first time I've ever had dinner with three editors."

James Lane Allen, the Kentucky novelist, is a man of more than average size, and, what is not common to all Kentuckians, is always apparelled in the best form. One evening he stopped in a small shop just around the corner from the quarters into which he had moved only a few days before, and made a few purchases amounting to a dollar or so. When he came to pay, he discovered that he had left his purse at home. He explained to the shopkeeper, and asked that he be trusted for the goods until next morning, as he was in a hurry and could not wait. The shopkeeper declined to let the goods go without the money. Mr. Allen was nettled. "Do I look like a man who would try to 'beat' you?" he asked with indignant dignity. "Of course you don't," replied the shopkeeper, admiringly. "If you did I wouldn't have bothered with you in the first place. It isn't that kind I have to be on the everlasting lookout for."

In his reminiscences in the "Century Magazine," Andrew Dickson White, late United States Ambassador to Germany, repeats an anecdote told him by Hon. Odo Russell, the British plenipotentiary at Berlin. Russell was on one occasion making a call on Prince Bismarck, and the conversation turned on the subject of bores, and how to get rid of them. Bismarck said that he and his wife had hit upon an expedient, and whenever an unwelcome caller was wasting his time it was arranged the princess should come in and say "Prince, isn't it time for you to take your medicine?" thus furnishing an excuse to politely dismiss the intruder. Russell expressed his approval of this plan, and had no sooner done so than Princess Bismarck appeared at the door and, addressing her husband, asked him if it was not time for him to take his medicine. Bismarck and Russell looked at each other a moment in silence and then both burst into titanic laughter.

Dry Placer Miner, formerly of California.

This company has the right, without royalty payments, to use the new patent machine upon all the land it may own, acquire by lease, or operate, in Arizona. We invite special attention to the great commercial value and profit of this machine, and what can be accomplished by it.

What This Machine Will Do.

For the first time in the history of gold mining a machine has been invented which will handle the dry placer gold gravel without water, and in large quantities. This machine will save 98 per cent of all the gold in the gravel, and will do it at a lower working cost than by any existing process. It is operated by a small, compact engine, using crude oil as fuel. A complete plant, capable of handling 300 tons per day will weigh less than 1,200 pounds.

To secure this gold only those placer lands could be worked, which could command large supplies of water, hence the immense bodies of dry placer lands remote from water have never been worked.

Fifteen Hundred Millions in Gold

The United States has yielded nineteen hundred millions in gold, of which fifteen hundred millions—or more than 75 per cent.—were the product of its placers.

Ninety per cent. of the world's total gold supply has been taken from placers by processes which have admittedly lost the bulk of the values.

Simplicity of Machine — Its Method of Operation

The machine is so extremely simple in construction and operation that any intending investor can operate it instantly. He can take a peck or more of sand, either ordinary house or sea sand, or such as is found in the placer lands of Arizona and California, put into this sand ten or a hundred pieces of gold as small as the point of a toothpick, and from that to the head of an ordinary pin, mix the sand and the gold thoroughly, turn them into the hopper or feed of the machine, and in a few seconds the machine will separate the gold from the gravel and recover from 98 to 100 per cent of the gold. It is an absolute, infallible, ocular demonstration of the merits of the machine. It has solved the problem of handling sand or gravel containing gold in regions remote from water.

Cost of Handling Material

Each plant is portable, weighs less than 1,200 pounds and can be easily moved by a few laborers.

The two greatest authorities in the world on the moving of material are "Haswell" and "Trautwine." They say in their standard publications that a laborer can shovel horizontally, 12 feet, vertically 6 feet for 50 feet haul 17 cubic yards in 10 hours.

A well known engineer in his work for the U. S. Government at Sandy Hook, moved 18 cubic yards, 100 feet haul in 10 hours at a cost of 10 cents per cubic yard, paying laborers $1.75 per day.

The dry placer gold-bearing sands of California, Arizona and New Mexico are handled quite as easily as those of Sandy Hook.

Ten laborers can easily supply one machine with 204 cubic yards of gravel in 12 hours, working at the same speed as shown by Haswell, Trautwine or at Sandy Hook.

Placer work on above basis would cost about 11 1-2c. per cubic yard.

Do You Want Monthly Dividends?

We make a special offer of a limited number of shares of stock at this time, because the company requires immediately sufficient to build several machines to operate in the field.

Every machine at work will increase the intrinsic value of the stock.

Twenty machines in the field will increase the price and value of the stock more than double the present offering, and every additional machine means a further increase in price and value.

The Company intends to divide its net earnings every month, so that the stockholders may count absolutely on receiving monthly dividends in proportion to monthly earnings.

STOCK MARKETS

The following advices were received by Mr. J. Cummings & Co., 166 Simcoe street, over their private wire—

New York, Nov. 5—Wednesday evening Nov. 4—Apropos the elections, we predict right here that the next President of the United States will not be Theodore Roosevelt. The market did exactly as predicted by us. We have been telling you for over a week that the turn would come today and it certainly did. The only mistake we made was that we said the turn would come at 1 p.m., instead of that it came one hour sooner. You see a good many came early with selling orders to avoid the rush.

Wall St. Bureau of Information.

New York, Nov. 6—The stock market show while the movement of prices was too sluggish to suit the views of active trading interests. The argument of various observers at the time is conflicting. There are a number of bears on the cry that the gold imports are discounted and that the gold will not arrive in sufficient quantity to offset the additional movements of currency to the west. The banks have lost considerable to the sub-treasury and there will be a bad bank statement; the big clique interests at the present time are holding off for some reason, but the room trading element is playing for scalping markets. The railroad earnings generally continue quite favorable. The prospects are that Europe will work against further gold shipments to America and it is expected that there will be some advance in English bank rate next week if further engagements are made on a very heavy scale. Big men are bullish, but professionals are bearish of reduction in steel prices. Atch. and Penna. are cheap and should be bought conservatively. The Morton trust people are bullish on B.R.T. and Cons. Gas: buy in and around par. B. & O. will not be listed in Berlin until after Jany. 1st, but stock is being bought liberally for transfer on other side. Sugar may be taken around 115; hold St. Paul.

The action of the steel stocks attracted the bulk of attention in the securities market today. The resignation of the third vice-president of the steel trust for purpose of economy, the reduction that is proposed in the price of steel billets, and a lot of talk regarding the Common stock divident served to bring about a lot of liquidation in the common. The London market was strong and foreigners had moderate buying orders; business reports were conflicting. The general market continued quiet and nervous throughout the day; the outside market was quiet On the close announcement was made that the price of steel billets would not be reduced unless the price of steel rails is cut by the rail pool.

Golf.

To play the game of golf very little outfit is necessary. You merely require a ball, a club, a boy, and a bottle of Scotch.

Golf is played on a green. You just go on the green. The boy puts the ball on a little hillock of sand, and all you have to do is to hit it. Not the boy or the sand, but the ball.

Hit the ball as hard as you can, and send it as far as you can. Then let the boy go and find it. Meanwhile, you consult the fourth requisite for the game, the bottle of Scotch.

Golf is a special Scotch game.

The boy is called a caddie, and you can readily see that he is a very useful thing to have about you. He carries all the implements of the game (except that fourth one), places the ball for you, and hunts for it afterwards. If you are a particular person, the caddie can be commissioned to swear for you. But most golfers prefer to do their own swearing. They find it useful, as an aid to the real science of the sport.

In putting the ball into the hole it is customary to use the club. But, if you can get the caddie to turn round and look at the prospect at the critical moment, you will find it much easier to shove the ball into the hole with the toe of your boot.

Ladies play golf, but they never should. They cannot master the language of the royal and ancient game. If they smash a club, or get bunkered, they merely observe, "Bother it!" And "Bother it!" is not golf.—"Ally Sloper's Half-Holiday."

Up to Him.

"Edward," asked Genevieve Zoreman, "do you think a girl should propose?"

"Why, no, indeed! It is beneath woman's dignity."

"There, now!" said the gentle girl; "I told mamma she was wrong. She said that when a young man came to see a girl every night in the week for two years, and stayed for dinner every Sunday, and smoked her father's cigars, and always happened around whenever we had any company, so he would be invited to go to the theater with us, it was the girl's privilege to take it for granted that he was sincere in his attentions and ask him whether he preferred a wedding-trip, or would rather just settle down to home life in a neat little cottage."

Edward knew a hint when a brick wall was shoved over on him.—"Judge."

"Your aunt is shut up in an asylum, isn't she?" "Well, she is and she isn't. She is in there all right enough, but they can't stop her talking."—"Judge."

"And you don't see Reggie any more?" "No; he has ceased to interest me." "Dear, dear! And how does he take it?" "That's what I'm dying to know."

Overcoming the Obstacle.

"Yes," said the young man who was taking the young woman for an auto ride, "the auto has its advantages; but still there is a great difference between it and the good old horse."

"Oh, yes; I suppose there is," answered the young woman.

"For instance," went on the young man, "with the horse, when one was driving with the pretty girl, he could hold the lines in one hand, or wrap them about the whip, and—and—and hug the girl."

"Oh-h-h-h! you awful thing!" exclaimed the blushing young woman.

They sped along in silence for several miles. At last the timid young thing said:

"But I should think that difficulty could be easily overcome."

"What difficulty?" asked the young man.

"Why, that—what you said about the times when the men took the girls driving behind a horse, and—and when they wrapped the lines about the whip, and when they—they—oh, when they did what you say they did."

"I don't see how it could be overcome," said the youth. "If you stop the auto it's liable to start up of itself and upset you in the ditch, and a fellow simply has to keep both hands busy while it is in motion."

"I know," faltered the girl; "but—but it seems to me there would be a way."

"I'd like to know what it is."

"Well, couldn't the girl—couldn't she hug—hug the man?"

In England two-and-sixpence is equivalent to half a crown.

There will be seven days in next week. Roughly speaking there are twenty-four hours to every day. Statistics show that three hundred and sixty-five of these days go to make up a year.

In North street, Kentish Town, there are only five lamp posts and five lamps. This is not unlike a street in Bishop Auckland, where there are six lampposts and six lamps.

In connection with the Stockbrokers' walk to Brighton it may be noted that there are 1,760 yards in a mile. A mile is one of our accepted standards of measurement.

Decimal coinage is accepted in France. The English value of a franc is slightly under tenpence. Our own shilling is, of course, worth rather over two-pence more.

The present Edward is the seventh who has ruled over England. His predecessor of the same name was Edward VI.—"Punch."

Their Great Sorrow.

"I am so worried about baby," says the fond young mother to the proud young father. "What's the matter? He isn't sick, is he?" asked the husband, with some natural alarm showing itself on his countenance. "No, but he is beginning to talk, and——" "And what? Does he have an impediment in his speech?" "No. Worse than that. He says things that don't sound any more sensible than the choruses to the popular songs!" That night, with strained, tearless eyes, a man and woman sat by a little crib, wondering why this great sorrow should come upon them.—Chicago "Tribune."

Poet (with emotion)—All people seem to scorn my poetry—but I suppose when I die everyone will go into raptures. Editor—Oh, yes!—at least, all the editors will, I should think.

Prospectus

—OF THE—

BRET HARTE GOLD MINING COMPANY

THIS company was incorporated October 2nd, 1902, under the laws of Arizona, and at Phoenix Arizona, the home of every officer and director of the company. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $1 per share. Stock is full paid and non assessable the company having complied with every legal detail necessary to make it so. The president of the company is Louis C. Masten, auditor of the M. & P. & S. R. V. railroad company. The vice president is George. H N. Luhrs, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel. The treasurer is Dr. J. M. Swetnam, a successful physician, the secretary is C. S. Scott, a newspaper man connected with the Arizona Republican, and the attorney for the company is A. J. Edwards, the district attorney of Maricopa County, Arizona. These five officers comprise the directorate They modestly refer to any bank or business house in Phoenix for recommendations as to character, responsibility and business judgment.

THE PROPERTY

The property of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Company consists of six full mining claims, 1500x600 feet each, one crossing another, and a fraction of another claim 600x1000 feet. They are known under the names of Moore, Koons, Koons No. 2, Great Scott, Great Scott No. 2, Norman and Dewey. There are also three millsites, the Wainright, Koons and Moore. The group is situated in the Moore mining district, Maricopa County, Arizona, 48 miles north of Phoenix, near the old Black Canyon stage road from Phoenix to Prescott, on a mountain 500 feet above and three-quarters of a mile from Moore's gulch. It might be more generally and familiarly described by saying it lies ten miles east of Tip Top mine, one of Arizona's most famous producers in the early days of mining. The formation of the country is porphyry and shale, and a cream colored quartz impregnated with iron predominates in the ore. There is at all times an ample supply of water for camp purposes, in a good well, and a milling supply can be economically developed in Moore's gulch. An abundance of wood can be secured for $5 per cord, but oil has been recommended as a cheaper and better fuel for milling purposes. There is also a good camp house at the mine.

HISTORICAL

The claims were located about twenty years ago, when the railroad was fifty miles further away, freights correspondingly high, as were prices of all commodities both necessary and luxurious. Notwithstanding this fact money was made by those who first worked the mine, and for nearly a year the ore from the shaft on the Moore claim was worked with an arastra, the crudest and most wasteful method of reduction, yet $12 a ton was saved by the toilers.

PRINCIPAL WORKINGS

Though there are various prospect holes, open cuts, etc., the principal workings consist of a shaft 150 feet deep on the Moore claim, and a shaft 90 feet deep, 175 feet distant on the Koons claim, to the north, the two shafts being connected by a drift north from the 100-foot level of the Moore shaft. In this shaft, also, there is a 20-foot drift to the south on the 25-foot level, showing a good ore body, and another on the 100-foot level, 40 feet to the south, exposing the same vein. A rich vein has been followed in the 175-foot drift. For its dimensions and a detailed report of development work reference is made to the appended report, by Capt. T. G. Cree, who is familiar with the property, and whose conservative estimate is made after critical examination. It is his opinion, however, that the vein followed is a minor one, that the principal vein lies parallel and may be reached with a few feet of cross-cutting, and that these and other parallel veins cropping on the surface eventually come together with depth. That statement is not made because of its universal popularity in the writing of prospectuses, but after noting the indications carefully, and in the knowledge that it is a reasonable expectation frequently verified, where parallel veins dip toward each other. The reasons are apparent to all familiar with vein formations.

FAITH AND HOPE

The hope of the Bret Harte Gold Mining Co. is to make some money, "out of the ground," not out of the stockholders. That hope is found on a reasonable faith:

First: It has a patented property with unclouded title and not a dollar of indebtedness.

Second: The existence of an ore body sufficient to pay, when milled, all expenses of development is already proved. Unless all geological experience is violated, the ore body yet to be developed is vastly greater, a treasure-house whose doors may be unlocked by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, a big sum for a single individual, but a matter easily accomplished by the cooperation of a number who are willing to invest surplus funds and wait patiently a reasonable length of time for compound profits.

Third: No officer of the company will receive one cent of salary until such time as the operations of the enterprise demand his undivided attention and that time will not arrive till prediction, at least, can be made of a date when the treasury shall be replenished by an income from the mine. The officers will, of necessity, be called upon to do much work, temporarily for nothing. This they can afford to do, by reason of their interest in the success of the enterprise Every dollar received from sale of stock will be devoted to the most economical development of the property. And now comes the

made to the reader of this paper: Of the 1,000,000 shares capital stock, 400,000 shares have been placed in the treasury for sale to the public for development purposes only. Of this treasury stock, 50 000 shares are offered at 15 cents per share. With the proceeds of that stock the shafts will be sunk at least 100 feet deeper, new ore bodies developed, hoisting works erected, and the mine placed in a condition necessitating a mill. When that stage of development is reached, the remainder of the treasury stock should be worth one dollar per share, but whatever price it may command it will be more than sufficient to erect reduction works. This enterprise is for those who are conservative, willing to wait a reasonable length of time for results, and who are invited to investigate fully before placing their money. If the enterprise is a failure, the promoters will be the heaviest losers for much money has already been spent in placing the property on its present basis, and, as noted above, the time and energy of the promoters is given without recompense If we win, we all make the large profits that accrue from speculative investment in which some risk is always necessary. The amount required for operations is so small, comparatively, that it should be easily raised, and, if secured, no chance for failure can at this time be seen. Reference to the possibility of failure is made in candor, only, and not in fear, for no mining enterprise can be more flattering in prospect. There are other mines in Arizona, and good ones, to which the promoters might turn their attention did they not believe the Bret Harte property offers the best inducements for big profits on small investments. Will you join us?

A limited number of shares of this really first class proposition may be obtained on application to PETERBOROUGH BROKERAGE CO, Fiscal Agents, Peterborough, or J. J. BRANDON, Fenelon Falls; W. GALLON, Apsley; G. B. HILLIARD, Lakefield, or GEO. H BROWN, Chemong.

THREE UNDOUBTED BARGAINS

A placer and two quartz claims;
Two partially developed quartz claims;
One-quarter section patented land adjoining above;
All located in the Susanville Mining District, Eastern Oregon.
Will be sold together or separately.
Total price, $9,000.

We consider this group of properties to be unusually promising as a heavy producing mine joins a portion of the land, and near-by placer grounds are showing up very rich.

Act quickly, if at all interested.

There is Nothing on Earth

That Shows as much Profit for Work Done and—Money Spent as an OIL WELL.

A gold mine needs continual digging, but an oil well, if it does not flow of its own accord, needs to be pumped, and it supplies the fuel to run the pump.

Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars, yes, Millions, have been made in the Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana oil fields, but these fields are on the decline, and the eyes of the world are turning to the Kentucky and Tennessee fields, where a mighty development has begun. Today Kentucky and Tennessee have over 500 producing wells, and is pumping thousands of barrels of oil. Money is flowing into the field from eastern financial centres as well as from the capital of Europe. It is believed by oil men that this will become the greatest oil field in America.

The Standard Oil Company is spending millions of dollars in laying the foundations of the most gigantic pipe line ever laid in any section. This shows that they have faith in Kentucky and Tennessee as the coming oil-producing section of America.

The American Oil Co.

Is one of the successful Companies operating over 2,000 acres of proven oil land in Kentucky and Tennessee located along the line of transportation. To push the wells and complete the development of this vast property, the Company offers 50,000 shares of treasury stock at 5 cents per share. This low offer is but for a short time, and may be withdrawn without further notice.

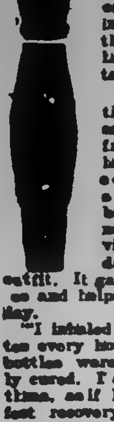
ASTHMA CURED

Mrs. Farndel, Clementsport, N. S., suffered all her life from asthama, but was permanently cured by Catarrhozone after all other means failed.

Mrs. Farndel's recovery affords overwhelming proof of what Catarrhozone will do. Nothing except Catarrhozone was of the slightest benefit, but when given a fair trial it cured

Now perhaps you need something for your cold or bronchitis or Asthma? Why not try Catarrhozone? Thousands have been cured by inhaling it a few minutes now and again, and certainly it won't do you any harm to profit by their experience.



Mrs. Farndel gives the following statement of her case for the benefit of others who are suffering from asthma [illegible] that many will follow her her example and use Catarrhozone.

"I am now in my eightieth year and cannot recall the time when [illegible] free from the Asthma. I had always a choking cough, feverishness, spasms, difficulty in breathing, headache and nausea. My druggist advised Catarrhozone one day, and I bought a large outfit. It gave me relief in five minutes and helped me very much in one day.

"I inhaled Catarrhozone ten minutes every hour, and by the time two bottles were used, I was completely cured. I am as free now from Asthma, as if I never had it. My perfect recovery is due entirely to Catarrhozone. I prize my Catarrhozone Inhaler next to life itself.

(Signed) MRS. T. FARNDEL."

This is proof positive that Catarrhozone is a sure and speedy cure for the worst kind of Asthma. It is guaranteed to give satisfactory results, and your money will be refunded if it fails. All you need is a trial of this grand preparation to be quite satisfied and convinced that it is the best. Your druggist recommends and sells it. Price $1.00, small size 25c. By mail from N. C. Our Sugar Beets

Reports from Wallaceburg show that the sugar beets grown in Peterborough are testing remarkably high, the sugar contents being 16.5. This is about 3 per cent higher than the average this year in Michigan. It is an indication of the remarkable success which is awaiting this great new industry in the Trent Valley.

New Insurance Man

Mr. J. B. Wilcox, who recently disposed of his insurance business here left Hastings on Monday for Peterborough where he will take charge at the office of the Mutual Life Assurance Co. of Canada in that town, having accepted the position of district agent of Peterborough county for that company. Mr. Wilcox has only been in the insurance business for a few years but during that time has proven that he has the ability for a higher position hence his new office with another company.

A Large Acreage

Mr. Jos. L. Garvin, B.A., has been appointed Superintendent of Agencies by the Peterborough Sugar Company, and he has begun the organization of the counties bordering on Peterborough with the object in view of securing a large acreage for next year's campaign. The indications are that the company will have at least five or six thousand acres in their crop next year. Agents at work in Durham and Northumberland are meeting with exceptional success. One agent in Durham secured in the month of October 140 acres. It appears that the farmers in the whole Trent Valley have awakened to the importance of the sugar beet industry.

WEDDED AT ST. JOHN'S

Miss Edith Lovelace, of London, Eng. is Wedded to Mr. Wm. Wareham

At 3.30 o'clock on Wednesday, St. John's church was the scene of a very interesting wedding, when Miss Edith Lovelace, of London, England, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. William B. Wareham, of the American Cereal Works. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. Davidson

The bride was becomingly gowned in blue silk, with cream hat trimmed with white lilac, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Miss Mary Chilton, of town, was bridesmaid, and wore a dress of brown cloth with white and pink trimmings. Mr. W. Simmons supported the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Wareham will reside 381 Townsend street.

A PRETTY NOVEMBER WEDDING

Miss E. J. Armstrong is Wedded to Mr. F. McGee

On Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock a very pretty wedding was celebrated, when Miss Ella J. Armstrong, youngest daughter of Mr. Jas. Armstrong, 61 Hunter street, was married to Mr. Frank McGee, of town. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. Davidson. Miss Lizzie Armstrong, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while Mr. Robert Shaw supported the groom. The bride's dress was of white silk trimmed with applique and ribbons, and the bridesmaid wore blue ladies' cloth trimmed with white silk and velvet.

The many friends of the happy young couple wish them many years of wedded happiness. Mr. and Mrs. McGee will reside at 2 Wilton avenue.

The Work of Organization Now About Completed

The preliminary work in connection with the house to house visitation, on behalf of the Sabbath schools, is now about completed. The following chairmen and secretaries of the various wards have been appointed :

Ward 1.—Rev. W. L. Armitage, chairman, J. W. Bennet, secretary.

Ward 2.—George Lee, chairman, J. S. Ferguson, secretary.

Ward 3.—Wm. Madill, chairman; Geo. Robertson, secretary

Ward 4.—T. W. Robinson, chairman; J. B Mann, secretary.

Ashburnham—C. Harnett, chairman; G. G. Pratley, secretary.

A meeting of the different chairmen and secretaries was held last night in the Y.M.C.A., when the districts were fixed. Visitations will begin next week.

POLICE COURT

A Cow Case—A Vag Gets His Deserts — His Comrade Leaves Town

Mr. A. R. Spence laid a complaint at the Police Court yesterday against R. J. Frise, claiming that the latter was the possessor of a cow which was allowed to run at large. After hearing the evidence a fine of $4.00 was imposed which covered costs.

Daniel Eagan was charged with vagrancy. Chief Rossel stated that there was a complaint made to him that Egan had been chasing a little girl near the police station. He arrested Egan, who said he had a friend in town named Cook, whom the Chief looked after and arrested also, complaints of vagrancy having been made against Cook also. The Magistrate sent Egan to Central Prison for six months. Cook, who said he belonged to Montreal, pleaded not guilty to a charge of vagrancy, and was allowed to go with a warning, and on promise to make his exit from town at once.

MR. KEARNS A WINNER

A Former Resident of Peterborough in a Law Suit

Much interest centered on the action brought by J. W. Kearns, of Sault Ste. Marie, formerly of Peterborough, against the Bank of Ottawa, William Kingsmill and James Piangio. Mr. Kingsmill in January last was the manager of the Bank of Ottawa at North Bay, and on representations made by James Piangio had the plaintiff arrested on the charge of obtaining money from the bank under false pretences. Kearns in December had represented to Kingsmill that he was a partner with Piangio on a contract and signed and discounted a $59 note at 30 days in the name of the firm. Piangio subsequently stated that there had been a discussion on the subject but that the partnership had never really been consummated. On this statement Kingsmill had Kearns arrested but the magistrate dismissed the case the following day. Then the plaintiff brought action for $10,000 damages. At the conclusion of evidence the action was non-suited as against Piangio and the Bank of Ottawa, the court holding that the bank had not as a corporation ordered the arrest of Kearns, but the judge allowed the case to go to the jury as to the claim against Kingsmill, who brought in a verdict of $150 against Kingsmill.

POINTS TO YOU

How Coffee Gets Its Grip and is Never Suspected

It is surprising how many people never suspect that coffee is causing all their trouble until they are finally knocked out or some disease caused by coffee has become chronic and almost incurable.

Even in chronic cases the chances are a shift from coffee to Postum Food Coffee will build the sick one up and in time affect a cure.

Sometimes this happens with surprising promptness. A lady of Syracuse, Neb., says: "Last spring a year ago my doctor told me I would have to stop drinking coffee. I had heart trouble so bad that the least excitement would cause me to choke up so I could scarcely get my breath and I was so nervous I could not bear to have the children move around the house.

"Doctor told my husband to get Postum for me but before he did so we moved to the country and I fell back on milk and water but even such exertion as climbing a flight of stairs caused my heart to hurt me so I would feel sick and faint.

"This continued all summer until in the fall we again moved to Syracuse. There I got some Postum and began to feel so much better after using one package, that I continued its use altogether and I am now better in health than I have ever been before in eight years. I am stronger and fleshier than I ever was and have not had the headache but three times since I began to use Postum a year ago. The change certainly seems wonderful, for I have had no return of the heart trouble at all and I never get tired telling what Postum has done for me." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Look in each package for a copy of the famous little book "The Road to Wellville."

—The marriage of Miss Annie E. Carter, daughter of Mrs. C. Carter, Lindsay, and John W. Mather, son of Mr. J. A. Mather, New Lowell, was solemnized in St. Paul's church, Lindsay, early Wednesday morning, the Rev. Dean Marsh officiating. The bride wore her traveling gown of navy blue broadcloth, with velvet hat to match, and was assisted by Miss Ethel Neelands, who was also gowned in blue. Mr. Norman Mather, of Toronto, brother of the bridegroom acted as best man. The wedding was very quiet, only the immediate relatives of the bride being present. Mr. and Mrs. Mather left shortly after the ceremony for a fortnight's travel through the Eastern States.

OUR LOCAL INDUSTRIES

What the Globe Has to Say Regarding Peterborough's Works

The Toronto Globe yesterday published the following regarding Peterborough's industries: "There is at present no depression existing here. On the contrary, industrial conditions are very satisfactory. Manufacturing operations are active all along the line, with in many cases preparation for expansion of operations. The lumbering industry, one of the first to feel the approach of depression across the border feels no similar approach here. One large company has completed a new mill, now running day and night to keep pace with orders, though extreme difficulty of procuring labor even at prices double those of a few years ago is likely to limit the present season's cut. Another mill is greatly enlarging its capacity and sees no present indication of approaching depression. A large boiler and engine building establishment is also increasing its capacity by the erection of a new boiler shop and additions in its moulding floors. The Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Company (mowers, scrapers, etc.), after a grand season with not a machine or implement left unsold, is reorganizing for next season's work on a large scale installing new and additional machinery. The Matthews Company, pork packers, are enlarging their plant and increasing their capacity over a third, besides having recently purchased another large pork factory in Brantford, which is to be extensively operated. The American Cereal Company, doing a large business in the manufacture of "Quaker Oats," are taxed to the full capacity of the works. It is found that there is not only no diminution in foreign orders nor any indication of it at present, but that difficulty is experienced in meeting Canadian orders.

The Lakefield Portland Cement Company is not active, as this is the annual dull season, but the fact that the company is doubling the capacity of its works does not indicate any lack of a confident outlook. However, the fear is expressed that the depression over the border will lead to shipment of competing products at rates to undersell the domestic product. The fear is also expressed in regard to other industries, particularly heavy machinery. The woollen industry here, it is claimed, is depressed through the British preference.

The labor market is very active, work being plentiful at high wages, and much difficulty is experienced in getting men, even at the advance of wages current.

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY
CURES WEAK LUNGS

St. Catharines Well.

In St. Catharines, the Garden City of Canada, eleven miles from Niagara Falls, on the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway, is situated the historic "St. Catharines Well," about which is woven many a romantic Indian legend, and whose curative powers are known far and wide throughout North America. The water of this famous Saline Well is considerably denser than sea water, but clear, sparkling and odorless, and is remarkable for its penetrative qualities.

These waters are a great specific for such diseases as rheumatism, gout, scrofula, neuralgia, liver troubles, skin diseases, and cases of nervous prostration, or as a tonic pure and simple. The treatment is conducted on the broadest possible lines, the idea being to assist nature as much as possible. The use of the waters is the chief remedial agent, accompanied by static electricity, massage, exercise and rest. All treatment in charge of house Physician. The baths are in a separate building connected with main building by a glass covered corridor.

Mr. Neill's Company Moves

The telephone company which handles the new automatic switch, the patent of which is controlled by Mr. Robert Neill, of Peterborough, is moving its headquarters from Ottawa to Toronto. In Ottawa the company asked permission to put in two hundred 'phones for one year, in order to test the system. They were to use the poles of the Consumers' Electric Company, and guaranteed to indemnify the city against any loss. The Aldermen, however, decided to demand from the company a deposit of $5,000, which the company declined to make, seeing that they were willing to enter into an agreement to protect the city from loss or damage, and that all the expense was to be for one year's experiment. The company has, therefore, decided to make Toronto its headquarters, and the work of removing the plant from this city has commenced.

FLAGS OF PANAMA FLY VICTORIOUS.

The Stability of the the Provisional Government No Seems Well Assured

Panama, Nov. 6.—Gen Tovar and his staff have accepted the terms offered by the Provisional Government.

The stability of the Republic now seems assured.

At Colon, Col. Torres, commander of the Colombian troops, seeing that the situation was hopeless, also agreed to embark his soldiers.

The people of Colon are jubilant. Troops from Panama will doubtless take charge of the city to-morrow.

The telegraph lines communicating with the interior of the Isthmus are kept busy transmitting notices from the inhabitants of outlying places of their adhesion to the recently declared Republic of Panama.

The revolution thus far has been practically bloodless.

WHITNEY TALKS LOUD WHILE IN MONTREAL

Says the Province is Strongly Conservative

RECENT BYE-ELECTION.

Says North Renfrew will Follow Example of Muskoka and Return a Conservative

Montreal, Nov. 6—There was a gathering of Ontario Conservative leaders in the city. Among the prominent ones were Messrs. J. P. Whitney, leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislative Assembly; and J. J. Foy. Mr Whitney reached Montreal the night before and Mr. Foy with several other members of the Conservative party arrived today.

When seen at the Carslake hotel Mr. Whitney was non-committal and declared that his visit to Montreal at the present time had no political significance. He left the Carslake shortly before noon and joined Mr. Foy at the Windsor, and when asked for a statement concerning the political situation in the Province of Ontario, said laughingly that things were very much as they were prior to the recent by-elections in Sault Ste. Marie and Muskoka. The Muskoka election merely confirmed the opinion that had been expressed by the Conservative party since the general elections in Ontario, viz., that the feeling throughout the province was in favor of a Conservative Government. According to Mr. Whitney, the Ross Government spent a large sum of money in Muskoka and the Premier of the province had appealed on the public platform to the electors to strengthen his hands. Muskoka's answer to that appeal was significant. A tremendous struggle was waged to keep Muskoka in the Liberal fold and the constituency was flooded with Cabinet ministers, Liberal members, and the orators and heelers of the party. In spite of these efforts, Muskoka had dealt a blow to the Ross administration that had staggered it.

Regarding the North Renfrew vacancy, Mr. Whitney said the people of that constituency seemed to be in sight of getting representation in the Provincial Legislature at last. North Renfrew would follow the lead of Muskoka. The treatment of North Renfrew by Premier Ross has caused a wave of indignation throughout the province, not only among the Conservatives, but in the Liberal ranks.

Mr. Whitney was closeted with Mr. Foy for some time. It is his intention to leave for the West again to-night. Of the Soo election, he merely confirmed what he said in Toronto the day after the poll, viz., that the town was simply bulldozed by the Government.

—Construction work at the sugar factory has been temporarily stopped and the men induced to enter the field to lift and top the beets. Over forty men are now at work in the company's beet fields, and the harvesting of the crop is being vigorously pushed.

DOWIEITES RETURN TO CHICAGO STARVING

Are Glad to Get Back Without Being Beaten

DISPIRITED AND WEARY

The New York Fiasco a Total Failure, in Financial Straits

Chicago, Nov. 1—Half-famished, yet thankful to be back with whole skins, six train loads of Dowieites arrived in Zion City from New York yesterday afternoon, bringing to an end the crusade from which so much was expected and so little gained. Pellmell the followers rushed to their homes or to the hotel to get something to eat, and then told how, at the very last, they met the worst experience of their stay in New York.

The commissary department, headed by Deacon Cotton, made arrangements with a caterer to furnish lunches sufficient to last all the way home, the price for each to be 25 cents. Each of the lunches was supposed to contain two pieces of pie, four sandwiches, two apples and a bunch of grapes, and on this four meals were to be made.

The followers feel they could have been satisfied if the food had been good, but the lunches were delivered at the last minute and no examination was made. When opened, they contained spoiled meat, stale bread and rotten apples. Accordingly, except what they picked up at Buffalo, the Dowieites had nothing to eat all the way home, for they threw the lunches from the windows.

The followers are more satisfied with their trip than the leaders, but this is principally because they conducted the crusade without getting hurt. "We went there expecting to get beaten by mobs, to be arrested frequently, and even lose our lives," said one man. "But the Lord was with us, and not a person was arrested and not one was hurt. We did not have an accident on the train, either going or coming and it was because righteousness prevailed amongst us—all were sinless. Wrecks are caused by crime and sins."

Only one accident occurred on one of the trains when a hot box was discovered, near Buffalo. In this car a young man who has been suspected of stealing an overcoat in New York, was present, and the fact that the hot box caused was taken as positive evidence that he was guilty, for, with crime absent, they argued, the hot box would never have occurred.

Less Than 100 Converts.

The believers say that New Yorkers are very cool and inexpressive. They admit that there was not the rush for Dowieism they expected. Claims for conversion of less than 100 persons are made. The financial part of the trip is admittedly a failure. One woman in New Hampshire, it is claimed, sold her farm and turned all the money over to Zion. Few other large donations were. were. The rank and file say the lower classes and poorer people seemed anxious to learn of Dowie, but they were not the ones Zion was after. Dowie and his cabinet remained behind and twenty-five of his best choristers were kept with him.

Individually there are 3,000 persons in Zion who are counting the cost. Many male members of the host took their whole families to New York, wives and children. The expense, added to loss of income for two weeks, makes a gaping hole in the total of Zion's bank account. "How about next year's crusade to Utah?" was a question propounded by a newspaper man to several of the weary restorationists. The query was not taken kindly.

The returning host was not as bright and enthusiastic as when two weeks ago it departed from Zion City to convert New York. Travel-stained, with heavy eye-lids, and steps that showed great fatigue, the army came back bearing vivid impressions of the spectacular crusade.

Dowie is in Financial Straits.

The first judgment entered against John Alexander Dowie in a Lake county court was entered this afternoon through default in the circuit court. The amount was for $3,770.83 and represented the claim of the E. S. Street Lumber Company of Milwaukee, for lumber bought for Zion City.

In all suits heretofore Dowie has not allowed them to come to trial, but has settled in each case. The attorneys, Weiss & Bulkley, will at once take steps to get execution on some of Dowie's property at Zion. This failure of settlement is taken as the strongest evidence yet brought out that Dowie is financially embarrassed.

FAST VESSELS DO NOT PAY DIVIDENDS

North German Lloyd Flyer Eat Up the Other Revenues

SLOW BOATS PROFITABLE

Hamburg.American Line Abandon Construction of Six Day Boats

Berlin, Nov. 7—It is stated in financial circles that the maintenance of the three great ocean flyers Kaiser der Grosse, Kronprinz Wilhelm, and Kaiser Wilhelm II., has proved so unremunerative that the North German Lloyd Company is unable to declare a dividend for the current year. On the other hand, it is said that the Hamburg-American line which abandoned the construction of 6-day boats will pay from 5 to 6 per cent. The North German Lloyd's fast boats have proved profitable only during four months of the year. For the rest of the time they have been a dead loss. The operating expenses eat up practically all the expenses from other sources, such as steerage passengers and freight. Believing that slow boats are the real money makers the Hamburg-American line has just contracted with Harland & Wolff, of Belfast, for a 20,000 ton nine-day vessel, which will enter the trans-Atlantic trade next spring.

A NEW IDEA

Give Preference to English Investments

London, Nov. 7—A correspondent of the Westminster Gazette proposes an interesting addendum to Mr. Chamberlain's scheme. He suggests that the British income tax be doubled on all foreign investments, thus providing a substantial inducement to English investments in the Colonies, and a check to the present habit of investing in the railways, and manufactories of the United States and other countries. He argues that the principle of this proposal was admitted, when Colonial stocks were made trustee investments.

A CLOSE CALL.

A Remarkable Escape of a Western Train

Nelson, B.C., Nov. 7—Passengers arriving last night from the coast give details of the marvellous escape of their train from destruction on Sunday night last. Shortly after leaving North Bay the train, which was crowded with passengers, ran into a big log, which had rolled down from the mountain. The engineer stopped the train to ascertain if the engine had been injured from the shock. When stopped the engine and tender were out on a high trestle over a canyon a few feet from the Fraser river. Had it not been for the log, the train would have gone with the engine. The passengers presented an address and diamond lockets to the engineer and fireman for their prompt action.

THE C.P.R. FIREMEN

No Trouble Likely to Follow the Present Demand

Montreal, Nov. 7—There is not likely to be any trouble between the C.P.R. locomotive firemen and the Company. An amicable adjustment of the tariff of wages will be made. The committee are in session daily, and will have their case ready to present to the railway authorities in a day or two.

The attention of Mr. Ash Kennedy, chairman of the firemen, having been drawn to the statement in a Winnipeg paper, that the delegates were returning to Montreal with an almost unanimous verdict of the men to the effect that no deviation from the schedule as previously placed before the company will be accepted, Mr. Kennedy said that no such statement could be made in truth. The present negotiations were on an altogether different basis from those which had gone before, all divisions of the railway, instead of merely a portion, being represented.

THE ALASKAN BOUNDARP

Mr. Aylesworth Discusses Latest Washington Scare

Toronto, Nov. 7—Mr. A. B. Aylesworth does not think that either the Canadian or the United States Government will have to worry over the fact that the stretch of 140 miles of Alaskan territory has not been defined by the award. When shown the despatch from Washington, stating that the territory was still unawarded, and fears of certain American officials that it might lead to another dispute, he said: "This is a mare's nest. So far from it being just discovered that it is not marked on the award, we of course, knew of it at the time.

"As I was not a party to the award, I had no more right to speak of the reasons why this was left as it was, than a bystander.

"But, as I understand it, other members of the commission considered that this was of not practical consequence. The surveys before us did not give information as to the physical features of this strip of territory. They have it here 140 miles, I thought it was about 120, and that information was necessary if the line was to be drawn that far from the ocean.

"Sir Louis Jette and I thought it should be closer to the water, but the other commissioners got further inland than the surveys extended.

"A straight line between these mountain peaks, they thought, would serve the purpose, and that was done. It is a snow and ice region, unless they find a gold mine under it some day."

ON A SERIOUS CHARGE

A Young Defendant Charged with Stabbing

Montreal, Nov. 7—Probably the youngest prisoner ever before the Court of King's Bench here, faced Mr. Justice Hall yesterday.

He is Adelard Forget, a fourteen-year-old, who is charged with stabbing Aaron Goldstein. The case, as outlined by the Crown, is that, on the Day of Atonement, last month, Goldstein was at his home, 388 Cadieux street, and with several boys was standing around the front doorstep, when the accused, with friends passed. There was a little jostling done, and Goldstein got a cuff in the neck which did not hurt him. When the boys had gone away he felt a sharp pain in his left side, and upon examination it was found that he had received a slight stab. He was taken to the General Hospital, where the wound was treated. The case is being heard in English, French, and Hebrew. The addresses to the jury are being made this afternoon.

An Early Session

The Toronto Mail and Empire says that it is the intention of the Ontario Government to call an early session of the Legislature. The exact date has not yet been fixed, but it will be, our contemporary understands, some time during January, or about four weeks earlier than the members are ordinarily summoned to transact the business of the province.

Reduction in Railway Staff

Ottawa, Nov. 7—The Canada Atlantic Railway Company will join the procession in the matter of reducing the several staffs. The reduction, it is understood, will take place chiefly in the car shops, where on repair and construction 300 men are now employed. It is alleged that this step has been rendered necessary by the high wages, cost of fuel and supplies, and the lull in the production in the industrial centers.

COMPLICATIONS IN THE FAR EAST ARE NOW SAID TO BE EXCEEDINGLY GRAVE

Germany and Brazil

Hanover, Nov. 7—Herr Plate, president of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company and Privy Councillor Herman Stoltz, of Hamburg, have returned from South Brazil, where they have been travelling in the interests of the Hanseatic Colonization Company, of which they are leading members. They have arranged important improvements in connection with the new colony, especially in the way of transportation facilities, which will afford easier access to the company's land grant of more than 1,500,000 acres. In order to carry out the improvements a loan of one million marks (238,000) has been floated.

This colonization scheme, although denied, is sure sooner or later, to test the merits of the Monroe Doctrine. It is believed by many that war between the United States and Germany is in sight.

Rumors that Japan is Preparing to Land Troops in Corea

RUSSIA HURRYING FORWARD REINFORCEMENTS

Nothing Short of a Miracle will Prevent War Now, Says the London Daily Post

London, Nov. 7—The Post says that Russia is hurrying forward immense bodies of men into Manchuria. Nothing short of a miracle will prevent war.

Paris Nov. 7—Le Temps says that Japan is preparing to embark troops for Corea. Transports are in readiness to convey an army corps to Corea.

Tokio Nov. 7—M. Haghiwara, the Japanese secretary of the British legation who is visiting the Yalu valley, reports that rumors of Russian military movements at Wiju emanated from Japanese subjects, who were seeking thereby to conceal their own lawless seizures of timber rafts. It is true that there are Russian soldiers in the vicinity of Wiju but they are engaged solely in protecting the interests of lumbermen. As a result of an application to the Russian commander, Haghiwara was admitted to the Russian concession at Antung and courteously received. He was given every facility and reports that it difficult to determine whether the building there is really a fort, inasmuch as no guns are mounted. The position is very bad from a military point of view, but the building is solidly constructed, indicating the intention of permanent occupation.

London, Nov. 7—The Daily Mail's Tien Tsin correspondent cables that 10,000 Russian troops have occupied Mukden.

A Tokio correspondent of The Times says that General Haghiwara has now been courteously admitted to Yongampho and given every facility by the Russian commander. He reports that it is impossible to say that there is any fort there as no guns have been mounted, and the position is a very bad one, but the solid construction of the building indicates that a permanent occupation is intended. Haghiwara adds, says the correspondent, that the rumors of Russian military movement emanated from Japanese subjects, who sought thereby to conceal their own lawless seizure of timber rafts.

Tokio, Japan, Nov. 5—Reports from Pekin say Russia now threatens to assume sole charge of the government of Manchuria unless China promptly dismisses Yuen, the Taotai of Mukden, and decapitates another Mandarin, who recently punished disorderly Chinese bandits in Russian employ. This causes intense indignation here.

CONFERENCE SUGGESTED.

London, Nov. 7—A despatch to the Telegraph from St. Petersburg says that Berlin correspondents report that one of the objects of thee Czar's visit is to submit to Emperor William a proposal for a conference of the powers, including the United States and Japan, to settle conflicting interests in the Far East, at any rate those jeopardizing peace. The conference would aim to allot to each state the territory, sphere of influence and other privileges which could be justly claimed. It is understood that after the formal submission of the scheme to Emperor William at Wiesbaden, it will be discussed by Chancellor Von Buelow and Count Lamsdorff, Thursday, when, having having assumed practical shape, the Czar will summon an international congress to consider it.

Montreal, Nov. 6.—"It is due entirely to Canada's action that Japan has not given it the benefits of a conventional tariff instead of including it under the general tariff," was the announcement made today by Mr. Nosse, the consul-general for Japan, on his arrival in the city, in dealing with the resolution adopted by the Manufacturers Association. "By the revised treaty between Japan and Great Britain, concluded in 1894 it was agreed that there would be reciprocal freedom of commerce between the dominions and the possessions of the two high contracting parties.

"At the time Great Britain insisted that the tariff conditions of general favored nations should be included, and it was agreed that the stipulations of the free treaty should be applicable to all the colonies and foreign possessions of her Majesty, with the exception of the Dominion of Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

"At the time the Conservative Government which was then in power in Canada was asked to come in, but refused to agree to a conventional tariff and asked that a reciprocal arrangement be made between Japan and Canada. Great Britain's action in insisting on the general favored nations conditions prevented this.

"Hon. Sidney Fisher looked into the question when in Japan last summer, and announced that it would be better to wait till the expiration of the present treaty before opening negotiations for any change. Both Japan and Great Britain would be pleased to have Canada come in right away, if she would do so.

"If Canada were a treaty-making power she could make a separate treaty for herself."

IMPORTANCE OF CANADIAN TRADE

Pointed Out by Manchester Paper in Regard to Preference

BUILD UP RIVAL NATIONS

Is the Alternative to Binding the Empire Together by Commerce

London, Nov. 7—The Manchester Courier, commenting upon Mr. Chamberlain's speech at Birmingham, asks: "Which is better to conciliate the Canadian who does five pounds trade per annum with us or the Russian who does as many shillings? What of our emigrants? Are we to encourage them to go the colonies by a wise system of preferential tariffs? Or by neglecting the Colonies are we to let our sons and daughters build up other and rival nations? Everything that helps the colonies helps us."

J. A. Hobson, the well known writer on economics, in an address at a meeting of the Ethical Society said that Mr. Chamberlain has carefully ignored India and the rest of the Empire, and when he appealed to us to save the Empire, he was really thinking of one particular Colony, Canada. Mr. Hobson did not desire to depreciate the Colonies, but he would be very slow to desire to lose the intercourse with the continent and the United States for the sake of putting money into our own pockets or the pockets of the Colonies.
